PROCEEDINGS
OF
OF
A. F. & A. M.
OF ILLINOIS

In compliance with the provisions of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois, the seventy-ninth annual meeting was held in the city of Chicago, at Medinah Temple, commencing on Tuesday, the 8th day of October, A. D. 1918, A. L. 5918, at 10 o'clock a. m., and was opened in ample form by Bro. Austin H. Scrogin, most worshipful grand master.

PRAYER.

Rev. Bro. Walter Aitken, the right worshipful grand chaplain, lead the devotions.

Almighty God; we come into Thy Presence this day fully conscious of Thy kindly dealings with us, and rejoice that the lines are fallen to us in pleasant places, and that we have a goodly heritage in this great fraternity and in the men who, in other days, have laid the foundations of morality, righteousness, love to God, and the fraternal relations of men which have become so large a part of the life of the world. We thank Thee for reason and conscience and all the holy aspirations of the human heart, and for the sublime possibility of moving in rhythmic measure with the Infinite. Fondly do we seek the realization of the great purpose of our existence and the fulfillment of the obligations resting upon us. We desire that truth and justice, peace and happiness, religion and piety, shall be firmly established in our hearts; for these are qualities and principles that can never die, and the identification of our Masonic Order with these, determines its immortality and enduring worth. Our officers change; our members pass away, but the truth of our order remains. Prepare us, Gracious Father, for the larger duties that are to be performed. The times in which we live are momentous. Nations are in strife. The brotherhood of man receives scant consideration at the hands of the war lords. Human liberty is trampled under foot by ruthless autocrats. Men of all creeds and shades of belief have been called into the conflict. Many of our own number are laying down their lives on the altar of sacrifice. The fire of a holy enthusiasm has been kindled in their eyes as they turn upon the nations seeking to violate and destroy the democracy of the world. Bless them we pray Thee, and soon may the flag of our beloved country be recognized by the whole world as the symbol of aspiration, intelligence, brotherhood, and protection. To this end bless our gathering here. Divinely direct our most worshipful grand master, and the members of this grand lodge, so that our deliberations shall be in harmony with the ideals of our order and our country; and help us to see the possibility of the embodiment of the principles of Masonry in human life, and make us to be dissatisfied with a superficial profession of them. Hear us in the name of Him who taught us to say: "Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name; Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven, give us this day our daily bread and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory, forever, Amen."

TELEGRAM TO THE PRESIDENT.

As the first business of the grand lodge, Bro. Elmer D. Brothers suggested that the following telegram be sent to the President. The grand lodge, by a rising vote, adopted the suggestion.

*Woodrow Wilson, President,

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 8, 1918.

Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., representing one hundred seventy-five thousand Masons of the state of Illinois, in seventy-ninth annual meeting assembled, congratulates you on your stand of no peace by compromise, and urges that you demand absolute and unconditional surrender as a precedent to any further consideration of terms of peace with Germany and her allies.

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN, Grand Master.
ISAAC CUTTER, Grand Secretary.

It was so ordered by the grand master. Brother Wheeler then asked as a question of personal privilege that he be given time to explain his action. The grand master granted his request and set the hour at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

REPORT OF GRAND MASTER.

The grand master, Bro. Austin H. Scrogin, presented his annual report.

Brothren of the Grand Lodge:—

This era is the Gethsemane of the nations. May this struggle prove to be the Armageddon of international strife. The powers of evil would crucify the freedom of mankind on the cross of ambition, conquest and greed. Our nation, seeking no material gain, is freely offering her choicest possessions on the altar of world liberty. The firstlings of her flock, the choicest of her young men, with cheerfulness and enthusiasm, have sprung to arms to meet the threat of universal subjugation at the hands of hordes of Huns in their mad onslaught on civilization. Patriots extol the Stars and Stripes, but even more sacred to every true American is the flag of service, now seen in almost every home and lodge in the land. The stars of white on the blue field of Old Glory represent sovereign states. The stars of blue on the field of white in the service flag, stand for human lives, ready for service or sacrifice.

“Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with a tear and a woman’s prayer
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!”

Our country is not only offering her millions of sons but pouring out her billions of treasure to save the world from the tyranny of Autoeracy. In return nothing is desired but the consciousness of having helped to make the world a decent place in which to live.

In this great work Masonry has no small part. Members of lodges in vast numbers have joined the colors and are, either “over there,” or are in camps training for over-seas service. It has been my great privilege to loosen the reins, heretofore firmly held, and by dispensation enable many soldier boys to bow at our altar before embarking on their great mission abroad. Masonry in Illinois and elsewhere has shown its devotion to Freedom’s cause in providing large funds by free and voluntary contribution for the comfort of those in camps here, those in need abroad and to care for their loved ones left behind. Without seeking rivalry with the Red Cross and the Young Men’s Christian Association, the world’s two greatest humane institutions, our fraternity has been ardent in their support. Masonry will hold up its hands until the going down of the sun of war and await the dawn of peace. In pushing the Liberty Loan and War Savings Stamp Campaigns, the craft has been no slacker. In every city, village and hamlet, Masons have been in the forefront in the battle. When the insanity of war has passed and the world has again been restored to reason, Masonry will continue its beneficent work. It will be able to lend valuable assistance in the reconstruction to follow the years of the fierce frenzy of destruction.

During the past year the growth in membership has been phenomenal. The net gain has been the greatest in the history of this grand lodge. In all ways the craft is in a most flourishing condition. While there have been a few cases of discipline for Masonic offenses, yet the percentage of these to the entire membership is so small as to be almost negligible. I come then, my brethren, to congratulate you on the excellent condition of our great institution and hope that what we do here at this session may lead to even greater accomplishments in the days to come.

SPIRITS DEPARTED

It is fitting that at the first moment we should pause and reverently bow in solemn silence in memory of those who have been conveyed over the river into "eternal rest and refreshment in the paradise of God." It is a source of great satisfaction that the silent messenger has not called to summon anyone from the ranks of our present or past grand officers.

However, the sad intelligence came near the close of the year that Charlton L. Gregory, chairman of the Board of Grand Examiners, passed away at Davenport, Iowa, on September 12, 1918. Brother Gregory's home was at Aledo and he went to Mercy Hospital for an operation for appendicitis. Illinois Masonry loses one of the choicest spirits in our great jurisdiction. It was my sacred privilege to be present on September 16 and conduct the funeral ceremonies of our departed brother. Few men in Mercer County held a higher place in the hearts of the people than Brother Gregory. For twenty-four years he held the important position of County Superintendent of Schools and had received the nomination of his party for his seventh term. The management of the educational interests of a community is of vital importance to the people. His intimate touch with the young people of his city and county will be shown in the lives of thousands in the ages to come.

Brother Gregory's connection with Masonry began in 1892 when he was initiated in New Boston Lodge, No. 59 at New Boston, Illinois. He affiliated with Aledo Lodge, No. 252 on February 26, 1901. Brother Gregory was a member of the Board of Grand Examiners for four years. He was made chairman, was reappointed last October, and had almost completed his year of service. Brother Gregory's family life was ideal. He leaves a widow and one daughter who is in the bloom of young womanhood.

The Committee on Obituaries will present a list of prominent Masons of other grand jurisdictions and masters and past masters of Illinois lodges who have passed away since last we met.

DISPENSATIONS AND FEES

An unusually large number of dispensations have been granted during the past year. Many of these were for young men who were preparing to enter into the service of their country. To enable them to receive the degrees before their departure, on proper requests of lodges, I gave authority to confer degrees in less time than that prescribed. It was my desire that these young men, found to be worthy by the lodges where they resided, should have the coveted privilege of being Masons as well as soldiers. In all cases care was exercised to see that all the fundamental requirements of the law were complied with. The following is a list of dispensations of all kinds with fees for the same:

INSTALLATIONS SINCE GRAND LODGE

During the year it has been my privilege to install those grand officers who could not be present at the session of the grand lodge.

Among my first public acts was one on October 17, 1917 to install Brother William N. Ewing, grand standard bearer in Bloomington Lodge No. 43.

On January 24, 1918 in Springfield Lodge No. 4, I was greatly pleased to install Brother Frank O. Lowden as grand orator. His sterling qualities as a man and Mason, made it fitting that the governor of our great commonwealth should follow in the line of distinguished men who have graced and adorned this position. On this occasion the certificate of honorary membership in the grand lodge was presented. It was most appropriate that Past Grand Master, Ralph H. Wheeler, under whose administration Governor Lowden was made the first honorary member in the Grand Lodge of Illinois, should make the presentation. Brother Wheeler made a forceful and eloquent address.

Again on March 19, 1918 it was my privilege in St. Cecilia Lodge to install Brother William E. Edwards as grand pursuivant.

Right Worshipful Brother George A. Stadler as district deputy grand master installed Brother Charles Tenney as grand steward, on April 20, 1918 in Bement Lodge No. 365. Brother Tenney has the distinction of having been a member of the grand lodge for more than 50 years.

UNAUTHORIZED CIRCULARS AND APPEALS

The wave of patriotism among the rank and file of Masons has risen so high that there has been danger that some of the foundations might be swept away. Remembering the heroic struggle for liberty made by the people of France some of our lodges have been moved to actions which are not in line with Masonic rules and usage. It is not desirable that the methods of the hustings should be invoked to stampede the grand lodge or its executive officers in the performance of well defined and well understood duties.

No one can claim with any degree of justice that the grand East or the grand lodge itself has not been alive to every patriotic impulse that has moved any citizen in the great world struggle for human freedom. Yet, without permission of, or endorsement by the grand master some lodges have taken it upon themselves to circularize other lodges on the recognition of France. No better cause could have been chosen than to appeal to the sentiment of our great fraternity for the land of LaFayette. No one can say too much for the sacrifices of the French people in their defense of their homes and institutions. However good this cause may be, it does not justify one lodge in appealing to other lodges and brethren to enter into a campaign for the accomplishment of any aim not endorsed and approved by the grand master. If permitted, causes far less worthy and in fact unworthy, might speedily be presented for action. The rule, long established, is that no individual Mason and no lodge shall appeal to the lodges of Illinois without the positive permission of the grand master.

It is not my purpose here to condemn what was done, through the great patriotic impulse of the war, so much as to call attention of lodges to the rule of this grand body against indiscriminate outbursts and appeals to move lodges to unconsidered and often pernicious action.

RECOGNITION OF FRANCE

Among the Masons of Illinois and in the Masonic press, there has been some discussion of the attitude of this grand lodge toward the grand bodies of France, claiming to be Masonic.

It will be recalled that under the wise leadership of Joseph Robbins, the profoundest Masonic jurist and scholar Illinois ever produced, the hand of fellowship was withdrawn from the Grand Orient as well as the Grand Lodge of France. This was not done in any fit of anger, but action was taken after due deliberation and most thorough investigation. There are certain landmarks or fundamental principles which, if removed, would render Masonry innocuous. It would become a purely benevolent and social association of men merely for pleasure and good fellowship. Mackey's "Encyclopaedia of Masonry" page 442, landmark No. 19, says that "a belief in the existence of God as the Grand Architect of the universe is one of the most important landmarks of the order. It has always been admitted that a denial of the existence of a supreme and superintending power is an absolute disqualification for initiation." If then the candidate must express a belief in Deity to gain admission, how can a grand body be accepted as Masonic after it has deliberately emasculated Masonry by eliminating even the name of God from its code of laws? This, France intentionally did in 1877.

In the 21st, Mackey again says that "it is a landmark that a book of the law (the Bible) shall constitute an indispensable part of the furniture of every lodge." The lodges of France do not comply with this essential of regularity. They place on their altars the book of constitutions, corresponding to our Code or Blue Book.

One other revolutionary action is described on page 290 of Mackey's Encyclopaedia. It says that "One of the most extraordinary acts of the Grand Orient of France has been the recent abolition of the office of grand master, the duties being performed by the president of the council of the order." Thus the supreme authority of the Grand Orient is taken over by another and separate body of the Scottish Rite.

Considering all this it seems extremely unwise to allow mere sentiments of patriotism to rush this grand lodge into action that afterwards it would deplore.

It is my suggestion, therefore, that action be deferred until the calmer counsels of peace may lead us into safer channels than those to be found in the vortex of war.

DUES OF SOLDIERS

The present war crisis brings new problems to be solved. In many lodges the question has arisen as to the dues of soldier-members. Under the law there is no provision for their remission. There is but one cause for this and that cannot apply to men in the service. There is every reason for keeping the boys at the front in good standing in their lodges at home. Under the stress of army and naval service and the uncertainties incident to this, many men may overlook the payment of their dues. The lodge cannot now remit the dues without violating the law. This should be so amended that it would be obligatory on lodges to keep them in good standing. I, therefore, recommend that all men who are in the active service either in the army or navy, be exempt from the payment of lodge dues while in the service.

PHYSICAL QUALIFICATIONS

There is much agitation regarding the physical qualifications of candidates. Our law is rigid in the extreme. It follows from the origin of speculative masonry as a development from the operative art. The "perfect youth" theory, still held by many grand lodges, is a relic of conditions long since outgrown. It is the internal and not the external qualifications that fit men to be Freemasons. Even in times of peace our law has been considered unnecessarily drastic. Hundreds of thousands of young men have gone into the service of their country. Many of these are under age now. These, the flower of our young manhood, are at the front battling for the liberty of the whole world and are the special guardians of American institutions. It is my opinion that our law should be so changed as to permit these returning heroes, though maimed and torn in our defense, to apply to our lodges for admission. Of course suitable regulations should be made so that the grand lodge, through the grand master, can supervise and control in cases where this might be abused. I therefore, recommend that an amendment be prepared to bring about the change suggested.

ACTIVITIES PERTAINING TO THE WAR

In the great movements of citizens of our country in response to the calls of the government for help in meeting the demands made necessary by the greatest war in all time, our members and lodges have vied with the patriotic citizens of every community in meeting the calls of our country. In the drives for the sale of Liberty Loan Bonds and War Savings Stamps, Masons have poured out their money and taken an active part in inducing others to make and exceed the quotas of their communities.

They did not halt at investments on the best security on earth and at a fair rate of interest but were among the most liberal givers where there was no return. The Red Cross and the Young Men's Christian Association did not appeal to Masons in vain. They were ever ready to give of their substance while their sons, grand-sons, and neighbors were giving their blood for world freedom. Masonry and patriotism have been and will ever be synonymous terms.

ARMY LODGES IN FRANCE

Requests have been made for authority for the organization of army lodges in France. I felt impelled to decline to grant these petitions. There is so much danger involved in this that I did not feel like taking the responsibility. One of the essentials of entrance into Masonry is that of character. Many men enter into the service of their country and make good soldiers who would not make good Masons. The uncertainties of determining the fitness of men are so apparent that there is no security against the admission of the unworthy. These army-made Masons would return to their homes and would be recognized as members of the craft.

WAR FUNDS

At the beginning of the great world war it was the feeling of Masons that nothing should be left undone to support the government in its activities and to provide for the necessities of those who donned the uniform and went into the service of their country. The grand lodge at its session last October made provision for the accumulation of a fund by voluntary contribution of one dollar per member of all the brethren in the state. I sent out from time to time through the secretaries of the lodges circular letters calling their attention to this movement. As a consequence of this a considerable sum came into the hands of the grand lodge. As this in itself required no personal appeal to the members of the lodges, it was found that a great many, either through indifference or want of knowledge of the movement, failed to respond. In order to render the effort in this direction more effective I submitted this to the Advisory Council and asked for suggestions as to a more effective plan of reaching all the members of the craft. At this conference a plan was wrought out to be carried on by the district deputy grand masters. Each was furnished with a list of lodges in his district giving their membership and the amount already furnished and asking them to call on the lodges of each district and present in person the importance of completing a fund equal to one dollar of their membership. This resulted in a very largely increased sum so that on the 15th of May when this work was closed it was found that $133,762.35 had been paid over to the grand treasury. The brethren of the state are to be congratulated on their ready response to this call to care for those of our members who have entered into the service of the United States.

NATIONAL DEFENSE FUND

There was in addition to this, a movement known as the National Defense Fund. A committee consisting of Brethren Ralph H. Wheeler, Past Grand Master as chairman; Arthur E. Wood, Junior Grand Warden and Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter, R. A. M.; Andrew L. Anderson, Grand Commander, Knights Templar of Illinois; William L. Sharp, Grand Standard Bearer, Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, and Nelson N. Lampert, were appointed to carry on the work of securing this fund. At the beginning this was somewhat confused in the minds of Masons of the state with the War Fund provided for in the action of the grand lodge. To avoid confusion the War Fund was closed on May 15. Since then the committee have been active in soliciting funds and have secured many contributions and are planning a number of important things at the different camps. The erection of a building at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station is in contemplation for the benefit and entertainment of the Masons located there. The necessity for something of this kind is made apparent because of the large membership in the Anchor and Ark Club of this training camp. Some 3000 Master Masons are members of this club. It is not a lodge, confers no degrees, but is simply an organization for the comfort and entertainment of the men situated there who are members of the fraternity of Masons.

Consideration has been given to the provisions for the soldiers at Camp Grant and other camps located in Illinois. Nothing of a definite character has been done. It is believed that these camps, being more temporary than that at Great Lakes, the necessity for such provision is less urgent. The training camp at Great Lakes is permanent having been established before the war began and is the largest of its kind in the world. The camps at Rockford, Rantoul and Belleville are established to provide for the securing of men for the various departments of the government service. When the war closes these are of necessity to be abandoned. The sums collected have been paid into the treasury of the grand lodge and the amount of the same will be found in the report of the grand treasurer.

A BROTHER RELIEVED

But one application for charity has been received during the year. This came as a request from a lodge. The Committee on Charity made careful investigation and found the case to be a worthy one. On the recommendation of this committee an appropriation of $100 was made to assist a member of Covenant Lodge No. 526.

ONE CASE OF DISCIPLINE

It is matter for congratulation that during the past year there have been but few cases requiring the exercise of discipline over masters or lodges. This indicates a healthy and harmonious condition that is truly commendable. It became necessary to exercise discipline over the worshipful master of Universal Lodge No. 985. Complaint having been made I appointed R. W. Brethren George E. Moore, Albert T. Thompson, and Harry H. Milner, district deputy grand masters, as a commission to investigate and report. The commission recommended that the brother be deposed from office as worshipful master for a period of sixty days. Pursuant to this recommendation I deposed him and placed the lodge in charge of the senior warden.

NO REDUCED FARES

In times past it has been possible to secure reduced rates on railroads leading to Chicago. Owing to the fact that the railroads are now under the control of the federal government it is not possible to secure any concessions in fares. Application was made to the director general of railroads for the usual reduction but the reply was that under government management all such requests must be denied.

OUR HOMES

There is little new to be said of our two great Masonic Homes. Each, in its own way, is moving along successfully carrying out the purposes of the craft in educating and training the children of our deceased brothers for useful citizenship and providing a haven of rest for those who have reached the evening of their lives.

The new building at Sullivan has been finished and furnished and is now in use. This completes the trio of buildings originally contemplated. The Royal Arch Memorial Hospital constitutes the excess of original plans. The craft of Illinois is again indebted to the Grand Chapter for the substantial donation of $5000 for the maintenance of the hospital. Our homes are exemplifying in concrete form the real aims and desires of the Masons of Illinois.

A BEQUEST TO SULLIVAN HOME

Through Brother Robert J. Daly, president of the Masonic Home Board, I was advised that a bequest to the home at Sullivan of some $8,000 had been made by Brother Ozias Stotts, late of Mattoon, Illinois. Not being in possession of the facts concerning this, I placed the matter in the hands of P. G. M. Brother A. H. Bell to take such action as he found to be necessary. So far nothing further has been reported.

USE OF THE CODE QUIZ

In the examinations for commissions as grand lecturers, during the past year, the Board of Grand Examiners has required applicants to be questioned as to their knowledge of the law. At each of the examinations held the board prepared a list of 25 to 30 questions from the Code-Quiz. These lists were different at each examination. Brother C. L. Gregory, chairman of the board, reports that the applicants graded from 85 to 95 per cent and that results show the plan of requiring this examination in the law to have been productive of satisfactory results. So far the plan of conforming to Paragraph A, Section 179 of the Code, by requiring applicants for commissions as grand lecturers, to show their proficiency in the laws, rules and regulations of the fraternity, as well as in the ritual, has justified the sum expended in preparing and publishing the Code-Quiz.

THE SCHOOLS OF THE YEAR

It was my pleasant privilege to attend all of the six schools held during the past year. Never has greater efficiency been shown by the Board of Grand Examiners and the large number of grand lecturers in attendance than in the schools of 1918. The perfection to which our system of Masonic instruction has been brought was never better exemplified. The plan of devoting Wednesday evening to more general education in the work of Masonry was followed. The evening sessions were devoted to addresses by distinguished craftsmen. The school at Harrisburg at the last moment was abandoned on account of small pox. The brethren of Eldorado at once arranged for and royally entertained the school. At Eldorado, the grand chaplain, Brother Walter Aitken made a powerful presentation of Masonry, its aims and purposes. At the Danville School, state superintendent of public instruction of Illinois, Brother Frank G. Blair was scheduled to speak but, missing train connections, failed to arrive. Brother Isaac Cutter and others supplied the vacancy in a manner most acceptable. At the school held at Quincy, Attorney General E. J. Brundage made a very interesting address, highly appreciated by all present. At Freeport and Princeton, Brother Blair made telling addresses. At the Chicago School, Supreme Justice, Brother Harry Olson, was the speaker. This was patriotic and instructive.

GERMAN LANGUAGE LODGES

Fully realizing the great danger to American institutions by the German propaganda, I took up with the nine German-language lodges in Illinois the advisability of a change to the medium of speech in America. I had a consultation with the masters of the German lodges in Chicago. A second meeting was then held. At this all the masters, wardens, secretaries and most of the past masters of the lodges in the state, working in the German language, were present. The elective grand officers were called in consultation and with the exception of Brother Goddard were all present at this time. After full consideration, I was gratified to find that six of the nine lodges accepted the suggestion for a change willingly and cheerfully. The disappointment, however, was that there were three recalcitrants. They refused and thus made further exercise of executive power necessary. I have no doubt that the rank and file of the membership of these lodges are in line with the great majority of those in this country who were born in Germany or are the descendants of such. In the present world crisis I felt that we, as Masons, should be in thorough accord with the American spirit and the attitude of the government. Those who have come from foreign land should without hesitation accept our language, customs and spirit and be willing to conform to all patriotic requirements. This should hereafter be a one-language country. Those who come from abroad to our shores should do so willing to become Americans in all respects the same as those of American birth. If they accept the protection and enjoy the privileges guaranteed by our country they should be willing to become component parts of this republic.

I should say also that I felt wholly independent of considerations growing out of the war, that the time had come when the standard work of this grand lodge as taught in our schools of instruction should be followed by all of the lodges in this state. This is an English speaking country. Our laws and customs are founded on the common law of England, and to have lodges in this state working under our authority in a variety of languages is confusing, and in this day unnecessary, since about all Masons in Illinois speak the English language as well or better than any other.

On the refusal of the three German-speaking lodges to change from the language of an alien and enemy country to that of our own, I felt the full power of my office and prerogatives should be exercised to enforce obedience. For these reasons on the 10th day of July, 1918 I promulgated the following edict and caused the same to be sent to and read in all lodges in the state:

To the Worshipful Masters, Wardens, and Brethren of Constituent Lodges:
BRETHREN:—

A World Crisis is impending; the right of the Nations of the World to choose the form of government under which they shall live is attacked by a predatory militaristic power with a savagery and inhumanity which shock the moral sense of the world; the success of this attack would destroy democracy and free government and the achievements of the moral and religious progress and development of the human race for the past two hundred years; the liberties of all free nations, the perpetuity of the fundamental principles and precepts of Freemasonry now hang in the balance. At such a time, in such a crisis, every loyal and patriotic Mason must be conscious of the personal duty resting upon him to aid in all ways possible, in this supreme moment, to defeat this menace to humanity.

Fully realizing and appreciating the patriotism and loyalty of the members of the nine lodges in this state which have heretofore been using the German language in their ritual and lodge records, and at the same time making grateful acknowledgement of their quick and generous response to the calls made upon the Masons of this state to support the government in the Liberty loans, the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and the two grand lodge funds for the benefit of Masons in the service and the government in its war aims generally; and having been advised that six of the nine German speaking lodges of this state have already taken favorable action in the matter which is the subject of this edict; and profoundly convinced that the welfare and growth and future progress and development of the German speaking lodges in this state will be prompted by a generous and fraternal acceptance and observance of this edict:

Therefore I, Austin H. Scrogin, Grand Master of Masons in the State of Illinois, by virtue of the authority in me vested, do hereby issue and promulgate this edict.

Beginning with the second stated meeting in August, 1918, the English language only shall thereafter be used by each of the constituent lodges in this state, in recording its minutes.

In the constituent lodges in this state which have heretofore used the German language in their ritualistic work, the English language shall be used in all ritualistic work as soon as the officers shall have acquired the necessary proficiency to properly conduct the work in the English language; and from and after the fifteenth day of January, 1919, the English language only shall be used in all ritualistic work in all the lodges in this state.

It is ordered that this edict be read in full in open lodge at the first stated meeting after it shall be received.

It is further ordered that this edict be entered in full upon the records of each lodge and be made a part of the proceedings of said lodge at the meeting at which it is read.

GIVEN under my hand and seal of the M. W. Grand Lodge this 10th day of July, A. D. 1918, A. L. 5918 at Lexington, Ill.

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,
Grand Master.

(SEAL)

Attest: ISAAC CUTTER
Grand Secretary.

Notwithstanding the promulgation of the foregoing edict one lodge defied the authority of the Grand Master. This was Lessing Lodge, No. 557 of Chicago. When the edict was received, by a practically unanimous vote it was ignored. The master permitted discussion and allowed the motion to be made and put to a vote. On receipt of information of the lodge's action, I visited them and when the vote taken was confirmed by the records I arrested the charter for insubordination.

It is my belief that the master and the members of the lodge were ignorant of the power and prerogative of the Grand Master. Their loyalty has not been questioned. I, therefore, recommend that on compliance with the edict the charter be restored.

AN UNUSUAL OCCASION

One of the most pleasant incidents of my year's work was a meeting in Cornerstone Lodge, No. 875 on the 16th day of May, 1918. At this time it was my privilege to confer the 3rd degree on Bro. Horace M. Blood, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Illinois. There were present Brethren Dan G. Fitzgerrell, deputy grand master; Arthur E. Wood, junior grand warden and Isaac Cutter, grand secretary and the entire Board of Grand Examiners, together with enough grand lecturers to fill all stations and places with commissioned men. A very large attendance of Masons, many of whom were Odd Fellows, were present to see a grand master of Masons confer the sublime degree of Master Mason on a grand master of another fraternity.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL

The George Washington National Memorial Association held its annual meeting at the city of Alexandria, Va., on February 21 and 22, 1918. Owing to the pressure of official duties, I was unable to attend. It was my pleasure to name R. W. Brother Elmer E. Beach, senior grand warden, as the representative of the grand lodge. Brother Beach attended and made report of the condition and progress of this great enterprise. It is my feeling that our grand lodge should have a more vital part in this important work than it has, heretofore, seen fit to take. The demands in support of our homes and other works of necessity are great. We should not, however, allow this memorial to the world's greatest apostle of human freedom and one who was ever proud to be seen adorned with the badge of a Mason, to be completed without some participation in a material way.

To show more fully the details of this memorial movement, appended hereto will be found the report of Brother Elmer E. Beach.

Feb. 26, 1918.

DEAR BRO. SCROGIN:—

I have the pleasure of making report to you concerning the trip to attend the last meeting of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association held at Alexandria, Va., on the 21 and 22 of this month, which meeting I attended at your request, as your representative.

There were something more than fifteen states represented, with two or three grand bodies represented by delegates from the same state in some cases, there being about forty delegates in attendance all told. There was considerable enthusiasm for the accomplishment of the purposes of the association, evidenced by the speeches of the delegates made upon the reception of the report of the Ways and Means Committee. Finally, a committee was appointed to formulate a working plan for the purpose of raising the necessary money for the building of the memorial and its endowment. During the last year greater progress has been made than in any like period heretofore, and the association now has about $120,000.00 in cash and pledges from grand lodges which are supposed to be, of course, absolutely good. A plan was drafted and approved by the delegates providing for the organization of the country by dividing it into ten divisions, with one division chairman in each, he to see to the appointment of a state superintendent or chairman in each state, these appointments, however, to be made, wherever possible, by the nomination or appointment of the grand master in each state. These state chairmen were then to organize their various states into districts, with a chairman in each, and thus begin a campaign of education for the present, after which (and it was hoped this would come next year) a drive would be made to raise the funds necessary. A detailed report of this plan will be mailed a little later to me, I presume, or to you; if to me, I will forward it to you.

Last year the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania subscribed $10,000.00 to this fund. A similar amount was subscribed by another grand jurisdiction, $5,000.00 by another, and many of the delegates expressed confidence that the sum required would be soon available or in sight. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that Washington, as a Mason, was valuable to the fraternity by reason of his prominence and his distinguished services to the country. His intense loyalty and patriotism are believed to be potent factors in the efforts throughout the nation, and especially among Masons, to stimulate our people to emulate those distinguished virtues. From this point of view alone, if from no others, the success of the movement to establish this memorial seems very desirable and important.

The entire trip was enjoyable to me in that I was able to meet the distinguished delegates from other grand jurisdictions and become more thoroughly acquainted with the project and the sentiment back of it. The pilgrimage to Mt. Vernon was also interesting.

Fraternally yours,

ELMER E. BEACH.

FRATERNAL CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON

There was held in the city of Washington on December 13, 1917 a meeting of the representatives of all fraternal organizations in connection with those of fraternal insurance societies. It was my privilege to be present as your representative together with Deputy Grand Master Dan G. Fitzgerald and Past Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler. The call for this conference came from the President of the United States. It was stated by a representative of the government that it was not the desire of the department to have the fraternal societies form a great organization for the distribution of war loans. This was provided for in the Federal Reserve Districts provided by law. The object of the meeting was stated by a representative of the Treasury Department to be that all brotherhoods and all organizations of fraternal societies should be made to feel that they are centers "for the distribution of patriotic propaganda throughout this entire country."

The aims and purposes of the government were presented by Secretary of the Treasury, William G. McAdoo in a lengthy address. As a result of the conference the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, that this convention composed of the representatives of the fraternal orders and fraternal insurance societies of the United States thank the Secretary of the Treasury for calling this meeting; further, that we pledge our respective societies and ourselves to cooperate with the Secretary of the Treasury in every way within our power in the placing of and subscribing for the securities of the government for the prosecution of the war in behalf of the preservation of the liberty of the world.

It was the privilege of all the visitors to accept an invitation to call upon President Wilson at the White House. All accepted this courtesy and made a visit to the chief executive of the nation in his official office.

Little was done more than to inspire the heads of the great fraternal organizations of the country to a more enthusiastic participation in the war activities of the nation.

THE NEW YORK CONFERENCE

Pursuant to a call of the grand master of New York, a conference of grand masters was held in the city of New York on May 10, 1918. Being unable to attend, owing to the pressure of official business, I appointed Past Grand Master Alexander H. Bell as my representative.

This meeting was called to consider the part the Masons of America should take in the great conflict overseas. The question of sending representatives to France to establish Masonic headquarters for the benefit of the soldiers from this country was then under discussion. It was given thorough consideration. The Grand Lodge of New York has published a book of 208 pages giving a verbatim report of the proceedings of this meeting. It is needless for me to say that Brother Bell was a leading factor in the extended discussion. As the outcome, the following was adopted:

Resolved, that it is the sense of the brethren here assembled, hailing from the following grand jurisdictions, Massachusetts, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma, Ohio, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Oregon, New Hampshire and New York, that there is present need for Masonic service overseas to minister to Masons with the Colors in the forces of the United States; that some service lies in the cities, the recreation centers to which the boys go in large numbers while on leave, in work that may be approved by the War Department; that in such cities, seemingly, there should be established general Masonic headquarters where Masons may receive Masonic welcome, comfort and encouragement and where our boys may be hosts at home; that the duplication of such headquarters in one and the same town would be a waste of energy and funds; that such headquarters be manned from time to time by workers from any or all of our jurisdictions as circumstances permit; that the expense thereof be paid so far as possible out of a general fund; that the fund be dedicated to Masonic Fraternal Service Overseas; that the several Masonic jurisdictions be invited to contribute to this fund on an annual basis for each member; that the management of the fund be entrusted to a committee composed of representatives of the several contributing jurisdictions, selected as each jurisdiction sees fit; that each such jurisdiction cast one vote; that this service be in no wise exclusive, but rather a tribute to and token of Masonic Brotherhood without regard to territorial divisions; that we recommend that the several grand lodges in the United States create War Boards ready to engage in this work as demand may appear, and we also recommend the presentation of this plan to our several jurisdictions.

Brother Bell spoke and voted against the adoption of this resolution.

Brother Bell's position was that the funds of each grand lodge should be under its control. He insisted that the money of this grand jurisdiction should be in charge of some Illinois Mason who would be directly responsible to this grand lodge. The plan of putting the money of the several grand lodges into one common fund was strenuously opposed by our representative. Brother Bell says in his report that "I am impressed with the conviction that you ought immediately to put at the head of this affair some man of discretion and business sense and tact in dealing with men and let him take with him about two men of his own choosing or of your appointment and arrange immediately to go if possible on the same ship with the New York men so that co-operation may begin at the earliest possible date."

The proposition involved was of such magnitude and grave concern that I did not feel willing to take the responsibility of the step suggested without referring it to the grand lodge. For this reason I deferred action and present the entire matter to you. In view of the great work being done in France by the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army and other organizations recognized and authorized by the government, there was little need of haste. I am advised that the New York representatives have already gone over. When they get into action their experience will enable us to act with a greater degree of intelligence.

I, therefore, present the entire matter to you without recommendation, for your action.

CONCLUSION

My stewardship is ended, my labors for our great fraternity completed. I come to render an account of my work as your steward. We hear in these strenuous days from many the injunction "Do your bit," but this has not been my aim—I have rather endeavored to do my best. That the affairs of so great a financial and fraternal institution as this bring great cares and grave responsibilities is a fact so self-evident that it need not be stated.

My entire time has been cheerfully given. To have made mistakes I do not hesitate to admit for "to err is human." However, by the ready and willing assistance of my corps of officers, the Advisory Council and numerous other loyal and intelligent Masons, mistakes have been reduced to a minimum. The extra complications incident to the greatest war of all ages have taxed my strength and capacity to the utmost. Yet in all this my work has been a labor of love. I have put my heart, my soul, my all into it. While I may not have helped others I certainly have received great benefit to myself.

"There is a destiny that makes us brothers,
None goes his way alone,
All that we put into the life of others
Comes back to us in our own."

As I complete the term of service to which you have called me I should be most ungrateful if I did not from the bottom of my heart say to all whose assistance I have received—I sincerely thank you.

The report of the grand master was referred to the Committee on Grand Master's Report.

Official papers and other documents appertaining to the grand master's report will be found in the appendix.

REPORT—Committee on Correspondence.

Bro. Delmar D. Darrah presented his report as Committee on Correspondence. It was received, ordered printed in the proceedings and will be found in the appendix.

REPORT—Committee on Grand Master's Annual Report.

Bro. Charles H. Spilman, chairman of the Committee on Grand Master's Report, presented the report of that committee. On motion, it was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of Illinois:

Recognition that this is a time of national stress when the principles upon which our country was founded and which constitute the underlying and interwoven strength of our Masonic institution are at stake, forms the keynote and the primal text for the greeting of the grand master to the grand lodge at the opening of this session. It is the thought which is in all hearts that he voices when he refers to the stars in the Masonic service flag, each of which represents a loyal brother who has gone to defend the stars in that other flag, and the grand master may be well assured of the full accord of his brethren of the grand lodge in the exercise of the power of his office to make it possible for many earnest, patriotic citizens to take with them into the vivid possibilities of human combat abroad the sustaining knowledge of our Masonic principles.

The greatest year of material prosperity in the seventy-eight of the Illinois Grand Lodge has been recorded, and there is genuine satisfaction in the realization that not alone in increase in numbers or in the other phases of physical welfare has the advance been noted, but that in every instance, individual or collective, the Masons of Illinois have measured up to demands that were unprecedented and requirements that were remarkable. And this has not only been as fraternal brethren but also as citizens of the commonwealth.

In reverent retrospect we recall the fact that in the year which has fled there have departed from our midst brethren with whom we have held treasured fellowship, among them but a few days since Charlton L. Gregory, chairman of the Board of Grand Examiners, and we refer this subject to the Committee on Obituaries.

The official activities of the grand master were invoked upon numerous occasions which testify to Masonic progress—the laying of two cornerstones, the dedication of seven apartments and temples of the craft, and the constituting of eleven lodges, and we congratulate the brethren of the state at large upon the fraternal development thus evidenced in the respective communities. In addition the grand master has issued dispensations to seven lodges, four in Chicago, and one each in Bloomington, Nauvoo and Christopher. His action in these seven instances is referred to the Committee on Lodges Under Dispensation.

The exercise of constitutional prerogative has called for filling a number of vacancies in the official roster of this grand lodge, ten right worshipful district deputy grand masters being thus appointed, and these appointments are severally approved.

Approval is likewise extended to the action taken in naming three grand representatives, each of whom succeeds a brother representing the Grand Lodge of Illinois near another grand lodge, who was removed by the hand of death.

It is interesting to note that notwithstanding the constant demands upon the time of the grand master he has found opportunity to officially visit forty-four of the lodges of this jurisdiction. All portions of the state have had this opportunity on the part of the brethren to derive inspiration from the presence of the official head of the order, and he in turn to achieve those personal contacts through which alone a proper perspective may be secured. The custom of visitation on the part of the grand master, while it frequently is accomplished at considerable personal sacrifice and discomfort because of the exigencies of travel, is of great value and should never be permitted to lapse or diminish.

Because of the unusually large number of dispensations granted we deem it well to refer this portion of the report to the Committee on Finance and that on Jurisprudence for consideration of the detail.

The formal installation of such officers of the grand lodge as could not be present at the last session was accomplished by the grand master at convenient places during the early part of the year.

Regularity in the conduct of lodge affairs and the upholding of established routine for the consideration of matters involving the interest of all was emphasized under the heading of Unauthorized Circulars and Appeals. It is a wise custom that the grand master and his associate officers of the grand lodge form a bulwark against hasty or ill-considered action, which may be based upon temperament or the hysteria of passing circumstances, and we endorse heartily the rigid adherence to this usage.

Following in this same general trend, the suggestion of the grand master that action relative to the recognition of France be deferred until calmer times, is heartily concurred in, for the reason that while to some it seems of pressing moment, it must be admitted that it is only the matters of the moment which cause it to so seem. The problem is not new, it is only the urge that is, and a permanent decision will be more satisfactory if not based in any part upon a transitory condition.

The recommendation that the laws be so amended as to make it obligatory upon lodges to keep members in good standing during absence in army or naval service is a positive position one step beyond the optional action which has been taken by many lodges in the absence of warranting legislation, but being a question of law is referred to the Committees on Jurisprudence and Legislation for presentation to the grand lodge.

In line with the spirit of the times that patriotic sacrifice shall not militate against the participation in Masonic intercourse of desirable citizens, the recommendation that the rigidity of the physical qualifications law be suitably abated, is in the opinion of this committee a step in the right direction but being a question of law is referred to the Committee on Legislation.

Every true Mason will derive pleasure from the official pronouncement that in the drives for the Liberty Loans and the sale of War Savings Stamps, and in support of the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and kindred activities, Masons have in every instance been at the forefront.

The action of the grand master in declining to accede to requests for the organization of army lodges in France is in thorough harmony with the prevailing sentiment in this state and is referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence.

From the statement that more than $133,000 has been paid into the grand treasury as a war fund, and from the activity later manifested in the National Defense Fund, it is apparent that the membership at large and the grand officers as well are keenly awake to the needs of the times, have done all that is possible up to the present, and are in position to do more when the way shall be opened for this greatly desired result.

The special request for charity of which mention has been made, already has been before the Committee on Charity, and the action taken is therefore approved as it stands.

The single case of discipline brought to your attention is referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence.

The report from the Masonic Homes this year is brief but interesting, showing that they are ministering in the way intended and with a quality of service most satisfactory. It is pleasant indeed under this heading to record an additional contribution from the grand chapter for the maintenance of the splendid Royal Arch Memorial Hospital. Mention is also made of an individual bequest to the Sullivan Home.

The value of the Code Quiz is officially attested through its use by the Board of Grand Examiners in the preparation of lists of standard questions, and through the high percentages scored by those taking the examinations.

Schools of instruction held during the year brought into evidence a great array of talent, and were received by the brethren with the interest and enthusiasm that they deserved.

A new problem, brought about by war conditions abroad and their reflection in this country, confronted the grand master concerning the refusal of a few of the German speaking lodges to substitute the language of the land for the alien tongue which they employed. This resulted in the issuance of an edict directly applicable to the situation. One of the lodges refused to obey the mandate of the grand master and its charter was arrested. It does not appear that the question of loyalty was involved. The matter of expediency and public policy was directly concerned and later the question of insubordination was intruded. A review of the action shows that the grand master moved with deliberation and in thorough accord with Masonic spirit. His action is referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence.

The privilege of conferring the third degree upon the grand master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Illinois was a pleasant incident of the official year of the Masonic grand master.

A fitting interest was taken by the jurisdiction of Illinois in the annual meeting of the George Washington Memorial Association at Alexandria, Va., the grand lodge being represented by R. W. Bro. Elmer E. Beach, senior grand warden, who has reported in detail to the grand master.

Similarly, the grand lodge was represented by the grand master, by deputy grand master Dan G. Fitzgerrell and by past grand master Ralph H. Wheeler at the fraternal conference in Washington in December last.

What part the Masons of America should take in the conflict overseas is referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence.

Peace hath her victories the same as war, we are told, and likewise its responsibilities, but when to the cares of a peaceful people there are added the burdens of war, the resulting responsibilities may become well-nigh crushing. We do not therefore deem it proper to conclude a review of the grand master's account of his stewardship without pointing out how well the tremendous duties of the year have been handled. In no instance has a task been evaded, nor has any circumstance been considered too trivial to give it careful attention. The brethren of Illinois, in looking to the grand East have found wisdom in decision, strength in action, and in the manifestation of Masonic character the beautiful service that makes life worth while. We congratulate the Grand Lodge of Illinois upon the genius which has so ably directed its affairs in the past twelve months.

Fraternally submitted,

We find on examination of the records of this lodge that at a meeting dated August 3, 1918, the master, due to his unfamiliarity with the blue-book, issued an order concerning one petition which order was not in accordance with Masonic Law.

After summoning the master of said lodge before this committee for personal consultation, your committee is of the unanimous opinion that in the action which was taken, there was no intent to evade the law in any respect, neither was such illegal action taken to impose upon the fraternity.

We recommend that this lodge be granted a charter as "Nauvoo Lodge No. 1021."

All of which is fraternally submitted.

REPORT—Committee on Clubs.

Bro. Owen Scott, chairman of this committee, made the following report. It was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of Illinois:

We, your special committee on the relation of club rooms in connection with lodges, fraternally report as follows:

Pursuant to action of the grand lodge in approving the report of Grand Master Wheeler at the session of 1917, we caused notice to be sent to all lodges of the state, giving time and place of hearings. Two meetings were provided for—one in Chicago, May 15 and one in Springfield, May 21. All persons interested in club rooms in connection with Masonic lodges were invited to be present and present their views regarding their advantages or disadvantages to Masonry.

The meeting at Chicago was held as per notice at the LaSalle Hotel on May 15. Representatives were present from Park, No. 843; Quincy, No. 296; Hermit, No. 39; Bodley, No. 1; Lambert, No. 659; Columbia, No. 819; Grand Crossing, No. 776; Mt. Joliet, No. 24; Matteson, No. 175; Ravenswood, No. 777; Providence, No. 711; Occidental, No. 40; Humboldt, No. 555; Circle, No. 938 and Integrity, No. 997—in all fifteen lodges. In these the opinion was unanimous that the club rooms were in no sense detrimental but a positive advantage. In all lodges, except one, there was no objection among the members to their existence. In this one it was stated that "one or two members are opposed to the club feature." It was shown that the clubs were usually furnished as reading rooms, with billiards, pool tables and equipment for other games. In all it appeared that no intoxicating liquors were permitted and nothing allowed in the way of games of chance or gambling. All club rooms were closed on Sundays, except for reading and instructing of candidates.

On May 21, at the St. Nicholas Hotel at Springfield, the second hearing was held. Representatives appeared for DeWitt Lodge, No. 84, at Clinton; St. Paul, No. 500, Springfield and Mt. Pulaski, No. 87, at Mt. Pulaski—three in all. In the case of St. Paul, the representative was R. W. Bro. A. L. Pickel, district deputy for the 65th District, who appeared for the district rather than for his own lodge. In all those appearing at Springfield, except one, the club rooms were regarded favorably and as an advantage to the several lodges. The only real objection came from DeWitt Lodge, No. 84, located at Clinton. Bro. B. F. Staymates and R. W. Bro. Carl Swigart appeared in opposition and the worshipful master, Bro. H. S. Macon, in their favor.

This club was originally started as an independent organization. By action of the lodge the club rooms were taken over, a debt of about $400.00 assumed and paid by the lodge and the dues raised from $3.00 to $5.00 per year. Subsequently the annual dues were reduced to $4.00. It was estimated by Bros. Swigart and Staymates that about 20 members, out of a little over 200, objected to the club room. The principal objection seemed to be that the expenses were paid out of the lodge treasury. Bro. Staymates stated that he was perfectly willing to have the club room remain rent free, if supported by its members and not by the lodge. The W. M., Bro. H. S. Macon, heartily endorsed the club room. The only expense is for lighting and heating and this is quite small. He thinks the club rooms of great advantage to the lodge. The rooms could be rented but they are worth more to the lodge for their present purpose than the rental they would bring into the treasury. The dues at $4.00 could not be reduced even though the club were eliminated. Brother Macon thought there were not over five members who were opposed. The abolition of the club rooms would create far greater objection than their continuation.

The fact that only seventeen lodges in the entire state had sufficient interest in this question to send representatives to these hearings shows that no serious differences on this matter exist. Opposition of any vital nature is confined to one lodge. The master of this one, representing at least 90% of its members, strenuously advocates its maintenance. From this practical unanimity little ground appears for drastic action or interference with the local management of lodges in regard to club rooms.

From these hearings it develops that two questions arise.

1. Shall lodges establish and maintain club rooms and pay the expenses of the same out of their treasuries?
2. Do club rooms adjacent to lodges interfere with their workings?

In answer to the first question the evidence adduced in the committee's hearings shows that the cost is extremely small and that the advantages to the lodge far outweigh this expenditure. As to the second it is shown that the club room tends to create interest in the lodge, to bring members to the meetings and to furnish clean amusement and entertainment, freed from the demoralizing influences of the saloon and common pool room.

Attention has been called to the report of the Jurisprudence Committee and the action of the grand lodge thereon found on pages 144-5, proceedings of 1914. It will be seen that the question at issue there is very different from the one under consideration here. "Social clubs, baseball clubs, musical or other organizations within lodges" were held to be against the spirit of the craft. The Jurisprudence Committee said, "A club, although confining its membership to persons belonging to a particular lodge, should in no sense be a part of the lodge. To form an organization 'within the lodge' means to form it with the sanction of such lodge, with the right to use the name and funds and secure the influence of the lodge to promote its interests. We are of the opinion that there is no objection to the formation of societies or clubs recruiting their members from a particular lodge. The objection is to using the name, influence or funds of the lodge to further the purposes of such society or club." This is very clear and stands as the law of the grand lodge. A club or society to which all the lodge are not members by virtue of their lodge affiliation should not use the name, influence or funds of the lodge.

The question before your committee involves club rooms as adjuncts to lodges. No society or club within the lodge, to which only a part of the members belong, can legally bear the name or use the funds of the lodge. Club rooms as social adjuncts have been proven by the evidence before your committee to be an asset rather than a liability.

In view of the foregoing, your committee finds that no legislation is needed in this regard. Lodges, themselves, appear to be regulating the club rooms in such a way as to require no interference by the grand lodge. Should abuses appear in individual cases on proper showing, the executive functions of the grand master are quite sufficient to regulate and correct any irregularities that may appear. Your committee believes in the largest liberties of constituent lodges, consistent with the general good of the craft.

We, therefore, recommend that the present status of club rooms be allowed to remain. Lodges, however, should be reminded that it is quite essential to the continued growth and prosperity of Masonry in Illinois that they do not encroach upon their lodge treasuries in unnecessary and extravagant use of lodge funds in club rooms or otherwise for social purposes. In these strenuous days of this world-wide crisis, lodge funds should be conserved for the relief of the many thousands who may become needy, worthy brothers.

Lodges and individual Masons have been able to contribute to the many war relief measures in such a liberal manner as to bring credit to the craft. This no doubt will continue.

Your committee fraternally recommends that an appropriation of $800.00 be made and set aside for the Library Fund, this portion of the report to be referred to the Committee on Finance.

With a total of 167,286 members of our fraternity throughout the state of Illinois, it follows that a large number are in the national service, many of our beloved boys now being across the water, and standing with the Allies at the outposts and very frontiers of civilization, it is proper indeed that each of our 869 lodges should keep as nearly an accurate record as possible of the names and addresses of its own members in the service, with their rank, branch of service and movements. This work requires special equipment such as an index file for letters and a loose leaf "Photo Album" to be used exclusively for the soldier boys in uniform. A monthly letter should also be sent out giving words of encouragement and news from their lodge, a list of their own brother members in the service, with details of their attachment, camp and regiment, and information so far as possible, solicited, of their own movements and doings. This work it would seem should be directly in charge of the Librarian, or a good special committee, and this valuable collection should be carefully filed away to be used for reference in those great glad days, when the "dark clouds are turned inside out," and the boys are home again.

REPORT—Committee on Jurisprudence.

Bro. Monroe C. Crawford, chairman, presented the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence. On motion it was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on Jurisprudence reports that it has considered the various subjects in the report of the most worshipful grand master and fraternally submits the following:

1. That portion referring to "Dues of soldiers" is heartily approved. In the great world crisis, the members of the craft in the service of their country whether over-seas or in the camps in the United States shall be protected in their membership. It is not deemed expedient to change the law regarding payment of dues of members while in military or naval service. To do so would require another change on their return.

It is therefore recommended that lodges shall carry, until their return, all members whose dues are not paid. It is also further recommended that all lodges be instructed that during the war no member in the service shall be suspended for non-payment of dues.

2. Your committee approves the recommendation of the grand master regarding "Physical Qualifications." It is believed that the present law is unnecessarily strict, and that thereby many good men are barred from Masonry, who, but for some slight bodily defects, would make useful members of the craft. The teachings of Masonry appeal to the internal rather than the external qualifications of candidates. We are of the opinion that returning soldiers with physical defects, together with those in civil life, should be given a broader opportunity to become Masons than they have under the present law.

We therefore recommend that the Committee on New Legislation be instructed to submit an amendment to the law in accordance with the recommendations herein.

3. Your committee agrees with the grand master regarding "Army Lodges in France," and recommends that his action be approved.

4. We feel that a wise discretion was exercised by the grand master in the removal of the worshipful master of Universal Lodge No. 985, and placing the lodge in charge of the senior warden. This action was taken on the recommendation of a commission after full and thorough investigation. As he was deposed for 60 days, and this time has almost expired, the master will soon be automatically restored. It is the opinion of your committee that the punishment is ample and was deserved.

We recommend that action of the grand master be approved.

5. The war has presented many grave and delicate questions during the past year. Among these was the attitude of Masons in connection with "German Language Lodges." The war has brought so much of grief and sorrow to the world that even the language of the nation responsible for these atrocious deeds became abhorrent to the American people in general. It is readily agreed that most citizens of German birth and extraction are true and loyal to the land under whose flag they have lived and prospered.

Nevertheless, there were some who were willing to accept the blessings of American freedom and yet give aid and comfort to the arch enemy of civilization and humanity in all lands. To avoid even the appearance of disloyalty the grand master took steps to require the nine German speaking lodges to abandon the language of the great enemy of our country. This he endeavored to do by persuasion, but all could not be reached that way. Six readily assented. Three held out against his righteous requirement. In order to settle the matter once for all on July 10, 1918, he issued his edict commanding all to change from German to English, giving them ample time for the re-adjustment. All but Lessing Lodge No. 557 at once obeyed the supreme command. This lodge with a practically unanimous vote, ignored the edict. Whereupon the grand master arrested the charter and the lodge has since been closed. After hearing the statements of the worshipful master, two past masters, and that of the district deputy grand master, your committee is of the opinion that the action taken was through mis-information and ignorance rather than wilful disobedience. We do not think this lodge or its members meant to be disloyal, as they are good American citizens.

After hearing their pledges for the future, we recommend that the charter be restored.

6. Under the heading, "The New York Conference" is given the result of a meeting in New York City of grand masters and representatives of grand lodges. Being unable to attend, the grand master of Illinois appointed P.G.M. Alexander H. Bell, as his representative. This meeting was called by the grand master of New York to consider the advisability of sending representatives to the seat of war to care for Masonic soldiers in the armies of the allies. In view of the wonderful service rendered by the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, Salvation Army and other organizations authorized by the military authorities on the battle-fields of France and Belgium, your committee agrees that it would be impossible for Masonic representatives to add to the wonderful work being done by the organizations herein named. It is doubtful if our representatives would be permitted by the Government to go overseas. It is now understood that New York has been denied passports for those chosen and ready to sail.

It is therefore recommended that no action now be taken. All moneys for the relief of soldiers and their families should be conserved for the great needs of those who may return. Emergencies may arise and with our present funds we can meet all demands made by our brave soldier-Masons or their dependents.

SENATOR LEWIS.

At this stage of the proceedings, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, United States senator, was introduced and addressed the grand lodge. He said he came to the grand lodge to beg its pardon for a seeming discourtesy on his part, because he had failed to attend the grand lodge during the time he was grand orator. He then spoke at length on the conditions in Europe and the part Masonry is taking in the world's war. He said that in the far east, and especially in the Holy Land, the principles enunciated by the Masonic institution had been accepted as the guide by the new officials of the local governments and that "Masonry had done more to inspire men to duty and to save the souls of men than any other agency in Europe." The senator was roundly applauded.

Bro. Ralph H. Wheeler submitted a personal report of his doings on the Committee on National Defense.

RESOLUTION.

Bro. Edward H. Thomas, chairman of the Committee on Finance, presented the following resolution. On motion it was adopted.

Your committee recommend that $1.00 per day be allowed all representatives in attendance upon this grand lodge meeting in addition to the compensation provided in the by-laws.

REPORT—Committee on Appeals and Grievances.

Bro. Alexander H. Bell, chairman, presented the report of the committee.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of the State of Illinois:

BRETHREN:

Your Committee on Appeals and Grievances respectfully reports that at this session of this grand lodge it has had submitted to it four (4) cases as follows:

AUBURN PARK LODGE No. 789 vs. * * * *

Charges were preferred against this brother in Auburn Park Lodge No. 789 prior to the annual session of this grand lodge held in the year 1917. The trial was before a commission appointed by the grand master, and resulted in a finding of guilty and of expulsion from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

This case was before this grand lodge at its last annual session and was considered by the Committee on Appeals and Grievances. That committee reported, recommending that the finding of the trial commission be affirmed and that the sentence of expulsion be approved. The grand lodge adopted the report of that committee. The matter is again brought to the attention of this committee through a petition filed with the grand master on the part of the accused, and by the grand master has been referred to this committee.

Your committee has carefully read the record in this case. We have reached the conclusion that the Committee on Appeals and Grievances at the last session of the grand lodge gave this case full and fair consideration; that its report and the action of this grand lodge in approving such report amount to a final adjudication of the questions involved in this case. While this committee very readily agrees that notwithstanding an adjudication has been reached, still if manifest injustice has been done, this grand lodge would be strong enough to right its own wrongs. But in this case your committee is not persuaded that a wrong has been done, and we therefore decline to take any action in this matter, which means that the action of this grand lodge at its last annual session remains unchanged and unquestioned.

IONIC LODGE No. 312 vs. * * * *

In this case charges were preferred against the brother which were certainly so vague and indefinite that it would be difficult for anyone to understand the nature of the accusation. It does not appear from the record in this case that the members of the lodge were notified of the time and place set for his trial under the charges presented. The evidence shows affirmatively that the charges were preferred against him something like two years after the commission of the offense charged, and about two years after he moved from Decatur; that he had removed from Decatur where this lodge is located to Allentown, Penn., and had removed from Allentown, Penn., to Washington, D. C., and was living in Washington, D. C. and working for the Government of the United States at the time when the charges were preferred.

A notice in proper form to the brother that the charges had been accepted by the lodge and notifying him of the time and place fixed by the master for the trial under such charges was sent by registered mail to him addressed to Allentown, Penn., but the same was returned uncalled for to the secretary of the lodge. The case was set for trial for the 6th day of July, 1918. The notice sent by registered mail was returned to the secretary of the lodge on June 12, 1918.

The officers of this lodge knew 24 days before the date set for trial that the notice sent had not reached him. The brother had lived in Washington some time before the notice was sent, and within the 24 days above mentioned inquiry easily might have developed the fact that he had changed his post office address and ample time would have remained to give him notice of the trial. The record does not show that any further attempt was made to notify him. He had no notice of this trial and was not present at the trial.

Your committee is of the opinion that the evidence in this case tending to show the guilt of the accused under the specifications herein was so vague, indefinite and uncertain that the verdict of guilty pronounced in the case cannot be justified upon the evidence.

The difficulty with this case is not merely that one innocent has been adjudged guilty; it is that the notice to the accused not having reached him, no proper degree of diligence was shown on the part of the officers of the lodge to get notice to him; that it does not appear from the record that the membership of the lodge was notified as required by our by-laws; that out of a total membership of over 600, only 18 members were present at the trial, and that the evidence heard was certainly very unsatisfactory. Indeed there was no competent or satisfactory testimony in this case.

Your committee recommends that the sentence of Ionic Lodge No. 312 against the brother be set aside and that he be now restored to all of his rights and privileges as a Master Mason. But because of the uncertainties in the record above mentioned, your committee recommends that this report and recommendation shall not be held or construed to be such an adjudication of the questions involved as will prevent Ionic Lodge or any of its members from preferring new charges touching the same matters involved in this trial.

DAMASCUS LODGE No. 888 vs. * * * *

In this case charges were preferred against this accused brother in Damascus Lodge. It was charged that he had conspired with some detective agency to ruin the good name and reputation of his wife, or by some improper method to procure evidence against her whereby he might obtain a divorce or blacken her good name and reputation. A trial was had before a commission appointed by the grand master which resulted in a verdict of guilty against this accused brother, and the punishment was fixed at indefinite suspension.

Your committee has read this record with much care. We have talked with those familiar with the circumstances of the case. It is true as shown by this evidence that the brother did employ detectives to investigate the doings of his wife, and the developments in the case show the wisdom of his doing so. The trouble finally resulted in a decree in the Superior Court of Cook County awarding to the brother a decree of divorce from his wife for her fault, and exonerating him from blame.

Your committee is of the opinion that the finding of guilt against this accused brother was wholly unsupported by the evidence. We recommend that the finding of the trial commission be set aside and that the accused be restored to all his rights and privileges as a Master Mason.

EAST GATE LODGE NO. 923 vs. * * * *

In this case charges were preferred against the brother in East Gate Lodge. It was charged that he had knowingly misrepresented his place of residence in order that he might obtain the degrees in East Gate Lodge.

Your committee has carefully examined this case. We have read all the evidence and talked with those who are familiar with the circumstances. We do not take the trouble to go into the details of the evidence in this report. It is true that the accused brother did not reside within the jurisdiction of East Gate Lodge. His petition was recommended by Master Masters who were familiar with the facts. What he did was done largely upon the advice of members of East Gate Lodge.

Your committee cannot wholly acquit this accused brother of blame, but we feel that under the circumstances the penalty of expulsion that has been pronounced against him is extreme.

Your committee recommends that the finding of guilty by the commission be sustained, but that the punishment of expulsion which was fixed be set aside, and that the punishment be fixed at suspension for the term of one year from the 26th day of June, 1918, that being the date of the report of the trial commission.

Committee.

MINORITY REPORT.

Bro. Chas. H. Martin, as a member of the committee, presented a minority report in the case of East Gate Lodge No. 923 vs. * * * and moved that such minority report be substituted for the report of the committee.

MINORITY REPORT OF BRO. MARTIN
EAST GATE LODGE No. 923 vs. * * * *

In this case charges were preferred in East Gate Lodge No. 923 alleging in effect that the accused had falsely represented to said lodge in a petition for the degrees in Masonry, that at date when said petition was signed, he, the accused, had resided in the city of Chicago for the period of six months then last past, and by such misrepresentation and deception had induced said lodge to entertain and receive his said petition, and confer the degrees upon him.

A trial was had upon said charges before a commission appointed by the most worshipful grand master, and upon the hearing the commission found him guilty as charged and fixed his punishment at expulsion from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

From this sentence the accused has appealed to the grand lodge.

The evidence submitted amply supports the charge, and in fact the accused himself admitted in the evidence given by him that the allegations in the charges material to the issues raised are true.

As a member of the committee I am unable to see any reason why the finding of the trial commission should be disturbed, but am of the opinion that the punishment imposed by that tribunal exactly fits the offense.

This minority report therefore recommends that the action of the trial commission in finding the accused guilty as charged, and fixing his punishment at expulsion be affirmed.

Faternally submitted,

CHAS. H. MARTIN.

The motion of Bro. Martin to substitute his separate report for the report of the committee was lost, and the report of the committee as submitted by its chairman was adopted by the vote of the grand lodge.

THE CHILDREN FROM THE HOME.

The grand lodge was called off for a short time and Geo. L. Hilliker, superintendent of the Orphans' Home at La-Grange, was introduced. He was followed by 24 boys of the Home, dressed as Shriners. They gave a drill and were heartily applauded. Then George Douglas, a little tot, 6 years old, appeared on the stage dressed as an army officer and marched to the front of the stage and faced the drill team who were lined up in front of him. He proceeded to direct the 24 boys in uniform in their gymnastic exercises, he leading all the time. It was a wonderful performance and fired the grand lodge with enthusiastic admiration. At the conclusion of these exercises all the children of the Home entered, the boys on one side and the girls on the other, the smaller children leading. They marched on the stage and sang "America." It was a grand sight and caused the breasts of every representative present to swell with pride.

INTRODUCTION—Bro. George L. Schoonover.

Bro. George L. Schoonover, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Iowa, was introduced by Most Worshipful Brother Austin H. Scrogin. Brother Schoonover spoke as follows:

Most Worshipful Grand Master, and My Dear Friends:

I certainly appreciate beyond all compare the opportunity to come here and have just a moment to express to you the felicitations which are your due, upon the great work you are accomplishing in this jurisdiction. No man could witness that procession of children of our brethren who have not been able to care for them, and not see what you are doing! The morale and spirit which you are cultivating through your representatives in those children! No man could witness that and not know that the great heart of Masonry in Illinois is right.

Another thing I heard you do this morning that shows you are right, and I congratulate you upon it, and that is that when the boys come back from the bloody fields of France with some defect of body that was caused by their inspired love,—of the great love of God and of the great fraternity to which they wish to belong; you are not going to turn down the boys as members of the fraternity because they cannot do some little thing that perhaps strictly conforms to the rules and regulations of the fraternity.

And I want to say to you that while I do not pretend to be a student of Freemasonry, yet I have studied this movement. I have in my own grand lodge fought for the action which has been taken here today and the Grand Lodge of Iowa last June took that action and rendered it into law as your Committee on Jurisprudence has recommended this morning. I want to say brethren that for that I can reach my hand across the Mississippi River and shake with the brethren of Illinois and say, "Let us keep on going and doing the good things that need to be done."

There has been another word spoken since I have been here this morning of which I am not so sure, but I have come here to learn what is known by the brethren of Illinois on the subject, and that is something that was introduced by one of the Jurisprudence Committee to the effect that our government did not want Masonry to participate in the welfare of the boys over there—in the welfare work accorded to them. My brethren, I hope and I pray that that committee is right, but I am afraid they are not right and I am afraid that there is an insidious influence at work which does not want Masonry to participate in that great relief. I am afraid that is true. I am afraid we ought to be looking into the question, (or that I ought to look into it and find out that I am wrong) for my brethren I believe and I believe from the bottom of my heart, that so far as I am concerned it is my duty to do everything in my power to project this sweet influence and sweet ministry of Masonry which I love as I love no other organization in the world, to project it to my brethren who have gone across the waters in khaki to fight the battles and give them everything on God's earth over there that we can give.

I believe it so firmly my brethren that I take you into my full confidence. I have nothing to conceal. It may be I am wrong—if I am then many other eminent brethren in this country are wrong, but I believe we are being kept away from that work by the insidious maneuvers of an influence which would like to undermine the Masonic fraternity as much as it could.

But when I get a letter as I did from a good brother across the water the other day asking me,—you know I happen to be connected with the Masonic Research Society in publishing a magazine,—he wrote me in that capacity and said, "Won't you please send across to us some old magazines? It is not necessary they be new just so we can use them in our Masonic Club we are trying to support, so we can take them up to the convalescent hospital where the boys can read them, and so we may have a little element of the bond of friendship between us." He was a captain in the U. S. Army, your army and my army, and he was coming to me for favors. That is the way I feel about it. I feel like a slacker that I have not been raising my voice and doing everything I could in the past to get to them without their asking it the things that are wanted. Then he says further, "We have a little club here in St. Nazaire which we are supporting on the voluntary donation of about 500 of our brethren here," and he says, "we cannot support it without your help any longer because there is too much coming and going."

My brethren those are my personal views. I am not trying to intrude them upon you, but I just want to say this so far as I am concerned I am going to do all I can to get to that brother an answer which will ring as the Liberty Bell rang back in the days when this nation was being formed, for I believe brethren just exactly what your honored senator said this morning right here on this floor and that is that this benign influence of Masonry should be projected by us who know what it is and appreciate what it is, and sent across the water; that that benign influence ought to be exercised in the army and navy and among the nations of the world if you please, in order that the great principles for which we stand, may eventually prevail.

I don't believe my brethren, that because you live in Illinois and I live in Iowa or some other brother lives elsewhere that this is any the less our duty. I don't believe it is up to me as an individual to do it alone, or to my grand lodge as a grand lodge to do it alone or to yours. I believe that for once Masonry is faced by a crisis. Those brothers over there are faced by a crisis. They are all mixed up like hash in a griddle but they are Masons just the same, and they are calling to us and I don't believe that the million eight hundred thousand Masons in America,—because their hearts all beat together; I don't believe they ought to stop until we have arranged some way by which we can work together and give them that influence and carry it across the water, and it is for that purpose that I have invited your grand master and every other grand master in the United States to confer with me at an early date if they think that there is need for such a kind of an organization as I have suggested,—to meet with me and discuss with me this matter, and that is all. If out of that organization there can come some bureau whereby we can send that influence where it belongs then I shall feel I am no longer a slacker. I don't know how the brethren of other jurisdictions feel about it. That is what I am going to find out. I know how a few of them feel about it because I have heard from them and my brethren, that will to co-operate abounds. I know your grand lodge and I now know your grand lodge sentiment, and if, your grand master comes over as I hope he will, to where we have that conference, I want to say this much to you, although he lives in Illinois and I live in Iowa I am going to give him the hand of fellowship. I am going to tell him, my dear brother I trust you to the limit, and I trust your brethren to the limit. That imaginary line that runs through the middle of the river cuts no figure with the beating of your heart and mine, and so far as I am concerned it will cut no figure with my hand and my pocket-book working with your hand and your pocket-book; working in behalf of our brethren who fight our battles.

I trust my brethren that in thus intruding my views you will not consider that I am violating any of the courtesies of this grand jurisdiction. I simply feel these things in my own heart. I am going to do my best to help this cause along,—what I believe to be the greatest cause that has challenged the efficiency of Masonry in all its existence in America. When I do that, whether my views are right, or the other fellow's are right then I shall feel content because of having done not my bit, but my best as I saw my duty.

Brethren, I thank you again for this opportunity of meeting with you, I appreciate it sincerely and I hope next June that you will all have the opportunity to come over and visit the Grand Lodge of Iowa because we have a pretty good bunch of your kind of Masons over there.

REPORT—Board of Managers of Masonic Homes.

Bro. Robert J. Daly, president of the Board of Managers of the Masonic Homes, presented their report.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Board of Managers entrusted with the supervision and management of the Illinois Masonic Homes, fraternally submit the following report of the trust committed to its charge, with data and information by which you may obtain a knowledge of the present conditions existing in the two institutions and also form an intelligent estimate of the needs and requirements of each institution for the coming year in order that adequate provision may be made therefor.

The past year has been a trying one. The steady increase in membership combined with the greatly increased cost of living has demanded our closest attention to the matter of purchases in order to keep the cost of maintenance within reasonable bounds and without stinting the ample supply of wholesome foods provided at all times. The fuel situation was a particularly serious one and it was a question for a time as to whether we would be able to procure a sufficient supply to carry us through last winter.

At the meeting of the board held October 11, 1917, immediately following the last annual session of the most worshipful grand lodge, Brethren Fletcher and Emmerson who had been reappointed as their own successors as members of the board, qualified by their acceptance, and thereupon the board effected its official organization as follows:

Robert J. Daly, President.
Louis L. Emmerson, Vice-President.
W. Irving Shuman, Treasurer.
William D. Price, Secretary.

There having been no change in the personnel of the board, the Executive Committee in immediate charge of the respective Homes remained the same as previously constituted; namely, Brethren Emmerson, Shuman and Doherty for the Home at Sullivan and Brethren Fletcher, Price and Daly for the Home at LaGrange. By action of the board, Brother William A. Dixon was continued as superintendent of the Home at Sullivan and Brother and Mrs. George L. Hilliker were continued as superintendent and matron of the Home at LaGrange.

By action of the committees, Brother John F. Lawson, M. D., was appointed physician to the Home at Sullivan and Brother Arthur E. Higgins, M. D., to the Home at LaGrange.

OFFICIAL BOND.

Immediately after the election of Brother Shuman as treasurer of your Board of Managers, he filed a surety bond of twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars for the faithful performance of his duties. In like manner Brothers Dixon and Hilliker filed bonds of five thousand ($5,000) dollars each for the faithful performance of their duties.

Subsequent to the organization meeting, the board held three regularly called meetings; namely, November 3, 1917, March 16 and 17, 1918, at Sullivan and October 7, at LaGrange. These meetings were attended by all of the members, the proceedings were harmoniously conducted and productive of most excellent results.

During the interval between board meetings, the Executive Committees have regularly and faithfully attended to all the details of administration and exercised a close supervision of all of the affairs involved in the operation of the Homes and in connection with the superintendents have prepared a comprehensive report relative to the Homes under their respective supervision which reports are herewith submitted and to which we invite your careful attention and earnest consideration.

Brother W. Irving Shuman who has been for several years, often at great sacrifice, rendering efficient service on our board as its treasurer and also in the personal oversight of the Royal Arch Memorial Hospital, resigned on June 24, last, to obey the higher call of service to our country. He is now overseas and we who know him well expect that he will merit in his new field of service that old but ever new acclaim "well done, good and faithful servant." We welcome his successor

Brother Charles C. Davis to our number and we are confident that he will measure up to the strongest anticipations of our grand master and the craft.

THE ORPHANS' HOME AT LAGRANGE.

As will be seen by the superintendent's report, nothing of particular consequence has happened at the institution during the past year, although the family has been a large one averaging in the neighborhood of one hundred during the entire year. The general health of the children has been good and your committee would feel that they were remiss in their duties if they did not heartily commend Brother and Mrs. Hilliker for their untiring efforts in the interests of our large and interesting family.

At the last meeting of this most worshipful grand lodge twenty-six thousand ($26,000) dollars was appropriated for maintenance and this has been just about sufficient to cover the needs of the Institution. We would, therefore, recommend that the same amount, viz, twenty-six thousand ($26,000) dollars be appropriated for the ensuing year. This estimate is based upon the assumption that there will be no material increase in the cost of supplies.

SPECIAL COAL FUND.

Profiting by our experience of last winter and anticipating a still greater shortage of coal this winter, your board requested a special appropriation of three thousand ($3,000) dollars for the purchase of this winter's supply. After several months' correspondence with the State and National Fuel Administrations and finally an appeal to the Director General of Railroads, Brother William G. McAdoo, we were successful in purchasing sufficient coal for our needs and it is now in process of delivery. There is a balance of two thousand ninety-eight dollars and forty-nine cents ($2,098.49) still in the hands of our treasurer and we request that this amount be left with our board pending final delivery of the coal and settlement of the account. We would further recommend that a like amount, viz, three thousand ($3,000) dollars be appropriated for the purchase of coal for the winter 1919-1920.

MANUAL TRAINING AND DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

At the last meeting of the most worshipful grand lodge, the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars was appropriated for manual training and domestic science. This instruction was conducted under the supervision of Miss Louise Cottel and Mr. Robert Bagley, both of whom are teachers of those branches in the Chicago public schools. The girls were instructed in sewing, cooking and canning; the boys in woodworking and gardening. This has proven of inestimable value to the children and a very material saving to the Home, the girls having preserved over one thousand one hundred (1,100) quarts of fruit and vegetables practically all of which were raised by our boys on the property loaned us by Mr. Joseph Leiter.

At the annual garden show of the LaGrange War Emergency Union, the exhibit of canned vegetables from the Home received much praise and the efforts of our children in food conservation were highly commended.

An unexpended balance of two hundred fifty-seven dollars and sixty cents ($257.60) of the above mentioned fund has been returned to the grand secretary and we would earnestly recommend that the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars be appropriated for the continuance of this work for the ensuing year.

APPRAISAL OF PROPERTIES OF THE MASONIC HOMES.

At the last meeting of the most worshipful grand lodge, the sum of seventy-five ($75.00) dollars was appropriated for the purpose of keeping the appraisal of the Home property up to date as per our contract with the Lloyd Thomas Company. This appraisal has proven of great service to us in the adjustment of claims for loss by fire and we would recommend that a like amount of seventy-five ($75.00) dollars be appropriated for this purpose for the ensuing year.

SULLIVAN HOME.

Perhaps at no period in its history have the general conditions of the Masonic Home at Sullivan been more satisfactory than at the present time. The year just closed has been an extremely busy one and a review of the last twelve months shows a marked improvement along all lines. Especially has this been true so far as permanent buildings and repairs are concerned. The last session of the grand lodge appropriated for special buildings and repairs, $5,250.00. The increased cost of all materials and labor, and a desire on the part of the local committee in charge to complete and furnish satisfactory housing for all the farm labor, so that the Home might be relieved of this burden, led to a larger outlay than was anticipated, and found us with an expense—when the work was completed—of $9,591.04; or, an excess over the appropriation of $4,241.04; all of which has been paid from the earnings of the farm.

These improvements consist, outside of general repairs and betterments, of a modern farmhouse of ten rooms and bath, located on the site of the old Miller home. This building has a complete basement, splendid porches, is equipped with electric lights, running water and hot air furnace, and is in every respect a model building; also two small cottages, of five rooms each, one for the use of the gardener, the other for the man in charge of the dairy. On the Swain farm a large barn, 50 x 60 feet, is in course of erection, the hard lumber for the same having been sawed from trees located on the Home farm, and all of the soft lumber is on the ground and paid for out of the past year's appropriation. Two corn cribs and a number of other small buildings have been erected, so that the farm equipment along this line is very satisfactory indeed.

The house upon the Swain farm has been replastered and repainted inside, and put in tenable condition.

The porches, window frames, and other outside woodwork of the administration and older buildings should be repainted the coming spring. While this is an inopportune time in which to make extensive repairs, or do any unnecessary work, the condition of the paint upon these buildings is such that loss will follow if the work is not done within the next few months. The decoration in many of the halls and rooms in these same buildings is in bad condition and insanitary, and should be given proper attention at the same time. For this purpose and necessary repairs to plumbing, an appropriation of twenty-five hundred ($2,500.00) dollars is requested.

NEW DORMITORY.

The new dormitory has been completed and occupied for several months. It is in every respect a model building of its kind and the furnishings and equipment are of the very best. The entire third floor furnishes accommodations for the women help, while the first and second floors are occupied by female members of the Home. With a capacity of more than ninety beds, it will furnish sufficient room for a number of years to come and the grand lodge will not be called upon for funds for this purpose for a long time.

FUEL.

It has seemed almost impossible to provide the necessary reserve coal for the coming winter, and on September 30, the date of this report, we are unable to make as satisfactory a statement along this line as we might wish. Our surplus supply of coal amounts to about five hundred tons, which will be inadequate for the winter, and we hope before cold weather to materially increase this supply. The committee is of the opinion that the best possible results are not being obtained by our power and heating plant, and that the consumption of coal at the Home is entirely too large. To remedy this waste, we are at this time preparing to install a Palmer Forced Draft System. The cost of this system is $3,500.00, which is to be paid from month to month according to the amount of fuel saved. One year ago $5,000.00 was appropriated for the purchase of this winter's coal and we request that a like sum be appropriated for 1919-1920 coal.

NEW ROAD.

During the summer, we have completed the new concrete roadway within the grounds of the Home. The addition built this year conforms to that portion previously constructed. It is sixteen (16) feet in width and five hundred and two (502) feet in length, and adds materially to the appearance and convenience of the buildings and grounds.

STATE ROAD.

A special fund of $1,500.00 was appropriated by the grand lodge last year to assist in the completion of the hard road and construction of the bridge in front of the farm. Complications arose so that no work upon the highway nor the bridge has been done. Our appropriation has been placed in the hands of the proper county authorities, and they in return have given us a contract and bond for the completion of the work during the year 1919. When this main highway is completed, the farm will have a splendid concrete road, one and one-quarter miles in length, extending through both the Miller and Swain lands, from east to west.

SPECIAL APPROPRIATION FOR NEW CULVERT AT SULLIVAN.

The sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars was appropriated to build a culvert or cattle pass under the public road on the Home Farm. This work has been very satisfactorily completed and an unexpended balance of one hundred fifty-nine dollars and eighty-eight cents ($159.88) has been returned to the grand secretary.

WATER.

The water condition at Sullivan continues unsatisfactory. The supply is limited and the quality not of the best. The water from the deep wells bored last year contains Glauber salts and other minerals, and while no trouble has resulted so far as the boilers are concerned, it is in a general way very unsatisfactory, and the committee is arranging at this time to construct a reservoir north and east of the power plant, with a capacity of about 2,500,000 gallons. The cost of this reservoir will not be very great, as we expect to do most of the excavating with the Home help and teams, the larger part of the expense being the concrete dam and spillway. When complete, we hope to have a depth of ten feet of water of a satisfactory quality for all uses except drinking. For this purpose we recommend an appropriation of three thousand ($3,000.00) dollars.

REFRIGERATION.

Considerable trouble was experienced with the new refrigerating plant the first part of the year, resulting from inexperience on the part of those in charge. The plant is now operating in a satisfactory way, furnishing all of the necessary ice for the Home and Hospital, and in addition providing the necessary cold storage for foodstuffs. An unexpended balance of five ($5.00) dollars has been returned to the grand lodge.

FARM.

Under the direction of Superintendent Brother T. J. McIntire, the farm has made a splendid showing, and promises from this year on to be an asset rather than a liability to the grand lodge. While there was farm expense for the year of $15,523.24, as against farm earnings of $14,637.87, there is at this time corn and hogs ready for sale that will bring in more than three thousand dollars, and several thousand dollars included in the item of farm expense represents additions to our live stock and other farm assets. A very careful inventory of the live stock and crops made at the date of this report totals $29,679.52, which shows a great increase over the inventory of one year ago. There is not included in this inventory farm machinery of any kind, nor any of the miscellaneous property upon the farm, nothing being taken except the live stock, grain and hay; the live stock consists of 21 head of horses and colts, 110 head of cattle of various kinds, 56 head of hogs, and 20 head of sheep, amounting in all to $17,906.38; the inventory of the grain and hay amounting to $11,773.14.

We expect to clear up much of the dead and useless timber on the farm this coming winter, and to make many improvements of a kind that will add to the beauty and attractiveness of the property. The buildings and equipment are all that will be required for several years to come, the greatest need at this particular time being satisfactory outside fencing, and your committee hopes to be able to provide the same from the farm earnings in the coming year.

GARDEN.

For the first time in the history of the Home we have had a very satisfactory garden, and have at all times during the season been able to furnish the Home and Hospital with all necessary vegetables and small fruits. Several acres of berries, asparagus, rhubarb, grapes and currants, were planted this spring, and promise us satisfactory returns in the years to come.

There was on hand September 30, potatoes and other products of the garden amounting to $749.00.

Credit during the year has been given to the farm and garden for vegetables, eggs, meat and milk furnished the Home and Hospital to the amount of $8,533.96.

HOSPITAL.

More and more each year is the Royal Arch Memorial Hospital at Sullivan appreciated by all connected with the Home, and we frequently wonder how we were enabled to satisfactorily conduct the institution prior to its building. The expense of maintaining the Hospital, like that of the Home, shows a marked increase for the year just closed, and totals $14,887.38. This amount includes provisions, necessary repairs and furnishings, payroll and medical expense of all kinds, including that of the physician and nurses, laundry, light, heat and power. The Hospital will need some slight repairs the coming year, but the expense will not be great, and can probably be met from our maintenance fund without special appropriation.

The satisfactory condition at the Home and Hospital is largely due, your committee believes, to the efficiency, loyalty and energy of the superintendent, matron, and other employes of the Home. It is impossible for the members of the board, residing at a distance and meeting for two days once each month, to look after various details incident to the running of this great institution. They can only plan, suggest and direct. The carrying out of these plans, and the working out of the details, must devolve upon those who are employed at the Home from day to day. The committee acknowledge and appreciate the loyalty of these employes.

HOME LIFE.

Our members have felt the stress and strain of the times in common with the outside world. We have been obliged to request of them, some measure of the same denial and sacrifice we are all called upon to make. Some have borne these requests sweetly—some have not. It need not be said that we require only such service as may be properly rendered. May we suggest to the lodges that they can help us greatly by urging their members in our care to perform their share of service.

GENERAL FUND.

Your committee reports a cash balance on hand in the General Fund of $1.26, with no bills nor indebtedness of any kind outstanding against the Home or farm. For the first time in a number of years, we are enabled to come to the grand lodge without asking for a deficiency appropriation, and, considering the appropriation made last year and the enormous increase in the cost of all materials purchased, as well as that in labor, we are greatly pleased to be able to report no outstanding obligations and even this small balance on hand. At the last meeting of the most worshipful grand lodge the sum of $50,000.00 was appropriated for maintenance and we respectfully request a like amount this year.

BEQUESTS.

Through the generosity and forethought of the following deceased brethren, we have received bequests as follows:

Brother Jacob Retterer of Garden City Lodge No. 141, four hundred and fifty ($450.00) dollars.

Brother Clark E. Calligan of Englewood Lodge No. 690, a fourth interest in property valued at about three thousand five hundred ($3,500.00) dollars.

Brother Frank Falvisaner of Union Park Lodge No. 610, household goods and piano, together with an equity in a house and lot at LaGrange, estimated value fifteen hundred ($1,500.00) dollars.

Brother Ozias Stotts of Mattoon Lodge No. 260, an eighth interest in his estate, estimated value one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars.

While these brethren were not endowed with a great amount of wealth, by their thoughtfulness and generosity displayed their love of the Institution of Masonry and an interest in the noble work it is doing and should be an incentive of those of our brethren who are possessed of a greater amount of this world's goods.

It is a far cry from the battle-fields of France to the prairies of Illinois, but as surely as the day comes, so surely will some brother, grievously wounded at a Chateau Thierry or a Marne, come home to us for shelter and care. Let us make ready for him.

All of which is fraternally submitted,

Board of Managers,

By ROBERT J. DALY, President.

So much of the report as related to appropriations was referred to the Committee on Finance. The remainder of the report was, on motion, adopted.

May I add that the neat, accurate and systematic manner in which the accounts have been kept by the officers in charge is but additional evidence of the splendid management and discipline manifested in your Homes.

Yours very truly,

S. S. JENKINS,
Auditor.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED.

The following amendments were offered.

By Bro. Leroy A. Goddard :

Amend Section 243, By-laws relating to the grand lodge, by striking out the word two and inserting the word four in lieu thereof.

The Code will then read :

243. The grand officers designated in Code No. 14, page 21, such past grand masters, past deputy grand masters and past grand wardens as shall be present and shall be members of constituent lodges in Illinois (provided, that if any such permanent member in attendance on the session of the grand lodge be at the time a sojourner outside of Illinois his mileage shall be computed from the location of his lodge), each member of a standing committee, and one representative (the highest in rank) from each lodge under this jurisdiction shall be allowed five cents per mile going and returning, for every mile traveled from the location of his lodge, to be computed by the necessarily traveled route, and (except the grand master, grand treasurer and grand secretary) four dollars per day for each day's actual attendance on the grand lodge or its committees. No one shall receive mileage or per diem in more than one capacity.

By Bro. Iver R. Johnson.

Amend Code 129 by striking out the following :

which sum shall be in full financial compensation for the performance of the duties of his office, including stenographer and clerk hire;

The Code will then read:

129. The salary of the grand master shall be twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments; provided, that for such sums as he may expend for postage and stationery and incidental expenses the grand lodge may make appropriations upon presentation of itemized bills approved by the Committee on Finance.

By Bro. Edward H. Thomas:

Amend Section 667, Laws relating to lodges, by inserting after the word dollar in the 4th and 6th lines, the words "and twenty-five cents"; and by striking out "fifty-five" and inserting "eighty" in lieu thereof.

The Code will then read:

667. Every lodge in this jurisdiction, on or before the first day of August each year, shall pay into the treasury of the grand lodge, through the grand secretary, the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents for each Master Mason belonging to such lodge at the time of making the annual returns. Of this one dollar and twenty-five cents the sum of eighty cents shall be for the general fund and forty-five cents for the charity fund, subject to such appropriations from time to time as the grand lodge may direct.

Each of the above proposed amendments having received the seconds of representatives of more than twenty lodges, lie over until next year.

REPORT—Committee on Chartered Lodges.

Bro. W. W. Watson presented the report of the Committee on Chartered Lodges. It was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

We, your Committee on Chartered Lodges, having received the reports of the district deputy grand masters, checked and tabulated same, submit the following special report.

We find that with 869 lodges divided into 100 districts, we received reports on $19 at an average expense for "visit of inspection and report" as per Code No. 165 of $1.67 per lodge. The year being an unusual and a very busy one for all of us, we think that the fact of only 50 lodges not being reported on is remarkable. For many districts, all lodges were reported on. In the rest nearly all, but for two districts, no reports at all.

There are 375 lodges, who either exclusively or jointly own their own halls. 133 lodges do not carry fire insurance on property or outfits, and 465 do not have fire proof safes or vaults for the safe keeping of their records.

In 10 lodges the secretaries were not provided with books and blanks for the proper discharge of their duties. In 71 lodges, Code No. 465 is violated by entering of record the character of reports of investigating committees.

In 47 lodges the records do not show receipts for fees and dues as required.

Thirty secretaries did not show in their records the time of opening and closing, and in 33 lodges the records were not signed by both master and secretary. In 157 lodges the records were not kept in accordance with grand lodge requirements. Eight lodges were not using proper forms for petitions and affiliation, and in 20 lodges the by-laws do not conform with grand lodge by-laws.

The grand lodge spends a goodly sum each year for schools of instruction, yet in 222 lodges the work does not conform to that taught at the schools, and 198 lodges do not even hold meetings for study and practice. As to paraphernalia there were 9 lodges without candidate's garment, 9 without proper setting mauls, 29 with no middle chamber pillars, and one lodge had no rods for stewards. Forty-three did not have "third degree outfit" as prescribed by Board of Grand Examiners. Twenty-one lodges did not have proper receiving tools for S. D. In 225 lodges neither secretaries nor treasurers were bonded and 65 lodges do not have books of secretary and treasurer audited annually. Lodge funds should be banked in the name of the lodge subject to voucher signed by both master and secretary, but in over 100 lodges the funds were either in the pockets of the treasurer or in bank in his name personally.

A comparison of the above items with previous reports show a great improvement, but if masters and secretaries would give more attention to the Blue Book there would be more uniformity and less violations.

To the D. D. G. M.'s we urge more strict compliance with Code No. 165 and no brother should accept the appointment which carries with it so much honor unless he can and will give the office the time and attention it requires. All reports should be based on a personal visit and inspection as reports made by any other than the deputy do not give the official facts required.

PHIL C. BARCLAY,
JOHN F. CAMPBELL,
W. W. WATSON,
W. E. BUEHLER,
ALBERT ROULLIER,

REPORT—Committee on Legislation.

Bro. Owen Scott presented the following report of the Committee on Legislation. The report was adopted.

Your Committee on Legislation has considered the proposed New Section Number 670. This proposes to limit the expenditures of lodges for refreshments or social entertainments in any Masonic year to ten per cent of its gross annual income. There are, no doubt, many abuses in lodges in this direction. In many cases more money is spent for cigars and other forms of refreshment than for charity, and other causes distinctly within the aims and purposes of our fraternity. Notwithstanding these abuses, your committee thinks that it is hardly within the province of the grand lodge to interfere with the action of lodges in this particular. While the grand lodge has full power and authority to regulate the work and doings of its constituent bodies, yet unless abuses are so flagrant as to endanger their usefulness or their existence, it is not deemed wise to prohibit them from exercising their functions.

Your committee, therefore, recommends that this new section to be numbered 670 of the code be not adopted.

Your Committee on Legislation submit the following report: We have fully considered the amendment submitted one year ago, proposing to add to Section 824 of the Code the following: "A: Any Mason in Illinois who shall hereafter enter into any of the businesses enumerated in Section A of Code 447 shall be placed on trial, and if found guilty, shall be adequately punished."

The effect of this amendment when adopted will be to make it an offense for a Mason, not now in the liquor business, to enter into it in any capacity whatever. It does not disturb those who may be in the business at the time this amendment becomes effective. As there was no law prohibiting Masons from engaging in the liquor traffic when they entered, it is not proposed in this amendment to interfere with them at this time. The purpose of the amendment is to prevent any member of the craft from engaging in the business of selling liquor hereafter. With the amendment passed one year ago, this will place the Masons of Illinois in line with the great movement of the country to destroy a business that is evil in all its aspects.

Your committee therefore, recommends that the amendment be adopted.

The other amendment—"824 'A': Any Mason who may hereafter engage in any of the businesses prohibited in Code 447-A, shall be expelled" is covered by the foregoing and we recommend that this latter amendment be not adopted.

We have considered the amendment which proposes to strike out Section 321 of the Code. It reads: "Smoking in open lodge is prohibited, and the master is responsible for the strict enforcement of this by-law."

Your committee looks upon a lodge of Masons in session as one where members are all on absolute equality. Nothing should be permitted that in any way interferes with the rights or comfort of any member. Smoking is very offensive to some men, even to the extent of making them sick, and compelling them to remain away from the place where others are gratifying their sensual pleasures. No Mason ought to desire to do that which in any way gives offense to any brother. That there are many who do not smoke is evident in any assembly. That smoking, no matter how firmly the habit is fixed, is not essential to members of lodges is evident. In other places, churches, theatres, etc. these men go and refrain from smoking. The lodge should be held as sacred and the rights of members as inviolate as in the other gatherings mentioned.

In view of this, your committee recommends that the amendment to strike out this Section 321 be not adopted, and that the law remain as it is.

Fraternally,

OWEN SCOTT,
GEO. W. CYRUS.

The Committee on Mileage and Per Diem presented their report in detail, which was adopted. It will be found in the appendix.

REPORT—Committee on Obituaries.

Bro. George W. McFatrigh presented the report of the Committee on Obituaries. It was adopted by a rising vote.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois.

BRETHREN:—In these days when the wholesale slaughter of brave men and the cruel murder of innocent mothers and babes has by reason of their frequency and long continuance at length accustomed the mind to anticipate and even to minimize the shock which the news of death usually creates, the peaceful termination of a life from natural causes becomes by comparison a reason for thanks to the Creator for His loving kindness in permitting those near and dear to us to make a peaceful passage to the Great Beyond.

At each session of the Grand Lodge the brethren are pleased to consider it a solemn, sacred duty to pause in their enjoyment of the occasion to devote a few moments of reverent attention to a loving tribute of respect to our dead, recalling sad memories of those who once shared with us these sweet intercourses which we are still privileged to enjoy.

The Grim Reaper shows no consideration for age, color, sex, creed or religion; but like the pendulum his scythe swings with unerring exactness.

While for some unaccountable reason some of our brethren seem to be taken away when at the very zenith of their activity and usefulness, many others are permitted to conclude a full and useful life and in the end fall like a ripe old shock of grain and be gathered into God's garner of eternal rest.

It is indeed regrettable that across the brightness and sunshine of this happy hour there must fall a shadow that chills and saddens. We are not all here today; there are vacant chairs that like withered flowers in the midst of bloom break the blending of its harmony and touch life with the skeleton finger of decay. Voices once commanding and melodious, rich in tones of sympathy and eloquent in expressions of truth, have been hushed and only their sweet, inspiring echo reaches our ears.

In yonder cemetery there are graves that make it and eternity nearer and dearer to our hearts, but as we tread softly by the graves of our departed comrades, as we watch the snows that fall and the flowers that bloom upon them, with tears of bereavement we rejoice that Masonry had such ornaments and that what is our loss is their eternal gain. Let us emulate the example of their lives and strive to give through the purity of our own lives additional luster to the Order which they loved and served and honored.

Masonry teaches that "We are all born to die." We begin to live and with almost the first breath of life we begin to die. The pendulum swings steadily to and fro, marking the steady flight of the moments. An American author of distinction has said that the ticking of the clock is the blended music about the cradle and the dirge about the grave. Amid the laughing brightness of morning sunshine or the somber shadows of evening twilight; amid the bloom and fragrance of springtime or the solemn slumber of winter; over altar and bier,—the pendulum swings with the same unerring exactness; the clock ticks off the seconds; time moves swiftly into the past and we move swiftly toward our eternal sleep; and decay, so relentless and exacting, will yet fasten itself upon the clock whose ticking is so full of solemn, suggestive earnestness. The clock will not always tick; the pendulum will not always swing. Bye and bye we shall listen for the ticking of the clock but it will speak not. Like the tomb the old clock will be quiet and will enter the realm of eternal silence. Like the stringless harp upon the wall, its music will be hushed, hushed forever. But the flight of time will go on just the same. It will come with its gray hairs and scatter them among the raven locks of youth; with its yawning graves and its caskets; its funeral trains and its tears shed; its disappointments and its heart-aches.

We accompany our friends to the river's side.
 We can hear the roar and the dash of the tide
 And the Boatman's oars through the waters glide
 As he wafts our loved ones to the farther side.
 Sometimes the stream o'er its bank o'erflow,
 Sometimes the ripples in small waves go.

From the realms of mortality the brethren whose names follow, all of whom have been honored by their associates in the Masonic Vineyard, have crossed the stream which separates a life of care and worry from a life of endless bliss.

AMENDMENT TO CODE.

Bro. Owen Scott, of the Committee on Legislation, pursuant to the instruction of the Committee on Jurisprudence, presented an amendment to Sec. 443 of the Code.

It was seconded by the representatives of more than twenty lodges, and lies over until next year.

Amend Sec. 443 of the Code by inserting the word "and" after the word "God" in the fourth line; insert the words "in English" after the word "writing" in the fourth line. Further amend said section by striking out all after the word "writing" in the fourth line.

If amended the section would read as follows:

443. Every candidate applying for the degrees in Masonry must have the senses of a man, especially those of hearing, seeing, and feeling; be a believer in God, and capable of reading and writing in English.

REPORT—Committee on Petitions.

Bro. J. E. Jeffers presented the report of the Committee on Petitions. The report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of the State of Illinois:

To your Committee on Petitions have been referred the following to which we shall refer by number.

Number 1: St. Andrews Lodge No. 863 of Chicago requests that the name of Brother M. A. Krupkin, member of said lodge be changed to M. A. Krupp.

Number 2: Paul Revere Lodge No. 998 to change the names of George J. and Charles R. Kolkow to George J. and Charles R. Woods.

Number 3: Austin Lodge No. 850 to change the name of Harry Charles Eich to Harry Charles Oaks.

Number 4: Emblem Lodge No. 984 to change the name of Archibald L. Levy to Archibald L. Lynne.

Number 5: Mystic Star Lodge No. 758 to change the name of Louis Frankel Dinkelaeker to Louis Frankel Acker.

Number 6: Lincoln Park Lodge No. 611 to change the name of Harry G. Wuerzinger to Harry G. Winston.

Number 7: Oak Park Lodge No. 540 to change the name of John Henry Von Pein to John Henry Pine.

Number 8: Keystone Lodge No. 639 to change the names of Harry Robenstein and Herman Widetzky to Harry Robertson and Herman Wade respectively.

Number 9: Bee Hive Lodge No. 909 to change the name of Albert Rubinsky to Albert Robinson.

Number 10: Welcome Lodge No. 916 to change the name of Julius F. Bretts-schneider to Julius F. Brett.

Number 11: William McKinley Lodge No. 876 to change the name of Millard Christian Larson to Millard Christian Lawson.

Number 12: Niagara Lodge No. 992 to change the name of Charles Weichselbaum to Charles West.

Number 13: Sunrise Lodge No. 996 to change the name of John William Dinkelacker to John William Acker.

Number 14: Chicago Lodge No. 437 to change the name of Frederick Lowenthal to Frederick Langdon.

All the above petitions are supported by proper evidence that the several changes desired have already been effected by action of civil courts. We recommend that the above petitions numbering from 1 to 14 inclusive be granted.

Number 15: Fortitude Lodge No. 1003 to change the name of Joseph Fiedler to Irving Joseph Fiedler.

The above desired change has not been effected by process of law, but as it involves only the change in the "given" name we can see no objection to such change being made in Masonic records.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 15 be granted.

Number 16: Triluminar Lodge No. 767 to change the name of Morris Berlin to Morris Bervin.

Number 17: Maywood Lodge No. 869 to change the name of William A. Von Pless to William A. Pless.

Number 18: Golden Rule Lodge No. 726 to change the names of Albert H. Ueker, to Albert H. Eaker; Olaf Munson Jysson to Olaf Munson; George Washington Spear to George Washington Flannery.

The above petitions are supported by no evidence that the several changes desired have been effected by action of court. We therefore recommend that petitions numbering from 16 to 18 inclusive be not granted.

Number 19: LaPrairie Lodge No. 267 located at Golden, requests that it be permitted to change its name to that of Golden Lodge No. 267.

We recommend that this petition be granted.

Number 20: Brother Stillwell R. Harecourt, claiming to have been a member of National Lodge No. 596, now defunct, and having been suspended from that lodge for non-payment of dues, now tenders the amount for which he was suspended and petitions to be reinstated to good standing in the fraternity.

Your committee finds that National Lodge has been defunct since 1894. The suspension of Brother Harecourt was necessarily previous to that date. He has therefore, voluntarily remained unidentified with the fraternity for all these years. Such being the case your committee believes that the petition of this brother should be supported by some evidence as to his fitness and good intentions, which evidence should be in the form of a recommendation by some lodge or of not less than three Master Masons, personally acquainted with the petitioner.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 20 be not granted.

Number 21: Tower Hill Lodge No. 493 petitions for the restoration of Brother George Emerson Myers who was expelled from that lodge on or about Dec. 14, 1914, his offense being that of * * * *

From the evidence in the hands of this committee we are of the opinion that the action of the lodge in this case does not reflect the true sentiment of the membership, and further, by reason of the seriousness of the offense, the brother should not be restored at this time.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 21 be not granted.

Number 22: Piper Lodge No. 608 petitions for the restoration of Brother Harry L. Bell who was expelled from that lodge by action of this grand lodge on Oct. 31, 1917, his offense being that of false representation in petitioning Piper Lodge for the degrees, he having been twice rejected by an Indiana lodge, a fact he concealed.

In view of the serious nature of this offense your committee is unwilling to ask this grand lodge to reverse a decision of so recent a date. The time is too short and the punishment is not sufficient.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 22 be not granted.

Number 23: Garfield Lodge No. 686 petitions for the restoration of Brother Frank Lyman Shepard who was expelled from that lodge on May 15, 1906.

In addition to the petition of this lodge regularly acted upon, it is supported by investigation and recommendation of the district deputy grand master and two grand officers of this grand lodge.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 23 be granted.

Number 24: Chadwick Lodge No. 867 petitions for the reinstatement of Brother George L. Perusse who was suspended from that lodge by action of the grand lodge on Oct. 14, 1914.

In addition to the petition of this lodge, regularly acted upon, it is supported by the recommendation of a past grand master and others, familiar with the circumstances. We therefore recommend that petition No. 24 be granted.

Number 25: Rome Lodge No. 721 of Dix, petitions for the restoration of Brother Martin L. Marshall who was expelled from that lodge on or about Nov. 20, 1912.

In addition to the petition of this lodge regularly acted upon, it is supported by recommendation of the district deputy grand master, who made a personal investigation of the case subsequent to the action of the lodge.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 25 be granted.

Number 26: Ridgway Lodge No. 816 petitions for the restoration of Brother Isaac T. Bruce who was expelled from that lodge on Oct. 14, 1909.

We find that this petition was regularly acted upon by the lodge, and we therefore recommend that petition No. 26 be granted.

Number 27: Thos. J. Turner Lodge No. 409 of Chicago petitions for the restoration of Brother Hyman J. Zeleznick, a fellowcraft, who was expelled from that lodge Dec. 16, 1916.

In addition to the petition of the lodge regularly acted upon, it is supported by recommendation of the district deputy grand master, personally acquainted with all the circumstances.

We therefore recommend that petition No. 27 be granted.

All of which is fraternally submitted and signed by the committee.

J. E. JEFFERS,
C. O. FAUGHT,
L. S. VAN DOLAH.

REPORT—Committee on National Defense.

Bro. Andrew Logan Anderson presented the report of the Committee on National Defense. The report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on National Defense of the M. W. Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M. respectfully report that to October 1, 1918, we have collected the total sum of $88,547.36, and we have expended the sum of $14,782.87, leaving a cash balance on hand October 1, 1918, of $73,764.49, since which time we have received the sum of $9,622.75, making the net total in our hands October 5, 1918, $83,387.24. The details of receipts and expenditures are fully shown by the statement hereto attached.

A very generous response has been made by a large number of Masons and lodges of this state to our appeal for funds. But in some cases action has been delayed, and we are still hoping that the entire fraternity will do their full duty in this regard.

As to the larger projects we have considered we beg leave to say that we have filed requests with the Government to erect a building at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station to cost $12,000, and one at Camp Grant at Rockford to cost $15,000. Both of these projects are now pending on the matter of obtaining the consent of the proper authorities in Washington for the same, and we hope for their approval at an early date, so that we can have suitable Masonic headquarters at each of these large cantonments.

Out of our funds we have contributed the sum of $1,600 to the War Recreation Board of Illinois; the sum of $3,000 to the Red Cross, and the sum of $500 to the Salvation Army, each of which are such worthy objects that we felt that the Masons of Illinois would like to be represented in a substantial manner.

We have contributed the sum of $350 per month to Waukegan Lodge No. 78 which is the nearest lodge to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. We have employed Brother LeRoy Hill, a past master of Waukegan Lodge, as field secretary at that station, and his salary is paid out of this contribution to Waukegan Lodge. Brother Hill has been a very efficient man in this position, demonstrating that the committee made an excellent selection when placing him in charge.

When the seriousness of the influenza epidemic at Great Lakes was reported to us by Brother Hill, the committee was able within 24 hours to send 26 nurses to the base hospital, and we are told that they were a great help in turning the tide and getting control of the situation.

Brother Hill has assisted in the organization of the Anchor and Ark Club, whose membership is composed of nearly 3,000 Masons in the service at Great Lakes. Much good work has been accomplished by this club. The president is Brother Charles J. Lishman, Chief Carpenter at the Station, and a member of Brotherhood Lodge Number 986 of Chicago.

While the Anchor and Ark Club is largely a meeting place of Masons, yet its activities are not confined to members of the craft. It has done much work in the way of assistance when the monetary need was immediate and necessary. It is a place where sons of Masons are especially welcome, and every attention has been given to their comfort and needs.

This is the original Anchor and Ark Club, and we are informed that other such clubs are being organized in many Naval Training Stations of the United States through the influence of men who have been members of this club at the Great Lakes and transferred to other stations.

While the work of our field secretary at Great Lakes is largely in connection with Masons and sons of Masons, yet he does not limit it to them, and gives relief to any that he deems worthy.

Owing to the demand upon his time and the large area he has to cover, the committee decided that both time and effort would be greatly saved by the use of an automobile, and have purchased one for the secretary at an expenditure of $550.

The committee have made several trips to Camp Grant but until the matter of building has been decided, have been unable to do much there except to contribute the sum of $1,000 to the three lodges located at Rockford as a slight compensation to them for the extra expense that they have incurred in conferring degrees for foreign jurisdictions, and furnishing entertainment and relief to the soldiers from Camp Grant.

We hope to make the selection of a suitable man as field secretary and put him in charge of the work at this camp in the near future.

Your committee has furnished a club room at Rantoul, Illinois, at an expenditure of approximately $600 where those in the service at Chanute Field can find reading matter, writing material and various forms of social amusement. We are contributing the sum of $100 per month for the maintenance of the same.

Brother Glenn Robinson, district deputy grand master first suggested the club room at Rantoul, and is giving it his personal supervision. Your committee is greatly indebted to him for his efficient services in this matter. We have contributed the sum of $500 to A. O. Fay Lodge No. 676 to assist its activities near Fort Sheridan.

All of these fields of activity, while largely patronized by Masons, are not exclusive and are open to any one in the service.

The committee are very much pleased to report that they have been able to keep the administrative expense connected with this fund at less than 5% of the receipts.

Each member of the committee has on all occasions paid his own expenses and no personal expense of any kind has been charged against this fund.

A great saving in administrative expense has been made by the liberality of Brother E. Edwin Mills who has placed his expert accountants at the disposal of this committee without any charge.

We are also under obligations to Oriental Consistory in this regard for furnishing us free of charge, official headquarters for the transaction of our business.

Brother Robert C. Fletcher has acted as secretary to the committee and has given a great deal of his time with no hope of fee or reward, and the committee take pleasure in expressing their appreciation of his labors.

A great deal of credit is due to the lodges at Rockford, Rantoul, Highland Park and Waukegan for the conferring of degrees, and the entertainment given to men in the service; Waukegan Lodge Number 78 having conferred over 450 degrees among which 33 other grand jurisdictions were represented. This lodge was greatly assisted by Brother T. M. Avery president of the District Deputy Grand Masters' Association of Cook County, who has taken a corps of workers to Waukegan once a week for the last several months and assisted in the conferring of the degrees.

As is generally known by the Masons of Illinois, there are four classes of contributors to the National Defense Fund:

Founder members, $100 or more,

Life members, $25 or more,

Active members, $5 or more,

Annual members, $1 or more.

Your committee are firmly of the opinion that as the brethren learn more of the good that has been accomplished, more and larger contributions will be made, and the number of founder and life members materially increased. There is no other activity purely Masonic that is accomplishing more for the encouragement of the soldier and sailor than the work on which we now report.

This fund has been called the unselfish fund as it has been collected with the understanding that it may be used for the relief of any who may need it in war activities. The idea has been to help in every way the spirit and morale of the men in service, Masons or otherwise; to up-hold the aims and purposes of our Government, and to give the Masons of Illinois an opportunity to help in the saving of civilization.

Respectfully submitted,

G. W. McFATRICH,
A. L. ANDERSON,
A. E. WOOD,
NELSON N. LAMPERT,
WM. L. SHARP,

Committee.

A detailed report of the receipts and expenditures of this fund will be found in the appendix.

DETAILED REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENTS OF THE MASONIC HOMES.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF ILLINOIS MASONIC ORPHANS' HOME.

To the Chairman and Members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Managers of the Illinois Masonic Orphan's Home:

DEAR BRETHREN:—I beg to submit herewith my third annual report as superintendent of this Home.

The children are well and healthy and have been so the entire year with the exception of a few cases of Liberty measles.

Teddy Reenke who at last report was at the Sullivan Home receiving special treatment, has recovered and is now at this home. Nava Harris who has been wearing a cast on one of her legs for nearly two years, is now going to school and about her duties and play without a cast. We have great hopes that when she reaches womanhood she will have a nearly normal leg.

We have again been privileged to use the land of Mr. Joseph Leiter for a garden. No one not closely connected with the management of this Home can have any adequate conception of value of this privilege to us. Viewed simply from a commercial standpoint it has been a success. At the prevailing wholesale prices, the string beans, corn and tomatoes canned have repaid the entire of the expense of the garden and have left a profit of nearly 50%. The children and employees in addition to an abundance of radishes, green onions and lettuce in season have had string beans, corn and tomatoes on their tables almost daily since the latter part of July and these are still being served.

We have canned from our garden and have now on our shelves, the following:

Crab-apple jelly	7 Quarts
Crab-apple butter	23 "
Corn relish	37 "
Tomato pickles (sweet)	64 "
Cucumber pickles	90 "
Beet pickles	208 "
Tomatoes canned	142 "
Sweet corn canned	202 "
String beans canned	280 "
Total
	1052 Quarts

Most of the canning and some of the pickling was done by our girls in cooking school. Under the supervision of one of their number (Elizabeth Campbell) our girls canned 100 quarts of the corn after the cooking school had closed. We have enough carrots, beets and parsnips yet to be gathered and put in the bins to last the entire winter.

The work in the garden, with the exception of the plowing, was all done by our boys.

ENTERTAINMENT.

During the year the children were entertained by the following Masonic bodies:

Grove Lodge No. 824, auto ride to Downers Grove, movies and refreshments.

Old Glory Lodge, picnic and flag presentation, Riverside.

Veritas Lodge at Glenwood.

Veritas Lodge, auto ride and refreshments at Downers Grove.

Union Park Lodge on Home grounds.

Damascus Chapter O. E. S. on Home grounds.

Garden City Chapter O. E. S. on Home grounds.

Medinah Auto Club, 50 mile ride through the country with refreshments at Glen Ellyn.

Keystone Lodge at Riverside.

Concord Lodge moving pictures at Home hall.

Bro. John Harper entertained the children one evening with Scottish dances in full Highland costume and another evening with crayon sketches.

All children free from demerits during each month, attended the movies each week so long as free from demerits, and in addition all those (22 in number) who had been on the honor roll two months in succession during our Assembly year (Sept. 1st to Sept. 1st) 1917, visited Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes, and those on the Honor Roll two months in succession in 1918 (40 in number) attended the War Exhibition in Chicago.

Our system of self-government still continues and I would rather sever my connection with the Home than discontinue its use for it takes care of 98% of the discipline of the Home. Its power for good cannot be overestimated. Day by day it is, without conscious effort on the part of the individual child, moulding their characters, equipping them with that strength of will, that power of self-control so essential in the building of a true man or woman.

With our gardening, domestic science and manual training courses, the past summer has been the busiest, and as a necessary consequence, the most interesting and the most profitable of any in my experience here. Our children have been the best fed, the healthiest and the happiest.

In concluding my report however, I feel that I should fall short of fulfilling my entire duty did I not again call your attention to the necessity for larger quarters for our manual training and domestic science classes. With our Government calling upon the schools of the country to enlarge their vocational training courses, to increase the number of school hours per day and to lengthen the school year, this is no time for us to mark time. The only way to prepare the man is to prepare the boy.

Respectfully submitted,

GEO L. HILLIKER,
Superintendent.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF ILLINOIS MASONIC HOME.

To the Executive Committee in Charge of the Illinois Masonic Home:

SULLIVAN, ILL., OCTOBER 1, 1918.

GENTLEMEN:—The annual report of your superintendent is herewith submitted.

The great conflict raging in Europe and dominating all the interests of the world has exerted its influence on the management of the Home and has claimed six employes as active participants in its work. It is very difficult to secure men for such employment as we offer and it has been necessary to somewhat increase our payroll, especially on the farm. Certain supplies have been secured with great difficulty and at added expense.

We have conformed to all the war regulations and the employes and members have regularly contributed to all the various calls for financial aid. The members of the Home engaged in the work of knitting under direction of the Red Cross and furnished 60 pairs of socks, 10 sweaters, 18 pairs of wristlets and 80 Afghan squares and were ready to double the contribution of work but additional yarn could not be secured.

Under severe handicaps as to jars and equipment the matron and members of the Home prepared and canned 300 gallons of vegetables and made 85 gallons of catsup. Two barrels of cucumbers were made into pickles and we were fortunate enough to secure 100 quarts of cherries and strawberries for preserves.

The usual observance of holidays began with Hallowe'en when we had an abundance of apples, doughnuts, cider, pumpkin pie and all the fixings. For Thanksgiving we had chicken with cranberries and plum pudding—geese for Christmas (could not afford turkey) with mince pies and ice cream—chicken again for New Years. On Washington's birthday we had pork and mince pie with entertainment and decorations at night. At Easter we decorated and had flowers. We had veal with cakes and candy as eatables. July 4th we decorated but did not have fireworks. We had a picnic lunch with special music.

One hundred children visited the Home the evening of January 21st and put on a Christmas Cantata and other special numbers, greatly delighting the residents of the Home who seldom have opportunity to mingle with children. Four or five times during the year we have been visited by various musical organizations of Sullivan and the ministers have frequently brought choice musical talent with them for their religious services, and Rev. Watson gave us a pleasant evening lecture illustrated by stereopticon views.

The churches in Sullivan have made it extremely convenient for such as desire to attend Sunday school and church by furnishing free automobile transportation to and from the churches on all pleasant Sundays. The ban on the Sunday use of gasoline interfered with this service but did not diminish our appreciation of the thoughtfulness and very kindly feeling so freely demonstrated by the various congregations and ministers.

The Ministerial Association of Sullivan has taken over the management of the religious services of the Home and conduct weekly meetings in charge of a minister selected by the association. This arrangement relieves the management of the Home of responsibilities and greatly improves the service. We are fortunate to find ourselves in the hands of our friends; they do better for us than we could possibly do for ourselves.

Our hospital has been a great comfort at all times and has given us excellent service. Competent help has not always been easy to secure but fortunately we have several members of the hospital force that have remained the year through and at no time has our work been seriously crippled.

Dr. J. F. Lawson has continued in charge of the medical and surgical work and has fully maintained the high standard of the past.

During the year the cemetery was re-platted completely and now provides for thirty rows of thirty graves each. In the re-arrangement the spaces for graves and walks are much more liberal than originally planned and we feel that the new arrangement is a great improvement. Those interred in the cemetery are now designated as follows:

In checking over the amounts credited to different lodges in this report it will be observed that in a great many instances the figures do not correspond with the amount sent to the committee from the lodge. The reason for this apparent discrepancy is that the Secretary of a given lodge or the committee appointed to collect funds in that lodge often took contributions from Masons not members of that lodge, reporting the names of the lodges in the little book returned to the committee. The auditors checked these books very carefully and in cases where contributions were made by Masons other than members of the lodge returning the book, the amount of these contributions was subtracted from the amount sent in by the lodge, and credited to the lodges to which the brothers belonged. The committee soon discovered that this plan entailed so much work and so complicated the bookkeeping that it decided after October 1, 1918, all contributions sent in by a lodge should go direct to the credit of that lodge, irrespective of whether the individual contributors to the amount are members of that lodge or otherwise.

Pursuant to your order the Board of Grand Examiners conducted six schools of instruction and three examinations for commissions as grand lecturers.

The total attendance at the schools was 2,258. Forty applicants successfully passed the examination and were recommended for commissions as grand lecturers.

The schools were well attended considering the abnormal times and inclement weather. They were conducted along the same lines as in the two preceding years. Wednesday evening being given over entirely to the grand master and speaker.

The Board of Grand Examiners desire to express their appreciation of the attendance and assistance of the grand master and grand secretary who were present at each of the schools; of the attendance and assistance of other grand lodge officers who were present much of the time; of the attendance and assistance of the district deputy grand masters upon whom depend largely the success of the schools; of the attendance and assistance of the grand lecturers who left their business and came to the schools at their own expense in order that they might serve the craft; and of the attendance and assistance of the masters, officers and members of the constituent lodges who on all occasions extended to us a fraternal welcome.

The entire craft of Illinois is indebted to the following brethren for their addresses at the schools:

Rev. Walter Aitken, R. W. Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Illinois.

Edward J. Brundage, Attorney General of the State of Illinois.

Francis G. Blair, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Harry Olson, Chief Justice of the Municipal Court of Chicago.

At rest in Fairlawn Cemetery, Decatur, April 12, 1918.

Just as this report was ready to go forward we were shocked by the sad news of the death of our beloved chairman, Brother Charlton L. Gregory. One who was held in highest esteem—holding every characteristic of greatness. To know him was to love him and to be his friend. He was a man who meant what he said and who said what he meant. Following the design of the Supreme Architect on the trestle board of life, he has received the Master's "well done," and has gone to enter the higher ranks of craftsmen who work with a clarified intellect.

Brother Charlton L. Gregory was born in Delavan, Wisconsin, February 16, 1867. He was initiated in New Boston Lodge No. 59, May 7, 1892, passed May 13, 1892 and raised May 17, 1892. He affiliated with Aledo Lodge No. 252, February 26, 1901 and was its master in 1905-6. He was appointed district deputy grand master in 1905 and received his commission as grand lecturer the same year; member of the Board of Grand Examiners in 1911, and chairman of the board in 1917 which office he held until his death which occurred in Mercy Hospital, Davenport, Iowa, at 8:50 A. M., September 12, 1918.

At rest in Aledo Cemetery, September 16, 1918.

Interment by Aledo Lodge No. 252. Most Worshipful Grand Master A. H. Serogin officiating, assisted by other grand lodge officers and a large concourse of brethren from various places.

In conclusion, we desire to express to you our appreciation of the many courtesies extended to us and congratulate you on your successful administration as grand master.

Respectfully submitted,

BOARD OF GRAND EXAMINERS,

R. C. DAVENPORT, Secretary.

VIEWS OF BRO. B. F. STAYMATES OF DEWITT LODGE No. 84, CLINTON, ILL.

Published at his request.

In behalf therefore of the great bulk of Illinois Lodges who under law or no law, will not use Lodge money for club purposes, and in behalf, of our brethren of the opposition in DeWitt Lodge No. 84, the pivot upon which this decree of 1915 was turned we will present the law of Masonic Christendom, having secured its version in thirty grand jurisdictions, not from books but the pens of the Grand Masters themselves.

First—Great Britain is our Mother country. British Masonry is our Masonic Mother. The sun never sets on British Masonry and in a letter answering our question may the funds of a lodge be used in your jurisdiction to equip clubs or amusement rooms? The Grand Secretary, Brother E. Letchworth of London, speaking for the Grand Master says: "No such expenditure as you refer to, can be sanctioned under the English constitution, no such by-law has ever been submitted and I doubt very much if submitted it could be sanctioned." No words can be more direct than this highest authority, they alone ought certainly to settle the question.

Pennsylvania is about our oldest American jurisdiction, the Keystone State, and through Grand Master Louis A. Watres, who speaks as follows, "Under our regulations, the funds of Lodges cannot be used for any purpose other than Masonic; the various purposes set forth in your communication referred to are outside the terms Masonic, and therefore will not be countenanced in this jurisdiction. These words accord with British Masonry. Grand Master Watres adds, "There are throughout the jurisdiction a few clubs, but they have no connection nor is the funds of the lodge applied to their maintenance."

Outside Illinois the Grand jurisdiction of Iowa may well speak for the Masonry of the Middle West, Grand Master Frank Moses speaking through the Grand Secretary, N. R. Parvin, says: "It has been the decision of our Grand Master time and again that Lodge funds could be used only for strictly Masonic purposes." The fitting up of billiard rooms and pool rooms have not been considered Masonic purposes, and in this state a lodge would not be allowed to make an appropriation for such purposes." These are sample letters from many that all sing the hallowed chorus of Universal Masonic Law as it applies to this condition.

AMENDMENT TO BY-LAWS ADOPTED.

Code 824A. was added.

824A. Any Mason in Illinois who shall hereafter enter into any of the businesses enumerated in Section A of Code 447, shall be placed on trial and if found guilty, shall be adequately punished.

GRAND MASTER
LEXINGTON

October 19, 1917.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Constituent Lodges:

It is needless at this time to remind every Mason in Illinois that our country is at war. Nor is it necessary to recite the long list of flagrant insults which have been heaped upon our nation, and which caused it to rise in its might to thwart the purposes of tyrannical forms of government.

Freemasonry has ever taught patriotism, and in all its lessons and teachings, duty to country has ever been held foremost.

In this war every man must do his part. Those who cannot go to the front must help with their money, and a great opportunity is offered for service in that direction at the present time. Lodges and individual Masons are urged to purchase Liberty Bonds to the extent of their ability. These bonds bear four per cent interest, are exempt from taxation and make one of the best investments that have ever been offered. Lodges and brethren are urged to make early purchases of these bonds, as the books close on the 27th day of October. Lodges can purchase these Liberty Bonds from their lodge treasuries, with such funds as they may have for investment.

It is urged that this subject be given immediate consideration, that in this great work the Masonic Fraternity may be properly represented, and when Prussianism is finally crushed, and our brave boys who are now at the front, return home, we may have the satisfaction of knowing that in this great victory the Masons of Illinois did their part.

It is hereby ordered that this be read in open lodge at the next stated meeting following its receipt by the lodge, and that record be made in the minutes when it is read.

Fraternally yours,

Attest:

Grand Secretary.

GRAND MASTER

LEXINGTON

October 19, 1917.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Constituent Lodges:
Brethren:

At the session of the grand lodge held in the city of Chicago on October 9th, 10th and 11th, 1917, ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars was placed at the disposal of the grand master to be disbursed by him with the advice and consent of the Advisory Council for the benefit of the members of Illinois lodges that are in the service of the government upon foreign soil, and the grand lodge also recommended that the grand master issue a call for a contribution of not less than one ($1.00) dollar per capita on the membership of the various lodges, and that the additional money so contributed be used for the purpose stated above.

Masonry has a duty to perform in connection with the world's struggle that is now going on, and that duty is to assist the government in every way it possibly can and be consistent with the principles of Masonry. It is our Masonic duty to aid and comfort our brethren when in distress, and by caring for those of our membership who may meet with misfortune on the battle-field and also by looking after those who are dependent upon them, we will be fulfilling both a patriotic and a Masonic duty.

A goodly number of our membership are already on foreign soil, and presumably some of them are actually in service, and if not, they will be in the very near future and we should be prepared to fulfill our obligations. The grand lodge assumes responsibility for the expenditure of the money, which is a sufficient guarantee to the lodges and to the craft at large that any money contributed will be administered carefully and for the purpose for which it is intended. One dollar ($1.00) per member is a very small sacrifice on the part of the lodges and it is sincerely hoped that every lodge will contribute this amount, and where they can afford to, that they will give more. It is also urged that the lodges advise their membership of this movement on the part of the grand lodge and that they ask them for voluntary contributions in excess of the $1.00 per capita above referred to. The Masons of the state of Illinois should raise no less than two hundred and fifty thousand ($250,000.00) dollars, and by so doing be prepared to fulfill their duty to their members who are offering their lives in order that our country and our institution may survive. Masters of lodges are urged to enter into the spirit of this call and to surround themselves with a sufficient number of the members of their lodges in order to give this call publicity among their membership and see to it that the lodges and the membership contribute generously.

All contributions should be forwarded to Bro. Isaac Cutter, R. W. Grand Secretary, Camp Point, Illinois, where due credit for contributions will be given, and at the next session of the grand lodge a full accounting will be made.

It is hereby ordered that this letter be read in open lodge at the next stated meeting following its receipt by the lodge, and that record be made in the minutes when it is read.

Fraternally yours,

Attest:

ISAAC CUTTER,
Grand Secretary.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE
OF A. F. & A. M.
OF ILLINOIS

Lexington, Illinois, November 9, 1917.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Constituent Lodges:

Masonry in Illinois has always been synonymous with loyalty. In the crisis of the past, it has stood like adamant behind the government. In the great emergency of the world's present conflagration, into which our beloved country has been drawn, it must not only stand firm, but must become a living torch of patriotism.

Education will have much to do in the promotion of this idea and your grand master is fortunately enabled to provide, "without charge," eloquent speakers, who will address lodges on the subject of patriotism.

The present is not a time for criticism, because danger lurks in ill-advised action.

Since the scope of our Masonic activities are not well defined, would it not be well to avail ourselves of this splendid opportunity and inaugurate a system of patriotic education?

Advise the grand master at your earliest convenience of meetings to be held, and speakers will be provided.

It is hereby ordered that this letter be read in open lodge at the next stated meeting following its receipt by the lodge and that record be made when it is read.

Fraternally yours,

Attest:

ISAAC CUTTER,
Grand Secretary.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE
OF A. F. & A. M.
OF ILLINOIS

Lexington, Ill., January 17, 1918.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of all Constituent Lodges, A. F. & A. M. of Illinois:

Brethren:

Pursuant to a recommendation of the Grand Master's Advisory Council, I have appointed a committee on National Defense, consisting of the following brethren:

Ralph H. Wheeler, Chairman,
Arthur E. Wood,
Andrew L. Anderson,
Nelson N. Lampert,
William L. Sharp.

The purpose of this committee will be TO ASSIST OUR GOVERNMENT IN THIS TIME OF NATIONAL PERIL, AND TO FUSE MASONRY OF ILLINOIS INTO A MIGHTY AGENCY FOR PATRIOTIC ENDEAVOR. The officers and members of the lodges are expected to cooperate with the committee in their work, which will consist in the raising of funds, the relieving of distress among our soldiers and their dependents, providing recreation or entertainment for soldiers in and about concentration camps, particularly in Illinois, assisting in the sale of the various bonds issued by the government, and likewise the war-saving certificates, conducting of campaigns in the support of the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. and in fact, in any and every endeavor that will be of benefit in the prosecution of the present war to a successful termination.

It is the desire and hope of your grand master, as well as your committee, that all of the Masonic lodges in Illinois, and also all chapters, councils, commanderies, consistories, shrines, grottos, and chapters of the Eastern Star, in the state, may concentrate their efforts in this movement and by so doing accomplish the greatest possible amount of good.

The moneys collected by this committee will be paid into the treasury of the grand lodge and will be disbursed by the grand master upon recommendation of the National Defense Committee and Finance Committee of the Grand Lodge. This committee expects to raise funds by the sale of memberships in what will be known as the "NATIONAL DEFENSE FUND OF THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE A. F. & A. M. OF ILLINOIS."

Further details will be submitted to you at a very early date and you are urged to give very prompt and active response to all requests coming from this committee.

It is hereby ordered that this letter be read in open lodge at the next stated meeting following its receipt by the lodge, and that record be made in the minutes when it is read.

Fraternally yours,
AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,
Grand Master.

Attest:
ISAAC CUTTER,
Grand Secretary.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE
OF A. F. & A. M.
OF ILLINOIS

Lexington, Ill., January 26, 1918.

To the Worshipful Masters, Wardens and Brethren of Constituent Lodges:
Brethren:

It will be remembered that at the last session of our grand lodge, the Finance Committee made a report which was adopted by the grand lodge to the effect that ten thousand dollars "Be placed at the disposal of the grand master and to be disbursed by him with the consent of the Advisory Council for the benefit of Masons in the service of the government who are stationed on foreign soil and that the grand master issue a call to all of the lodges for a contribution of not less than one dollar per capita on their membership, and that the money so contributed shall be used for the same purpose as stated above."

Pursuant to the authority there given the grand master on October 19, last issued his circular letter to the lodges of this grand jurisdiction advising them of such action by the grand lodge and asking for contributions as above authorized.

Afterwards it developed that there would be practical difficulty in carrying into effect the instructions as above set forth, for the reason that the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and other kindred organizations and charities are accomplishing on foreign soil the things which the grand lodge in its action above stated sought to accomplish, and because also there would be much difficulty in seeing to it that our funds were judiciously applied for the purpose indicated.

At a meeting of the Grand Master's Advisory Council, this question in its broad aspects was considered. It was found that there would be much difficulty in using these funds judiciously in other lands and it was there determined that "the funds appropriated by this grand lodge or raised by or under its authority, ought to be used for the relief of distress in our own land upon terms and conditions to be hereafter determined and that such funds should not be sent abroad."

Because of the great wave of patriotic ardor which is sweeping over our land and which we trust warrants confidence in ultimate victory, a committee on National Defense of this Most Worshipful Grand Lodge was appointed by the grand master. It is not intended that such committee shall exercise any independent authority, but that committee and all its activities are subsidiary to the grand lodge and subject to the control and direction of the grand master.

The ten thousand dollars appropriated by this grand lodge and all funds contributed by the several lodges of the state for the benefit of Masons in the service of the government and all funds contributed to such Committee on National Defense, are all to be expended under the authority of the grand master and all such activities are but parcel of the broader beneficence of this grand lodge.

Many thousands of our young brethren are in the service of our country in the various cantonments and aviation fields scattered throughout our land and great good can be accomplished by learning of their wants and ministering to their relief and to the relief of their families.

The Masonic organizations of each state where there is a cantonment or aviation field, are actively engaged in this same work. And so far as it may be found necessary to spend any of our funds in other states for the relief of our brethren there, we may count upon the active and faithful assistance of the Masonic organizations of such other states. We have a great work to perform. Our enemy which is the enemy of human progress must be crushed or every revolution in the interest of the people in centuries past will have availed nothing.

I therefore most earnestly repeat the solicitation for contributions as set forth in my letter of October 19 and bespeak also a generous response to whatever appeals may be made by the Committee of National Defense. You may be assured that the funds collected will be carefully husbanded and judiciously expended by us. It is your grand master and your grand lodge which will be at all times in control. All contributions therefore should be sent to the grand secretary. They will be by him paid to the grand treasurer and expended upon the order of the grand master, and thus through the annual report of the grand treasurer you will learn just how much money has been collected and how it has been expended.

The honor of Masonry which stands for the rights of men and which is essentially a democratic institution, the safety of democracy in this world and the hopes of millions not only in our own land but in other lands, are involved in the great struggle which now holds the world's attention.

Anything that you can do to assist will be greatly appreciated and you may rest assured that the good faith of the grand lodge is pledged for the careful conservation and expenditure of all funds.

It is hereby ordered that this letter be read in open lodge at the next stated meeting following its receipt by the lodge and record be made in the minutes when it is read.

Fraternally yours,

COMMITTEE ON NATIONAL DEFENSE

M. W. GRAND LODGE

OF A. F. & A. M.

OF ILLINOIS

Chicago, Ill., February 20, 1918.

To the Worshipful Masters, Wardens and Secretaries of the Lodges A. F. & A. M. of Cook County:

Brethren:

The Committee on National Defense of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M. of Illinois has just presented to the lodges a plan for raising a fund to be known as the NATIONAL DEFENSE FUND of the Grand Lodge, and it is my desire that everything possible be done to insure the collection of a goodly sum of money.

The appointing of the above committee and the instituting of this drive for the National Defense Fund of the Grand Lodge was undertaken only because of the fact that there is a call from the members of the fraternity who are in the service, and likewise a demand on the part of the Masons and the Masonic Lodges that something be done, and now that the movement is started, it must be a complete success.

The world looks upon Masonry as an institution of the greatest efficiency, and the opinion commonly expressed is that Masonry, when it attempts anything, never fails. This movement is a new one; Masons have never before been called upon by their lodges or by the grand lodge to contribute to such a fund, and now that the call has gone forth the officers of the lodges must lend their support to insure success.

In order that there may be a clear understanding of the purposes of this undertaking I will ask that you meet with the committee and myself at Oriental Consistory, Dearborn Street and Walton Place, Chicago, on TUESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 26, 1918 at 7:30 o'clock. The importance of this meeting I trust will insure the presence of a large representation from each and every lodge. I realize that there are a number of lodges that meet on Tuesday evening, but if the meeting of February 26, is not a stated one, I sincerely trust that the masters or secretaries will arrange to attend the meeting above referred to and that they will have a representation from their lodges with them. Where the lodge has a stated meeting on that date it is my desire that the master should select a committee of active, energetic Masons to attend. In lodges where the master has appointed a committee to solicit the National Defense Fund, that committee should be notified of this meeting and directed to attend.

This letter will be mailed to the masters and secretaries of lodges and it is my direction that they notify the remaining officers and other members designated to attend.

At this meeting the plan adopted at the last session of the grand lodge for the collection of a war relief fund, will also be discussed.

Fraternally yours,

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,
Grand Master.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE

OF A. F. & A. M.

OF ILLINOIS

Lexington, Ill., March 28, 1918.

To District Deputy Grand Masters of Illinois, A. F. & A. M.:

Soon after the close of grand lodge last October I made an appeal to the Masons of Illinois to raise a fund equal to a total of one dollar for each of our entire membership. From time to time since then I have, as grand master, urged the brethren to close up this great movement. Many lodges have reported their full quota and have paid the same into the grand lodge treasury. There are others that have responded only partially.

Every good Mason is a good citizen. It may then be assumed that the failure of lodges to reach the sum asked of them and so much needed in the present great world crisis is from indifference or failure to get in touch with individual members.

In many cases the entire sum has been voted out of the lodge treasury to be returned as paid by the members.

This dollar-per-member movement is simply an appeal to every loyal Mason to do a small thing that the grand lodge may perform a great service to those in need—as a result of the war. Another movement to raise a fund for war purposes has been set on foot. This is under the control of a War Defense Committee of which Past Grand Master Wheeler is chairman. These two campaigns are distinct from each other. Some confusion has resulted and brethren have not quite understood why two appeals for war funds should be made at the same time.

To clear up the atmosphere I have decided to ask you to visit before May 15 every lodge in your district whose quota has not been raised. I urge you to take the following steps:

1. Ask each worshipful master to call a special meeting of his lodge, if the stated does not come in time.
2. Have each resident member notified in writing of the meeting.
3. At the time fixed urge the lodge either to raise the full amount of one dollar per member, or formally to decide that it cannot do so. If there is a balance the lodge, if able, should pay it out of the treasury and collect from each of the members afterward. Many on the night of the meeting, if appealed to, would contribute.
4. Be sure to close up this DOLLAR WAR RELIEF FUND on the night of your visit, not later than May 15, 1918.

Deputies should make it clear to the brethren that this is in no sense an assessment. It is, however, the most urgent appeal of Masonry to Masons, out of their abundance, to contribute for the benefit of our soldier-members who are making the supreme sacrifice, while we remain in safety in the full enjoyment of the blessings of liberty and American prosperity.

Each lodge is hereby authorized, if necessary, to vote out of its treasury any sum needed to make its quota at the special meeting if one be called.

Enclosed you will find a list of lodges giving the membership and contributions to date.

Fraternally yours,

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,

Grand Master.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE
OF A. F. & A. M.
OF ILLINOIS

Lexington, Ill., June 1, 1918.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren A. F. & A. M. of Illinois:
Brethren:

Some time ago I addressed a communication to you advising you of the appointment of the National Defense Committee, and subsequent to that you received from this committee letters, books of certificates, buttons, etc., with reference to the raising of a National Defense Fund.

Some of the lodges have responded very liberally to the call made by the committee, and others have not. I am this day asking the district deputy grand masters to co-operate with the lodges in an organized effort to raise one-quarter million dollars for this fund. This means approximately $2.00 per capita from the membership, and in order to accomplish this I am of the opinion that a personal campaign will have to be made.

It is my desire that where this work has not already been accomplished that lodges should have a committee to solicit this fund and that they personally ask each resident member of the lodges to contribute, and in this connection you are reminded that not only Masons but any member of a Mason's family is eligible to membership in the National Defense Fund and privileged to wear the button.

I might further suggest that the secretary of the lodge, where it is possible for him to act, should be chairman of the committee, and the membership of the lodge should be apportioned out to the various members of the committee so that none shall be missed.

The boys in the service are calling upon us to support them and I am confident that when the members of the lodges understand they will be glad of an opportunity to contribute. The National Defense Committee are spending large sums of money in the war work; they have agreed to erect and maintain a building at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, and are investigating conditions at Camp Grant with a view to meeting the requirements there, and in order to accomplish this they must have funds.

The patriotism and loyalty of Masons has always been of the highest type and I am confident that I shall not be disappointed with reference to my desires in this regard.

I am enclosing herewith a copy of a letter received from one of our members in the trenches which is expressive of the call that is coming from the boys.

I am desirous that the campaign for the raising of this fund shall be closed by September 1, 1918, hence will ask that you act promptly and co-operate with your district deputy grand master in this matter.

All checks should be made payable to Brother Leroy A. Goddard, Grand Treasurer, and mailed to the NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMITTEE, 919 North Dearborn Street, Chicago.

Fraternally yours,

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,

Grand Master.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE
OF A. F. & A. M.
OF ILLINOIS

Lexington, Ill., June 1, 1918.

To District Deputy Grand Masters:

Brethren:—Work on the Grand Lodge War Relief Fund has been finished and I will now ask your aid in completing the drive for the NATIONAL DEFENSE FUND. It is my desire that a personal canvass be made of the members of all of the lodges and in order that this may be done successfully it will be necessary that a committee be organized in each lodge and the membership apportioned out to the various committeemen with instructions that they shall see each individual member and urge upon him the necessity for money for the work contemplated by the National Defense Committee.

It is my desire that this fund should reach at least one-quarter million dollars, and in order to do this it will be necessary that we have approximately $2.00 per capita from the membership. It is also my desire that you should undertake to see that the lodges in your district are organized as outlined above, and that you check them up closely and have them report to you as to the progress of their work, and I will ask that you report to me once a month as to the progress being made.

For your information you will find appended below a list of the lodges in your district, with a memorandum of the amount they have contributed up to May 15, 1918. The amounts shown therein will probably not tally with their remittances to the committee because the monies sent in are credited to the lodges to which the individual contributors belong, and some of the lodges in your district have sent in money obtained from members of other lodges, and the reverse of this is true.

Should you be so situated that it will be impossible for you to undertake this work, I wish you would advise me at once and recommend someone to take your place. I sincerely trust however, that you will be able to undertake the work.

The objects for which this money is being raised have been quite clearly set forth in a circular which you have already received, but in order that it may be thoroughly clear to you I desire to state that the committee is assisting the lodges in the immediate vicinity of the concentration camps in the splendid work they are doing at this time in looking after the sick and providing entertainment and recreation for the boys; that they are assisting the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and the War Recreation Board, and are prepared to render assistance to those in the service or their dependents who may need assistance, and in doing this latter work it is the intention that the National Defense Fund shall supplement the War Relief Fund.

The National Defense Committee has found that from time to time solicitors for the fund are confronted with the statement by the brother who is being solicited, that he has contributed to the Red Cross and various other funds and that he cannot give any more. The committees in the various lodges should be thoroughly prepared to answer any such argument and the answer is that we who are unfit for any reason whatever to go to the front should be willing to do our every duty here at home and we have got to continue contributing to the war relief funds, not only as long as the war lasts, but until all distress caused by the war is relieved.

It is my desire that the drive for the National Defense Fund be thoroughly organized and completely carried out even to the systematic efficiency of the recent Liberty Loan drive. This will require sacrifice on the part of many but surely it is not asking too much of the loyal citizens that constitute our fraternity.

I will appreciate a prompt reply from you as to whether you will act in this capacity, and likewise a monthly report from you until all of the work is completed; said report to be made out and forwarded immediately after the first day of each month. It is my hope to complete this drive within the next ninety days.

Fraternally yours,

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,

Grand Master.

THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE

OF A. F. & A. M.

OF ILLINOIS

To the Worshipful Masters, Wardens, and Brethren of Constituent Lodges:
Brethren:

A World Crisis is impending; the right of the Nations of the World to choose the form of government under which they shall live is attacked by a predatory militaristic power with a savagery and inhumanity which shock the moral sense of the world; the success of this attack would destroy democracy and free government and the achievements of the moral and religious progress and development of the human race for the past two hundred years; the liberties of all free nations, the perpetuity of the fundamental principles and precepts of Freemasonry now hang in the balance. At such a time, in such a crisis, every loyal and patriotic Mason must be conscious of the personal duty resting upon him to aid in all ways possible, in this supreme moment, to defeat this menace to humanity.

Fully realizing and appreciating the patriotism and loyalty of the members of the nine lodges in this state which have heretofore been using the German language in their ritual and lodge records, and at the same time making grateful acknowledgement of their quick and generous response to the calls made upon the Masons of this state to support the government in the Liberty Loans, the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and the two grand lodge funds for the benefit of Masons in the service and the government in its war aims generally; and having been advised that six of the nine German speaking lodges of this state have already taken favorable action in the matter which is the subject of this edict; and profoundly convinced that the welfare and growth and future progress and development of the German speaking lodges in this state will be promoted by a generous and fraternal acceptance and observance of this edict:

Therefore I, Austin H. Scrogin, Grand Master of Masons in the State of Illinois, by virtue of the authority in me vested, do hereby issue and promulgate this edict.

Beginning with the second stated meeting in August, 1918, the English language only shall thereafter be used by each of the constituent lodges in this state, in recording its minutes.

In the constituent lodges in this state which have heretofore used the German language in their ritualistic work, the English language shall be used in all ritualistic work as soon as the officers shall have acquired the necessary proficiency to properly conduct the work in the English language; and from and after the fifteenth of January, 1919, the English language only shall be used in all ritualistic work in all the lodges in this state.

It is ordered that this edict be read in full in open lodge at the first stated meeting after it shall be received.

It is further ordered that this edict be entered in full upon the records of each lodge and be made a part of the proceedings of said lodge at the meeting at which it is read.

GIVEN under my hand and seal of the M. W. Grand Lodge this 10th day of July, A. D. 1918, A. L. 5918, at Lexington, Ill.

GRAND MASTER
LEXINGTON

August 23, 1918.

To the District Deputy Grand Masters of Illinois:

Dear Brethren:

On a former occasion I appealed to you to render a patriotic service. This was in connection with the Dollar War Fund. Your response to this was hearty and produced excellent results.

There has been for some time another movement of the Masons of Illinois along lines of patriotism. This is the raising of a National Defense Fund to be used for the care and comfort of our brethren in the service, at home and abroad. So far many contributions have been made and a considerable sum is in the grand lodge treasury. The needs of the men are and will be great. They are giving their all. It is as little as we can do, while here at home and in safety, to give a small part of our substance to provide a fund sufficient to meet every possible want of our soldiers in the field.

The committee in charge of this fund has fixed the time for closing it on September 25, 1918. It is essential that all contributions be in the hands of the committee by that date, so that report may be made to the grand lodge in October. A record of each lodge will be printed. Credit or criticism will thus be given each lodge according to its response to this appeal. If possible each district deputy should visit every lodge in his district and present this appeal in person. If unable to do this I urge you to communicate by letter or telephone with each lodge. Remittances should be sent to Dr. Ralph H. Wheeler, chairman of the Committee on National Defense, 919 North Dearborn St., Chicago, Illinois.

Knowing your love for your country and loyalty to our great fraternity, I know that this appeal to you will not be in vain.

Fraternally yours,

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN,
Grand Master.

APPENDIX PART I

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON MASONIC CORRESPONDENCE

TO THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE OF ILLINOIS, ANCIENT, FREE, AND ACCEPTED MASONS.

The report on foreign correspondence which follows has been prepared primarily for the Masons of Illinois. It is no small task to examine the printed proceedings of the large number of grand jurisdictions with whom the Grand Lodge of Illinois holds fraternal intercourse and to glean therefrom that which will be instructive and helpful to the thoughtful Mason.

It is imminently proper that there should be brought to those Masons in Illinois who are interested in the welfare of the fraternity, a resume of present day Masonic thought and activity. Not every Mason in the state will peruse the report on foreign correspondence, but there are those who will search its pages for something that will help them to a better understanding of Masonic conditions as they exist throughout the world today.

Whatever has been said concerning the transactions of other grand lodges has been inspired by kindly criticism. It has not been forgotten that each grand jurisdiction knows Masonry as it has been given to them by their own early Masonic pioneers who builded wiser than they knew. Because a thing done in a neighboring state is different from the Illinois plan is no reason that it is not good. It may be subject to criticism when viewed from the Illinois standpoint, for it is a human trait to want to set up our own standards and then find fault with those who do not adhere to our way of acting and thinking.

In the preparation of this report the correspondent has studiously avoided quibbling over trifling law points. It has been assumed that the laws of the several grand jurisdictions have been framed to exploit Masonry as it is understood by its promoters and to meet local conditions best known to the makers and subjects of the laws in question.

At the close of the correspondence report there will be found an addenda containing some statistics as well as several very able and highly instructive documents which have been prepared by some of the most learned Masons in our country. These are offered for the benefit of many Masons who are of a literary turn of mind and who appreciate not only good literature but reliable Masonic information as well.

Now that the last grand jurisdiction has been reviewed and the printer has the copy, the writer is more than ever convinced that all the best in Freemasonry is not centered in the Grand Lodge of Illinois, but that throughout the world there are other grand lodges which are up-holding the traditions and standards of Freemasonry and that there are big, warm hearted, generous, intelligent Masons who are giving the best that is in them toward the advancement of the principles of Freemasonry, honestly believing that wherever Freemasonry thrives and prospers the community is made better, charity inculcated, and manhood sustained.

Fraternally,

DELMAR D. DARRAH.

Bloomington, Illinois, September 1st, 1918.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

The War.

To become convinced that the present great war has had its effect on Freemasonry one needs only to read the proceedings of the many grand lodges. In every jurisdiction this frightful cataclysm seems to have been uppermost in the minds of all members of the fraternity and every effort has been made to turn the powerful energies of Freemasonry toward the support of the great principles involved and the alleviation of human suffering. While perhaps, there has been a lack of co-ordination, and some wasted effort, yet each grand jurisdiction seems to have realized that in the crisis at hand it has duties to perform and has striven to meet them to the very best of its ability. Every grand lodge has taken steps to place itself upon a war footing by raising large sums of money for the care of soldiers, both overseas, and in cantonments. Every order of the government has been willingly complied with, with the result that Masonry has come to be recognized as a powerful force, which when properly directed may be a very helpful factor in winning the struggle for principles of justice and right. Masons have not been unmindful of the fact that should the Kaiser and his hellhounds be successful in their insane desire for world mastery, that the door of every Masonic lodge in the world would be closed and this great human brotherhood cease to exist.

Passing of the German Speaking Lodge.

The year that has just closed has brought about one change which regardless of the war and its effects, makes for genuine Freemasonry. In Illinois and New Jersey, lodges conducting their business and performing the ritual in the German language were ordered to at once become English speaking, or to surrender their charters. This action was inspired, not so much because of prejudice against the German people in this country and their language, as it was to prevent the segregation of peoples of one nationality under the guise of Freemasonry. The fathers in Freemasonry who formulated the principles under which the fraternity is today working never contemplated the organization of class lodges wherein men of different nations, creeds, and professions might segregate and use the lodge as a means of propagating their own peculiar ideas and practices. The purpose of Freemasonry as originally conceived was that of a fraternal democracy, wherein men of every country, sect, and opinion, religious belief and political party, might come together around a common altar, upon a common equality and meet their fellows as children of one father. Lodges made up exclusively of Germans, Frenchmen, Italians, Swedes, and using the particular language of the constituents is not a Masonic lodge; but a lodge composed of men representing these different nationalities and using the language of the country wherein the lodge is located is Masonic. If the war has done nothing else it has awakened us to the danger of class lodges and has served to bring to us a better understanding of the object and purposes of genuine Freemasonry.

Delayed Proceedings.

There is one thing which the writer cannot understand and that is why the proceedings of nearly all grand bodies are so exasperatingly delayed. During the past year the printed proceedings of a number of grand lodges were not issued until after a lapse of from three to six months had passed since the time of meeting. Whenever proceedings are sent out six months following the close of the meeting of the grand body, they lose their instructive value and become merely reference books. Why grand lodges tolerate procrastination on the part of grand secretaries in issuing printed proceedings, cannot be fathomed. These officers are all paid adequate salaries to enable them to devote sufficient time to the business of their offices as to keep reasonably up to date. Of course, when a grand officer gets down to his office at ten or eleven o'clock in the morning and quits at three or four in the afternoon, he cannot be expected to accomplish very much during his limited working hours. Some grand secretaries seem to imagine that any old time will do and obsessed with the idea that their office is one of life tenure, take any old time to do that which is required from them. This is an age of efficiency and the dilatory tactics permitted in most grand lodges would not last twenty-four hours in any modern business concern. There is no reason why proceedings of grand lodges should be long delayed in the matter of issuance. The writer says this advisedly, for as grand recorder of a grand body he has issued a volume as large as the proceedings of any grand lodge within forty-eight hours after closing and has mailed one hundred copies to those most interested, and didn't stay up all night to do it either. This has been done not once but many times, proving that the thing can be done, provided there is a willingness to do it.

Dispensations.

One thing which has impressed the writer more than any other in the review of various proceedings, is the utter senselessness of the dispensation habit, which seems to have fastened itself on all grand lodges. A dispensation is merely the means whereby a grand master permits himself to violate the law and to escape without censure. What is the sense of having constitutions and by-laws if their provisions are to be made subject to the will and caprice of one man.

If laws are good why not live up to them? If they are bad, then repeal them and get them off the statute book. Where is the consistency in enacting a law forbidding a lodge to do a certain thing and then investing a grand master with the power to set aside that law and permit the lodge to do the prohibited thing. If the dispensation habit continues to grow in proportion to its present day development, Freemasonry will wake up some morning and find itself in a ridiculous predicament. It is most refreshing to note that in two or three grand jurisdictions, grand masters refused to take advantage of the dispensation privilege, giving as a reason that they believed the laws as enacted to be good and could see no reason for their being set aside to the detriment of the best interests of the fraternity.

France.

One subject which has claimed the attention of nearly every grand lodge in the United States this year, is that of the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France. Owing to the chaotic condition of things abroad it has been impossible for anyone to arrive at any adequate understanding of Masonic conditions in that war torn country. If the writer understands the situation correctly, there are at present, three grand bodies operating in France, all claiming sovereign powers. The strongest of the three appears to be the Grand Orient of France, a Scottish Rite body, claiming a membership of 8,000, the Grand Lodge of France with a small number of adherents and another grand body whose antecedents and present influence are unknown. So far as it has been possible to get any information, no attempt has been made by the Masons of France to restore the bible to their altars or to require a belief in God as a Masonic prerequisite. In dealing with the question of recognizing the Masons of France, some grand lodges overcome with patriotic fervor, have without question, extended recognition, both to the Grand Lodge and Grand Orient of France and asked for an exchange of representatives. Other grand jurisdictions, have withheld the proposition of recognition, but have permitted all members of their lodges who may be in France, to fraternize with French Masons and visit their lodges. A few grand lodges believing that the fundamental principles of Masonry should at all times be upheld have refused to in any way recognize the Masons of France until such time as they shall return the bible to their altars and recognize the God of our Fathers.

The New Religion.

When the Jewish rabbi held the crucifix to the lips of the dying soldier in Flanders, there gleamed through the smoke of battle, the roar of guns, the screech of shells, the prophecy of a new religion, based upon that long recognized, Masonic foundation stone the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. Anyone who follows the trend of modern thought with an unprejudiced mind must become convinced that we are fast approaching a new era of religious thought and action. The barriers of prejudice are being broken down. The jealousies and selfishness of sects are being dissipated, and mankind is gravitating surely and slowly, toward a Universal Religion wherein many of the old ideals will be forgotten and a better conception of life and action adopted so far as man relates to the God of all and his neighbor on earth. Those of us who are enthusiastically Masonic have a belief that the new religion which the world is bound to recognize will be somewhat along the ideas for which Freemasonry has been contending for two hundred years. Of course no one is expecting that anything in Freemasonry will be at all accepted nor recognized in the new religion nor will the fraternity in any way be given credit for the new reformation, but there is a lingering suspicion that those old fathers in Freemasonry who two hundred years ago, conceived the society and laid down its fundamental principles were prophets for they seem to have perceived a future understanding to which all the world must eventually come.

Military Lodges.

One of the questions which has engaged the attention of nearly every grand lodge during the past year, concerned the organization of military lodges. In a few instances grand lodges have authorized the formation of military lodges and have endowed them with the powers of conferring degrees. This action, however, has been severely criticized in some quarters for the reason that with the large number of lodges now in exist-tence there is no apparent excuse for the creation of military lodges for the purpose of conferring degrees. Another question involves that of jurisdiction. What right would Illinois have to organize a military lodge, attach it to an Illinois regiment and send it down into Texas and confer the degrees upon soldiers hailing from that state, as well as Ohio, Indiana, and New York? To meet this objection, one grand lodge attached a military lodge to a regiment from the state but confined its activities to soldiers from that particular jurisdiction. Some few military lodges have been organized for the usual Masonic functions except those of receiving petitions and conferring degrees. This gives the organization Masonic standing and enables it to perform some of the beneficial functions of a lodge and thereby afford the members, not only Masonic privileges but a Masonic environment as well. So far as learned, no traveling lodges have been organized, but the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts indicate that the subject will receive attention should the present war continue any great length of time.

What of the Future?

As one reads the reports of the various grand lodges he observes a sign of an awakening to the fact that while Freemasonry claims to be a charitable institution yet its organization has failed to provide a substantial source of income for the care of its dependents. During the present year several grand lodges have been compelled to increase their per capita tax in order to meet the requirements of the Masonic Homes. Now that we are actively engaged in the battle line in France and casualty lists are commencing to come in, there is sensed a new responsibility. It is beyond dispute that many members of the Masonic Fraternity will as a result of their participation in the war be seriously maimed and perhaps blinded and made helpless for the balance of their natural lives. To care for these heroic souls and to preserve from want themselves and their families and to educate their children, will be one of the most sacred duties which has ever befallen the Masonic Fraternity. There is not the slightest doubt but that the Masons of the world will unselfishly provide for the needs of those who have made the sacrifice in order that the world may be a safe place in which to live. This question is already receiving the attention of eminent Masons with a view to forming financial plans whereby sufficient income may be derived to properly care for those who are bound to us by more than ordinary ties.

Decisions.

As one peruses the proceedings of the various grand lodges, he becomes more and more impressed with the idea that the decision habit, indulged in by most grand masters, is not only unnecessary but savors a great deal of personal egoism. There seems to be an idea that every grand master, before retiring from office, should make a few decisions, in order that there may be left to posterity some monument to his departed glory. A decision as rendered by a grand master is merely a personal expression of opinion. No grand master can make laws, for he is not greater than the grand lodge over which he presides. The fact that a jurisprudence committee, a creature of the grand master, approves some interpretation of Masonic law, does not make that particular decision a statutory enactment. The only way to make laws in any Masonic body is to present the measure in regular form and have it adopted by the usual two-thirds vote. One grand master this year reported that in his grand lodge there were so many decisions of grand masters on record that it was next to impossible to arrive at a definite conclusion on any particular subject and asked that the grand lodge immediately take steps to codify all existing decision laws and regulations. During the year one or two grand masters have had the courage to come before their respective grand lodges and to state that while they have answered many questions yet they have been unable to see any reason for the rendering of a decision, the laws themselves being complete and explicit. It is to be hoped that all grand lodges will wake up to the utter folly of the decision business and when modifications in existing laws are necessary, will secure them in a legitimate manner.

A Hopeful Sign.

It is encouraging to observe that during the past year, two conventions of bordering grand lodges were called for the purpose of arriving at a definite understanding on some matters of jurisdiction. This is a most hopeful indication and demonstrates that however slow the process may be the barriers of state prejudice are being leveled and we are coming to recognize the necessity of certain fixed, uniform laws upon subjects vitally affecting all jurisdictions alike. There ought to be a uniform rule concerning jurisdiction over rejected material, also on the question of transfer of membership, now permitted by a number of grand lodges, within their own borders. There are other matters upon which grand lodges ought to come to some understanding and a universal rule applied. There is no reason why this should not be accomplished, because in the main we are all striving toward the same end, even though we arrive at it through devious paths. Why grand lodges are so prejudiced over trifling methods of procedure is beyond conjecture. The writer well remembers attending a conference of grand masters wherein the subject of transfer of membership was under discussion. After much argument it was thought that an agreeable plan had been reached. It was then that the grand secretary of one of the youngest grand jurisdictions who was acting as spokesman for his grand master, arose and informed the assembly that his grand lodge would never consent to any such procedure, and went on to explain that the laws that were adopted by this youthful jurisdiction were the result of arduous labor and study on the part of some wonderfully wise Masons and so fundamentally correct were they that any deviation therefrom, meant Masonic disaster. Shades of Doctor Desaugleirs, and this in the twentieth century! However, a new sun is rising on the horizon and it is believed that the time is not far distant when the grand lodges of the world will come to a universal understanding upon Masonic fundamentals.

Fraternity.

The other morning I picked up a prominent Chicago newspaper and was deeply impressed by the cartoon which adorned the front page. It was made by that eminent student of human nature, James Barr McCutcheon. The drawing showed two boys, comrades in the trenches, one from a very rich family, the other from poor but honest parents. Each was writing to his mother. The next picture showed the poor mother over the washtub, reading the letter from her son, while the other mother, amidst her luxurious surroundings was reading the letter from her boy. The third picture showed the rich mother calling upon the poor mother and saying "Now that our sons are such good friends, we too must be friends," and right here lies the great lesson of fraternity, for which the world has been struggling for thousands of years, the spirit of which a band of zealous Freemasons caught two hundred years ago, and grasping its golden threads, wove them into the most beautiful tapestry the world has ever seen, and called it, Freemasonry. One has only to read the reports of various grand lodges, to become thoroughly impressed with the thought that the world is coming to realize the value of fraternity, as practiced and taught by Freemasons. There is every indication that men in all walks of life are beginning to rise above their prejudices and to understand that each human being is dependent upon his fellows and that out of this dependency, there arises the necessity for true fraternity.

The Masonic institution was one of the very first to realize the value of fraternity and to turn its energies toward emphasizing the fact that the high, the low, the rich, the poor, bear a relationship which must be sustained if the world is to progress in its evolution and the era of universal Brotherhood be acclaimed.

Physical Qualifications.

One subject which has engrossed the attention of several grand lodges during the year, is that of physical qualifications. For many years, Masonry has adhered rigidly to the idea that a man seeking the honors of Masonry should be physically perfect. The reason for the strict adherence to this regulation has been that physical perfection was one of the rigid rules adopted by the old operative guilds of the middle ages, from which societies, Freemasonry is supposed to have originated. There may have been good reasons why the men who worked upon the cathedrals of Medieval Europe, should have possessed physical perfection, not only from the workmen's viewpoint but also that they might not prove burdensome to the society. But we are now living in a modern age and we lay down as a basic principle for Masonic preferment, that it is the internal and not the external qualifications of the man that should recommend him to be made a Mason, and then should we discover that his big toe on his right foot is missing, we advise him that he cannot be received, notwithstanding the fact that his internal qualifications may be above question. The subject of physical qualifications is being earnestly brought home to a number of grand lodges because the question is being seriously asked, "can we consistently refuse to admit to our Masonic lodges, our worthy legless and armless soldier boys who have made The Sacrifice that our institutions may continue to live and prosper?" No doubt at the close of this war when our boys come home, many of them possessing physical defects, acquired in battle, they will knock at the door of Masonry. What then will our answer be?

Collective Work.

For a long time, Freemasonry in many quarters of the world, has established the rigid rule that each candidate for Masonic honors must receive his degrees singly and alone. This rule, undoubtedly, became the practice in the early days of the fraternity, when lodges were small and candidates few. Twenty-five or thirty years ago it was an unusual thing for any lodge to raise more than ten or twelve candidates in the course of a year. It was with difficulty that sufficient candidates were found, to keep alive the working interest of the lodge. But conditions have changed. Population has rapidly increased, lodges have multiplied and petitions are so numerous, that it is not unusual for the average lodge to raise fifty or sixty candidates in the course of a year. All of this contributes to haste and carelessness in the conferring of degrees, instead of impressing the candidate with the dignity and solemnity of Masonry, the whole transaction resolves itself into one of getting the work done. To cure the existing evil, more lodges are suggested, but where this has been tried, it has failed to help matters, for the influx of petitions continues and the ritual becomes more or less of a rapid transit process. In several of the grand jurisdictions during the past year, the question of collective work on candidates has been seriously discussed. Of course, the mere suggestion of such a procedure, has met with vigorous opposition on the part of the graybeards, but notwithstanding this, there is a growing conviction that lodges should be permitted to confer the degrees upon a limited number of candidates at one time under certain restrictions and conditions. It has been suggested that with the adoption of this practice there will be less necessity for hurrying candidates through the ceremonies, and that a period of seven days should be made mandatory between the time of conferring the degrees. The writer is a firm believer in collective work, because a careful study of the subject, together with present conditions has thoroughly convinced him that collective work, will not only serve to relieve the burdens of the lodge, but will result in a more dignified rendering of our ritual much to the benefit and impression of the candidate.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON

NINETEEN HUNDRED EIGHTEEN

DELMAR D. DARRAH

ALABAMA, A. F. & A. M.

1917

The 97th annual communication was held in the city of Montgomery, Wednesday, December 5, 1917. The Masons of Alabama apparently propose to hold their deliberations in cool weather.

The report of the Committee on Credentials discloses the fact that William W. Daffin, representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, near the Grand Lodge of Georgia, responded to the roll call.

Distinguished guests who were present were introduced by the grand secretary. The deputy grand high priest of the grand chapter and the grand commander of the grand commandery were each given recognition.

The grand master opens his annual address by saying—

The year just past has been a fairly successful one, and we may congratulate ourselves that notwithstanding the troublesome times which have existed throughout the nation, that our annual report will show a fair growth in membership and that we have passed the twenty-nine thousand mark. The returns will also show better collections and I think from the report of the district lecturers that we have increased interest both in ritualistic work and in the study and consideration of those deeper truths which our symbolism conceals.

He makes four decisions, one of them being that the death of a brother against whom charges are pending abates the proceedings and that such a brother is entitled to a Masonic burial.

He also decided that—

Army officers and men, residents of other states, who have volunteered, or who have been members of National Guard units and entered national service, or who have been enlisted under the selective draft, or other laws, shall not be considered as coming within the exception provided by Edict No. 260 of the Code of 1915, and they may not petition Alabama lodges for initiation until they acquire the twelve months residence required for other persons.

Four new lodges were constituted. He also reports four instances of the consolidation of lodges, all of which appeared to be for the betterment of the Masonic interests of the state.

One lodge surrendered its charter. No reason for its action is given.

The grand master issued the usual number of dispensations. Among them were seven granting lodges permission to sell property and five to mortgage property. From the above it is conjectured that the lodges in question don't own the property for which they have paid but that by some indirect process it has passed into the control of the grand lodge.

Concerning dispensations to ballot out of time and confer degrees Brother Smith says—

This has been a subject of more than ordinary demand and thought during the past year. Petitions for dispensations have been more than usually insistent, and, for reasons given, have been hard to refuse. About the usual number of requests were made prior to the declaration of war, that were treated each on its merits as I saw it.

When war was declared there were a large number of brethren whose applications were in, or who were passing through the degrees in regular course, who enlisted, and were preparing to leave home. If it was at all possible, making the requirement that proficiency must be made before advancement, I authorized the lodges to complete the degrees before the brethren left.

After the selective draft was complete, there appeared to be a great increase in petitions filed with subordinate lodges. I could not help but feel that some of these brethren had had time to have taken the degrees in regular course before this emergency called them to the colors, and that a few of them might be influenced by the known assistance that Masoury had been to its members in previous wars. Besides, by the courtesy of sister lodges these brethren could receive all the degrees before they left the country, and from that time I have refused dispensations, except in cases where I knew there was merit. Neither the petitioner nor our organization benefit by waiving the time provision for completing the degrees.

As usual, I presume that I have granted some dispensations that should not have been granted, and have probably refused some where it should have been granted, but I have tried, so far as I could, with the, in most cases, limited information on which I had, to grant or refuse the applications according to my best judgment. To those who have been injured or delayed by any incorrect decision along this line, I can only state that I did the best I knew how. Petitions along this line have been numerous, in some cases as many as fifteen or more a day.

Among cases of evasion of the law was one wherein a lodge met for a stated meeting and gave out the impression that none would be held. Later on the brethren came back to the lodge room and elected a candidate. As a result something started.

During the year the grand master had some trouble with an alleged clandestine organization which established itself within the jurisdiction of the state. He found it necessary to issue a letter to the brethren cautioning them against this spurious organization.

The cornerstones of two Methodist churches were laid by the grand master during his administration.

He makes an extended report concerning the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions and enrolls the name of Albert B. Ashley, past grand master of Illinois.

From the report of the grand master the idea is obtained that the Masonic home of the state is having considerable trouble in getting sufficient funds to maintain itself. The deficit existing at the time being about $40,000. A circular was issued to the lodges asking the brethren at the annual meeting to make a substantial donation for the benefit of the home. In this connection it might be remarked that Masonic home projects are already proven expensive adventures, and each grand lodge before embarking in this much desired labor of Freemasonry should first arrange an adequate system of revenues whereby deficits will be an impossibility.

The grand master says that he has had a large amount of correspondence. This is most natural. All Masons like to write to the grand master.

The work of the district lecturers of the state is highly commended and a rearrangement of the districts is urged by the grand master to make it easier for them to cover their territory.

At the last annual meeting an amendment was made to the constitution placing the decision as to the physical qualifications of a candidate in the hands of the lodge subject to the written approval of the grand master. He realized that a responsibility had been placed upon him for he says—

I had been of the opinion that the intention of this amendment was only to modify to a limited extent the laws previously existing, and the grand lodge having declined to make any interpretation of the new law, but leaving each case to the judgment of the grand master I adopted for myself a rule that where the candidate could, either with his own person, or with the aid of artificial limbs, place himself in the necessary positions and give the signs and grips, that I would approve the action of a lodge in accepting such candidate.

He endorses the George Washington Memorial Association and recommends a donation of $1500 payable in five annual installments.

The grand master was certainly loyal in supporting the government of the United States in its appeals for food conservation and other matters for the grand master immediately took these subjects up with the brethren of the state and asked their hearty co-operation.

His concluding remarks show his tender spirit—

Have I been stern, or unyielding? Have I injured your feelings? If I have, I here state my sincere regrets. I cannot say that I would take back those actions if I could, because I have in these cases acted according to the dictates of my conscience, and of my belief in what was right. I have tried to act along the lines of what I believed was right. If I have made mistakes they were not intentionally made, and will only prove that my judgment was defective.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $29,920.78.

During the year the lodges had occasion to vote on a proposition to amend the constitution. The grand secretary incorporates in his report the list of lodges of the state showing whether they voted yes or no. Here is a suggestion for Uncle Isaac Cutter. The writer is disposed to believe that if an amendment of the constitution is of sufficient importance to be sent to the lodges for their action then the result is of sufficient import to be published in detail.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence makes a critical report concerning recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama and recommends that the same be accorded and representatives exchanged.

Concerning the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France the committee made the following resolutions which were adopted—

Resolved, by the Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of Alabama, That Masons holding membership in its lodges are, until otherwise ordered, privileged to visit lodges of the Grand Lodge and of the Grand Orient of France and to hold Masonic intercourse with their members, and that lodges holding under this grand lodge are authorized to admit as visitors Masons holding under said grand bodies of France.

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Correspondence gather all obtainable information and report to the next annual communication of this grand lodge its recommendation as to what should be the attitude of this grand lodge towards those grand bodies.

The Committee on By-Laws reports the examination and review with suggested changes of amendments to by-laws prepared by lodges. As this item is being dictated it has occurred to the writer that it wouldn't be a bad idea for the Grand Lodge of Illinois to make it the business of the Committee on Laws in our own grand lodge to pass upon all lodge by-laws and amendments thereto. Some day, and we hope very soon, the Grand Lodge of Illinois is going to get through amending its own regulations and the Committee on Laws may find itself without anything to do, hence the suggestion that their labors be extended.

In running over the proceedings it is noticed that the minutes of each session are read and approved at the following session.

The Board of Control of the Masonic home make a detailed report which, while long, contains many interesting items and deals with many financial matters of vital interest to the lodges of the state.

The brethren of the grand lodge ought to have the benefit of every bit of information contained in this report and this suggests a matter for the consideration of the Board of Managers of the Illinois Masonic Home. Every year they read in grand lodge an exhaustive account of their transactions and present many financial statements in large figures which no one seems to be able to grasp. If this committee would present their report in printed form on the first day of the session of the grand lodge in order that the brethren might be able to read and understand it, it would be a step in advance of the present method.

Concerning the grand master's recommendation for a donation to the George Washington Memorial Association the Finance Committee were compelled to report adversely for the reason that every available resource of the grand lodge was needed at home.

Concerning a resolution creating the office of grand lecturer and attaching thereto a salary the committee reported that they considered it unwise to take such action at this time.

The grand lodge took action concerning soldier candidates for the following resolution was adopted—

Resolved, That during the term of the present war when either of the degrees are to be conferred upon two or more soldier candidates for a lodge of a sister jurisdiction, the worshipful master may, at his discretion, confer any part of the degrees upon a class of two or more such candidates at one and the same time.

The presence in the state of clandestine bodies no doubt caused the grand lodge to adopt the following—

Be it resolved, That no one shall be permitted to visit any subordinate lodge within the jurisdiction of the Most Worshipful

Grand Lodge of the State of Alabama, unless such person presents a properly accredited receipt from a regular lodge of this jurisdiction or of a jurisdiction with which this grand jurisdiction is in fraternal relations, or a certificate of membership properly issued under the seal of the grand lodge; provided that the presiding master, or the one acting as such, may waive this requirement if he is satisfied that such person is a regularly made Mason.

Resolved, second, That the grand secretary be, and he is hereby, directed to provide such certificates of membership in such form as shall be approved by him and the grand master and shall issue same at the request of the local lodges at a price not to exceed the cost of the certificate.

This is merely an adoption of the idea of uniform receipts.

The following resolution introduced in the grand lodge concerning the Lewis (see Mackey's Encyclopedia for information) is reproduced in full because it revives an obsolete practice of the fraternity with which probably few Masons are acquainted—

Whereas, "the Lewis," as a working tool of Ancient Craft Masonry—used only under great emergencies—has for a long time been dropped from use by the craft because it was not needed; and

Whereas, the present cataclasm in Europe threatens the very existence of the principles for which Freemasonry has labored for centuries to perpetuate; and

Whereas, these practical Lewises are many in this grand jurisdiction, sacrificing all, and striving to uphold the principles of Masonry in its strength and purity; therefore,

Be it resolved, by the Masons of Alabama in grand lodge assembled, That it is the sense of this grand lodge that the Lewis, as an emergency working tool be at once instituted in this grand lodge, and the age limit of Lewises in this grand jurisdiction be fixed at whatever age the United States Government fixes for enlistment into service, either as volunteers or by selective draft system.

Resolved further, That the privileges of the Lewis shall be granted only to "candidates who have actually enlisted or been drafted or commissioned officers in the United States forces in the great war, and during the term of said war," and shall be extended to such candidates regardless of whether the candidate's father be a Mason, or infirm, and on the same terms and conditions, and with such privileges, as the grand lodge grants to persons of similar service in the government who are over the age of twenty-one years.

Resolved further, That the grand master be, and he is hereby requested, to issue dispensations for the immediate reception of candidates by the subordinate lodges who are entitled to the privileges of Masonry as such Lewis until the constitution can be amended to meet the emergency.

The report of the Committee on Jurisprudence on the above is interesting—

Your Committee on Masonic Jurisprudence, to which was referred the resolution for the recognition and putting into operation of the ancient custom known as "the Lewis" beg leave to report that it is with regret that the committee must non-concur therein, and recommend that it be not adopted, as the said resolution is in direct conflict with the constitution of the grand lodge.

Your committee recommends that the incoming grand master make careful research to ascertain if it is within his prerogative to grant dispensation to use "the Lewis" as an emergency working tool, and if he finds it to be so, recommend that he be as liberal in the use thereof as wisdom and the good of the craft may dictate, provided the same be used in cases only of candidates who have actually enlisted or been drafted or commissioned as officers in the United States forces, or who may hereafter connect themselves with the United States forces, but during the term of the war only.

The installation of officers concluded the interesting session which has just been reviewed. No jewel was presented to the grand master, but the grand secretary and the Finance Committee were directed to purchase a suitable testimonial and present same to the retiring official.

The correspondence report was prepared by Oliver Day Street. He very generously devotes five pages to Illinois.

He states that "Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler submitted an address of medium length fully covering all matters of importance," and comments as follows concerning his Advisory Council—

This is a new committee of Grand Master Wheeler's own creation. When he was installed one year previously, he requested an appropriation to defray the expenses of such a council and $1,000.00 was allowed. It consists of the deputy grand master, the two grand wardens, grand secretary and the chairmen of the six most important committees. Its functions are to act as an advisory board to the grand master. Such an adjunct may be needed in a great jurisdiction like Illinois, but we expect to see this contagion spread to some others where its only office will be to create expense and furnish places for aspiring brethren. Eventually we may see every grand jurisdiction in the world equipped with its "cabinet."

He reviews in detail the principal subjects presented by Brother Wheeler to the grand lodge. He neither commends nor criticizes and as silence gives consent we arrive at the conclusion that what was done was satisfactory.

For the benefit of Alonzo Dolan, grand printer, the following comment concerning the use of caps is reproduced—

Brother Martin follows the example of Bro. Scott and uses small letters where elementary rules require the use of capitals. He spells Masonry and Freemasonry with a little m and a little f. To be consistent he should use o. e. s. for Order of the Eastern Star, but does not. This may appear to some as of trifling importance but it is not. The appearance of Masonic writings of every kind would be greatly improved and their absurdities greatly lessened if we observed the ordinary rules of English composition, indulging in neither too profuse nor too scant a use of capitals. Some of us go to one extreme, but Brothers Scott and Martin have certainly gone to the other.

The reviewer agrees with Brother Martin's ideas concerning physical qualifications. He, however, resents Brother Martin's criticism of the National Masonic Research Society of Iowa in the following—

Why should not the grand master of Iowa call the attention of Iowa Masons to the splendid Masonic journal published in their midst? And why should he for doing so be virtually accused of commercial motives? And why this thrust at the Grand Lodge of Iowa, which is recognized the world over as a leader among grand lodges in all that makes for the increase of enlightenment and knowledge among Masons? She has in this field far outstripped both our own and Brother Martin's grand lodge. We are neither envious nor jealous of her but honor her for the example she has set us all. Brother Martin will, we are sure, regret his ungenerous words when he has reflected upon them.

He also takes exception to what he calls Brother Martin's contemptuous allusion to the address of Brother Roscoe H. Pound of Massachusetts on divergencies in Masonic ritual as well as his criticism of the address of the grand master, Melvin M. Johnson, and says—

Now that is strange! We perused that same volume with the greatest pleasure and interest and never dreamed that there was a word in it that could offend the sensibilities of any one. As for Grand Master Johnson and Grand Secretary Hamilton we have had occasion to seek information at their hands and from no one have we ever received more prompt and more fraternal responses than from them. Surely Brother Martin's digestion must have been out of order when he reviewed Massachusetts and Iowa.

The thirteenth annual communication opened in the city of Edmonton on Wednesday, May 29. The title page of the proceedings mentions the executive grand officers for 1918 in the following manner: "Most Worshipful Brother, Doctor H. Darling, Grand Master." The use of professional and civic titles in Freemasonry is not in good taste. It is immaterial whether H. Darling is a doctor, a lawyer, or a candlestick maker. Freemasonry knows him only as a man, who has assumed the obligations of the fraternity and is entitled only to the address of Brother, and the usual Masonic titles. Of course our English cousins are strong for handles to their names. Perhaps when their democracy reaches the same advance as does that of our Americans, they will begin to realize how very little, after all, titles avail.

The credential report enumerates the presence of a large number of past masters, showing that these brethren still retain a vital interest in the affairs of Masonry. The grand lodge was welcomed by the mayor of the city, after which Grand Master W. M. Connacher, read his annual report. It was not a long document, and the various matters which passed through his hands received brief treatment. In his opening remarks he says—

Today our opportunity is unprecedented. Never before in the history of mankind have there been such national unrest and upheaval, personal calamities, loss, distress and sorrow, physical and spiritual suffering, as have been during these years of world-wide conflict, in which and by which, a gross materialism has been seeking to destroy the world's spiritual ideals.

Let us, therefore, grasp this opportunity and exemplify our principles in a practical way. The ground is well ploughed, yes, even harrowed, and it is for us as craftsmen, to go out and sow the seeds of brotherly Love, Relief and Truth, that there may be less of physical pain and spiritual suffering along the way where we have passed.

The fraternal dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions received proper tribute. He records in detail his visitation to lodges and refers to the reports of the district deputy grand masters for the general condition of the lodges throughout the jurisdiction.

Masonry must be in a flourishing condition in Alberta, for ten dispensations were issued for the formation of new lodges. The usual number of dispensations were granted by the grand master to justify evasions of the law. Seventeen of them were for the purpose of permitting lodges to attend divine service in full regalia. It is beyond dispute that Masons have not as yet outgrown their vanity, for they never want to appear in public unless they are thoroughly regaled with those trappings and gewgaws which are the delight of the Fiji Islanders. One dispensation issued by the grand master was to permit the degrees to be conferred upon a petitioner who had not been in the state one year. He expresses the opinion that the broadest view should be taken in the matter of granting dispensations to initiate returned soldiers who have been wounded in the great war.

Brother Connacher makes no decisions but does submit five rulings. They are all of minor importance.

Concerning the Patriotic Fund being raised by the grand lodge, the grand master states that the sum of $15,000.00 had been contributed and expresses great disappointment that the amount was not $25,000.00.

He refers to the great war and the tremendous sacrifice already made by the Dominion of Canada, and suggests that—

After the war is over and the period of reconstruction comes there are going to be many problems to solve. We, as a fraternity should prepare now to take our place in our national life as an exemplar and exponent of justice and right and identify ourselves fully and intelligently with these problems.

Appended to the address of the grand master are the reports of the district deputy grand masters, showing that a very careful system of visitation and inspection is maintained in the jurisdiction of Alberta which secures most gratifying results.

The report of the grand treasurer discloses deposits of $7,931.18, and checks issued to the amount of $11,565.11.

The report of the grand secretary is a detailed document, in which he enumerates in full the various documents and matters handled by him. He states that the net increase in membership for the year is 40% greater than that of the preceding year, showing the institution of Masonry to be in a most prosperous condition in the Province of Alberta.

The grand lodge has very little to worry about for the grand secretary reports the surplus of assets over liabilities to be $24,193.49.

The report of the Committee on Jurisprudence is unusual for they state that no matter has been submitted to them for consideration. Glory Hallelujah! Here is one jurisdiction that got by without having its established laws and regulations tampered with.

The Committee on the Condition of Masonry make a very interesting report. They took the reports of the district deputy grand masters, thoroughly analyzed them and then submitted their findings to the grand lodge, with some recommendations for the betterment of the general condition of Masonry within the jurisdiction.

The Committee on Foreign Relations and Correspondence recommended that the request made by the Grand Lodge of Panama for recognition be not granted and cites the following reasons—

The constituent lodges in Panama composing this "Grand Lodge" received their warrants from the "Supreme Council" of Venezuela which authority was of similar origin from Spain, where again, a "Supreme Council" was the source of authority. Thus it would seem that one of the basic requirements, that of grand lodge warrant, or authority, is lacking in this case.

Concerning recognition of the Grand Lodge of France which had previously been extended by the Grand Lodge of Alberta the following recommendation is made—

We also recommend that recognition be withdrawn from this so-called Grand Lodge of France, at once, and without ceremony. This body has but two or three small lodges in its allegiance. Its foundation is recent and by one Ribancourt, who left the ranks of the Grand Orient of France two or three years ago and immediately organized this so-called grand lodge. One naturally wonders at hasty recognition, extended to a very small, new organization, which makes such extensive claims. French Masons fight for us and with us. They have proved themselves real brothers in time of need. The recognition extended to this new French body from England was by one "Pro. Grand Master" alone. It has not been generally recognized, and there is every evidence that it will not now receive further recognition. On the other hand, there is a very strong current toward re-adjustment with the Grand Orient of France. We further recommend that encouragement be given this move, even to the extent of granting their request for recognition, if this grand lodge can so decide.

The Grand Lodge of Alberta must have had supreme confidence in its Correspondence Committee, for it adopted the report without question.

The Committee on Fraternal Dead, make a most excellent report. They refrain from hanging any ecrepe, and express a very hopeful view of the "hereafter" with the admonition that he is best prepared for the future life who strives the most earnestly to do his duty by his fellowmen while on earth.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by H. Darling. Illinois receives two pages of very courteous treatment. Our reviewer compliments the proceedings quite highly and commends the many acts of Grand Master Wheeler. A liberal quotation is taken from the oration of Osear Kropf.

The report on Masonic correspondence by Charles H. Martin is spoken of as an exceedingly interesting report of three hundred pages.

ARKANSAS, F. & A. M.

The seventy-sixth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas was held in the city of Little Rock on November 20, 1917. The report of the Committee on Credentials records the presence of George Thornburg, grand representative of Illinois.

Following the opening ceremonies the representatives sang America.

The roll of deceased past grand masters was called and for a few moments the grand lodge was given over to patriotic exercises.

The grand master addressed the grand lodge and called for four minute speeches from distinguished brethren present. The patriotism of the representatives was aroused to the very highest pitch.

The address of Grand Master J. S. Reamey to the grand lodge is a well prepared paper in which he sets forth in a clear and concise manner the affairs of his office. Like all grand masters, Brother Reamey opens with reference to the great war and says—

We live in an age we should feel doubly blest to have lived to see, an era poets have sung about and dreamers have dreamed of, just at the beginning of the reign of the Prince of Peace fully and finally, and as a nation under God, we have chosen to step in, win the battle and bring about the glad era.

Soldiers armed to kill? Yea, but only that through the blood bought sacrifice the world may be a better place in which to live, generations to come may learn of and worship the true and living God, and war shall be known no more. I would not minimize the terrors of war, the vast anguish and suffering to follow in its wake, but we have a duty to perform, God's hand is leading the armies of America and His blessing will come in due time, if we but trust in Him.

Therefore, I congratulate you as Masons, the one order more than any single agency assisting our infant republic in its struggle for independence, having guided as none other the lives and character of its rulers and statesmen, until the glorious United States of America is hailed by every nation as the invincible, unconquerable foe of the Prince of Darkness and the Champion of the Rights of the People to rule. From this lofty ideal, we as a nation will not recede, but on the battlefield and in the council of nations will our armies conquer and our statesmen dictate the death knell of Tyranny and the birth of Liberty for all people.

What he has to say concerning the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions is brief.

In response to the appeal of the government circulars were issued to the lodges upon the subject of food conservation. The grand master approved four appeal circulars which were sent to the lodges of the state. One appeal netted the sum of $52.00. This would be at the rate of about 10 cents per lodge.

Instead of sending these appeals to the lodges of the state it would be far better if the grand lodge assumed this burden and rendered such assistance to the local lodge as might be necessary. The sending of circulars of appeal was the way in which lodges raised money for the care of their indigent before Masonry grew to its present proportions and before grand lodges had commenced to organize for the purpose of engaging in charitable work. In Arkansas, however, the grand master realized that something should be done and issued a circular directing that a charity box be placed on the altar in all lodges and that members be asked to contribute to the relief of the unfortunate brethren of Arkansas.

From the report it is noticed that under provisions of the law, deeds were executed and transmitted to lodges in question. It would be interesting to know why the grand lodge exercises jurisdiction in these matters unless it holds title to all lodge property.

Three dispensations for the formation of new lodges were issued and five dispensations for the laying of cornerstones.

Four lodges failed to hold meetings according to the law of the state and the grand master immediately took up their cases and recommended discipline on the part of the grand lodge.

Brother Reamey made a large number of visitations to other lodges and thereby showed his interest in the brethren of his state.

Concerning the reports of the district deputies he says—

Indications show a lack of interest on the part of the lodges in calling for instructions and our deputies hesitate to force their presence within the lodges where the invitation is not extended. We do not possess any superior principles of morality, many others teach the same, but we do have a specific form of ceremonies for impressing those principles on our candidates, and to this end the lodges must have instruction and be able to communicate the Arkansas work as it should be given, in order that our candidates may be duly impressed with the high standard of morality, we require. At present our system of instruction is sadly deficient, almost amounts to nothing and this must be remedied.

Valuable reports were received from Brother Charles C. Hunt, grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, near the Grand Lodge of New York as to his attendance at the sessions of that grand body. This is just the thing we might expect from Charlie Hunt. He is thorough and painstaking in any task that may be assigned to him and he has set an example which may well be imitated by other grand representatives.

The grand master in his ramifications about the state discovered that lodges were not charging sufficient dues to enable them to properly carry on their work, in many cases being as low as $1.00 per year. He called particular attention to one instance where a deceased brother had paid dues at the rate of $1.00 per annum. His sickness and funeral expense were borne by his lodge and at the present time his orphans are being educated and cared for by the grand lodge. The total cost of the service being rendered to this family is estimated at $10,000. The grand master rightfully argues that no institution can survive if it continues to offer so much protection on so slight a personal responsibility on the part of the craft. This same idea may well be taken home by the lodges in Illinois, many of them charging as low as $2.00 per year plus grand lodge dues. No Masonic lodge can properly do its full duty as a lodge on dues of such small amounts.

Believing that the lodges of Arkansas ought to observe a thanksgiving occasion, the grand master recommended that every lodge in the state should summon its membership and hold special thanksgiving meetings at some time during the year prior to the festival of St. John the Baptist. He suggested that at these meetings a fund be collected and be remitted to the grand secretary for general relief purposes.

Concerning what Masons ought to do in the present war one suggestion is made which all lodges would do well to follow—

The officers in the army and navy all agree the most valuable thing that the people back home can do for the man in service is to frequently write him bright, chatty, gossipy letters, not filled with regret or sentimentality, but the unconstrained letter of friend to friend or chum to chum. Every lodge should appoint members to carry on such a correspondence with their brethren, that they may not feel themselves forgotten. Once in a while, let the lodge write that a bouquet of flowers has been sent to the wife or a plaything given to the baby as the expression of real love of brother for brother. And once in a while, a box of tokens, books, magazines, tobacco, home-made edibles, or other little things will cause the soldier, in the silent watches of the night on guard, to thank the stars twinkling above his head, and their Maker, that his Masonry has brought him brothers.

In his concluding remarks the grand master stated that he had found the Order of Eastern Star a valued accessory of the fraternity and suggested that Masons should doff hats to the noble ladies of this grand body. Maybe he wants to be grand patron of the Society of Twinklers. At any rate he made a mighty good bid for their favors.

The address of the grand master was disposed of by the committee with a few brief paragraphs.

Immediately following the address of the grand master the grand representatives of various jurisdictions were placed west of the altar and formally greeted.

The report of the grand secretary is a rather lengthy document which goes into detail concerning many affairs of his office. Forty-seven lodges followed the grand master's suggestion and held thanksgiving meetings. The total sum contributed for charity at these meetings was $629.93.

The grand secretary reports receipts of $29,148.85. The expenditures were $31,720.91.

Again the Eastern Star came in for some more recognition. On motion the grand chapter then in session was invited to be present in grand lodge during the address by the grand orator, and a committee was appointed to extend the invitation. Our good friend George Thornburg was chairman of the committee, and no doubt extended the invitation in an imposing manner.

The grand master having decided during the year that an Entered Apprentice may be granted a dimit, the Committee on Laws found it necessary to disagree with him on the ground that under the laws of Arkansas none but Master Masons can dimit.

The Committee on Laws recommended the adoption of the following rather unusual resolution and the grand lodge concurred—

Resolved: That this Most Worshipful Grand Lodge accepts and commits itself to the doctrine that as such grand lodge it is the sovereign governing power within the territorial limits and jurisdiction of the state of Arkansas, with full and ample authority and that it is its duty to the craft to declare what bodies claiming to be Masonic within its territory are lawfully such, and with what Masonic bodies, Master Masons in this state may lawfully affiliate and officiate.

II

Resolved, That this grand lodge acknowledges no degree of Masonry or order of knighthood to be legitimate and genuine except those conferred by or under authority of the following regularly constituted Masonic bodies of the United States of America and those of corresponding rank in foreign countries, with whom we have fraternal relations:

The Grand Lodges of Free and Accepted Masons of the several states and territories and their subordinate bodies;

The General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the United States and the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the states and territories and their subordinate bodies;

The General Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of the United States and the Grand Councils of Royal and Select Masters of the states and territories and their subordinate bodies;

The Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States and the grand commanderies of the states and territories and their subordinate bodies;

The Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of which George F. Moore is sovereign grand commander, and the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States of which Barton Smith is grand commander.

Resolved, That any Master Mason who shall hereafter take or receive any so-called Masonic degree or order of knighthood from any man or body of men not hereinbefore acknowledged to be legitimate and genuine, shall be expelled from all rights and privileges of Masonry.

Resolved, That any Master Mason who shall hereafter confer, communicate or sell, or be present at or assist in the conferring communication, or selling, or solicit any one to take or receive or apply for any so-called Masonic degree or order of knighthood in any assemblage of men, no matter by what name soever it may be called, except it be held under the authority of one of the bodies hereinbefore acknowledged to be legitimate and genuine, SHALL be immediately expelled from all rights and privileges of Masonry.

In some way the committee overlooked the Order of Eastern Star and may be due for an accounting later on.

The Grand Lodge of Arkansas apparently does not believe in wasting either time or money on a report on foreign correspondence for the chairman of the committee makes a very brief report to the grand lodge of the principal items which he picked up in his review of fifty-eight proceedings of grand lodges. Apparently he found nothing in the Proceedings of Illinois worth mentioning for there is no reference whatsoever made to our jurisdiction.

The committee recommended recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama and asked for further time to investigate the Grand Lodge of France. The grand lodge adopted the report.

The report of the trustees of the Masonic Orphans' Home and school is quite lengthy and resembles very much the report of the Board of Managers of the Illinois Masonic Homes. There is too much in this report for the brethren of the grand lodge to comprehend without some study.

The oration delivered by the grand orator, J. S. Utley, was made the special order of business for an evening session of the first day. The oration was a resume of the fundamental principles and teachings of Freemasonry, and a discussion of the causes of the present war and our duty as Freemasons.

Following the grand orator's address the grand matron of the Eastern Star was introduced who showed to the audience the purposes of the Order of the Eastern Star as a correlative worker with the Masonic Fraternity.

A resolution was introduced fixing the minimum dues of the lodges in the state at $3.00. After a spirited discussion the report was rejected.

The proposition to construct a building at Camp Pike for the use of Masons was laid over for the present.

The question of building a home for aged Masons and widows which has been engaging the attention of the grand lodge for sometime was brought up for action in an extended report by the special committee appointed to consider the project. The committee, however, were of the opinion that the grand lodge should not at the present time engage in institutional charity but did recommend the establishment of a pension fund. The grand lodge adopted the report and because of the fact that the idea is new and of peculiar interest to Masons the plan as proposed by our Arkansas brethren is given in full—

Resolved, by the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Arkansas:

Section 1. Any Master Mason, a member in good standing of a lodge of Arkansas, who is indigent and unable to earn a support for himself or his family, may be paid a pension, out of a Pension Fund hereinafter provided for; not to exceed $12.50 per month in any case, and be paid monthly by the trustees of said fund as hereafter provided for and any widow of a Master Mason, whose husband was at the time of his death a member in good standing of a lodge in Arkansas, who is destitute, and unable to support herself or family may likewise be paid a pension out of said Pension Fund, to be paid monthly by the trustees, the same as to aged Masons; but provided, that if the Pension Fund shall not be sufficient to pay all pensioners in full, they shall be paid an equal pro rata of such fund.

Sec. 2. For such Pension Fund each lodge shall pay fifty cents per capita on all Master Masons borne on the rolls Sept. 30th of each year, except honorary members; the same to be paid as all other dues are paid and be included in the returns of each year. The grand secretary shall pay over to the trustees by the 31st of December of each year all amounts paid in by the lodges on account of such per capita tax, and all other sums that may be received by him for such fund, and shall report the same to the grand lodge each year, in his annual report.

Sec. 3. Said Pension Fund shall be administered by five trustees, four of whom shall be elected by this grand lodge and the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star of Arkansas shall be invited to elect or appoint one trustee; all of whom shall serve without pay, except actual expenses of attendance of meetings of the Board of Trustees. Each trustee from this grand lodge shall serve for four years, and the trustees named in this edict shall determine by lot among themselves their respective terms of service, and thereafter the grand lodge shall elect one trustee at each session, or fill vacancies as may be necessary. Said trustees shall have power to make such regulations as to payment of pensions as they may see fit. Said trustees shall each year elect from their number a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and auditor. The secretary and treasurer shall each give bond in some security company in the sum of $1000.00, the expense of which shall be borne by the Pension Fund. Said trustees shall report to the grand lodge each year their receipts and expenditures.

Sec. 4. Brothers L. P. Kemper, Charles E. Rosenbaum, J. S. Reamey and F. W. Tueker, are hereby appointed trustees of this grand lodge for the Pension Fund herein provided for, to serve for the first term.

Sec. 5. For the maintenance and increasing of such Pension Fund, all lodges of this jurisdiction and Masons individually are exhorted to make voluntary contributions thereto.

Sec. 6. Nothing in this edict shall be taken as preventing or being contrary to the erection of a home in the future; the matter of such building being left for future consideration.

Sec. 7. This edict shall be in force from this date.

A resolution requiring examination in the third degree was laid over for one year.

As heretofore stated there is no correspondence report made a part of the proceedings of the grand lodge other than the brief report read by the committee during the grand lodge session.

The proceedings open with a portrait of Brother Douglas Corsan, grand master for 1917 in full military uniform.

The forty-seventh annual communication was held in the city of Victoria on June 20, 1918. The grand lodge was opened in ample form, after which the grand master, Brother Douglas Corsan read his address. It was a very short document, covering but five printed pages.

He makes extended reference to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. One petition for a dispensation to form a new lodge was received, but owing to some question of jurisdiction the matter was referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence. Brother Corsan found it unnecessary to make any official rulings. He states that it had been impossible to visit any of the lodges of the state and for that reason was not informed as to Masonic conditions throughout the jurisdiction. He reports that the one cent fund being collected had resulted in the accumulation of a very satisfactory amount. He closed his address with the hope that another year would see the end of this great world struggle.

The district deputy grand master submits a statement of his activities, showing that during the year he made many official visits and kept in close touch with the Masonic affairs of his jurisdiction.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $6,165.05 and expenditures of $8,039.44.

The grand secretary goes much into detail concerning various official matters which passed through his office, such as the approval of by-laws, dispensations, etc. He states that the lodges of his jurisdiction own property to the value of $261,333.78. The total amount expended for relief is given as $8,311.37.

The honor roll which is made a part of the proceedings is a long one, and serves to emphasize the seriousness of the present great world struggle.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are complete showing that those officers exercise efficient supervision over their respective districts.

The grand lodge stopped long enough in the midst of its proceedings to receive the good wishes and congratulations from the representatives of grand lodges in fraternal communication with the Grand Lodge of British Columbia.

After considerable discussion the grand lodge voted to remit the per capita tax of soldiers and sailors engaged in military service, where the dues of such members are remitted by the lodges of which they are members.

Just before the election of officers the Committee on Credentials made its report. The record shows that the grand lodges were then polled the results showing a total of 246 votes.

The election and installation of officers closed the meeting.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by W. A. DeWolf-Smith. Illinois receives five pages of consideration. He comments approvingly upon a number of the acts of Grand Master Wheeler. Concerning his action toward those lodges which indulge in shady entertainments Brother Smith observes—

One has only to read the Masonic papers published in the United States to realize the extent to which the lodges go in the way of providing entertainment for their members and others. We have thought now and then, that some lodges were sailing pretty close to the limits of propriety in the character of these entertainments, and the grand master of Illinois evidently thought that the limit had been reached.

Concerning Brother Wheeler's attitude on the question of military lodges he says—

Taking it by-and-large, the grand master is not in favor of military lodges, and thinks the needs of Masons in any given unit would be amply provided for by the organization of a Masonic club. As we have said before, conditions in the present military establishments of both Canada and the United States are so different from those obtaining in the regular army of Great Britain, that such lodges are very undesirable.

Brother Smith apparently thinks that no harm can come from remitting dues of soldiers and sailors for he remarks—

The practice of remitting the dues of members engaged in naval or military service is quite general in British Columbia, but we do not think the lodges look upon it as an act of charity—at all events we hope they do not—but rather as a recognition of valuable services.

Brother Smith is of the opinion that the grand lodge in passing legislation upon the question of smoking in open lodge as well as Masons appearing in saloons in Masonic clothing laid itself wide open to criticism and observes—

There is something wrong in any grand lodge in the United States when a session passes by without some anti-liquor legislation being introduced.

He thinks that the decision of the Committee on Legislation to the effect that the liquor question is both social and political is excellent and to the point.

The report made in connection with the recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama is quoted in full. Brother Smith commends the report of Charles H. Martin, foreign correspondent and calls it one of merit.

It requires a volume of five hundred pages to record the transactions of the sixty-eighth annual communication which was held in the city of San Francisco on October 8, 1917.

The first business after the opening ceremony was the formal presentation before the altar of all past grand masters. They were warmly greeted by the grand lodge.

The grand master, Francis V. Keesling, presented a report of his activities, his paper being an example of good rhetoric and splendid English.

That Brother Keesling must have put in a busy year in attending to the duties of his office is conclusively proven by the following statement—

I conceived it essential to the intelligent performance of my duty to make thoro survey of the jurisdiction and to that end visited every district but one in California, regretting I could not go to Hawaii whither I sent the grand lecturer. In all, I visited 122 lodges severally and in joint session, not including Los Angeles "Get Together," and by medium of substantial attendance, came in contact with 165 lodges more.

Concerning poor attendance on the part of lodge members he very truly says—

I do not feel apprehension that non-attendants are necessarily not good Masons. We have too much evidence that many of our most thoro Masons are non-attendants. Ordinarily such a condition is due to the officers. Not necessarily incumbent officers—they may have inherited the condition. Remedies which do not attack the root of the evil afford but temporary relief. There has been a relaxation of vigilance. Inferior officers lack personal magnetism. They are careless in exemplification of the work, disregard the importance of punctuality in meeting and general looseness prevails. They do not maintain the dignity of, or the decorum so essential in a lodge. It has the effect of alienating strong members, failing to attract strong men who should be members and of admitting substandard material into the fraternity.

No Masonic lodge is going to be greater than the man at the head of it. The reason why some Masonic bodies are prosperous is because the presiding officer is full of energy and activity and devotes himself to setting the craft to work and giving them proper instruction. The reason that other Masonic bodies are in a state of decay is because the presiding officer is lazy and shiftless with no conception whatever of his duties and much less inclination to find out what they are.

In his visits to lodges the grand master showed a disposition to get at the true condition of Masonry in California. He directed the district inspectors to inquire into certain conditions of the lodges of the state. One question which he desired answered was, Are treasurers and secretaries bonded? The universal answer was, "No, they are Masons." This answer, however, was not sufficient for the grand master said "Well enough, so long as they do not forget the fact. Experience has demonstrated that they do forget and it is a precautionary measure against such and should cause no resentment on the part of any intelligent Mason."

Other questions submitted related to the financial condition of lodges and sought to elicit the information as to whether the annual incomes of lodges were sufficient to meet current expenses or whether the lodges were operating with deficits.

In seeking causes for unsatisfactory lodge attendance the grand master discovered two, one of which he diagnosed as high degree fever, saying—

Apparently some of our near-sighted brethren were paying more attention to the chapter and commandery than they were to their local lodge. I suggested that the importance of the lodge should be self-evident to those brethren as the source of supply which should afford a practical reason for giving attention to the lodge even if they did not understand its wonderful philosophy.

But the writer thinks that he found the real cause, not only for the lack of attendance but for many other troubles which beset our lodges in another matter, which will be recorded in his own words—

The fact that lodges doing a great deal of work are compelled particularly to initiate and pass several candidates in an evening, that under constitutional requirement this must be severally done, has no doubt influenced attendance adversely. The required repetition consumes so much time that before conclusion of the ceremonial many brethren depart owing to lateness of the hour. I am satisfied that repetition also influences brethren to remain away. Fully appreciating the evident purpose of severally initiating, passing and raising of candidates, I am of the opinion that modification permitting of exemplification of portions of the ceremonial on groups would not in the least detract from effectiveness and, by lessening the time and avoiding repetition, conduce to an increased attendance by reason of that fact, and, permitting of the employment of a portion of the time for educational purposes and social intercourse, would thereby materially increase efficiency.

One thing the grand master discovered which might very well be made a subject of inquiry on the part of other grand lodges was that a good many lodges had funds invested in building associations. The condition of some being such as to cause apprehension.

Our brother evidently holds to the old idea that Masonry should ever work through the individual. What he has to say upon this subject is reproduced in his own words because any attempt to paraphrase his expression would cause it to lose poignancy—

There has been the ever-present desire "to do something" to put into practice Masonic precept. Frequently the Masonic plan, as I conceive it, is misunderstood. Many of our well-intentioned brethren expect activity in concert. The opportunities for such are infrequent and unimportant when compared to the great Masonic activity—that which is manifested by individual achievement. Masonic glory will be the achievement of individual Masons. The charity which we practice as brethren, the fraternal relation which we feel, we eventually understand to be but exemplars for our conduct in our relations with others whether Masons or not. The Masonic mission is not limited to the perfection of the Masonic brotherhood. That is but an exemplification of beneficial results to emphasize the importance of the practical extension of the brotherly relation among all men. Our first great effort is to educate the initiate who learns by observation the beneficent results of practice of Masonic precept among the brethren, whereupon should follow the fullness of understanding of such precepts put into practice generally and of the value of educating those who are less fortunate. The only satisfactory response to inquiry concerning the reasons for Masonic secrecy is that it is merely a test of honor. That there is nothing pernicious hidden is evidenced by the independence of action of every Mason and his activity in all good works. We fully understand that there can be no interference with a Mason's activities as an independent thinking being or as a citizen. Politics is eschewed by the fraternity because it would disturb peace and harmony, but also because concert of action would interfere with a man's independence and duties as a citizen. Therefore, a Mason as a candidate for public office realizes that he proceeds on his merits and not on his membership.

One thing that Brother Keesling dug up during his explorations was the fact that in a certain California city a board of relief had organized a funeral party composed of a past master and twenty Master Masons hailing from different lodges and who were in needy circumstances. Each of these twenty members were paid for attendance on funerals. The grand master made no attempt to save words in holding up before the Masonic world his utter contempt for such a procedure and every reader of this who has the true Masonic spirit will rejoice to know that he forbade the continuance of the practice.

The Masons of California organized a Masonic ambulance corps which is now doing service in France. Liberal subscriptions were made to the Liberty Loan, the Red Cross and other great war projects.

The grand master made a few decisions, one of which was that inasmuch as a Masonic lodge could not meet on Sunday except for funeral services neither could a past master's association. He also decided that a funeral ceremony conducted in a lodge room required the formal opening of the lodge.

An exhaustive treatise on the subject of military lodges is presented by Grand Master Keesling as a reason for refusal to grant dispensations for the formation of military lodges.

In reference to the conference of grand masters which was scheduled to be held in the state of Oregon he observes—

I cannot refrain, however, from expressing my personal impressions with reference to the proposed conference. I feel that a general grand lodge should not be established. While it is true that there are many benefits which might result from uniformity and centralized government, yet I feel that necessary uniformity can be attained by means of observation of what is being done in sister jurisdictions and the adoption of that which proves satisfactory. A plan of government vested in representatives who would probably be limited to those who have traveled the long road through the chairs of the lodge and then of the grand lodge would not be an improvement on the existing system. The sacrifice of time now required makes it difficult for the active successful man to serve his fraternity, which service would be so beneficial. That which is not official I believe should not be attempted by grand masters unofficially.

According to the report under review California has one good angel among its membership, for there is recorded a gift during the preceding year of $21,000 and another this year of $19,000 to be used in the expansion of the Masonic home of the state.

One thing the Grand Lodge of California is doing which shows its foresight and that is the establishing of a substantial endowment that will protect and guarantee the future of the Masonic home.

In his closing remarks the grand master makes a plea for moral poise. He says—

In matters of reform let us consider our own shortcomings first before we begin on others. We should be slow to impose our individual conception of concrete conduct on others. Let us not follow the egotists. In the present time, due to gradual development of antipathy to frivolity and the understanding of unselfishness brought about at fearful but necessary cost by the great war, we face the task of preventing undue interference with individuals. Let us not go from frivolity to blue laws—indifference to bigotry—and let us not be stampeded or be emotional or hysterical.

As an appendix to his report he presented to the grand lodge an interesting history of the growth and development of the Masonic homes of the state.

The communication of the grand secretary is quite lengthy and deals with a multitude of affairs of minor importance. He announces 19 lodges in the state with a membership of over 500, the largest lodge being Mission No. 169 with a membership of 896. He also presents a roll of honor, giving the name of every Mason in California who has entered military service together with the name and number of his lodge.

The receipts of the grand secretary during the year were $66,436.80. The disbursements as recorded by the grand treasurer were $67,893.01.

The report of the Masonic Temple Association discloses the total receipts from the Masonic temple in San Francisco to have been $60,879.41 while the disbursements were $55,181.50, giving a net profit of $5,697.91. The present indebtedness on the building is $240,000. It does not look to one at a distance as though the building could be considered a financial investment.

The Board of Relief of San Francisco makes a report of minute detail. They indirectly pay their respects to those lodges which try to shift their responsibilities, by quoting the following from the address of the grand master of Arkansas delivered in November, 1916—

I have been compelled to make several subordinate lodges pay to other lodges money that had been expended for the purpose of caring for the sick, and in some instances burying the deceased. It is a deplorable fact that some of the lodges of this jurisdiction have allowed sister jurisdictions to care for their sick and bury their dead, and then repudiate the debt, on account of being financially poor. And in this connection I want to take the time to express to the representatives of the subordinate lodges my utter contempt for a lodge which refuses to pay for the care of a sick brother or the burial of a dead one. If it is wrong to defraud a lodge of Master Masons, under ordinary circumstances, it is doubly so to refuse to pay the expense incurred by a sister lodge in caring for our sick and afflicted, and a lodge that will not do that, should have their charter arrested and have their organization wiped off the map, for of all the contemptible, mean things it is possible for a lodge to do, I think that it is the worst, and I would feel more kindly to a lodge that would wilfully violate every edict of the grand lodge than the one who obeys every edict implicitly and then refuses to pay the funeral expenses of a deceased brother, when such expense was incurred by a sister lodge.

A table prepared by this committee shows the amounts expended for Masons hailing from the different states also the amount of reimbursement. $433.09 was expended in the care of members hailing from the state of Illinois, of which amount the Board of Relief recovered $406.44.

Three members of Illinois lodges died in California and their funerals were looked after by the board.

The Employment Bureau of San Francisco certainly did some good work, for out of a total of 2,067 applications for positions 1995 were secured.

The report of the grand lecturer made by the grand lodge is unusual for the reason that he enumerates in detail every lodge visited and tells just exactly what he did on the occasion of the visit.

The Library Committee reveals in its report the idea which some Masons hold concerning a grand lodge library. They find that the library principally consists of the records of various grand bodies of Freemasonry together with other books collected at random. The one reason why so many Masonic libraries are failures is due to the fact that they are made up for the most part of proceedings of grand bodies which have neither literary nor historical value and are so much rubbish. About all that these proceedings are good for is to pad out the bookshelves and give the appearance of a library whether it be possessed in fact or not.

The annual oration was delivered by Robert D. Gaylord. He discussed at length the relation of Freemasonry to our everyday life and the standards which are set up. In this connection he said—

There are many standards for our guidance and our government. We establish standards for ourselves in our sessions and in our intercourse—we have our traditions and our customs. We are bound by Masonic law and the constitution of this body; by the tenets of our institution and its ancient landmarks. But by far the most inflexible standard is imposed neither by ourselves nor by the law, but by others; by the Masons of California who claim no membership in this body, by the men of California who never have knelt before a Masonic altar. The woman who sins is ostracized; the clergyman who is found in a compromising position forfeits his influence and his career; the judge who swerves from the path of strict integrity is universally condemned. They are constituted like ourselves, they have the same instincts and the same desires; but what is ignored among men means downfall among women; what is condoned in the business man, the laborer, the physician, the merchant and the attorney, is condemned in the clergyman or in the judge. I have no wish to plead the cause of double standards, but it is an irresistible fact that for each of us, according to his position and his profession, society has established bounds which he may not pass. Our mental justification of our acts is of no effect in this great court of human kind. We are judged not alone by what we are, and by what we believe, and by that to which we aspire; but even more by that which we profess, and by the extent to which, in the opinion of our fellowmen, practice goes hand in hand with precept. It is a law more ancient than the law of Moses, as inflexible as the law of the Medes and the Persians, and as enduring as the world of God itself. The influence and the effectiveness of this grand body, its leadership among Masons and its respect among men, depend not so much upon its organization, its rules and its traditions, as upon its conformity to the standard which others impose; the standard which in the mature judgment of men comports with the dignity of such a body, with the precepts of the institution of which it is the titular head, and with the pre-eminence which this grand lodge itself asserts.

A long report is made by the Committee on Masonic Homes disclosing the excellent work California is doing in the way of institutional charity.

California has a Committee on Masonic Education and states that they—

Have prepared lectures on the Entered Apprentice, Fellowcraft, and Master Mason degrees to be presented to candidates after receiving each of the several degrees. These lectures have been submitted to the most worshipful grand master for his approval. If found satisfactory by him, the lectures will be printed and will soon be in circulation among the lodges of this grand jurisdiction.

This sort of Masonic education savours very much of the canned variety. However the committee are laboring along the right lines.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances make what they call an omnibus report. It may have been an omnibus but judging from the size of it it looked more like a fliver. However, the committee are to be congratulated upon their good taste in eliminating names of offenders and details of their offenses.

Among the salaries provided for the coming year were those of the grand secretary fixed at $3600, the grand lecturer fixed at $3000.

One thing the grand lodge did was to waste its funds by providing that hereafter every candidate raised to the sublime degree should be presented with a copy of the constitution of the grand lodge. Newly raised candidates are not looking for such dry reading as the average grand lodge constitution. However, it looks as though the grand lodge had decided what the candidate ought to have and prescribed accordingly.

The grand lodge took time to observe the 50th annual installation of Samuel D. Mayer as grand organist and presented him with a cane.

Illinois lodges that are disposed to kick on the amount of grand lodge dues they have to pay ought to be thankful that they don't live out in California where the per capita tax is approximately $2.50.

The report on fraternal correspondence is prepared by Edward H. Hart. Illinois is given two and one-half pages, the principal transactions of the grand lodge being briefly noted and lodges of more than 1000 members enumerated together with their membership.

Brother Hart thinks that Grand Master Wheeler displayed a marked degree of zeal in visiting 103 jurisdictions during his year of office.

Concerning Past Grand Master William H. Scott, Brother Hart says—

Brother Scott was well known in California; he was a frequent visitor at various Blue Lodges, and had been seen many times in the annual communications of the grand lodge, he having made California his home for many years preceding his death, which occurred in San Francisco, and his remains were interred in the military cemetery in the Presidio of San Francisco.

Commenting on the decision of the supreme court in reference to the education of children from the Illinois Masonic Orphans' Home in the schools of the city and the grades he comments—

Certainly a very righteous and proper decision; and the only surprise caused in connection with this case is the action of the Board of Education in attempting to exclude the Home children except upon payment of tuition fees not exacted from other children.

He calls the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin capable and exhaustive and prepared with excellent judgment.

At the present time all Americans feel very close to their cousins on the northern border. Now that we are brothers in arms we are vitally interested in the things which they do.

The sixty-second annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the province of Ontario was held in the city of Belleville, Wednesday, July 18, 1917.

The mayor of the city welcomed the grand lodge and the grand master responded in a very appropriate manner.

Immediately following the opening ceremonies the grand master granted permission for the admission to side seats of all Masons in good standing.

The address of Grand Master Sidney A. Luke was the first business of importance.

The entrance of the United States into the European war is commented on with much enthusiasm. One thing which the grand master said will be interesting to our Illinois brethren—

There has been a great change of sentiment towards Great Britain in the United States in recent years. The rancour of the Revolution was intense and enduring. The War of 1812 added bitterness, and up to twenty-five years ago there was pronounced ill-feeling against anything British. Now that has gone, and if one requests it, a cup of tea may be had even in Boston; and it is notable also that the very significant memorial of sympathy signed by representative citizens of the Union, which was presented soon after this war started, should have issued from that city in which the War of Independence originated. If this is the beginning of the end of all bitterness, it is indeed a manner of peculiar fitness; for it was a German king with a small character, and stupid, ruling in England, who started the row, and it is a German emperor with the same characteristics, who perhaps, and unwillingly, is ending it. It is time that the memory of old grievances between the two nations should be buried, never to be resuscitated. Our ideals of individual freedom and justice, and of self-government won at Hastings and Runnymede are identical. Neither covets what the other has and it would be a good thing for the world at large, a wonderful forward movement, if all the nations sharing the language of Shakespeare, Milton, Hampden, would hereafter stand shoulder to shoulder against crazy arrogance, and all bandits and tyrants of the world.

Among the jurisdictional courtesies mentioned is one from the Grand Lodge of Illinois to initiate, pass and raise a candidate.

The total assets of the grand lodge in the General Fund as recorded by the grand master, were $113,957.87, and in the Semicentennial Fund $103,288.68.

Four dispensations were issued for the formation of new lodges and 469 issued for general purposes of which 199 were granted giving permission to confer degrees within time limit.

The grand master must have been busy for he states that he examined and approved amendments to by-laws for 117 lodges.

The grand lodge is apparently awakening to the value of music in the various ceremonies for the grand master reports the completion of the work of a committee appointed to arrange appropriate music for use in the degrees.

A number of lodges were visited and Bro. Luke reports that he was received with all the honors due his exalted station.

In closing his address to the grand lodge he pays the following tribute to Freemasonry—

It is said to be a truth—a valuable truth—that man learns his lesson oftener through his emotions than through reason. From naked, plain truth men indifferently turn away to search in myth and symbol for that which was clearly exposed and explained from the beginning. If these are facts, the wonderful success of Masonry as a teacher of a science which in purpose and scope embraces everything which makes up the sum total of man's striving in this life—morally, socially, politically and industrially, is due to the form, sign and symbol by which it conveys its lessons, and in my judgment, there is no system, no place, nothing proclaimed from platform, stage or pulpit, which excels in practical value to men these lessons of the lodge room. For example, the preparation and initiation ceremony. The whole is a protest, a warning to avoid haughtiness, conceit, ostentation, and ambition for power, place or wealth; and whether suited to the occasion by habit and inclination or not, each for the time being is made to assume the humble part, that the lesson may be more forcibly impressed, and sink into the mind. It is a valuable lesson to learn—that before God's Providence we are equal and that worth of intellect, integrity of character, and altruism are virtues that count before noble birth or princely fortune.

The grand treasurer reports total receipts of $78,324.44 and expenditures of $66,588.53.

The report of the grand secretary is purely financial in character. From the items listed the idea is obtained that clerks in the grand secretary's office who become superannuated are given an allowance of $66.00 per month.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are made to the grand lodge, and are very complete in every particular. To each is attached a detailed statement of conditions in each of the lodges as the district deputies found them. One thing the Grand Lodge of Canada is to be congratulated upon and that is the very thorough manner in which the lodges of the jurisdiction are inspected and checked up. Other grand lodges might profit from the system which our Canadian brethren have adopted.

The Board of Benevolence, which is apparently maintained by the grand lodge, announces 469 applications for assistance for which the sum of $36,515.00 was expended.

There is one thing to be said in favor of our English and Canadian brethren. When it comes to the care of their less fortunate members they far excel their American brethren.

The celebration of the 200th anniversary of the revival of Masonry in England was made a special feature and a splendidly prepared paper on the subject was read by Brother A. T. Freed.

And now we come to the most interesting feature in the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Canada and that is the report of the Board on the Condition of Masonry. It seems that this board is appointed for the purpose of digesting and compiling the statements of the district deputy grand masters for it appears that they have carefully analyzed these documents and have selected therefrom such information as bears upon the condition of Masonry in Canada and have presented the several items to the grand lodge in a report covering twenty-eight printed pages.

Should space permit, the writer would like very much to reproduce here some of the items and ideas gleaned from a perusal of the report of this board, because it shows clearly and exactly how Masonry is applied and understood in the various sections of the jurisdiction.

According to the record the tellers are called scrutineers of the ballots.

District deputy grand masters in Canada are nominated by representatives of the lodges and past masters of the respective districts and are confirmed by the grand master. This is not a very bad idea for it keeps these appointments out of politics and no doubt results in securing officers who are willing to accept the office for the service of the craft rather than to become the henchman of some particular grand lodge faction.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by A. T. Freed. Illinois is given two and one-half pages.

The reviewer commends Grand Master Wheeler for his statement—
That the symbolical teachings of Masonry ought to be shown to candidates, as well as the dramatic representations of the degrees, and that this teaching should be begun at state schools of instruction.

The action of the grand lodge declining to cooperate with the Grand Lodge of Cuba in calling a Masonic convention is commented upon and an extensive review made of the decision of the Supreme Court relating to the LaGrange school matter.

Various other items of the grand master received comment but there is no disposition to criticise or find fault with anything the grand lodge did. He hands Charles H. Martin a few flowers in the following—

His Masonic rank is not stated, but he will probably take his place in the front rank of Masonic writers. His report is long, and all of it is good.

COLORADO, A. F. & A. M.

The proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Colorado are presented in a neat, well printed volume of nearly four hundred pages, sixty of which are given to the publication of the officers and members of the Masonic lodges of the state.

The proceedings are prefaced with detailed minutes of nine special communications held for the purpose of dedications and the laying of cornerstones.

The 57th annual communication was held at Denver, September 18th, and 19th. The report of the Committee on Credentials presented in detail takes up almost thirteen pages of the introduction.

Colorado follows the custom of calling the roll of deceased grand masters, after which a tribute of respect is paid to their memory.

Another feature is calling the roll of representatives which is done prior to the address of the grand master.

William W. Cooper, the representative of Illinois, near the Grand Lodge of Colorado was present.

In his opening remarks the grand master refers to the great war in which we are engaged and says—

Masonry teaches us that we should be loyal to our government and obedient to its laws; that we are not to countenance disloyalty or rebellion, but patiently submit to legal authority and cheerfully conform to the government of the country in which we live. It is, therefore, our imperative duty to have reverence for the law and lawful authority, to inspire the same respect in others as this is fundamentally necessary to the maintenance of our government and our institutions. In the titanic struggle now waging, it is hoped that each member of the craft will heed the teachings of the fraternity, and the duties of good citizenship, and forget not that our government is worthy of his utmost loyalty and patriotism, and that its interests must always be first and foremost.

His remarks on necrology are very brief, as he leaves to the committee the duty of paying due reverence to the fraternal dead.

The grand lodge apparently allows the grand master but $600 for contingent expenses, as he reports the expenditure of the appropriation given him.

He had the pleasure of constituting three new lodges during his administration.

Colorado apparently has not become a member of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association for the grand master suggests that if it is to be represented at the meetings the grand lodge should take some affirmative action.

Concerning the bicentennial celebration of the first grand lodge the grand master states that the grand lodge had instructed the grand master to convene a special communication of the grand lodge at Denver, Colorado, on St. John the Baptist Day, 1917, for the purpose of appropriately celebrating this event. But finding so very little interest among the Masons of Colorado concerning this anniversary the grand master decided to hold no celebration but recommended to the lodges of the state that they observe the day in a manner befitting its Masonic importance.

The grand master made a number of official visits which he reports in detail. Like all grand masters he issued many dispensations. Only one of them attracts unusual attention and that was to transact business at a special communication. He says that he was generous in granting dispensation to confer degrees out of time for the reason that—

It is the duty of everyone to do everything in his power to further enlistments in the military and naval service of the United States, and that we as Masons owe every duty and obligation to our government, it seemed to me that it was proper in each of these cases to grant dispensations. I have done so with the result that in these cases it has been made possible to confer degrees on deserving candidates who otherwise would undoubtedly have had to forego the same.

The usual number of requests for conferring degrees passed through the grand master's office and he notes the cheerful compliance not only on the part of Colorado lodges but also those of other grand jurisdictions.

The lodges of Colorado are forbidden from conferring the Entered Apprentice degree for a lodge outside of its jurisdiction, hence all requests of this nature were refused.

The grand master gives a very interesting account of a reception, tendered Lawrence N. Greenleaf, past grand master, in commemoration of the fifty-first anniversary of his service as worshipful master of Denver Lodge No. 5, and the fiftieth anniversary of his service as high priest of Denver Chapter No. 2, R.A.M.

The writer has long had an editorial acquaintance with Brother Greenleaf and is very happy to note the Masonic recognition given him by his fellows in Freemasonry.

The grand master fires a broadside at a—

So-called Publishing Company of New York, for sending circulars and letters to lodges and members of lodges in this state, calling attention to their alleged Masonic publications, and says this so-called Masonic Publishing Company is composed in part or wholly of expelled Masons, and all Colorado Masons are hereby cautioned not to have any communication whatever with this or similar concerns.

This same company each year floods the state of Illinois with their nefarious circulars beguiling the unsuspecting. It is a notorious fact, however, that when the grand lodge of Illinois corrected its work some two or three years ago within thirty days thereafter this same company issued a book purporting to contain the revised work and in which certain changes which had been made were noted. This clearly proves that we had within our own rank traitors who would make Judas Iscariot ashamed of himself.

The only way to meet the eipher ritual menace is by a few first class expulsions then brethren will wake up to the fact that it is a very dangerous thing to have spurious rituals in their possession.

The grand master notes a request for a waiver of jurisdiction from a Colorado lodge in favor of Damascus Lodge of Chicago. Of the material prosperity of this grand lodge he says—

The condition of the craft in this grand jurisdiction is very satisfactory and with very few exceptions all our lodges are in a flourishing condition. The report of the grand secretary shows that there has been an increase of 948 members over the report of last year. This is the highest annual increase that we have yet experienced, as shown by a comparison of reports of previous years.

Another important matter is brought to the attention of the lodges of his state in the following—

I believe that more attention should be given by lodges to the keeping of a full and correct historical record of membership. This, in my judgment, is a very important requirement, the manner of keeping which is fully set forth in the Book of Forms. I speak of this subject particularly because, during the year, it came to my attention on several occasions that the historical record of certain brethren could not be obtained from the secretaries of their lodges, and when occasion makes it necessary to have such information, it is a matter of regret that it cannot be had.

This is an age of thorough business methods and any lodge which is careless in the matter of keeping its records will have cause for regret.

The grand master recommended that members of lodges engaged in military and naval service be exempted from the payment of dues. He also told the grand lodge that it ought to pay the grand secretary more money.

The reports of the grand secretary and the grand treasurer show the grand lodge to be in a highly prosperous condition.

A petition for the formation of a military lodge to be attached to the first Colorado cavalry was presented and referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence. That committee recommended the granting of the petition and the grand lodge concurred.

The most interesting thing connected with the proceedings is a detailed report from the grand lecturer. It seems that this official not only went about the state giving instructions but during the year personally visited and inspected the 129 lodges under his charge. When grand master of Masons in Illinois the writer sought to accomplish this same thing through the district deputy grand master and succeeded to a considerable extent. Complete success would have crowned the effort had the grand lodge paid the expenses of the district deputies in making these official visits.

Colorado is accomplishing its purpose because the grand lecturer being a paid official devotes his time to this service. Every detail concerning the lodges of the state is gone into and the grand lecturer by reason of these official inspections has brought to the grand lodge information which is not only highly desirable but makes for the future upbuilding of the lodges of the state.

A few brief items from the grand lecturer's report are quoted—

Average number of meetings held by each lodge 27, average lodge attendance 28, percentage of membership attending lodge 20, lodges meeting in halls used exclusively for Masonic purposes 74, lodges keeping records in safes 74, lodges carrying fire insurance $4, estimated equity of lodges in real estate and buildings $185,000.00. Estimated assets of lodges of the state $730,000.00, or an average for each lodge of approximately $5,500.00. Number of lodges not auditing accounts of officers 12. Masters able to confer all degrees in full 92. Number of lodges in which the three degrees are conferred in full by one or more of the officers 102.

The grand lecturer in his report asks what can be done to increase the attendance at lodge and the interests of Masons and says—

Many plans have been suggested having in view the increasing of the interest of Masons in Masonic activities. Some lodges have lectures delivered at intervals. A few lodges have adopted the plan of having a short talk made at each meeting by some intelligent brother. Study-clubs have been formed in some lodges. Such organized efforts for the intellectual improvement of the members are highly commendable, and should be encouraged; but at the same time they cannot be considered a remedy for all our ills, because Masons are like other men, in that only a certain proportion are interested in study; and participation in the work of the lodge should not be limited to one class of members. Much of the success of a lodge depends upon its officers, and particularly upon the character and personality of the master. Some men are so constituted that as presiding officer they could revive a dead lodge in a year, while others would put a live lodge to sleep in less than that time. The problem is a large one, and involves this question: "How can we interest all classes of Masons in the work of the lodge and give each something to do?"

The Committee on Necrology make an extended report and record the name of Past Grand Master Albert B. Ashley.

The oration was delivered by Brother Haslett B. Burke. It was a splendid effort dealing with practical things. The grand orator is to be commended for his efforts in presenting splendid Masonic lessons.

The Committee on Finance recommended that the salary of the grand secretary be fixed at $2400 per annum, an increase of $600.

The grand lodge resolved to take up the study side of Masonry for a committee was appointed to be known as the Masonic Research Committee. The result of their labors will be awaited with much interest.

The grand lecturer made such a success of his official visits of instruction and inspection that the grand lodge adopted a resolution directing him hereafter to instruct and examine the officers of lodges in the laws of Masonry.

The Committee on Correspondence asked that the request of the Grand Lodge of France and the Grand Lodge of Panama for recognition be deferred for one year in order that they might make a satisfactory examination.

The report on correspondence is prepared by that excellent Masonic litterateur, Lawrence N. Greenleaf.

He notes the principal items in Grand Master Wheeler's address and quotes in full all that he said concerning members changing their names and political discussions. He refers to the address of Brother Oscar A. Kropf as being practical and extracts a brief paragraph. Concerning the correspondence report he says—

Brother Charles H. Martin signalizes his appearance at the round tables with a fine report on correspondence. Colorado for 1915 receives a review of four pages, in which he notes the salient features of the address of Grand Master Dudley, from which he makes several extracts. He credits Brother Kellogg with an oration of more than ordinary merit. The business of the session is kept well in view, and our report receives due attention.

The proceedings are a well printed volume opening with a half-tone portrait of L. G. Nickerson, grand master for 1917 and contain an honor roll of all members of Connecticut lodges who are in the service of their country. There is published a tableau showing the officers as well as the names of those initiated, affiliated, reinstated, dimitted, died, suspended, etc.

The record of four emergent communications held for the purpose of laying cornerstones and dedicating Masonic temples are introductory to the proceedings proper. One emergent communication is quite unusual. It was for the purpose of placing the final piece of masonry in a highway bridge. The record states that the stone was laid with ancient Masonic ceremonies. The question is, was this a cornerstone or a cap stone? If the latter where did the ancient ceremony come from?

The 130th annual communication was held in the city of Hartford, February 6, 1918.

The report of the Committee on Credentials credits George E. Parson, representing Illinois with being present.

The address of the grand master, L. J. Nickerson, is a document of unusual merit. The conjecture is that he is a lawyer, for in discussing many matters he sets up argument to sustain his views.

In his opening remarks he says—

While we are charitable let us remember that the monarchies and militarists responsible for such brutality and barbarism, against whom our nation is now at war, have always placed upon Freemasonry the heel of contempt because Freemasonry stands for equality among men and denies the divine right of kings to rule. From the time of Frederick the Great it has been the practice of the house of Hohenzollern to toss people about from sovereignty to sovereignty. We have had presented to us a spectacle of a German ruler claiming that the "spirit of the Lord" had descended upon him because he was the Emperor of the Germans and that God demanded the destruction of all the enemies of the German people.

He also points out very clearly the duty of every Mason in the present crisis—

I trust, I believe, that every Mason is a patriot. Universal brotherhood can never be fulfilled under the rule of a selfish despot ambitious to control the world. No class, no party, no religion, no person is more true and loyal to the principles for which our country fights than we of the Masonic Order. It is at such a time when every day is important in the world's history that the Masons of Connecticut meet in grand lodge. Let us give our most careful attention and conscientious consideration to the work before us.

He pays tributes of respect to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. He reports the appointment of quite a number of grand representatives. It may be that the grand master looked up the attendance at the several grand lodges of those supposed to represent Connecticut and weeded out all who were purely ornamental, and who did not regard the position of sufficient honor to merit any attention.

Concerning interjurisdictional courtesies the grand masters says that in all his correspondence the highest degree of courtesy and fraternal regard has been observed.

The George Washington Memorial Association is highly commended and the grand lodge advised to take some action that will result in lending substantial support.

A number of lodges were visited by the grand master during his term of office.

The reports of the district deputies are carefully analyzed by the grand master, and the salient points in each are brought out.

All dispensations issued are recorded in full, giving the date thereof and the cause for which granted.

The grand master was very reluctant about issuing dispensations to confer degrees in less than the lawful time. In this connection he says—

Masonry is an education. The rules and regulations regarding the time between the reception of the petition and the ballot on the same and for conferring the degrees are made because it has been found that they were for the best interests of the fraternity. Haste is to be deprecated. It is only when the petition is from one who is about to depart in the service of our country and realizing that he wants the great far-reaching and fraternal privileges of the order that I have exercised the prerogative and granted the dispensations and shortened the time which our rules and regulations so wisely prescribe.

One subject received the earnest consideration of Brother Nickerson and that was the replacement of the present frame buildings in the Masonic home at Wallingford with fireproof construction.

A committee was appointed in accordance with the resolutions of the grand lodge to solicit contributions to the amount of $150,000 for this purpose.

In September there was held at the Masonic home what was called Grand Master's Day and a special program of various features was presented for the benefit of the grand master and the visitors who were present.

The grand master refers to the work that is being done in the home by the Order of Eastern Star and lauds that society to the skies. He urges every Master Mason in his jurisdiction to get into the Order of the Eastern Star and have all members of his family do likewise. The grand master goes in quite strong for petticoat Masonry. It looks very much like sedate old Connecticut had listened to the song of the siren and was being lead astray.

The chain letter nuisance reached Connecticut and the ancient Masonic prayer gained wide distribution. The grand master urged all Masons to do their utmost to suppress this business. With nine associate grand chaplains, the spiritual needs of our Connecticut brethren are well looked after.

A long list of what are called decisions was rendered by the grand master. Most of them appear, however, to be merely local constructions of law with some little twist or turn which might require an answer a little different in wording from the established regulations.

One lodge wanted to create a Masonic Tobacco Fund and collect 10 cents a month from each member during the war, in fact this enterprising lodge wanted to make the tobacco movement national in character. The grand master replied as follows—

Masonry is a science for the education and betterment of its members. There is no occasion to come out in competition with any other order or fraternal body, or make any flourish, or advertisement or attempt to gain any notoriety for the Masonic Order. The great requirement of Masons today is that they do their full duty in providing the government with every facility to win the war we are now engaged in. All moneys belonging to lodges which can be spared should be invested in government bonds that the government may have the use of the money and the lodges at the same time have a safe and secure investment. Any ostentatious display, or movement, to create a Tobacco Fund would in my judgment detract from the dignity and great purposes of Masonry. While the individual Mason is at liberty to contribute, or do, whatever he sees fit to provide luxuries and comforts for soldiers in the war, the lodge as such, would have no right to dispose of its funds for any purpose not contemplated by the by-laws, rules and regulations governing expenditures of lodges. There are so many things to-day that call upon Masons and which impose upon every member of the order a sacred duty, that I do not think the creation of a Tobacco Fund should be encouraged. Our great duty is to aid our country to win the war and to do our duty towards those of our brethren who will be entitled to our care and help upon their return. There is no objection to a lodge presenting any suggestions or resolutions of that character before the grand lodge, in fact there is the place to discuss the situation in all its phases.

Brother Nickerson attended the meeting of the Masonic Relief Association at Omaha in September and was so favorably impressed with all that he saw and heard that he recommended that Connecticut immediately join the association. This is not at all surprising. If the grand master of Connecticut went down to Omaha and fell into the company of those distinguished worthies, Ralph H. Wheeler and Lou B. Winsor, the chances are that if he had stayed with them long enough he would have given them the Grand Lodge of Connecticut. They are an irresistible pair.

Concerning the raising of a National War Fund by the grand lodges of the United States, Brother Nickerson says—

There has been an effort and it has the approval of several grand masters, to raise a great national fund for the purpose of assisting and providing for the comforts and convenience of Masons engaged in the war. It seems to me that such action savors too much of a spectacular exhibition of what the Masonic Order can do. Masonry needs no encomium. It has counted among its members, the wisest and best men of the time, whose names shed luster upon the pages of the history of our country. Washington was a Mason and even now we are arranging to build a temple upon the Potomac to hold the priceless relics of his time.

Chief Justice Marshall, the greatest jurist who ever adorned the bench, was a grand master of Virginia. Masonry needs no publicity, no great speeches, no long newspaper articles proclaiming its goodness or greatness. Its great power and influence has been and is in the character, standing and personal influence of the individual brother. Let us not forget that if the war continues and our brethren are engaged in battle some of them will return to us crippled, maimed or blind. It is then the Masons of Connecticut and of each grand jurisdiction in the country must be ready to respond and give to such brethren the care and fraternal support which they will deserve and to which they will be entitled. Let us not omit the necessary preparations which will enable us to perform that duty that we may be ready to give to them a Brother's care.

The Grand Lodge of France is given an extended review. The conclusions of the grand master are that until such time as the Grand Lodge of France reestablishes belief in God and places the bible upon its altars it should not ask American Masons to enter into fraternal relations with it because of its infidelic and agnostic principles.

The grand master asked for a compilation of the laws and decisions of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut claiming that when various questions have arisen he has been compelled to consult 120 volumes in order to ascertain if any similar rule had been established which might establish a precedent.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $37,288.60 and expenditures of $9,016.07 for current expenses and placed the sum of $28,778.60 in the Masonic charity foundation.

The grand secretary makes the usual report. One item discloses the fact that 4280 members in Connecticut are exempt from the payment of grand lodge dues. The reason therefore is not given.

The grand lodge extended fraternal recognition to the Grand Lodge of Panama, also to the Grand Lodge "Cuscatlan" San Salvador. The record at this point reports the appointment of a Committee on Chain Letters. Just why this should be necessary is not apparent.

The following recommendations from the Committee on Jurisprudence were approved and adopted by the grand lodge—

That a committee be appointed to compile, digest and index the Masonic laws of the state; that no lodge shall confer the Fellow Craft or Master Mason degrees within one week after conferring the preceding degree without a special dispensation from the grand master; that in the future no lodge in the jurisdiction be excused from roll call at the annual meeting.

A special committee appointed on the Grand Lodge of France recommended that no action be taken at the present time.

The installation of officers reveals the fact that eight associate grand chaplains were appointed to look after the spiritual welfare of our Connecticut brethren. Their salvation is no doubt assured.

The correspondence report is prepared by George A. Kies, grand secretary. Illinois is given three pages of comprehensive review.

He commends Grand Master Wheeler for declining to accept gifts from lodges. He calls his attitude toward military lodges wise. Concerning his ruling, that a lodge loses jurisdiction over a petitioner who in the interim between reception and ballot moves away, he thinks the decision is open to question.

Several quotations are taken from the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin which is sufficient evidence that Brother Kies was pleased with what Brother Martin had to say.

It being a red hot afternoon in the middle of summer the writer thought it would be a splendid opportunity to review the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Cuba because the heat of the day might serve in some way to help him appreciate the atmosphere of Masonry in a warm country. He therefore summoned his private secretary and prepared to dictate his observations. Upon opening the book the type looked a little peculiar but a readjustment of his nose glasses very soon convinced him that the proceedings were printed in Spanish or some other language unknown to the writer. In fact languages were never his college pets and the many times that he has flunked in Latin, French and the now despised Teutonic dialect need not be recorded.

As an examination of the Proceedings of Illinois revealed no special appropriation for the translating of foreign documents (will Edward H. Thomas, Thomas A. Stevens, E. Edwin Mills please take notice) it was thought at first that it would be necessary to send over to Camp Point and have Isaac Cutter come to Bloomington and translate the document. However, upon turning to the closing leaves of the book there was found some pages printed in English labelled "The Grand Master's Address, the Grand Secretary's Report and the Report of the Committee on Correspondence," but ye reviewer wont swear that the grand master's report as printed in English is the same one that is printed in Spanish.

In his address to the Grand Lodge of Cuba Grand Master Carlos G. Charles says—

When I, in the beginning of the Masonic year just ending, carefully studied how to act justly, I always thought that our progress would be greater and our credit would surpass that of previous epochs; but really the success obtained has been greater than what was calculated, and for that reason our satisfaction ought to be greater too. Just think how much we have done, undoubtedly with your help and that of our constituent lodges: we have founded a public library; we have a true treasury not mortgaged in any way; we have held festivities which have greatly pleased the members of the fraternity and have caused the outside people to regard us as we properly are and understand the end we prosecute; we have built several Masonic temples in places where for it the standing of Masonry has been consolidated, while more temples are yet being built, we have propagated our ideals by means steady and successful, bringing us an increase in membership. Now I invite you, brethren, to survey our country and decide which of the existing institutions in the Republic of Cuba has done better labor and can show a more positive success than we. Think what we possessed shortly ago, review what our moral and material concerns are now, and tell me frankly whether you are satisfied with the balance or not.

If the Grand Lodge of Cuba has done all these things it is certainly showing remarkable Masonic progress and is due the congratulations of all good Masons.

The grand master reports that dispensations were issued for the formation of eight new lodges which reveals that Masonry is rapidly extending in the island of Cuba.

One thing the grand lodge does which shows the right spirit. It loans money to lodges to help them in the construction of new Masonic temples and during the year such assistance was extended to three lodges on the island.

The grand lodge is evidently prosperous because the grand master states that plans are being perfected for the erection of a temple for the uses of the grand lodge.

During the year the census was taken of the number of Masons in the island and found to be 7047. There were also discovered 3000 non-affiliated Masons.

The grand master is evidently a believer in Masonic propaganda for in this connection he says—

Convinced, as I am, of the efficiency of reaching all homes by the truth involved by our doctrines, so that the people being acquainted with our ideals and procedures, become attached to our labor, no matter the difficulties I met with, I undertook to distribute, in many cases personally, over 10,000 papers, pamphlets and books, containing essays and explanations upon Masonic subjects, specially what refers to the moral preparation of citizens, the triumph of healthy and positive Justice and Democracy, love of one's country and due respect to Liberty and the fraternal sentiments toward our fellowmen.

The grand master reports efforts on the part of his grand lodge to prevent what he calls a rupture between the grand lodges of the United States, Mexico and San Domingo. In this connection he observes—

As you see we have not neglected a single opportunity for strengthening our fraternal ties, carrying everywhere the greatness of our sentiments and the firm and strong purposes held by the Masons residing in Cuba to labor in behalf of mankind.

I am convinced that from the careful zeal sustained by us in our international foreign relations depends the affection and love with all other grand lodges. It is important for Cuban Masonry to persist in that duty, as it will give us not only great moral and material advantages but will lead us to reach one of our principal ideals, already entertained by several American grand lodges, consigned by them in their answers to our circular letter, appealing to universal peace, declaring that Cuba seemed to hold a true conception of the mission of Masonry.

According to the report the Masons of Cuba have been generous in their charity. The grand master evidently believes that everyone ought to give according to his ability for he says—

* Why not awake in some of our rich members the noble and generous idea we see existing in other institutions, that allow them to construct asylums, hospitals and good buildings? In real life we must add to the purpose of doing good the call to consciences, remembering that many poor people vague through the world hungry and homeless, to whom Masonry owes a helping hand, do not forget it, think in it often and try to accord them the benefits of so doing.

Concerning what he calls the cursed war he comments—

The grand spanish literateur Vicente Blasco Ibañez, in his genial work Los cuatro ginetes del Apocalipsis, says: "That men agree to live a better life, that the strong may sacrifice himself for the weak, the wealthy for the humble, and that the world be ruled by fraternity always seeking the greatest quality."

I have thought most opportune to cite here the past paragraphs because I think that the evil of the Cuban problem is originated by the lack of practising those counsels in them recommended for the educational preparation of our people.

What matters that some good willed men practice and teach those virtues and that they may be backed by institutions helping to obtain a complete success, if in the reality of republican life is to be found a most strong nucleus of citizens who, ignoring them, if for their unlimited egoism they carry to the bosom of society, together with their ambition, the venomous germ of their evil intentions and deeds to destroy, instead of rebuild the social edifice upon solid foundations of love and justice!

The grand secretary's report discloses the fact that in the island of Cuba there are 106 Masonic lodges with membership of 6907. The province of Havana leads with 44 lodges.

The number raised during the year was 743 and the net increase in membership, 717. The total amount spent by the lodges for charity was $5,924.27, while the sum of $454.77 was invested in education.

The Masonic newspapers of the island receive the endorsement of the grand secretary who says very nice things about them.

The Committee on Correspondence presents a report which might very properly be termed an essay on the condition of Masonry throughout the world.

The grand jurisdictions of the United States and elsewhere are not separately reviewed.

The reviewer takes a poke at North Carolina in the following—

Often, strange events happen in the international Masonic field that astonish even old and proved Masonic scholars; such is, for instance, the existence of Art. 270 in the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina, which enforces not on the candidate for initiation the requisite of being able to read and write. Although the grand master of that grand lodge recently asked its revocation, there is no notice that the grand lodge acted on the recommendation. Generally, the Cuban people are regarded as most illiterate, but we, nevertheless, believe our Masonry is far from being so, truly, we think our grand lodge to be as advanced and cultured as any; oh! this fact makes us understand now why North Carolina needed 46 years to extend to Cuba her right hand of fellowship.

Concerning the French situation he says—

It is very sensible, but by no means strange, that the new Independent Grand Lodge of France cannot show any progress. It is very difficult to establish new Masonic bodies in any place where old and strong ones already exist, no matter the reasons for so doing. England, the decided supporter of the new French body, must probably have recognized her error now. That the orthodox grand lodges do not accept the Grand Orient of France is easily understood, for the G. O. denial of the deist philosophy professed by true Masonry from her beginning; but it is not the Grand Orient the only Masonic grand body to be found in France, there is in that country, beside, the Scottish Grand Lodge, worthy and faithful to the traditions of the rite and a friend of us since its establishment in 1879. Why the Grand Lodge of England did not treat with her instead of fostering a new body? Was it on account of her origin? Well, brethren, if that was the cause, let me remind you that civil law any where does not ignore naturalized children and even foundlings receive due attention, as many of these have astonished the world by their grandeur. That class of sins ought to fall on the parents and never on the children, wholly innocent of the faults of their forefathers.

Evidently the grand master of Connecticut pleased him for he says—

Most opportune has been the grand master of Connecticut by calling Masonic divulgers those that “publish many things that should never go beyond the gates of the temples.” Surely, indiscretion is found anywhere, the constant advices addressed in within the temples, not being sufficient to withhold from outsiders many things pertaining to internal affairs. What desire to throw far from themselves the Masonic gowns, when by so doing they undertake to suggest bad thoughts on us, inducing us to falsely step in wrong paths.

His closing remarks are reproduced because in a measure they show what is in the mind of the Masons of Cuba.

The clamor among Anglo-Saxon Grand Lodges against Cuba, for our not speaking, or, at least, not writing in English, even in partibus, our proceedings, steadily continues.

This incident we lament, more yet, we have always stated that in this matter the advantage was for the illiterate Cuban, as we proved our culture by complying with the demand coming from outside; nevertheless, sometimes when the petition is not carefully made, it can become a motive of annoyance and arrogance, this we say with pardon to Masons.

Hear what ex-Grand Master Atkinson has to say upon that matter in his last report on correspondence to the Grand Lodge of West Virginia—

Our West Virginia grand secretary has mailed to me a copy of the proceedings of this M. W. Grand Lodge (Cuba), which is so fairly good size, and is well and neatly printed, but it is printed in Spanish, and as I know comparatively nothing about the Spanish language, it is out of my power to even attempt to review any of its transactions. I, therefore, must of necessity, “pass it up.”

The grand lodge met in October, 1917. Several requests for copy of proceedings addressed to the grand secretary failed to evoke even the courtesy of a reply. This leads to the conclusion that either the grand secretary or the grand lodge has gone out of business, perhaps both.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, F. A. A. M.

If there is a spot in America upon which the eyes of all the world are directed at this time it is the District of Columbia. Naturally much interest attaches to the work of the Freemasons in this jurisdiction. The proceedings are presented in a well printed volume of 450 pages. One thing which claims first attention is the title of this Grand Lodge F. A. A. M. as indicated on the front page. It is a safe bet that should a brother bearing credentials with the above title thereon present himself to an Illinois lodge the Committee of Examination would soon scurry to someone in authority to find out if this grand lodge was regular. It is too bad that the grand lodges of the United States cannot get together and agree upon a uniform designation. After all what is in a name? At least Romeo didn't let the name worry him very much in his wooing of the fair Juliet.

The Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia evidently believes that when there is business to transact the thing to do is to get together and do it. March 10, 1917, there was held in the city of Washington, a stated communication attended by nearly all the officers of the grand lodge and representatives from constituent lodges. This meeting was given over to the Committee on Work and Rituals and the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason were conferred in full form and ceremony.

A special communication held April 10th was for the purpose of conducting the funeral of Most Worshipful Brother Henry Kedglie Simpson, past grand master and grand treasurer. At this emergent communication it is noticeable that nearly every grand officer of the grand lodge was present and in his place. This is as it should be. When a grand lodge assembles for any public function the grand officers should be present and their expenses should be paid by the grand lodge. The idea of grand lodges created by proxy does not find favor with the writer and takes away from the whole transaction much of dignity. A second stated communication was held on May 9th which was attended by grand officers and representatives of the several lodges. Just what the necessity for this meeting might be is not apparent from the records as very little of the business transacted was of sufficient importance to demand immediate attention. However, a very interesting report was presented concerning the establishment of a non-sectarian university under Masonic auspices. The report is quite lengthy and in substance approves of—

The formation of an incorporated company or organization of an endowed foundation under Masonic auspices and direction for the purpose of carrying out the fundamental principles and teachings of the fraternity in reference to benevolence and education.

The grand lodge approved the report and named a special committee of five to carry out its provisions. The writer has long thought that somewhere in this great United States there should be a splendid university endowed by Masons where their sons might go and receive an education under those influences which Freemasonry ever fosters and encourages. It will be a difficult matter for the District of Columbia to interest other grand lodges in their project because it goes without saying that every grand lodge has ideas of its own upon every possible Masonic subject and it will be a mighty hard matter to get them together in such a laudable enterprise as is contemplated by the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia.

One of the most interesting reports presented at this meeting is that of the employment bureau. During the year three hundred and twenty-five applied for positions, ninety-four of whom secured positions through the employment bureau. Of those applying fifty-eight were past fifty years of age. Every young man who reads this article ought to profit from this statement and conserve his finances in his youth so that when he approaches the age of fifty years he does not have to worry about securing a position but may be in a position to enjoy "the happy reflection consequent on a well spent life."

The committee appointed at a previous communication to prepare an appropriate flag ceremony submitted a very elaborate ritual for this particular service. Action on the report, however, was postponed until the next stated communication.

That distinguished Freemason, George Fleming Moore, whose friendship the writer prizes very highly, was introduced and delivered an instructive and entertaining address. Brother Moore always has something good to say. His remarks concerning the ideas which men hold concerning Freemasonry is interesting and amusing.

Some years ago I sent out a questionnaire to about fifty prominent Masons, asking them to give me a definition of Freemasonry. It was amusing to read the multitude of answers which I received—I think I had five from the fifty questionnaires—and they were as diverse as the creeds of our different churches, and that, to use our common slang phrase, is "going some."

The definition of Freemasonry given in the old English lectures over a hundred years ago is that it is "a peculiar system of morality veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols," but, for the life of me, I could never see the use of veiling a system of morality! It seems to me, especially in these days, that our morality ought not be veiled at all; it ought to be made about as public as we can possibly make it, and ought to be used as consistently as possible. So that definition is in every way inadequate.

The Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia evidently believes in holding its annual meeting when the weather is cool, for the date of this most interesting session is given as December 19th.

The address of Grand Master James W. Witten, is an entertaining document and shows very clearly that during the time he served his grand lodge as grand master he has been thoroughly alive to his responsibilities and has met them fearlessly and courageously. He granted many dispensations. The purpose of most of them was to make men in the uniforms of our country into Master Masons before they were ordered abroad. He makes an elaborate obituary report, but as the grand lodge apparently provides no special committee for this duty it is supposed that the grand master is expected to take care of it. Of the exchange of courtesies between grand jurisdictions which are so numerous at the present time he says:—

It is well worthy of note in this connection that so generally have these courtesies been exchanged that the grand master of a jurisdiction in which they have not heretofore been granted has joined with all the other grand masters in extending them very much to his credit.

This all goes to prove that perhaps when the present war is over we will emerge therefrom with many of our prejudices battered to pieces and with a new conception of Freemasonry. The grand master endorses the Washington Memorial Association as well as several associations composed of Masons operating within the jurisdiction. The grand master was generous in this respect. If he knew to a certainty the inner workings of all these various organizations and is assured that they may not ultimately foment trouble in the fraternity, his endorsement was probably within bounds, however, this writer has always been opposed to organizations within Masonry, they spell trouble with a capital "t."

The grand master refers to various war activities and the efforts for the promotion of patriotism. The Red Cross receives his unqualified endorsement and the sum of $5,270 was raised in its behalf during his administration. He speaks enthusiastically of what he terms the "War Daddy Movement," designed for the entertainment of visiting soldiers and sailors while in the city of Washington. What the grand master has to say concerning the extension of the privileges of war cantonments to the Masonic Fraternity is interesting but as the objectionable order of the War Department was satisfactorily modified much credit must be given the Masons of the country for standing boldly upon their rights. Concerning reciprocity with French Masons, the grand master expressed the hope,—

That such charges might be effected as the time rendered affiliation with French Masons both desirable and possible.

The report of the grand secretary deals almost wholly with the financial affairs of the grand lodge. The total receipts were $16,521.95 and the expenditures $20,523.64. However, the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia is in a most excellent financial condition. The total assets in general funds being $261,938.29. The report of the grand lecturer discloses the fact that the grand lodge still adheres to the custom of conferring the Past Master's degree on brethren elected to preside over their respective lodges. It seems mighty hard to break away from useless procedures simply because they have been the custom.

The Jurisprudence Committee had an easy time. The grand master made no decisions and the committee, therefore had nothing to report. The Grand Lodge of Argentine was recognized and an exchange of representatives ordered. In response to the petition of the Grand Lodge of France for recognition the special committee appointed upon the subject after what it claims as a very careful investigation made the following report which was adopted—

The Grand Lodge of France is sovereign, and has no more connection with the Grand Orient of France than has the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia with the Grand Lodge of Maryland or Pennsylvania. It has never before asked our recognition, but its lodges have uniformly cordially received visitors from our members when visiting France. It has not offended, as the Grand Orient has. We therefore cordially recommend granting the Grand Lodge of France our formal recognition and an exchange of representatives.

It is interesting to note that the report on flag ceremonies carried over from the May communication was again postponed.

The Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia evidently believes in the observance of the Masonic festivals for on St. John's day, December 27th, a St. John's day communication was held with grand lodge officers and representatives of lodges present. No business of interest was transacted at this meeting, except the election of officers.

The report on correspondence is prepared by a committee on which G. W. Baird, past grand master, is chairman. The committee are very generous in their review of Illinois and quote in full the resolutions adopted and sent to the president. In this connection the committee state—

It is worthy of note that the Grand Lodge of Illinois has the good taste to refer to the chief executive as "the President" and not "Wilson," as is the practice of the daily press.

Concerning Grand Master Wheeler and his constitutional amendments the following comment is made—

We pass his mention of constitutional amendments. It always invites attention to the Nation's Constitution, the amendments to which may be likened to plucking the plumage from beautiful birds. It makes us shudder.

The report of the Committee on Appeals and Grievances is approved on the following—

It is gratifying to read the report on appeals and grievances, for it gives all the facts the fraternity needs, and suppresses both names and offenses, which have so often been read by the enemy and hurled back at us as horrible examples.

The report of Illinois Correspondence by Brother Chas. H. Martin commended it as a good review of the proceedings of all the English speaking grand lodges. The committee complimented the Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois by saying—

The report is enriched by artistic photogravures of the new temples in the state, which add much to its value.

The Grand Lodge of England holds quarterly communications at which current business is transacted and social features observed.

The proceedings of these quarterly assemblies are issued in small pamphlets quite unattractive.

One peculiar thing about the transactions is that in recording the minutes proper every word spoken either by an officer or a representative is recorded in full, even to the (cheers) (loud cheers) (hear hear).

What is called an especial grand lodge was held in the city of London, Saturday, June 23, 1917. The purpose of this grand communication was "to commemorate the first assembly of the Grand Lodge of England, which took place on the Festival of St. John-in-Summer, 1717."

A long list of dignitaries was present consisting of right worshipfuls, very worshipfuls, worshipfuls, etc. Every man who has an honorary title is given credit for same.

Among the visitors present was a deputation from the Grand Lodge of Ireland consisting of officers of that grand body headed by the grand master, the most worshipful right honorable, the Earl of Donoughmore, K.P. The Grand Lodge of Scotland was also represented by Most Worshipful Brigadier General Robert Gordon Gilmour of Craigmillar and officers of the grand lodge. Many other dignitaries were present from grand lodges in close allegiance with the Grand Lodge of England.

The masters and wardens and members of the Lodge of Antiquity, No. 2, the Royal Somerset House and Inverness Lodge No. 4, and the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge No. 12, entered the grand lodge in procession, and were conducted to seats reserved for them. A grand lodge procession was then formed and the right worshipful deputy grand master, the Right Honorable T. F. Halsey was escorted into the lodge room. The grand lodge was then opened after which a deputation of grand officers retired and another procession was formed and the most worshipful grand master, His Royal Highness The Duke of Connaught, K.G. was escorted into the presence of the grand lodge.

The grand master having taken his seat on the throne was saluted by numerous dignitaries present and addressed the grand lodge advising them that he had sent a telegram to His Majesty the King renewing the expressions of loyalty and devotion of the Grand Lodge of England. The King replied by telegram and said in part—

The traditional loyalty of British Freemasons is a force upon which the sovereign of this country has ever reckoned, and has been to me a proud memory during the anxious years through which we are passing.

The right worshipful deputy grand master then addressed the grand master and grand lodge and said in part—

When on St. John's Day-in-Summer in 1717, the brethren of four lodges, who had previously formed themselves into the Grand Lodge of England, elected and installed their first grand master, could the most sanguine among them have anticipated that from this foundation, however well and truly laid, such a splendid super-structure would arise, so perfect in its parts and so honourable to the builders, who through so many generations have laboured with ever-increasing care, until we welcome it now, glorious in wisdom, strength and beauty? Truly the small seed has grown into a magnificent tree, with branches overshadowing the whole world, a refuge from the storms of life, with fruits of love and peace to all in sorrow and affliction.

Concerning the growth of Freemasonry in England and the British Empire the deputy grand master called attention to the fact that—

At the first meeting of this grand lodge in 1717 we had working under our banner four lodges, all in London. Now we have 3,226 in active work throughout the British Empire and beyond its boundaries.

In concluding his address the following peroration was greeted with loudest cheers—

It is not for us mortals to forecast the future, but may it not be possible that this edifice, the completion of which we celebrate to day, may in itself be but the foundation of a still more glorious edifice to be reared by our children and children's children, long after we shall have been summoned to the Grand Lodge above, to carry on and amplify our benevolent work till time shall be no more.

In response to this address the grand master said—

Satisfaction is deepened today by the bringing together of this vast assemblage of Freemasons, all imbued with the same principles, all believing the same tenets, each determined to strive to the utmost to maintain at the highest point of perfection those grand principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth, which not only supply the foundation, but cement and adorn the fabric of Freemasonry.

The grand master of Ireland then expressed his felicitations to the grand master saying that—

Irish Freemasons feel proud that the grand master of English Freemasons is also grand master of Irish Masonic Knight Templars. This is another link connecting Freemasonry in England with the order in Ireland.

The grand master of Scotland also conveyed his congratulations and emphasized the fact that the Grand Lodge of England and the Grand Lodge of Scotland were bound together by many ties historical and fraternal.

Amid storm of cheers the deputy grand master paid the following tribute to American Freemasons—

To our American brethren, we say how sincerely we recognize that spirit of love of truth and loyalty to freedom which has led their nation to join with our own and with our allies in the present struggle. (Cheers). From its beginning we have felt that the cause which we defend is that of Masonic brotherhood in its noblest aspects (Hear, hear), and that the victory of our cause will ensure the spread throughout all lands of the three grand principles on which our order is founded, and the triumph of which was never more necessary, and, we trust, never more assured, than it is at this hour.

The assistant grand secretary then read the names of a long list of grand officers on whom promotion had been conferred and those in attendance were presented to the grand master.

A telegram from British Freemasons interned in Germany was read—

We, the British Freemasons interned as civilian prisoners of war at Ruhleben, Germany, having the prosperity of our ancient fraternity at heart, humbly desire to offer our sincere congratulations and fraternal greetings to the most worshipful grand master, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, K.G., and to the other eminent members of the United Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of England on the occasion of the Bicentenary Celebration of the foundation of this honourable institution.

We most cordially wish you all happiness, and pray the Great Architect of the Universe of His infinite mercy and goodness to guide and direct you in the governance of this grand lodge; and pledge ourselves, though parted from that country whence we derived our birth and infant nurture, never to lose sight of the allegiance we owe to the sovereign of our native land. (Cheers.)

May Peace, Plenty and Unity ever subsist among the craft until time shall be no more.

The remainder of this meeting was given over to a report of the Bicentenary Committee and the reading of other historical data bearing on the formation of the first grand lodge.

On Sunday, June 24th, at 11 o'clock in the morning in the Royal Albert Hall, London, there was held a Masonic service commemorating the 200th anniversary of the first Grand Lodge of England. The service consisted of hymns, Scripture reading, prayers and an address by Very Worshipful Brother The Right Reverend The Lord Bishop of Birmingham, grand chaplain. The address was in keeping with the occasion and was fervent with appeal to Masons to do their full duty in the present war.

On the 5th day of September, 1917, a quarterly communication of the grand lodge was held at which there was a large attendance.

The resignation of the grand secretary, Right Worshipful Brother Sir Edward Letchworth, P.G.W., was presented on account of ill health and was accepted by the grand lodge with the deepest regret.

The Board of Benevolence report receipts and expenditures and advised the grand lodge that the fund was in excellent condition.

The Board of General Purposes which seem to be possessed of the authority of the grand master, made an extended report. It recommended that Brother Edward Letchworth be retained by the grand lodge in a consultative capacity and that his salary be fixed at 2,000 pounds per annum. It is refreshing to note that the Grand Lodge of England did not soon forget the splendid services rendered it by Brother Letchworth during his twenty-five years of activities as grand secretary.

Another matter which the board calls to the attention of the grand lodge was the careless bookkeeping on the part of a number of lodges and they were urged to see that their secretaries gave better attention to the details of their respective offices.

The question of the salary of the newly elected grand secretary was the subject of much discussion. It was, however, finally fixed at 1200 pounds per annum rising by biennial increments of 100 pounds to 1500 pounds. The grand lodge voted to place a memorial tablet on the Church of St. Paul Convent Garden, to Anthony Sayer, first grand master of the Grand Lodge of England.

It is evident that the Grand Lodge of England like a good many grand lodges wastes time in quibbling over trifles. Concerning an amendment passed a brother got up and said—

I do not know if the president of the board would consider the advisability of putting the words "by the secretary" after the word "shall." It seems to me it would express the intention better. The rule would then read "The lodge shall by its secretary" instead of "The lodge by its secretary shall." (Laughter.) It seems to me more English.

The President of the Board of General Purposes replied: R.W. Deputy Grand Master, this is a matter of rather delicate literary taste, and it affects a rule which offends against practically every canon of such taste. The brethren will find in it the split infinitive and many similar horrors to strict grammarians which should not exist in the Book of Constitutions; and when grand lodge decides to revise that book, to make it literature as well as art (laughter) I shall be delighted to have the co-operation of the brethren in making everything read well. The point raised by our brother is purely a verbal matter; and I think, if you will trust to the taste of the R.W. the deputy grand master, when authorizing these proceedings, you will find we will endeavour to get in the words in such order as will fit their present position in that line of the book. I am not prepared at the moment to argue whether "by the secretary" shall go in front of "shall" or after; but the point is to make it clear that the duty of making the return is put upon the secretary. If, then, we decide to place that duty on the secretary, whether you say "shall" before or after "by" it will mean that it will be done. (Laughter and cheers).

One thing the Grand Lodge of England frowned upon at this quarterly meeting and that was the growing practice of publicly advertising for brethren to become founders of new lodges.

The quarterly communication held on Wednesday, the 5th day of December, was presided over by the deputy grand master, Right Worshipful Right Hon. Thomas Frederick Halsey, P.C., M.A.

The first business was the reelection of the Duke of Connaught as grand master for the ensuing year.

The Board of General Purposes rehearsed its activities during the past quarter and urged lodges to observe the strictest economy in the consumption of food.

Lodges were cautioned to exercise vigilant scrutiny over candidates for the degrees whose normal homes are in the dominion oversea. They were advised to communicate with the lodges in whose jurisdiction these petitioners may reside in order that full inquiry may be made into their characters and qualifications.

One splendid thing was done by the grand lodge as is shown by a special report of a committee appointed to look after English Masons interned in enemy countries. The following gives an idea of their work—

From the outset, a plentiful supply was arranged of parcels of such food and personal comforts as our interned brethren signified they most required; and the despatch every three weeks first arranged has, in accordance with the requirements of the Central Prisoners of War Committee, for the past eighteen months consisted of parcels of 10 lbs. each, of which three are despatched to each prisoner at intervals covering a period of 14 days. Testimony has come to hand that, in the overwhelming majority of instances, every consignment has reached its destination intact; and certain of the brethren, who have been repatriated under the system of exchange of prisoners, have informed the board that, without this assistance, their already hard lot would have been considerably aggravated. The disbursements up to date have been £5,707 2s. 6d, leaving in hand £1,062 12s. 6d.; and, as this sum will ensure no more than a few months' supply at the present rate, which is hoped to be maintained, the board makes a further appeal to the generosity of the craft on behalf of this most deserving fund.

Concerning the chain prayer which seems to have reached England, the president of the Board of General Purposes referred to it as a nuisance and urged every Mason to break the chain whenever possible.

The following colloquy which took place shows that after all our English cousins are quite human—

V.W. Bro. Roberts: Is it in order to ask, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, whether and when and in what manner one as a Mason may draw attention to the circumstances surrounding enemy membership of English Freemasonry?

The R.W. Deputy Grand Master: I do not think that arises on this question, but the worthy brother is quite as well acquainted, from my knowledge of him and from my knowledge of the office that he has held for many years in a neighbouring province—he is quite as well acquainted with the provisions of the Book of Constitutions as I am myself. Any brother who feels that he has any grievance had better consult the Book of Constitutions, and find out from that book the proper course that he should take.

V.W. Bro. Roberts: R.W. Deputy Grand Master, it was with a view to attacking that Book of Constitutions that I wanted to make some remarks. We cannot get at the Book of Constitutions, we cannot get at the Board of General Purposes, and we want to if we can.

The President of the Board of General Purposes: R.W. Deputy Grand Master, the Book of Constitutions is published in this building at the price of one shilling. It is, therefore, perfectly possible to get at the Book of Constitutions.

V.W. Bro. Roberts: In that sense.

The President of the Board of General Purposes: As for getting at the Board of General Purposes, I assure you, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, my experience is that that body can be "got at"—sometimes, its members venture to think just a little too often and a little too easily. There is no difficulty at any time, indeed, in "getting at" the Board of General Purposes.

A Special Fund for the care of sailors is in charge of the grand lodge. The grand master gave to this fund 500 pounds and the king 5000 pounds.

A memorial to the late Brother Edward Letchworth was presented manifesting the deep sorrow felt by the Masons of England over the demise of this worthy man and Freemason.

A fraternal correspondent is no doubt regarded as a useless commodity of the Grand Lodge of England for throughout the reports there is no reference to other grand jurisdictions.

FLORIDA, F. & A. M.

The proceedings make up an attractive volume. They are printed in clear, readable type, and the grand secretary has the thanks of the writer.

A portrait of A. S. York, grand master for the year 1917, also a half tone illustration of the Masonic hall at St. Petersburg adorns the opening pages.

The 89th annual communication was held in the city of Jacksonville on Tuesday, January 15, 1918.

The opening prayer of the grand chaplain is well taken because it was not only in keeping with the spirit of the times but was within the bounds of Freemasonry.

The roll call of representatives failed to elicit a response from the representative of Illinois who apparently was not present.

The address of the grand master, A. S. York, is a well written paper. He opens with reference to the war in which the country is engaged and says—

If among all our people there are any who are prepared and will not shirk any of the responsibilities of the hour they are the Freemasons of this country. Surely our fraternity which kept alive the light of learning through the Dark Ages, made the first assaults on the divine right of kings, which first established a brotherhood planned on the foundation stones of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, will not be found wanting in this grapple to the death between the forces of autocracy and the forces of democracy, this struggle which we hope and pray may settle forever the elemental rights of man for which Freemasonry has stood through all the ages of its existence. While regretting poignantly, my brethren, the awful carnage which deluges the earth with blood, we welcome the opportunity for patriotic service which the need of our country offers. I know that I speak for the Freemasons of this country when I say that among us, there is no division of opinion, no whisper of doubt, no fear of our ultimate victory. We stand loyally behind our country and its government and with all that we have and with all that we are, are ready to serve their cause to the utmost.

His report on necrology is quite lengthy and he left very little for the Committee on Memorials to cover.

One new lodge was instituted during the year and one lodge had its charter revoked because the worshipful master and senior warden opened the lodge privately and secretly and forced a ballot on the petition of an applicant without notifying other members of said lodge who were present in the building. What else could the grand master do under the circumstance? There is a good deal of clandestine balloting and examination of candidates going on in a good many of our lodges and it is refreshing to find a grand master who measures up to the situation and who proposes to stop these illegal practices.

The grand master issued twenty-seven dispensations to elect officers. Rather an unusual number.

He also issued eighty-nine dispensations to ballot and confer degrees in less than the lawful time. In this connection he says—

It will be apparent by a reading of this report that many more than the usual number of dispensations to ballot on applicants and confer degrees short of time have been granted during the past year. This has been caused by the fact that our nation is engaged in a great war and many of her sons have been leaving the United States, and many others are preparing to leave, for a foreign shore, to risk their lives in defense of their country. It was found necessary in many cases to grant these dispensations if these young men were to receive the benefits of Masonry before making this supreme sacrifice on the altar of their country. Under these circumstances it was my judgment that the wise and liberal exercise of the power to grant dispensations was a patriotic and Masonic duty.

Florida evidently permits its particular lodges, so designated in the proceedings, to lay cornerstones for two dispensations were issued for this purpose.

It is also noticed that the grand lodge itself lays cornerstones. Evidently the Grand Lodge of Florida is willing to extend to its particular lodges the same rights which it holds itself.

Among the dispensations refused was one to take a ballot at a called communication, and another to permit a lodge to attend the unveiling of a monument "to a deceased brother in a body"—at least so the record states.

Among the rulings made by the grand master was one that the petition from a yeoman on board a United States warship which had been stationed at Key West might petition a lodge near by.

Another decision is interesting—

An old brother had requested that he be allowed to place a trust fund with the lodge to be held by it for himself and wife, the amount not used by them during life to be used by the lodge in paying funeral expenses and for the upkeep of their lot in the cemetery after their death.

The grand master ruled that inasmuch as the grand lodge is not authorized to act as trustee for the property of a member of the fraternity the same regulation would apply to a particular lodge. It seems to the writer that the grand master stretched a point in this case. There may be very good reasons why the grand lodge itself should not engage in the business of trusteeships but there isn't any reason in the world why one of its lodges should not become trustee for a small fund to be used in carrying out the last wishes of an old and devoted member of the craft. Of course the acceptance of a trusteeship entails some burden of responsibility upon the lodge, but what is Masonry organized for? Is it merely for the indulgence of the vanity and the selfishness of its members, or is it to make the world brighter and happier through service to the brethren?

Another ruling by the grand master shows the waywardness of human nature. A brother wrote the grand master that there was a member of his lodge that he didn't like and he wanted to know if he came down to lodge ahead of the object of his animosity if he could object to his entering the lodge. Of course the grand master had to say no.

The grand master also decided that a bookkeeper for a brewery could petition a lodge in Florida because the applicant had nothing to do with the manufacture or sales of the product. He might, however, be a consumer, a question which ought to be taken cognizance of.

Three edicts were issued by the grand master which are quoted in full—

1. It is gross unmasonic conduct for a Mason to distribute business cards having on the back thereof a parody on a subject of Masonry, or a piece of doggerel tending to make light of any of the Masonic lectures or ceremonies. The Masonic ceremonies are too sacred and beautiful to be lightly treated and ridiculed.

2. It is improper for the lodges in this jurisdiction to rent their lodge room or temple to any organization based on Masonic membership, except those included in the York Rite, the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the Order of the Eastern Star, and the Mystic Shrine.

3. It is improper for a Mason in this state to send out, either signed or unsigned, a letter containing a supposed Masonic prayer of ancient origin, asking the recipient to pray the enclosed prayer and to send other copies of same to other individuals.

The grand master reported a matter of great Masonic import. It appears that a petitioner in the Order of the Eastern Star must be a Master Mason in good standing and when suspended by his lodge he is automatically suspended in the Eastern Star. In order to carry out these provisions of the law the Eastern Star must have some authentic way of knowing who are in good standing in the lodges and likewise who have been excused from the fraternity for failure to pay dues. Hence the grand master presented this momentous question with the request that something be done to meet this vital issue for the reason that the support of the Eastern Star was seriously needed in the plans now going forward for the construction of a Masonic home in the state. Suppose the Order of Red Men or the Daughters of Isabella should have made a like request from the grand master stating that they did not want any suspended Masons joining their organization and would like to be kept advised on these matters that they might protect themselves. The Order of the Eastern Star has absolutely no connection whatsoever with the institution of Freemasonry. Just the moment that our fraternity commences to recognize and accord privileges to those organizations making affiliation in the Masonic Fraternity a basis for membership, just that moment it invites serious trouble.

The grand master recommended the appointment of a grand lecturer for the purpose of holding schools of instruction and teaching the work.

This suggestion was made because of the chaotic condition of the ritual in Florida.

The editor of a Masonic paper in Florida who held membership in the jurisdiction of Georgia came in for a severe scoring by the grand master because of the fact that he had devoted much of his energies during the year to belittling the Grand Lodge of Florida and advising members to disobey the mandates of the grand master. It looks very strange that a brother from one jurisdiction would have so little sense of propriety as to go into another jurisdiction and proceed to tell them how to run their affairs.

Masonic journals edited by Masons of standing who have some knowledge of Freemasonry are greatly needed in order that the fraternity may be properly represented in the field of journalism. But there ought to be some law prohibiting those lazy, shiftless members of society who can't make a decent living at anything else from starting a Masonic newspaper and not only misrepresenting the craft but abusing everybody who doesn't fall in with their ideas and lend them their pocketbooks.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are interesting papers and are printed as a part of the grand master's report. In Illinois they are put over in the back part of the proceedings where nobody can find them.

The deputy grand master, having served as grand master during the absence of the real article from the state, made a detailed report of his acts. Apparently the grand master of Florida is not jealous of his prerogative and did not absent himself from the state for a couple of weeks without saying anything about it as the writer has known some grand masters to do.

The report of the grand secretary deals with many affairs connected with his office purely of local interest. His financial statement shows receipts of $24,650.15 and the grand treasurer's report shows expenditures of $26,019.51.

The grand lodge adopted a resolution exempting all members of Florida lodges who are serving in the army and navy from the payment of dues. It also adopted a resolution forbidding lodges in Florida from suspending members during the period of the war.

The second day's session opened with a lengthy address delivered by Brother J. W. Hanan, past grand master of Indiana. It was excellent, but if a visitor were to come to the Grand Lodge of Illinois and consume as much time as Brother Hanan apparently did he would be shot on the spot. The only man who gets any leaway in the matter of time is the grand orator.

The Building Committee of the home and orphanage made an extended report which shows that the grand lodge proposes to put the cottage plan into operation. The committee recommended that they be given power to commence their building plans on a plat of ground donated to the grand lodge, located near the city of St. Petersburg. The grand lodge willingly concurred with all that the committee asked and then introduced a resolution inviting the Order of the Eastern Star to provide a Representative Committee with authority to co-operate with the Building Committee of the grand lodge and the writer will bet a buttered biscuit that the time will come when the grand lodge will regret this matrimonial venture and seek means to obtain a divorce.

The Committee on Jurisprudence made quite a lengthy report. Concerning the matter of Edict No. 2 they were of the opinion—

Edict No. 2, wherein the grand master declared "that it is improper for the lodges of this jurisdiction to rent their lodge rooms or temple to any organization based on Masonic membership, except those included in the York Rite, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the Order of the Eastern Star and the Mystic Shrine." The committee were of the opinion that the edict should be withdrawn and declared of no effect, because it is clearly within the province and right of the particular lodges to rent their rooms for any proper purpose not subversive to the ground work and principles of Freemasonry.

Concerning the request of the Order of Eastern Star for certain information to which they are not entitled the committee reported—

The grand secretary of the grand lodge and the secretaries of the particular lodges are authorized and directed to furnish to the officers of the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star and to the secretaries of any of the subordinate chapters of the O. E. S. upon proper application by them, information as to the standing of any Mason who is or may have been a member of any of the lodges in this Grand Jurisdiction, which may be necessary for the purpose of obtaining membership in that order.

They knocked out the recommendation of the grand master relating to the selection of a grand lecturer because of the additional expense.

This committee also recommended the following amendment to the constitution to lie over one year—

When all of the three principal officers of a particular lodge are absent, the lodge may be opened and presided over by a district deputy grand master, or by the junior past master present.

Apparently some of the officers of Florida lodges are not as attentive to their duties as they should be else such legislation would not be required.

The Committee on Memorials made a report of just about one page. It is assumed that since the grand master took upon himself the duty of paying proper respect to the memory of the dead there was very little left for the committee to do.

A special committee appointed to erect a monument to the memory of Past Grand Master Carnell reported that the duty assigned to them had been performed. It is very unusual for a grand lodge to take sufficient interest in the memory of its past grand masters as to mark their final resting places with suitable monuments. The Grand Lodge of Florida has performed an exceptional service and is to be commended.

The report on foreign correspondence is from the pen of Silas B. Wright and he has been exceedingly generous with Illinois, giving nine pages to the review.

He briefly and entertainingly writes up the principal items in the address of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler as well as the various transactions of the grand lodge.

He makes neither criticism nor comment.

He evidently liked the remarks made by Owen Scott concerning the work done by the Masons in Illinois at the various state encampments for he quotes the speech in full.

Concerning the correspondence report he says—

The correspondence report by Brother Charles H. Martin is his second, and is interesting from start to finish. He ably and in an interesting manner presents the principal points of the proceedings of the various grand lodges with numerous pleasant criticisms and comparisons of the matters presented.

GEORGIA, F. & A. M.

The one hundred and thirty-first annual communication was held in the city of Macon, October 30-31, 1917.

The grand lodge indulged in a little ostentation, for the record states that the grand marshal called the grand lodge to order and gave three ringing blows of the gavel which brought the twelve hundred representatives to attention while the grand lodge officers entered.

The first thing done was to call the roll of grand officers and grand representatives. Illinois was represented in the person of Joseph Gregg, Jr. of Atlanta.

An alarm at the door, when attended, disclosed the fact that the American flag was waiting to be received. As it was proudly carried down the aisle under escort of two veteran heroes of the Southland and of Masonry, the audience sang America.

The roll call of lodges and delegates must have consumed considerable time.

The grand secretary would greatly improve his proceedings if he would print this list, together with the names of past masters in attendance, as a part of his appendix.

In his opening remarks, the grand master says—

It has never been my pleasure to be associated with a more affable, courteous, gentlemanly body of men than those who make up the corps of officers of the Grand Lodge of Georgia.

The grand master well says that Masons are gentlemen.

He devotes two pages of his address to the subject of necrology, Past Grand Master Albert B. Ashley of Illinois being mentioned.

The grand master reported that he had received nearly three hundred letters asking for decisions upon various matters. Not one of the inquiries involved any new construction of law, hence, he had no decisions to report.

One answer which he made is hardly in keeping with Masonic ethics. He decided that there is no objection for a worshipful master to allow a discussion on a candidate before the ballot has been spread; but after the ballot has been declared there must be absolutely no discussion.

The Jurisprudence Committee approved this ruling. It looks very much to the writer that to permit any discussion as to the merits or demerits of candidates prior to the ballot would mean interminable trouble. There can be no objection to a statement which might positively identify the petitioner but for a brother to get up and harangue the lodge, urging the election of the petitioner is not in keeping with the usages of Freemasonry.

During the year district conventions were held throughout the state, and, according to the grand master's report, they were highly successful. An instructor in the uniform work was present to give instruction in the ritual and there was an exchange of ideas and experiences. Attendance at these conventions was purely optional with the lodges. The plan of district conventions is most excellent. The writer has for a long time been trying to get the Grand Lodge of Illinois to see the wisdom of holding a get-together meeting in every Masonic district in the state. The problem of the present day is to reach the individual lodge officer and, through him, the members of his lodge. The only way this can be accomplished and Masons brought to a better understanding of Freemasonry is through district conventions such as our Georgia brethren have inaugurated.

The grand master says that he did not make as many visitations as he wanted to, however, he enumerates in detail a large number of visits to lodges.

Among the cornerstones laid was one for a new Odd Fellows' hall. This certainly was proper, for Freemasonry is the only society which by reason of its traditions has an inherent right to the ceremony of corner-stone laying.

The grand master refers in very complimentary language to the Scottish Rite hospital for crippled children, and urges the Masons of the state to give it their moral and financial support. In this connection he remarks—

I am happy to say there is no conflict whatever between the two branches,—the York Rite and Scottish Rite Masons, each working to the same end, the uplift of humanity and the betterment of mankind.

Of course he will be criticized by some for the remark.

The grand master recommended a stenographer for the grand secretary.

The grand master incorporates in his address a report from the trustees of the Masonic home, and calls attention to the fact that the board as now constituted consists of twenty-three members and suggests a reduction to seven good, active business men. He does not see any reason why grand lodge officers and past grand masters should be members of the Board of Trustees simply by reason of their official connection with the grand lodge. Neither does he think that the grand master should be chairman of the Board of Trustees.

In the above this officer shows good business acumen. Each grand lodge should place the management of its homes in the hands of the very best business men that it can command, regardless of their grand lodge affiliations. There is no reason in the world why grand lodge officers should be charged with the management of these institutions, nor is it to the best interests of the home to have trusteeships regarded as political plums to be divided among a special coterie of aspiring office holders.

Georgia has undoubtedly quite recently adopted a uniform work for the grand master states that this act was one of the most far reaching in the history of the grand lodge. He appointed a board of seven custodians to disseminate the new work.

Lodges of instruction were held throughout the state and much was accomplished in the way of acquainting brethren with the new ritual.

The grand master granted over three hundred dispensations, all of which are given in full. It looks as tho the grand lodge ought to give him a dispensation clerk.

The grand master took a kindly interest in the grand secretary and recommended an increase in his salary.

The report of the grand secretary is a very peculiar document. He briefly gives the total of receipts and devotes the balance of his report to enumerating letters that he wrote and other things which he did. In view of the grand master's recommendation for an increase in his salary perhaps the grand secretary thought it might be advisable to boost the thing along by showing to the grand lodge a minute account of the things which he did. There is nothing unusual or at all burdensome in the grand secretary's office as judged from his detailed service rendered.

Concerning recognition of the Grand Lodge of France the Committee on Foreign Correspondence asked for time to complete their report, stating that they have been unable to secure necessary documentary evidence. The question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of Panama was laid over until the next annual meeting.

A resolution was adopted fixing the salary of the grand secretary at $3,000 per annum. Our brother is to be congratulated. There is no complaint whatsoever concerning the generosity of the grand lodge toward him.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address refers to itself as the Committee on Topical Distribution.

The report of the custodians of the work is quite interesting because during the year they had been dealing with many new problems. The committee found that the task of teaching the new ritual to the Masons of Georgia was one of gigantic proportions and recommended the issuance of a cipher ritual and its distribution among the lodges of the state. But a wise old grand master got up and moved to knock out of the report all references to the publication and use of a key or cipher and the grand lodge concurred.

The grand treasurer evidently makes his report to the Finance Committee for it is printed as a part of the report of those watch dogs of the treasury. The grand lodge is apparently in excellent financial condition and has very little to worry over.

The following resolution was adopted—

Resolved, by the Grand Lodge of Georgia, That the position of the most worshipful, the grand master, in protesting against discrimination in favor of the Knights of Columbus against other orders, is cordially approved and this grand lodge congratulates him upon the happy results obtained.

This naturally arouses some curiosity. It would be interesting to know the details.

The Committee on Memorials made a very brief report, no doubt its reading pleased the representatives for it was not much more than half a page in length.

The Committee on Jurisprudence got after the grand master for stating in an answer to a question that a waiver of jurisdiction carries with it in a sense a recommendation and ordered that these words be stricken out.

The grand lodge has one committee that is a little out of the ordinary. It is called the "Committee on General Welfare." This committee seems to exercise a sort of supervision over the craft in general, and makes such suggestions and recommendations as appears to it wise and expedient. For instance, in the report under Review it calls attention to the fact that numerous fires occurred during the year entailing severe losses upon the lodges and recommends that some sort of a protection fund be established whereby a lodge might be reimbursed to an amount not exceeding $200. The grand lodge evidently did not want to embark in the insurance business for it rejected that portion of the report.

The following resolution ought to have the effect of causing brethren to avoid suspension for non-payment of dues.

Resolved, That all approved resolutions and edicts authorizing expulsion for non-payment of dues be repealed, and the old regulations be restored, and a suspended member for non-payment of dues can only be reinstated by unanimous consent of his lodge expressed by secret ballot.

Another resolution introduced during the closing hours provides—

That each subordinate lodge in Georgia be requested to take a voluntary collection for an endowment fund for the Masonic home with the aim to raise an endowment fund for said institution of $300,000.00.

The report on correspondence called "Review of Foreign Proceedings," is prepared by Raymond Daniel. One thing he is to be commended for is his detail of notable decisions rendered during the year. He refers to the Proceedings of Illinois as a big book containing the proceedings of a big year. He notes the fact that Brother Arthur E. Wood, Georgia's representative, was present in grand lodge. Of course Arthur Wood was present. Somebody has charged him with being omnipresent.

Brother Daniel calls the Grand Masters' Advisory Council an innovation and in very brief items and without comment details the principal things reported by Brother Wheeler.

He passes the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin with a favorable comment.

The proceedings are offered in a neat volume with a blue cover. Masonic lodges seem partial to blue which may account for the misnomer "blue" lodge.

An item on the title page attracts attention because of its rather unusual requirements—

Ordered that the worshipful masters shall read the proceedings of the grand lodge, or cause the same to be read to their respective lodges, within three months from the receipt thereof, which fact the secretaries are required to report to the grand secretary forthwith under the seal of the lodge.

The fiftieth annual communication was held in the city of Boise on Tuesday the 11th day of September, 1917.

The grand lodge was opened in ample form, after which the roll of deceased past grand masters was called by the grand secretary while the grand master responded with the year of service and date of decease. Then followed a prayer in memory of the departed grand masters.

The roll of representatives of grand lodges was called and these dignitaries were escorted before the altar and received by the grand master. The representative of Illinois does not appear to have been present.

Grand Master John D. Bloomfield presented a carefully prepared document dealing with the affairs of his office. His opening remarks are for the most part reminiscent and congratulatory.

Permissions were granted to a number of lodges to move their places of meeting. Like all grand masters he received and granted numerous requests to confer degrees by courtesy.

The Grand Lodge of Idaho evidently believes in pocket book Masonry for two orders were issued to replace rituals which had been lost or worn out.

A request was made for a dispensation to install a Master elect who was without a certificate of proficiency from the grand lecturer. This involved some new constructions of the law upon the subject which the grand master thought should receive the consideration of the Jurisprudence Committee. A law of this sort may work all right in a small jurisdiction but it is believed that in a large jurisdiction like Illinois it would require a regiment of grand lecturers in order to post and examine the newly elected Masters each year. Then again think of the expense.

The grand master renders a number of what he terms decisions. For the most part they are merely constructions of local law. The following are submitted as out of the ordinary.

Concerning the request for a dispensation to hold an election of officers at another time than Christmas night, the grand master said—

The powers of the grand master are limited and he cannot grant a dispensation to any constituent lodge to hold its annual election of officers out of time for such dispensation would be setting aside the by-laws of your lodge and one of the Grand Lodge By-Laws.

He replied to the question "Can a member of the Mormon church petition for the degrees of Masonry?"—

He can. There is no more restriction against a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints petitioning for the degrees of Masonry than against a member of the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian or any other church. Freemasonry requires that the candidate for initiation be a good man and true, that he obey the laws of the country under whose protection he lives and that he must express his belief in the existence of one ever living and true God.

Relating to the question of the propriety of the master conducting correspondence of the lodge the following answer was given—

The secretary of your lodge has charge of and should conduct its correspondence but this does not preclude the master from taking charge of such correspondence as he may think best for the general welfare and harmony of his lodge.

The question was asked if a lodge might use robes when conferring the degrees, and the following reply was given—

This is a matter which has never been passed upon by this grand jurisdiction but the principle of keeping the work uniform has been passed upon repeatedly and the wearing of robes by the officers and members when conferring the degrees is not provided for by our regulations and is a practice which cannot be followed by the smaller lodges and those struggling with financial difficulty. It would, therefore, have a tendency to place such lodges at a disadvantage with the more fortunate ones who are able to provide robes or secure them from some of higher orders. We regard no man on account of his worldly goods or honors, and the work of conferring the degrees should not depend upon the financial ability of the constituent lodges to provide paraphernalia, but rather upon the willingness and ability of the officers to learn and perform their work. I, therefore, hold that the wearing of robes by officers or participants in the work of the degrees or of any lodge work is not in conformity with our adopted work and is not permissible.

Two dispensations for the formation of new lodges were issued. The Orphans' Fund was highly praised and the magnificent sum of $84,000 reported in the treasury.

The grand master recites a rather peculiar thing. When the proceedings for 1916 were issued it was found that the reports of the Committees on Credentials, Necrology, Distribution, Returns of Lodges and Jurisprudence were printed without showing what action was taken thereon. He asked that these reports be formally readopted at this session. It looks very much as tho the grand secretary and his staff of assistants went to sleep on the job, or it may be that a lot of busy bees assembled around the grand secretary's table and engaged him in conversation over trivial matters when they ought to have had the good sense not to bother him when his time and attention were demanded elsewhere.

The sentiments of patriotism voiced by the grand master in his address are to be highly commended. No doubt the Masons of Idaho can be relied upon in any emergency.

In recording his visitations to lodges the grand master lays particular stress upon the honors and courtesies which were shown him by the Order of Eastern Star. Grand masters are a favorite object of attack on the part of our dear sisters of the Twinkler Family. They like to tote him about, present him with bouquets and indirectly leave the impression of the sisterhood and brotherhood of Freemasonry and the Order of the Eastern Star.

In his visitations the grand master made a couple of discoveries—

I find in some of our lodges, however, that they have been in the habit of giving a candidate the first section of the first or second degree and then postponing the lecture and charge and giving it at a subsequent meeting. This I believe to be wrong, as a candidate is not properly initiated or passed until he has received both lecture and charge. We should at all times at the initiation of a candidate endeavor to make the first impressions permanent and give the candidate a clear conception of the high ideals and noble principles for which the fraternity stands. I do not feel that a candidate has been as properly impressed by simply conferring the first section of the degree, which is short, as if the lecture and charge were given at the same meeting.

I have found a serious lack of knowledge of Masonic law among the constituent lodges, and have endeavored to impress upon them the necessity of becoming better acquainted with our code and digest and of having a broader and better knowledge of Masonic traditions, rules and practices, and I feel that too little attention is given to that part of our work which will explain the meaning of the ritual, its symbols, traditions and history, and that too few of our members understand and appreciate the full meaning of the beautiful lessons and teachings to be found in our first degree; and I feel that a better understanding of all that Masonry stands for will draw them even more closely to this honored fraternity.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $17,811.20 and expenditures of $19,014.04.

Now comes the grand secretary with a lengthy report rivaling in appearance and makeup that of the grand master. He says that he was able to place the proceedings in the hands of the brethren fifteen days after the close of the grand lodge. This is an excellent record.

During the year he visited a number of like officials through the United States, and in commenting upon his visits makes the statement that—

In the presence of grand secretaries you are, as a matter of fact, at the very fountain of Masonic light.

Brother Knepper is very modest. It is rather surprising that he did not declare the grand secretaries to be in themselves the entire Masonic works.

His purpose was to secure data on a card index system and he reports that he liked the Iowa plan better than any that he had seen. What's the matter Isaac Cutter? There are a lot of us who have thought that you had the best system. Better keep your eye on those Iowa fellows.

Brother Knepper says that he has in his office evidence to prove that the proceedings were read in open lodge in every Masonic constituent body in the state within the time limit set by statute. Concerning this requirement of the grand lodge the grand secretary says that the order on the title page concerning reading of proceedings in open lodge is merely a stereotyped edict adopted in 1888; and observes that it seems somewhat of a joke to make a pleasing duty mandatory and to impose a $5.00 fine for its non-observance. Of course the grand secretary is simply putting the thing diplomatically, he knows very well that the whole affair is more or less of a farce, and says—

The key to the whole situation is this: The first meeting of the lodge after the return of its grand lodge delegate should be set aside as a social evening. To secure a good attendance refreshments may be served. Then the grand master's address and the reports mentioned, should be taken up and reviewed, not read, by the brother in attendance at the grand lodge and discussed by the brethren. Upon the arrival of the full text of the proceedings the lodge could at its next meeting complete the so-called reading much to the profit of all concerned. The worshipful master should not allow his term of office to expire before having completed this pleasing and profitable requirement.

He hands the grand master a fragrant bouquet in the following recommendation to his grand lodge—

Grand masters are necessarily among the ablest men in the fraternity. Their personal influence cannot be overestimated and every member of the order should have the privilege of meeting him at least once a year. But grand masters are busy men and their business will not permit them to lose so much time. The remedy is to pay the grand master a per diem sufficient to enable him to throw aside business cares for four months in the year. The good accomplished would fully justify the expenditure. Idaho must come to this before many days. A grand master may successfully pass the scrutiny of the Jurisprudence Committee and yet be of little or no value to his brethren throughout the state. Dealing with technicalities of Masonic law is a small part of a grand master's work.

It is a beautiful thing to see grand masters and grand secretaries working in perfect harmony particularly in reference to their personal financial interests.

The grand master made but one recommendation—

That the grand lodge, under proper restrictions, permit constituent lodges to initiate, pass and raise candidates for the degrees in classes of three with but one ceremony. This is in harmony with many of the leading grand lodges and will result in great benefit to at least a half dozen lodges in the state.

The grand lecturer reports a lack of interest in the work during the year but attributes it to the activity of the Red Cross and the Home Guards.

The grand lodge proposed to lessen the work of the grand master in the matter of examination and approval of by-laws for a committee was appointed to prepare what is termed "skeleton by-laws" which would be in keeping with the regulations of the Grand Lodge By-Laws.

The report of the Committee on Distribution was not made until the morning of the second day. Apparently the grand master did not furnish them an advanced copy of his report in order that they might be prepared on the first day.

Grand lodge dues come high in Idaho for an amendment was adopted fixing the following charges—

Every chartered lodge under this jurisdiction shall annually pay to the grand lodge the sum of one dollar for each degree conferred and further not to exceed the sum of one dollar for each Master Mason returned as a member in the annual returns, and the further sum of one dollar for each contributing member.

The proceedings describe what is called a good-bye—

One of the most pleasing incidents of the grand lodge was the good-byes said by the grand masters—Brother Lawler of Washington and Brother Jones of Montana. Standing somewhat apart before the altar the grand masters extended hands and as their hands met in a firm and brotherly clasp, Grand Master Lawler delivered one of those touching addresses for which he is so justly noted. The figure before the altar represented the Grand Lodges of Washington and Montana united by Idaho. The good-byes of these distinguished Masons left a most marked impression upon the members of the grand lodge that will linger many days.

The Jurisprudence Committee presented a very terse report although they disposed of several very important matters. The so-called decisions of the grand master were all approved. This is a little bit surprising. It is usually customary for Jurisprudence Committees to pick some flaws in the rulings and decisions of grand masters simply to display their authority. The committee declined to concur in the suggestion of the grand secretary that subordinate lodges be permitted to initiate, pass, and raise more than one candidate at the same time with one ceremony.

The last thing the Committee on Jurisprudence did was to recommend the adoption of the following and in which the grand lodge concurred—

We approve the suggestion of the grand secretary that it is bad practice and without Masonic authority for a brother who has not attained at least the rank of warden to be permitted to confer degrees upon candidates, and we recommend that the attention of masters of lodges be called to this state of acts wherever such practice is in vogue with instructions that it be discontinued.

The writer is perfectly free to say that such a provision in a fraternal society such as is ours where every brother is supposed to stand upon an equality with every other member of the lodge is distasteful. Why shouldn't any member of a Masonic lodge be permitted to confer a degree provided he can do it in an intelligent, decent manner? The provision that is adopted by our Idaho brethren is simply to build up an aristocracy of workers and to discourage many competent and worthy brethren from learning the work.

The idea has been held in some quarters that the ritual of Masonry is a holy something handed down from time immemorial by God Almighty or somebody else and that to touch it with profane hands is sacrilege. Ritual is simply a means to an end. It is a vehicle to carry to the hearts and minds of men the great truth which Freemasonry inculcates and the lessons that it teaches. Every member of the lodge should be encouraged to learn the ritual and lectures of Masonry, and when he knows them sufficiently well should be given every opportunity to display his knowledge among his brethren.

The Finance Committee fixed the salary of the grand lecturer at $75.00 per month and expenditures. Six hundred dollars were appropriated for the expenses of the grand master; and the salary of the grand secretary fixed at $1200.00 per year. Of course the grand secretary can't live on that. He will probably have to do as did Brother Dave Jackson of Kentucky, get a job as a traveling salesman.

It is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Idaho doesn't see the necessity of the grand lodge incorporating itself, for a note states that the committee appointed relative to the incorporation of the grand lodge was discharged without report.

The closing hours were devoted to the installation of officers and the exploitation of the latest Masonic fad—the presentation of the signet ring.

George E. Knepper, grand secretary, prepares the correspondence report and does a good job.

Concerning the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois he says—

The proceedings before us is a neatly printed volume of 700 pages. It contains as frontispiece fine pictures of both the grand treasurer and the grand secretary. It is a volume that in every way appeals to the reviewer. More than all this, it reached our table on the twenty-fifth day of November, 1916, 44 days after the meeting of the grand lodge. This was a splendid achievement, excelled in only one jurisdiction, which modestly forbids us to mention.

He likes the attitude of Grand Master Wheeler and says—

The grand master's purpose, as found in his address, was to slave rather than to rule. He acknowledges the very good opportunities afforded by his office both to serve his brethren and to benefit himself—something that too many grand masters fail to grasp.

He also notes a remark in the grand master's address and comments as follows—

It sounds a little strange to read from the grand master's report that the volume of records has increased very materially and the grand secretary has been obliged to store them in various places in the town where he resides, and they are not in vaults or fire-proof buildings. A great jurisdiction like Illinois should not be in this provincial condition.

Our reviewer evidently likes the report of the Committee on Chartered Lodges for he quotes liberally from the various items which they disclose.

Concerning the correspondence report Brother Knepper says—

Illinois has again changed correspondence writers. Brother Scott at his own request was permitted to retire after a few years of brilliant work. He was succeeded by Brother Charles H. Martin who takes up the work with some diffidence. His report of 250 pages shows him to be a man who wields a facile pen. But then it is easy enough to find a good man in Illinois for this delicate job as the grand master has 150,000 from which to choose. Brother Martin has given his grand lodge an able report.

INDIANA, F. & A. M.

The proceedings are offered in an attractive volume of over five hundred pages, printed in large readable type. A full page illustration of Old Glory in colors makes the frontispiece after which follows an excellent likeness of Thomas B. Bohon, grand master for 1918-1919.

A carefully prepared honor roll takes up sixty-three pages of the proceedings. This is arranged by lodges and shows that the Masons of Indiana have generously answered to the call of their country.

The 97th annual meeting was held in the city of Indianapolis, May 28th and 29th, 1918.

Preliminary to the opening ceremonies of the grand lodge a program with stirring patriotic features was observed. The service flags of the various Indianapolis lodges were on display and the grand lodge flag containing 3121 stars occupied the center of attraction.

The Indianapolis Masonic Quartette was on hand and sang a number of patriotic airs.

The address of the hour was delivered by Albert W. Funkhouser of Evansville and it was a good one. It dealt with the relation of Masons and Freemasonry to the present war. There are many paragraphs in this oration that the writer would like very much to quote for the benefit of the Masons of Illinois. The following however, are excerpted—

The "survival of the fittest" is one of the inexorable laws of nature. What is there in Masonry that has given it life and vitality from the "time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary?"

Its great fundamental creed is—The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man—a belief and trust in God and fraternal democracy.

Masonry is more than a secret society, it is a cultured and enlightened democratic brotherhood.

The Masonic Lodge is not a rich man's club. We "meet upon the level and part upon the square." Before the Masonic altar there is no aristocracy but that of Right; no nobility but that of Manhood. Masonry regards no man for his worldly wealth or honors; the internal and not the external qualifications of a man render him worthy to be a Mason.

Masonry is not only essentially democratic, it is fundamentally religious.

Erected to God and dedicated to Democracy, Masonry is in full accord with the great heart of civilization today.

The final overthrow of the Hun will be an American task. This great Republic of the West is today, in a very real sense, the Reserve Army of Civilization.

We have developed a crop of wild-eyed I. W. W.'s, be-whiskered Bolsheviki, and dirty-faced anarchists.

Our boasted "little red school house" has too often been made a breeding place of German kultur, its walls adorned with the ugly mug of the Kaiser, the only man on earth who ever publicly shamed his own mother.

As Masons and as Americans, my brethren, let us see to it that never again shall there be banished from our schools the Star Spangled Banner, the Holy Bible nor the English language.

Then, and only then, will this world of ours cease to be an armed camp; then, and not before, will there be "Peace on earth—good will to men."

Our boys will fight like a bag of wild cats, but they will fight like men and soldiers. They will not be found skulking from the trenches with spiked clubs to beat out the brains of the wounded and dying enemy.

His statement that Masonry is fundamentally religious will be, however, challenged by those who hold to the idea that all religion in the world belongs to certain sets of sects who have the inherent right to determine just what constitutes religious belief and to prescribe the way and manner it shall be practiced.

After the oration, the grand lodge was opened in ample form. Five hundred forty-nine of the 562 chartered lodges were represented.

The first item of interest was the grand master's address by Elba L. Branigin. In his prelude he says—

We need to remind ourselves on this as on every other occasion where free-born men meet together in a common cause that our nation is at war; that the issues of that war are as yet undecided; that the entire resources of our country are pledged by the laws of the land and by an enlightened public conscience to a victorious conclusion of that war on peace terms laid down by the Christian Knighthood of the world; that America calls to every man and woman and child, to every body corporate and politic, to every fraternity and society to find its place and fulfill its function in helping to win this war.

He pays a tribute of respect to the dead of foreign jurisdictions.

Nine cornerstones were laid during the year, mostly by proxies. Only two of them were for Masonic edifices.

Two Masonic temples were dedicated and at each ceremonial the grand master officiated. He reports a large number of visitations showing that he desired to keep in close touch with the brethren of his jurisdiction.

Indiana requires all lodges to submit proposed amendments to their by-laws to the grand master for approval, and the list presented by Brother Branigin is a long one.

He refused to issue a dispensation to form a new lodge in the city of Terre Haute. From his statement of the facts it is apparent that somebody's nose was out of joint who sought to even up scores by organizing a new lodge.

A large number of special dispensations is reported to elect officers.

The grand master reports that the grand inspector visited and inspected practically all the lodges in the jurisdiction. Detailed reports of conditions as found were sent to the grand master. Indiana is to be commended for the adoption of this practice because it insures at the outset efficient and well organized lodges.

Plans which had been made for a grand lodge celebration of the centenary of the Grand Lodge of Indiana were upset by reason of war conditions. The grand master did, however, issue a letter asking each lodge in the state to hold a proper observance of this auspicious anniversary during the month of May.

The grand master recommended the remission of the dues of all soldiers and sailors while in active service. He also recommended that the per capita dues of the grand lodge be increased from 25 to 40 cents. Now that the Grand Lodge of Indiana has embarked in the Masonic home business the lodges of the state may well prepare themselves for further increases in the per capita tax.

The subject of income tax on the fees and dues of Indiana lodges caused the grand master considerable uneasiness. Frank E. Gaven, grand treasurer, was employed as special counsel and went to Washington in the interest of the case with the result that a special ruling was rendered exempting the lodges of Indiana and all other grand jurisdictions from the payment of both income and excess profit taxes.

The grand master refused to grant permission to lodges to participate in patriotic parades because of existing laws upon that subject. He did, however, submit the question to the grand lodge and asked its reference to the Committee on Jurisprudence.

The grand lodge in 1917 directed the appointment of a Special Committee to prepare a flag ceremony. The committee had a meeting and were unanimous of the opinion that such a ceremonial would be an innovation in the body of Masonry and asked that the whole question go to the Committee on Jurisprudence for final decision. In presenting the findings of the Committee to the grand lodge the grand master observes—

I concur in the recommendation of the committee, but am constrained to say that in my opinion it will be difficult, if not impossible, to formulate any ceremony of this character without violating the traditions of the order. Masonic lodges and Masons as individuals are most happy to render obedience to civil authority and the American flag is the highest sign and symbol of our loyalty and patriotism. The flag ought to have and does have a prominent place in every lodge room, and no public ceremony ought to be held without its recognition. But we submit with deference that, judging by the past, Masons are not wanting in patriotism by reason of any omissions from our time-honored rites and ceremonies; and that any innovation of this or any other character will but open the door for changes which may ultimately overturn the Ancient Landmarks of the order. In addition, I beg to note that such a ceremony as contemplated must of necessity include a salutation or other recognition of this emblem as the flag of our country, and until Masonry sees fit to exclude from its membership all persons not citizens of the United States, such ceremony will impose a rite upon members of the order under allegiance to other governments. If such ceremony be adopted, let it be such that all Masons whether citizens of America or not, may, without doing violence to their own fealty, cheerfully submit to and enjoy.

Concerning several plans which were presented during the year for connecting up the Masons of Indiana with other patriotic societies for various war activities, particularly a co-operative effort with the State Council of Defense, the grand master said—

Your grand master was constrained to disapprove of this plan for the reason that such organization would be cumbersome, a duplication of the activities of the several fraternities, and would remove or lessen the spirit of friendly rivalry which is necessary to the best work. We also believe that there was no special work either in the education of the people or in the maintenance of the war charities that the several organizations might not better do than the entire group of bodies.

A detailed report is presented by the grand master covering the New York conference of grand masters. He refused, however, to commit himself to the New York plan of establishing Masonic headquarters in the recreation centers of France. In his analysis of the subject he referred to two groups of Masons and announced himself as being in accord with the views of the second group which he describes as follows—

In the second group were those who held to the belief that it is contrary to the traditions of Freemasonry to engage in social welfare work and that other organizations supported by the order are better adapted thereto; that insofar as Masonry, as a separate organization, has a duty to perform and an opportunity for service at home and abroad, it is in the line of relief and assistance for the brethren in the service and their dependents at home; that to carry on this work of relief, each jurisdiction can be relied upon to provide the necessary funds either by voluntary contributions or by a per capita tax; that the funds for war relief in each state should be under the control of a State Masonic War Board which would keep in close and intimate touch with the subordinate lodges in its jurisdiction; that, insofar as possible, the several State Masonic War Boards should co-operate in a common effort to render helpful and efficient service to our brethren and our country; that, if in the exigencies of the war an unequal burden fell upon any lodge or any one grand jurisdiction, the several war boards would gladly contribute to a common fund for special relief.

The grand master did, however, recommend the formation of an Indiana Masonic War Board consisting of nine members to raise funds and co-operate with the government, Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. in every possible manner.

The Masonic home recently organized is highly commended, and the following observation made—

If Masonry demands and receives recognition as an organization devoted primarily and principally to charitable and benevolent aims, we may not content ourselves with spasmodic and occasional gifts to the needy either as individuals or as lodges. We have rightly chosen to establish and maintain in Indiana an institution which in a concrete way expresses the great heart of the craft and keeps before us day by day the cause of the needy and the suffering. As this institution grows, let us measure up to the growing demands upon our time and our money and so prove ourselves worthy of the name we bear and the principles we profess.

The grand treasurer reported receipts of $26,531.07 and expenditures of $27,936.86.

The cash balance in both the General Fund and Masonic Home Fund is $41,609.03.

The grand secretary, Calvin W. Prather, presents minutely various matters appertaining to his office. He announces the net increase in membership for the year passed as 4721, a most excellent showing.

The trustees of the Masonic temple make a report showing a net earning on the grand lodge interest in the Masonic temple of $1,842.68, not a very adequate return however on the investment, but then Masonic temples are never figured as investments—they are luxuries and can only be so classed.

The directors of the Indiana Masonic Home make a long report showing a total of 119 men, women and children in the home. According to an exhibit of expenditures published in connection with the home report it cost the grand lodge $310.00 per capita per annum to care for each member in the home.

The grand inspector enters into the particulars of his work during the year. He doesn't like the word "inspection" and suggests that it be changed to instruction. He relates one peculiar thing. Some years ago Indiana adopted a cipher ritual. It was supposed at that time that all its ritualistic troubles were over and that uniformity would prevail throughout the state and a Masonic millennium be at hand. The following paragraph taken from the grand inspector's report upon this subject will be read with much interest—

The uniform work which I had hoped prevailed I did not find. Under the former method it was impossible to visit the lodges under three years and in consequence they were not afforded an opportunity to receive the full measure of instruction necessary to interpret the authorized ritual, and availed themselves of any method of instructions that offered the least resistance, resorting to corrupt and spurious works, and where they are found the work is sadly distorted and corrupted. I have been persistent in reminding the brethren of the serious offense they were committing against Masonry and our laws, and that in resorting to these corrupt works they were contributing to thwart the attainment of that for which all true and devoted Masons of Indiana have been striving for the past fifteen years—uniformity in conferring degrees.

An amendment to the general regulations was introduced by Past Grand Master Elmer F. Gay waiving the present laws upon physical qualifications and permitting the initiation of those defective upon dispensation from the grand master. The amendment was adopted. The grand lodge concurred in the grand master's recommendation to increase the per capita tax to 40 cents, also to remit the dues of soldiers and sailors in the service of their country.

The Committee on Distinguished Dead of other jurisdictions made a general report in the line of eulogy but did not mention the names of the deceased brethren under consideration.

The Committee on Jurisprudence announced that they had before them a petition from 300 Master Masons, members of Indiana lodges for the formation of an army lodge at Camp Shelby, Mississippi. The grand master of Mississippi having given his permission for the formation of the lodge the Jurisprudence Committee recommended the issuance of the dispensation to form said lodge with full power to initiate, pass and raise candidates. This lodge to cease whenever the cantonment at Camp Shelby is abandoned or at the close of the war.

The Jurisprudence Committee declined to modify the law to permit the initiation of petitioners in less than four weeks from the date the petition is received. It is certainly refreshing to find a grand lodge which makes a certain law and then lives up to it. One of the most ridiculous things connected with our grand lodge system is the vesting in the grand master of the right to break the laws of the grand lodge through the dispensation system. The committee also declined to recommend any change in the present law relative to public appearance of lodges and could see no reason for departure from the time-honored customs of the grand lodge by introducing a flag ceremonial in the lodges of the state. The grand lodge concurred in the committee's recommendations.

At the annual grand lodge dinner, held on the evening of the first day, there was a patriotic entertainment and an address by Senator Burton of Indiana. This affair partook of the nature of the centenary observance of the Grand Lodge of Indiana.

A resolution was adopted permitting Masons from Indiana during the period of the war to visit and hold Masonic intercourse with lodges in Europe regardless of the fact that they may not be recognized by the Grand Lodge of Indiana.

Another report on fraternal dead was made by a committee which submitted a general eulogy for those of the state of Indiana who passed on during the year.

A pleasing feature occurred on the second morning of the grand lodge meeting. The thirty children in the Masonic Home at Frankfort were presented on the stage before the grand lodge and were given an ovation.

The Indiana annual review of other grand lodges is prepared by Elmer F. Gay who is remembered most pleasantly as grand master of Masons in Indiana during the same time that the writer was serving in Illinois. The writer had the pleasure of visiting the Grand Lodge of Indiana that year and of being officially received. Brother Gay gives Illinois three pages of very courteous treatment. He finds nothing to criticize in our transactions and if the extracts which he quotes form any basis of judgment then what we did was satisfactory to him.

Through the courtesy of Newton R. Parvin, grand secretary, it is possible to offer a review of the Grand Lodge of Iowa at this time. A request for a copy of the proceedings brought the reply that they had not been printed, but that an advance copy would be forwarded if possible, and the same was received this morning.

The seventy-fifth annual communication was held in the city of Ottumwa, on Tuesday, June 11th, 1918. The public exercises, preliminary to the opening of the grand lodge, consisted of a parade from the hotel to the place of meeting, after which, Brother Frank Day welcomed the grand lodge to the city, Past Grand Master Thomas Arthur responding.

The grand lodge was opened in ample form, and at once settled down to business. Grand Master John W. Barry, presented his address to the grand lodge, which proved to be a very valuable Masonic document. In his opening remarks he said—

The high twelve of a momentous year is striking in tones that summon all to the most profound attention. The achievements of humanity for more than a thousand years are in jeopardy. Twenty-seven nations are pitted in the strife, and the prize is liberty. Attila, the Hun, known as the Scourge of God, is now reincarnated in the Kaiser, who would impose the basest serfdom of the dark ages on the twentieth century. To prevent such peonage more than two millions of our own citizens have gone from the paths of peace to the trenches of war. There is issuing from our lodges a continuous line of their young men that liberty may continue to grow, blossom, and bless. Truly it is the most momentous year in the annals of time, and as we gather here today we are bowed down with the sense of our responsibility.

He refers to the rapid growth of Freemasonry in Iowa and presents a table showing that there are twenty-six Master Masons to each thousand total population. He refers to the grand secretary's office as being well organized for efficient service and calls it 100% plus.

Brother Parvin deserves all the good things that may be said about him. He is a splendid officer, and is always found on the job.

The grand master indulges in a long dissertation upon the subject of French Masonry and, in his conclusion, suggests that the grand lodge and grand Orient had been for over one hundred years in actual charge of Masonry in France and recommends that recognition be extended.

He reports that a call for 25 cents per member for an emergency war fund netted the sum of $14,531.40.

Brother Barry has considerable to say upon the subject of physical qualifications. He draws the conclusion that according to Anderson's Constitution of 1723, it is the tools of operative Masonry that are symbolized and not the rules, and for this reason, the law should be modified to admit one who possesses physical defects, provided that he can, by artificial appliances, comply with the demands of the fraternity.

He has considerable to say, under the head of dispensations, and assumes that he has the right to suspend the law in all cases where it does not specifically state that "No dispensation of the grand master shall defeat this provision." He reports the issuance of a dispensation to return the petition of an alien enemy, after it had been received by the lodge. He granted two dispensations to lodges, to open on Sunday and confer the degrees on soldiers who were under over seas orders. He admits that the law prohibits the opening of a lodge on Sunday for work. It is assumed that, inasmuch as there was no clause to the effect "No dispensation of the grand master shall defeat this provision," that he assumed that he had the right to do so.

He reports a decision involving a rather peculiar case. A lodge some years ago made a provision setting apart one-third of its dues and one-half of its fees for a Building Fund, now aggregating $2,000.00. To divert this fund the unanimous consent of the members present was required. In the meantime, the lodge became bankrupt. The grand master, very wisely decided that a lodge had no right to place its funds beyond the control of its members, and ordered the Building Fund to be used to pay the debts and obligations of the lodge.

Brother Barry made one decision clear out of the ordinary. He decided that when proper notice is given, the commercial business of a lodge may be transacted at a special or called meeting.

Many requests were received asking for dispensations to receive petitions and confer degrees out of time. All of these were emphatically refused.

Somebody in Iowa has evidently been digging up statistics, for the grand master reports that during a period of six years, only 338 out of 529 active lodges were represented at every communication of the grand lodge, leaving 191 lodges absent from one or more meetings.

The writer has long had a suspicion that this same condition obtains in Illinois and that an investigation along similar lines would be most desirable.

Brother Barry has considerable to say upon the subject of district deputy grand masters, and recommends their introduction as a part of the Masonic machinery of the state in order to relieve the grand officers of much burdensome labor.

Concerning the dues charged by the lodges of the state, Brother Barry presents a table showing them to vary from $1.50 to $6.00, the majority of the lodges charging less than $4.00. He recommends a minimum annual dues of $4.00.

Concerning the meeting of grand masters in Washington last September, he makes the following observation, which tells its own story—

While it was apparent that the most effective things could not be done by the grand jurisdictions acting separately, yet no plan to act unitedly could be agreed upon because some of the jurisdictions feared that something of their sovereignty would thus be lost. It is strange logic to hold that what one can not do at all by himself yet can do jointly with others, could when jointly done be in the remotest degree a limit of any kind on his individual sovereignty. Yet this is the rock on which we split—the old argument against the rule of many in one—against all unity of action. So we Masons failed at the Washington meeting. Yet let us not despair—there will yet be unity of action among United States grand lodges.

He believes that Masonry is very much a matter of education and states that he has done everything that he could to encourage the work of the Research Committee.*

He thinks the fees for the degrees in a good many Iowa lodges are too low and recommends a minimum fee of $30.00.

He made a recommendation that under normal conditions, Iowa lodges confer the degrees for other grand jurisdictions without charge, but that whenever a cantonment is located within the jurisdiction of any lodge, one-half the fee of the parent lodge be charged to pay increased expenses, due to such additional work.

Brother Barry believes in fraternal correspondence, and he observes—

The Masonic leaders of each jurisdiction have come to look on these reports as a clearing house of Masonic thought and activities—a sort of Masonic mirror in which each may see himself as others see him. Without the daily newspapers one could hardly expect to keep abreast of the march of events—its the news that forms the link between peoples, states, and nations. So it is that these correspondence reports are a sort of a cable tow between jurisdictions, along which pass the currents of Masonic thought, enabling each to apply the corrective of publicity to local situations.

He speaks of what he calls "Our annual billion dollar fire, which is explained in the following paragraph:

I am mentioning it only to plead that when setting such fires at least some regard should be observed for the rights of others—the abutting property, if you please, that may be more or less damaged by your smoke. Ladies at banquet tables frequently have cigar or cigaret smoke puffed all over them. While some may not mind it so much yet others say they would much prefer as the lesser evil that the gentleman should fill his mouth with water and puff that over them instead of the smoke, because the water would soon evaporate without leaving an odor.

It is evident that Brother Barry is not a smoker. The question, however, of Masons smoking at banquets in the presence of ladies is purely one of culture and good manners.

The grand master closes his address to the grand lodge with a dissertation upon the subject of "Implied Obligations," two of which might be summed up as the efficiency of Freemasonry, and the predominance of internal over external qualifications in the category of Masonic fitness.

Following the report of the grand master, the committee on the Appeals and Grievances submit a report remitting penalties assessed against certain lodges.

The grand treasurer of the Board of Charity reports receipts of $20,322.22 in the Charity Fund, and expenditures of $17,844.24. The table of amounts expended for charity and the recipients is intensely interesting to the writer for the reason that the Grand Lodge of Iowa maintains no great institution in which to care for its dependents, but follows the true Masonic plan of relieving the distress of its members to the extent of its ability. From the report, the idea is obtained that the Grand Lodge of Iowa did its full duty to the aged, the widowed and the orphaned, with an expenditure of something over $17,000.00, while Illinois is obtaining practically the same results with an expenditure of nearly five times that amount.

The deputy grand master, senior grand warden, and junior grand warden, each present reports to the grand lodge, which reveal the extent of their Masonic activity during the year. Inasmuch as Iowa has no district deputy grand master, the officers of the grand lodge serve a purpose which is something more than merely ornamental.

The grand secretary, Newton R. Parvin, presents an extended report covering very many interesting matters, connected with the affairs of his office. His statement as librarian of the Iowa Masonic Library is interesting, and shows that that splendid institution is constantly growing and is ever on the alert to secure valuable contributions to its already amazing stock of literature, Masonic and otherwise.

Inasmuch as the Committee on Foreign Correspondence was unable to review grand lodges in foreign jurisdictions, the subject was placed in the hands of the deputy grand secretary, Brother C. C. Hunt, who submitted to the grand lodge, a brief critique covering the subject assigned to him.

The grand treasurer of the grand lodge reports receipts from all sources, $71,724.43, and expenditures of $64,055.19.

The grand lodge stopped long enough in its proceeding to officially receive the grand high priest of the grand chapter, the grand master of the grand council, the grand commander of Knights Templar of the state. Where was the sovereign grand inspector of the Scottish Rite, as well as the grand patron of the Eastern Star? Can it be that the Grand Lodge of Iowa is discriminating in favor of York Rite Masonry? It may be that when these officials find out that they were not given the same recognition as their competitors, their noses may be out of joint.

An amendment to the Iowa code was presented and adopted, prohibiting the use of the word Masonic in connection with any business enterprise. The amendment is almost identical with one recently adopted by the Grand Lodge of Illinois.

The grand lodge extended recognition, both to the Grand Orient and Grand Lodge of France.

The report of the Committee on Appeals and Grievances does not publish the names of the offenders, but does give in detail, their misdeeds.

The report of the Committee on Masonic Jurisprudence is interesting. The committee sustained the grand master in his ruling that commercial business of the lodge could be transacted at a special meeting, providing that due notice was given to all members. It refused to sustain the grand master in his ruling that a petitioner for degrees may withdraw a petition before reference to a committee. It also took the grand master to task for issuing a dispensation for conferring the degrees on Sunday and says in this connection,—

We think the grand master has erred because of his misapprehension of the theory of our constitution and statutes respecting the prerogatives and powers of the grand master. Our constitution and statutes were adopted and enacted among other things for the purpose of defining and limiting his powers. In fact the grand master has only delegated powers, the powers which attach to his office by the ancient usages of Freemasonry, subject to limitations of our constitution and requirements of the jurisdiction as expressed by our statutes.

The recommendations of Brother Barry, as to minimum dues of $4.00 and minimum fees of $30.00 and a charge of one-half the fee where degrees are conferred near a military cantonment were not sustained. The committee recommended an increase in the mileage of representatives from six to seven cents.

Concerning war activities, a recommendation was introduced to the effect that should several grand jurisdictions unite in a definite plan of action, that the Grand Lodge of Iowa would join in the enterprise.

The report of the Committee on Chartered Lodges, shows that they have been fully awake to their duties and presents a summary, which ought to be interesting and helpful.

The closing paragraph of the committee is reproduced because it reveals a vision which every true Mason is hopeful may become a reality.

I close my eyes and in a vision I can see soldiers by the millions marching down the streets of German cities, with the smile of victory and the shout of triumph. As they march past the great Berlin armory—the pride of all the hordes of Central Europe—and past the statue of Frederick the Great, I can see the boys in khaki swing into line at the head of twenty-one allied nations bearing aloft the battle flag of a republic that has never known defeat, and from the throne room of the Hohenzollerns they shall decree the banishment and exile of the most brutal royal family that ever lived and in lieu of autoeracy they shall establish the divine rights of the individual and the sovereignty of man.

Then shall begin the triumphal tour home. Back through the capitals of Europe and the cities of America. Through the avenues of Washington and the highways of Iowa, back to mother, and wife, and child, and home. Glorious triumph of love and heroism and patriotism. Back from the battlefields of Europe to the citizenship of America. Back from the mightiest conflict that was ever waged. Back from the defeat of autoeracy, and slavery, and all that is wrong and the triumph of liberty, freedom, and democracy.

Somebody must have scented trouble by reason of Brother Barry's decision with reference to transacting commercial business at a special meeting of the lodge, and its affirmation by the Committee on Jurisprudence for Past Grand Master Clark, presents the following resolution which was adopted—

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Grand Lodge of Iowa that it is agreeable to the ancient rules and regulations of Masonry that no business of a commercial nature be transacted at a special communication of a lodge, but that all such business shall be transacted at stated or regular meetings.

The following amendment on the subject of physical qualifications was presented by the Jurisprudence Committee and adopted.

Section 285. A man to be eligible for the degrees must be able to conform to all the ceremonies required in the work and practice of Masonry. The substitution of artificial parts or limbs for portions of his natural person shall not be a bar, provided, such are under practical control of the petitioner. Deformities or blemishes of the natural person may or may not be disqualifications, depending on the nature and extent of same.

Masters and lodges will be held strictly accountable for the observance of this law. The lodge has a discretion which must be exercised with care and prudence.

In adopting this amendment, the Grand Lodge of Iowa has taken a step forward. Other grand lodges will no doubt follow this action, because the times demand modifications of a rule which is today merely a relic of the dark ages.

The Committee of Masonic Research make a very long report, disclosing their activities and the good work that is being accomplished in many ways. It is noticed that the committee reports an annual contribution from the grand lodge of $600.00 for the extension of their work. The committee states that the National Masonic Research Society continues to grow. Just why our Iowa Masonic brethren insist on the use of the word, "National" Masonic Research Society in connection with this particular propaganda, when it is merely an Iowa institution, officered and managed by Iowa men, we are at a loss to understand. So far as known, no attempt has been made to nationalize the society to the extent of inviting other grand lodges to appoint representatives to participate in the work of the society. National as applied to the society, is understood to mean universal that its operation is not limited to the state of Iowa, but extends east, west, north and south, from the earth to the heavens and from the surface to the center.

Concerning the circulating lectures, which are sent to lodges to be read to the members, something is said about the Obelisk Lecture. This undoubtedly refers to Cleopatra's Needle, which was brought from Egypt and set up in Central Park, New York. When this Obelisk was taken down, there was found underneath it, a stone on which was inscribed the square and compasses. This fact has been seized upon, and by a process of insinuation, the idea has been extended, that this Monolith is of great Masonic value because it is indicative of the fact that some sort of Freemasonry, must have existed at the time of its construction by reason of the fact that there was inscribed upon the foundation stone, a square and a pair of compasses. The cold facts are, that Freemasonry had nothing whatsoever to do with the construction of this Obelisk, and the inscriptions found were merely the work of some craftsman who sought to leave his mark on something permanent, hence he did the most natural thing—he etched his working tools.

Masonic research is all right, but it always carries with it a vague suspicion that there is some great secret or historical fact concerning Freemasonry which may yet be upturned, and in this respect brethren are being misled, and any paper, document or lecture which either directly or indirectly connects Freemasonry with old time circumstances or events in an attempt to establish an antiquity which does not belong to it, should be promptly suppressed.

The grand lodge closed with the modern folly of presenting the grand master with a signet ring, which has become known in Iowa as the "Hutchinson Succession." It seems surprising that our Iowa brethren who have made such wonderful advancement in Masonic research and in intellectuality, would fall for something which is clear outside of the traditions of Freemasonry.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by that splendid Mason, that alert Masonic student, and that master of good English, Louis Block. The writer has known Brother Block for many years and feels an intimate acquaintance with him, although he has never met him personally. One thing about Brother Block, is that he has a mind of his own and possesses the courage to say what he thinks. He belongs to the new school of Masonic thought and while he is true to traditions of Freemasonry, yet he believes that it is a progressive society and that it must reconcile itself to the conditions of the times in which it lives.

Brother Block has been exceedingly generous to Illinois. He devotes nine pages of splendid review, commending where he thinks commendation should be extended and criticising when he feels that it should be given. He calls our proceedings "great, big, and beautifully printed," and says that they are a credit to Uncle Ike, whom he knows personally.

Referring to the picture of Ralph H. Wheeler, he says,—

Knowing this noble gentleman personally, we are qualified to testify as to the superior quality of his portrait. Brother Wheeler has made an enviable record for himself in the annals of Illinois Masonry.

Brother Block quotes liberally from Grand Master Wheeler's address to the grand lodge. Concerning the character of the petitioners of degrees which Brother Wheeler referred to, Brother Block makes the following comment,—

We have in mind a case in our own city where the applicant, who was of unsavory reputation, was rejected, but who afterwards got into a Detroit lodge by falsely answering this question, and who later on turned out to be a chronic loafer and wife deserter. The craft should deal severely and summarily with fellows of this sort.

He sees no harm coming from Masonic clubs and agrees heartily with Brother Wheeler concerning what he said in connection with military lodges, the following being his observation,—

He does not approve of the mad rush of candidates who are obviously crazy to get into Masonry just for the sake of what good they can work out of it while they are in the war. These are the sort of fellows who are always looking for something for themselves and who scarcely ever give a thought to the matter of what they can do for their fellows. They join Masonry for what they can get out of it and not for what they can put in it, and the order gains precious little by taking them in.

Nearly two pages are extracted of the oration of Oscar K. Kropf. Concerning the action of the grand lodge in passing legislation prohibiting Masons from going into public drinking saloons, in Masonic clothing, Brother Block says, what a pity it is that it should have been necessary to pass such legislation. There are more of us, Brother Block, who think the same way.

The action of the Grand Lodge of Illinois in refusing recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama is declared to be in accord with its ultra conservative policy.

Brother Block does not like it because in Illinois the Committee on Appeals and Grievances suppress the names of Masonic criminals, and says,—

We would like very much to know what the argument is for such a practice. We can see how the names of the recipients of Masonic charity can well be withheld. This would be in keeping with a proper spirit of modesty and might spare the beneficiary some unmerited humiliation, but why a Mason who has been false to his obligations or has insulted the institution by his dirty deeds should be shielded and protected in this way is beyond our comprehension.

He takes a liberal extract from the address of Brother Lowden and quotes generously from the oration of Joseph Fort Newton, delivered at a Chicago school of instruction.

Brother Charles H. Martin comes in for some review himself. In his report last year, he referred to the report of Brother Block, as spicy matter, most of which would bear reading. In response to this, Brother Bloek states—

This is a rose with a thorn in it. For this sparing compliment, our dear brother, accept our most profound thanks. We have not missed the sprig of smart-weed so deftly concealed within the midst of your bouquet. However, grudging praise is real praise—genuine at least so far as it goes.

Concerning Brother Martin's preachment, that the only way to know Masonry is to work at it, Brother Bloek says,— Somehow this makes us think of a man who cranks away at his car, trying to make it go, without first having studied it to find out how it is built. It is just this sort of mechanical Masonry that the research movement is fighting against. We researchers believe in familiarizing ourselves with the construction of our Masonic machine by finding out what is the matter with it, and why it goes so poorly, and why at times it doesn't go at all. You must understand the different parts of an intricate machine before you can make it go, and no mere effort, no matter how vigorous and persistent, will get you anywhere without intelligent direction, and a purpose to work toward the accomplishment of clearly defined ideals.

Brother Bloek does not agree with Brother Martin on the question of landmarks, for he says,—

When we are striving for the good of Masonry and of humanity, it is not the question whether our practices are hoary with age or whether they are "the law," but the true question is—is the practice right? Is it good, kind, and manly?

There are those who say that to conserve our ancient requirements as to physical qualifications would be for Masonry to open and "maintain an asylum for cripples." Well, if that were true, Masonry might find herself in a much worse business. An institution that would make life sweeter and happier for human cripples would be a credit both to itself and to humanity. We are not to be frightened by this word "landmark," for if the "landmark" is wrong, then it must yield to the right as everything on earth that is wrong must sooner or later do.

Besides, our Masonic studies have convinced us that there is precious little agreement among the Masonic authorities as to what "the landmarks" really are, and every time some Masonic conservative feels that one of his ancient idols may be destroyed, he writes the word "landmark" upon it and dares you to touch it. After all, my brethren, the real question is whether our faces are turned toward the light of the future or toward the darkness of the past.

This question of landmarks suggests an incident that occurred during the time that Alexander H. Bell was grand master. This question of landmarks came up and it was suggested that there was much disagreement of authorities as to just what constituted the ancient landmarks. Brother Wm. E. Ginther, a splendid man, and an earnest Masonic student, said that there ought to be no question, for he had given the subject very careful consideration and the correct landmarks of Freemasonry as established by him would be found in his article, called, "What is True Masonry?" This only goes to prove that Brother Block is not far from right in the stand which he has taken on the question of landmarks, because the subject is a matter of disagreement and very largely one of individual belief and opinion.

The brochure called the annual report, contains but fifty-five pages.

The frontispiece is a photographic reproduction of "The Chetwode Crawley Library in Reception Room, Freemasons' Hall Dublin." The place looks inviting. The writer would like to get into this room and examine the many interesting volumes which no doubt can be found in the spacious book cases.

The stated communication was held on St. John's Day December 27, 1917.

The address of the deputy grand master, Charles A. Cameron opens with the remarks—

Every one of us, I think, has to lament the death of relatives or of near friends. There never has been in the history of the world such a deplorable loss of life as has taken place within the last three years. It is of melancholy significance to us on account of the large number of our brethren who have given up their lives or have been maimed for life in heroically fighting for their king and their country. On the other hand we have to rejoice that so many of our brethren have contributed to the professional and citizen armies—to the extent, I believe, of almost five millions of men engaged in the war. I should venture to say that there is not a single lodge in Ireland the members of which have not contributed to one or other of these two great armies.

In the Grand Lodge of Ireland it is apparent that the manner and form of offering toasts is almost as important to the brethren of that grand jurisdiction as is the standard work to the Masons of Illinois, for the grand master says—

I observe in the report of the deputy grand master of Antrim, in which reference is made to the toast and salute of "The Masonic Charities," and pointing out that "our poor and distressed brethren" is the most ancient form and that universally adopted in England and Scotland. I hope that the ancient form of this toast will be observed on their menu cards. These ancient forms ought not to be lightly departed from. With regard to the salute given to the toast, the grand lodge of instruction some years ago recommended that the salute should be that of an Entered Apprentice, and that was confirmed, but at the same time in my opinion there is much to be said in favour of the salute of a Fellow Craft being substituted therefor.

Speaking of toasts I may mention that "The King and the Craft" was the form given to the first toast at Masonic festivities from the earliest period in this country until the reign of Queen Victoria, and as it was honoured to this day in England and Scotland as well as the colonies. When Queen Victoria ascended the throne, the fact that she was a woman and could not be a Freemason appeared to have led to the disuse of this toast, but it was not to be forgotten that none of the four Georges was a Mason. The Grand Lodge of England, whether the king was a Freemason or not, invariably gave the toast of "The King and the Craft."

He congratulates the grand lodge upon the splendid condition of its various funds.

Concerning the entrance of the United States into the war he says—

The enormous numbers of the inhabitants of the United States and their enormous pecuniary resources enable us to speak with almost certainty as to the final victory which will crown our united efforts. On two former occasions I ventured the hope that before the succeeding St. John's Day the awful struggle would have been closed with victory to our arms. Hope now, with me at all events, is changed into absolute certainty, for I verily believe, and I am sure you believe also, that with the assistance of our great English speaking allies, with their countless numbers and great resources, that this war will certainly be terminated victoriously to our cause before our next St. John's Day meeting comes round.

The deputy grand secretary makes quite an extended report. He opens with the statement—

The entry of the United States with its vast Masonic population has brought the brethren of the great republic into closer touch than ever with the Freemasons of the Old Country, and it is characteristic of the Masonic leaders there to find them calling on their brethren to show their patriotism in a practical form by subscribing to the great American "Liberty Loan." The grand master of Illinois in a circular addressed to the lodges under his jurisdiction strongly urges them to adopt this course, and writes:—"Freemasonry has ever taught patriotism, and in all its lessons and teachings duty to country has ever been held foremost. In this war every man must do his part. Those who cannot go to the front must help with their money, and a great opportunity is offered for service in that direction at the present time." * * * *

"It is urged that this subject be given immediate consideration, that in this great work the Masonic fraternity may be properly represented, and when Prussianism is finally crushed, and our brave boys, who are now at the front, return home, we may have the satisfaction of knowing that in this great victory the Masons of Illinois did their part."

Evidently the relations between the Grand Lodge of Ireland and the Grand Lodge of England are most cordial for the warmest felicitations were exchanged during the occasion of the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the formation of the Grand Lodge of England.

The war, no doubt, caused the Grand Lodge of Ireland to depart from some of the old time procedures for the grand secretary says—

It has always been the custom amongst Irish lodges as a matter of courtesy to confer degrees on candidates of other lodges of the Irish Constitution on receiving a request to do so signed by the worshipful master and secretary of the lodge seeking the favour, but if the candidate was a member of another constitution it would be necessary to first affiliate him as an Entered Apprentice or Fellow Craft as the case might be, and subsequently complete his degrees, in which case he would be registered as an Irish Master Mason. A mutual arrangement has now been made by the grand lodges of England, Ireland and Scotland, whereby any lodge in the United Kingdom may as a favour and without affiliation, pass or raise a member of an English, Irish or Scotch lodge on receiving a proper requisition and a certificate from their respective grand lodges that the lodge itself is regularly enrolled on the register.

The chain letter nuisance reached as far as Ireland for it is reported that the Board of General Purposes found it necessary to express their disapproval of this fake.

The following note concerning military lodges will be read with more than passing interest—

Some of the military lodges under the Irish Constitution have ceased meeting as a consequence of the war, but a few are still carrying on their labours, in many cases under very trying conditions. The secretary of Lodge No. 595, attached to the Fifth Royal Irish Lancers, writes from the Western Front:—"We are having a rather rough time just now. All this devastated country is terrible evidence of the worst side of war. Wanton destruction everywhere, villages just heaps of ruins, blown up by the Huns before they evacuated them, trees either absolutely felled or "ringed," so that they are as good as dead. We have managed to hold our meetings fairly regularly up to date but shall have a difficulty next month, as in this part of the line there are no dugouts, nothing but open trenches, however, we must hope for the best.”

The forethought of the Grand Lodge of Ireland in reference to the preservation of lodge record books is disclosed in the following taken from the grand secretary's report—

The attention of lodge secretaries is drawn to the fact that a strong room has been prepared in the Freemasons' Hall, Dublin, for the storage of completed minute books, and the Board of General Purposes recommended that such books or other records should be deposited therein in order to preserve them from loss or destruction.

Here is a suggestion for other grand lodges. Why shouldn't the grand lodge at some convenient place arrange for a fireproof vault wherein the lodges of the state might send their old record books for preservation?

The Grand Lodge of Ireland is by no means negligent in the matter of looking after the orphans of Master Masons, for it creates a substantial fund for their education and preparation for usefulness in life.

There is no Committee on Correspondence and consequently there is no review of foreign grand lodges attached to the report.

The proceedings are issued in an unusually attractive volume richly illustrated with half-tones of the new grand lodge office building recently completed at Topeka, Kansas.

The exterior view shows the building to be a handsome one constructed of white stone. Many interior views are given and Grand Secretary Albert K. Wilson certainly has a luxurious place to do his work.

A group picture is presented of the appointive grand officers for the year 1917.

The Past Grand Masters' Association gets into the proceedings with a full account of its transactions thereby saving itself a printing bill.

The 62nd annual communication was held in the city of Topeka, Wednesday, February 20, 1918. The grand master, Charles E. Lobdell sounded the gavel and announced to the grand lodge that owing to illness he would be unable to preside and called the deputy grand master, William I. Stuart to take charge.

The opening prayer by the grand chaplain was in keeping with the teachings of Freemasonry.

Grand representatives were presented to the grand master and formally introduced to the grand lodge. Matthew M. Miller, grand representative for Illinois, was present.

The Committee on Credentials record the names of all past masters present together with the number of their lodges. Perhaps these brethren have a vote. In Illinois the past masters in attendance on grand lodge have one vote collectively. Imagine the foolishness of such a provision and what would occur should an attempt be made to round up the two or three hundred past masters usually present and endeavor to secure a unanimous vote on some proposition.

The Committee on Credentials report that 114 lodges were not represented. Perhaps this was at the opening, and they may have come in later. However, such a large number of absentees is somewhat startling.

The grand master, Charles E. Lobdell, presented his address. Being engaged in public service he found it impossible to devote as much of his time to the office as he had hoped. He was, however, ably assisted by the deputy grand master to whom he acknowledged a debt of gratitude.

Brother Lobdell refers to the completion of the grand lodge building which cost, with furnishings, $107,760.54. He states that he was one of those who questioned the wisdom of this undertaking, but that he is now convinced of the foresight of the grand lodge and that the building has proven itself a necessity.

The loss of the Masonic home by fire came as a severe blow to the Masons of Kansas. The grand master refers to the matter and urges all the lodges to respond promptly to the levy that was made upon them for the reestablishment of this magnificent charity.

Concerning the present war the grand master said—

Victor Hugo said, in substance, that it were idle to search in the strategy of the battle of Waterloo for the reason for Napoleon's defeat. He lost because for him to have won would have been for man to have triumphed against God. We may borrow his thought as a rainbow of hope. We know not at what sacrifice of blood and treasure; we know not on what field or by what strategy; but as God reigns, we do know that William of Germany must fail, because for his ideas of government to triumph would mean the defeat of infinite justice, which is God Himself. And it would seem especially in keeping with our traditions if the final thrust which shall strike military despotism from the government of men should be administered by American soldiers bearing the Stars and Stripes on the banks of the Rhine.

Deputy Grand Master William I. Stuart, having had charge of many of the affairs of the grand lodges during the illness and absence of the grand master, makes an extended report. He issued 278 special dispensations to confer degrees upon candidates without waiting the statutory period. The fees therefrom amounted to $1,170.

Eight cornerstones were laid and one Masonic hall dedicated.

The deputy refused to issue dispensations permitting lodges to appear in loyalty parades, stating that he urged Masons to do as citizens, and that everyone should show his loyalty to his country through his works.

A lengthy report is made upon the subject of military lodges. The deputy grand master made an extended research among various authorities upon the subject and cites an opinion by the Grand Lodge of California—

An army lodge is an anomaly in Masonry. Its meetings are held at any place where the exigencies of the military service may cause a temporary encampment. If held in our own country, such meetings are necessarily an invasion of the jurisdiction of other regularly constituted lodges. During the clash of battle in our late Civil War, it sometimes happened that army lodges, with their charters and records, were swept from existence, and the unfortunate members of such lodges were thus deprived of membership, without limits or other records to show that they had received the degrees of Masonry in a regularly chartered Masonic Lodge.

As a result of his conclusions Brother Stuart refused to issue any dispensations for the formation of military lodges.

To collect funds for the rebuilding of the Masonic home the grand master with the Council of Administration started out to raise the sum of $160,000 from the constituent lodges of the state. Each lodge was allotted a certain sum to be raised. The total amount received from all sources was $141,015.12, which is a most excellent showing.

The statement of the grand treasurer credits him with handling considerable money during the year as he reports receipts of $251,475.86. His expenditures were $287,199.86.

Grand Secretary A. K. Wilson makes an extended report dealing with various subjects and containing comprehensive tables showing various receipts and expenditures.

One subject received considerable attention from him during the year and that was the proper care of lodge records. He importuned all lodges to procure fire proof safes.

In order to induce brethren to attend district meetings held within the borders of the state the grand secretary urged a rearrangement of the several districts and the addition of ten new ones. The experience in Illinois has been that the smaller the district the better the results.

A rather unique table prepared by the grand secretary shows the number of Master Masons to each thousand male white citizens 21 years of age and over in the several states. Illinois is credited with 86.9 per cent, ranking 12th.

It is noticed that the grand secretary prepares a budget showing the estimated expenses for the next year.

The Council of Administration makes a long report, most of the details being concerned with the finishing and equipment of the new grand lodge building.

The report of the Committee on Grand Officers is lengthy and with no attempt whatsoever at separation and reference of the grand master's address.

Kansas follows the Illinois plan of introducing an address on some Masonic subject as a part of the proceedings of the grand lodge. In consequence the oration was delivered by W. Austin M. Keene.

The orator certainly could not have been very well acquainted with either the history or traditions of Freemasonry or he would not have made some of the statements that he did. This oration is typical of many others that are delivered to Masons, in which statements are made which are purely visionary.

In discussing the construction of King Solomon's Temple the orator concludes with the assertion—

There can be no doubt that such a Masonic lodge existed at the temple during its erection, its existence being an absolute necessity. And here I doubt not was perfected and developed the organization and the forms and methods adopted that have largely governed Masonry ever since.

It is too bad that such misleading statements go unchallenged and that the great body of unthinking Masons are constantly deceived thereby.

The following by the grand orator is not true—

Do you know that fifty-two out of the fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence were Masons? That the historic “Boston Tea Party,” was an adjourned Masonic lodge? That every one of the officers of the Revolution, from the rank of major to the commander-in-chief, was a Mason except Benedict Arnold?

Only a very few of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were Masons. There is very little authentic history on the Boston Tea Party. This much, however, is known—the men constituting the Boston Tea Party met in a Masonic lodge room and it is surmised that there were several Masons among the number.

Every one of the officers of the Revolution was not a Mason as has already been proven. To illustrate how eagerly events like the above are seized upon to popularize various propoganda the writer recalls that a prominent Red Man told him not long ago that the Boston Tea Party were the original Red Men. Because the members of this party disguised themselves as Indians the circumstance was seized upon to make it appear that the Boston Tea Party was instituted and carried out by a lodge of Red Men.

The present age is demanding to know the truth concerning Freemasonry, and every speaker who addresses a Masonic audience should first of all know what he is talking about.

Concerning the recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama the Committee on Correspondence reported that they had been unable to secure reliable data and asked for further time in which to complete their report.

The report of the Committee on Chartered Lodges is a curious document devoted for the most part to clerical errors on the part of secretaries of lodges. It seems strange that intelligent men want to waste their time in hunting for i's without a dot and t's without a cross.

From a reading of this report it is impossible to gain any idea as to the welfare and the condition of the lodges in Kansas, things which every grand lodge should be fully informed upon.

One thing in the proceedings is noticeable. The retiring grand master was presented with his jewel before the installation of officers took place.

The Finance Committee fixed the salary of the grand master at $800, the grand secretary at $1800 and allowed $300 for a private secretary for the grand master.

Prior to the close of the grand lodge the minutes were read by the official stenographer and according to the records were adopted. It has always been thought that minutes were approved.

The correspondence report is prepared by Past Grand Master Matthew M. Miller and he goes at the job as tho he had done it before. He gives Illinois four pages, and his treatment is very kindly. He quotes the President's telegram in response to the grand lodge's pledge of loyalty.

He refers briefly to various items in the report of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler.

Concerning the oration he says—

The oration, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" by Grand Orator Oscar A. Kropf, is one well worthy in thought and general excellence to attain for the orator a high place in the long list of those whose orations have added honor and fame to the record of the craft of Illinois. Contemporary—though not Masonically—with the year of birth of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, it was our good fortune to have known personally and listened to many of those who were the grand orators of Illinois, beginning with its first Stephen A. Douglas, and among many others J. M. Palmer, Stephen A. Hurlburt, and Ely S. Parker. They were all worthy of the best traditions still extant concerning them or possibly from those yet living who were in their day charmed by their wisdom and eloquence.

Evidently Brother Miller does not like the idea of Masonic insurance for he says—

We note that the Grand Lodge of Illinois, by the adoption of Bro. J. K. Lambert's amendment striking out the words "insurance company," have prevented the possibility of using the word "Masonic" as a cat's paw for any further hauls from Masons of money to go into—another so-called "Masonic" insurance company.

One thing, however, pleases him and he says—

We are glad to note and heartily commend the adoption by the Grand Lodge of Illinois of resolutions under which the strict letter of the law was laid aside, and the law of merey substituted in favor of admission to the Masonic home of an aged Mason, seventy-six years of age, and his aged wife. Well done, brethren!

Concerning a case of discipline in Kavanagh Lodge No. 46 reported last year Brother Miller recalls that—

Fifty years ago we were the guest of Kavanagh Lodge No. 36 in their new building just completed for occupancy. There was an orator, but if he said anything worth while we have forgotten it. There is one thing however, we have never forgotten—the spirit of absolute harmony which prevailed on that occasion; the good comradeship, jollity and mirth on the part of all, were of the "let joy be unconfined, no sleep 'till morn'" variety; and as we remember all this, the wonder strikes us at the possibility of any "attitude" of inharmony ever arising to vex old Kavanagh No. 36. The old Masonic song again rings true: "Harmony alone reigns here."

Concerning the quiz code the comment is made—

Past Grand Master Owen Scott has prepared a Masonic code-quiz that must be invaluable to Masonic students. We commend it for systematic study. If it gets it, we think grand masters could devote more time to matters worth while and less to answering ineonsequential conundrums.

Brother Miller refers to the 300-page correspondence report prepared by Charles H. Martin and remarks—

That in Kansas would be a violation of the modern ideas on space conservation appropriate to a jurisdiction that is engaged in building additions to its Masonic home property amounting to a quarter of a million or more.

The proceedings are presented in a voluminous book. They are badly padded however for the reason that three hundred twenty-six pages are given over to a display of the officers and members of the lodges of the state.

Half-tone portraits of the retiring and incoming grand masters occupy the front pages. Half tones of past grand masters who have died are also presented in the first part of the proceedings. It would suit the writer much better if these appeared in connection with the report of the Committee on the Dead.

The 107th annual communication was held in the city of Louisville commencing Tuesday, October 16, 1917. The Credential Committee, whose report covers fourteen of the opening pages, gives the names of all past masters present together with their lodges and number.

The first thing the grand lodge did was to display the American flag and to salute same with the grand honors of Masonry.

The address of the grand master, James N. Saunders, is a decidedly pointed and positive document. He speaks right out in "meetin'" and makes no attempt whatsoever to go around the barn. He makes frequent use of the personal pronoun "I." By some he might be charged with the "Big I," but then you know that the Grand Master of a Grand Lodge is considerable of an autoerat, provided he wants to use the power which he imagines to be vested in him.

In his opening remarks he says that he has answered fifteen hundred letters and remarks and if the craft would read the constitution and regulations grand masters would be relieved of a great volume of work.

He pays tributes of respect to three past grand masters who died during the year.

Concerning the right of visitation and Masonic intercourse of Masons of Kentucky with those of foreign lands he says that there is no defined policy on the subject, and remarks—

Upon this question there are two distinct theories held by two distinct groups of Masonic jurists, and practiced by two groups of grand lodges:

First—A Mason may lawfully visit a lodge of a jurisdiction other than his own, provided the grand lodge to which the lodge of his membership owes obedience has Masonically recognized the grand lodge to which the lodge he proposes to visit owes obedience; and

Conversely—A Mason hailing from another jurisdiction may lawfully attend a lodge within the jurisdiction visited, provided the grand lodge of that jurisdiction has Masonically recognized the grand lodge to which the lodge of his membership owes obedience.

Second—A Mason, made in a just and lawfully constituted lodge, may visit lodges of a jurisdiction other than his own, provided the grand lodge having jurisdiction over the lodge he proposes to visit has issued no edict of non-intercourse against the grand lodge to which the lodge of his membership owes obedience; and

Conversely—A Mason, made in a lodge duly constituted by a grand lodge, may visit lodges of another jurisdiction, provided the grand lodge to which the lodge of his membership owes obedience has issued no edict of non-intercourse against the grand lodge to which he proposes to visit owes obedience.

He asks the grand lodge to go upon record and define which of these courses shall be pursued.

Concerning the great war in which we are all engaged he says—

Thousands of our craft have answered the country's call, and thousands are yet to follow. With them have gone and are yet to go hundreds of noble women, who, as members of the American Red Cross Society, will nurse the sick, succor the wounded and whisper comfort into dying ears. If these brave women, with gentle hands and holy touch, are to tie the bandage upon the bleeding wounds of our sons, our brothers, our neighbors, our kinsmen and our friends—let us who are at home in safety buy the bandage. I recommend the Grand Lodge of Kentucky this day send the sum of $2,000 to the American Red Cross Society, to be expended in its relief work for American soldiers and seamen and their allies in arms upon the foreign field and upon the sea.

He calls the attention of the grand lodge to the fact that—

The men who constitute this grand lodge have no opportunity to know, and do not know the financial condition of the grand lodge; to do intelligently what they come here to do, they must know, and we should provide a means for them to know.

He insists upon the grand treasurer and grand secretary making a joint financial budget so that the grand lodge will know exactly the moneys it has on hand, its probable income and can regulate its expenditures accordingly. In other words the grand master says we should know what we have before we spend.

The grand master didn't hesitate to take a poke at the grand secretary, for he indulged in the following declaration—

During the last session of the grand lodge an amendment was offered to increase the salary of the grand secretary from $1,500.00 to $2,000.00 per year. We are now paying a larger salary to our grand secretary than has ever before been paid to an incumbent of this office. We furnish him a stenographer, to whom we pay $1,000.00 a year, and who so largely relieves him of his duties of the office as to enable him to act as a traveling salesman for a wholesale mercantile establishment. Our demands for money, by reason of the higher education and vocational training we are giving to our orphan wards, make this proposed generosity to our grand secretary ill-timed. I recommend the proposed amendment be tabled.

It is rather unusual to find a grand master and a grand secretary pulling in opposite directions, usually the grand master is for anything that the grand secretary wants. However, in this case our sympathies are with Davie Jackson because if the grand lodge pays him the meager salary of $1500 a year in these times and conditions it is no wonder that he had to hike out and get a job as a traveling salesman in order to earn a decent wage.

It is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Kentucky is having its troubles with the temple which it owns in Louisville, for the grand master recommends that a committee of three be appointed to sell the temple. The reason therefor is contained in the following excerpt—

It has been proven beyond all doubt the Grand Lodge of Kentucky cannot, without great financial loss, operate an office and theater building. Our losses have been large year after year, with no reasonable prospect of a change from loss to profit, or to an even break.

Brother Saunders goes into detail concerning the Orphans' Home which is maintained by the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, and urges the abolishment of the present institutional system and the adoption of the village idea with the cottage mother. He truly says—

The mule-drawn car has been supplanted by the electric tram, the smoking kerosene lamp has yielded place to the incandescent burner and the arc light, grandfather's rockaway and the old roan mare have given place to the fast-flying, luxurious automobile; but our home, from very necessity, has been a witness to, though not a participant, in the wonderful and manifold advancements that the past fifty years have ushered in.

What he has to say concerning the village system is quoted at length because his ideas are progressive and it is believed that the management of all our charities are trending in this direction—

For the children who cannot be left at home, the men and women who have given greatest study to child training, and who have had widest experience with dependent children, are agreed that what is known as the cottage or village system more nearly approaches the natural home life, which is God's plan, than any other system that has been devised by man. By this method we could provide for separate cottage homes with from six to twelve children under the supervision of a cottage mother, each home with its private yard and garden, fowls and other accessories of home life. Here the children of each family could study, play and work under the superintendence of the cottage mother; the close association of home life run its natural course; the disposition of each child be manifested to the cottage mother, and by her shaped and trained as the individual case requires; home industry, home restraint, home love, home life be taught; each home made in part self-sustaining, and the children given the practical lessons of home life. The village farm, the village dairy, the village blacksmith and wood shops worked by the boys; the village store operated, and its accounts kept, under superintendence, by the boys and girls; there the surplus product of each family marketed; there the farm produce distributed; and the needs of the several homes supplied, debit and credit accounts being kept with each, and the stimulus offered each home and each child to make its own household, as far as possible, independent of the community treasury; the children, for their services, paid in checks, redeemable in goods at this store, each child making its own purchases, taught the lesson of industry and thrift, of personal independence and self-reliance. The marbles and the dolls, the shoes and the stockings, the coat and the dress, the candy and apples, thus made the fruit of their own labor, which makes men and women, and not the unearned offering of charity which dulls the pride and makes beggars of all who receive it.

The cottage mother would here guide and counsel as does the natural mother, and give the same support and help as does the natural parent. The institutional uniformity of discipline, suited to no child; the uniformity of hours, oppressive to all; the uniformity of rations, pleasing to none; the feeding in one great mess hall like mules in a shed, the entrance and the exit all together at the tap of the bell, the very penal lock-step of institu- tionalism, would be abandoned, and you have the natural happy home life of the village and the farm, the village school and the village church, and the natural home life for the growing child. The nominal expense would be greater, but there would be an income of produce and money from the farm, from the gardens, from the poultry yards and the stock pens to counter-balance, and you would fit the boys and girls for the battle of life, fit for leadership, and not make mere followers and imitators of men.

Kentucky requires one month to elapse between the conferring of the degrees and in all cases except where candidates were called into military service all applications for dispensation to waive this section of the law were denied.

The grand master did issue a dispensation permitting a lodge to participate in the dedication of a court house. Here are his reasons—

The highest evidence of good citizenship is reverence for the law, and when a free people gather, with serious and solemn intent, to dedicate a building in which their representatives are to construe the laws of the land, suppress violence and enforce right, a Masonic lodge can and should be a participant in such consecration to such sacred use. The dispensation is granted.

The grand master is very insistent that the regulations of Kentucky shall not be mussed up by other grand jurisdictions, for he says—

Kentucky has always maintained the doctrine of territorial jurisdiction, and accorded to other grand lodges what it reserves to itself, the right to pass upon the fitness of candidates who have been bona fide residents of the state for the requisite time. The grand lodge has never claimed power to act outside of its own jurisdiction, nor will it allow its own action to be construed by any body of Masons.

A rather unusual case of discipline caused the grand master a good deal of trouble but he had the moral courage to make a courageous stand for what he believed to be right, and it is a matter of congratulation that the Committee on Jurisprudence saw things as did the grand master and fully sustained him. The case in brief is as follows: A Mason seduced the daughter of a Master Mason, married her to escape the charge of illegitimate parentage then deserted her. The case went to trial, the defendant plead guilty and the lodge inflicted a penalty of reprimand. The case was appealed to the grand lodge and the Committee on Appeals recommended that the appeal be dismissed for the reason that the lodge is the sole judge of the penalties to be inflicted upon its members for Masonic offenses. The grand lodge, however, refused to concur in this report and recommended the expulsion of the offender. The lodge concerned declined to comply with the mandate of the grand lodge and went to see the then grand master who told them that the grand lodge had no right to direct what the judgment of the subordinate lodge should be and advised the brethren to disregard the orders of the grand lodge. Grand Master Saunders, believing that justice had miscarried again brought the case into the grand lodge. The Committee on Jurisprudence ordered the lodge in question to obey the edict of the grand lodge adopted in its meeting in 1916 and immediately expel the offending brother.

In this day of laxity in enforcing discipline and in upholding the laws of the fraternity it is refreshing to note that in this serious case justice finally triumphed although it took a long time to accomplish it.

The grand master submitted a petition signed by a number of soldiers to form an army lodge and advised the grand lodge of the granting of a dispensation to the petitioners authorizing them to open and hold a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons at or near the military stations of said regiment, to be known as Kentucky Rifle Lodge, with jurisdiction not territorial, and limited to residents of Kentucky in the service of the United States with the Second Kentucky Infantry, now the One Hundred and Sixtieth United States Infantry.

It didn't take the Committee on Grand Master's Address long to dispose of that document for it did so in seven very brief lines.

The report of the grand treasurer discloses the fact that the total receipts were $113,835.00 and the expenditures $110,563.50.

The grand secretary, Dave Jackson, presents a statement which was somewhat out of the ordinary. It reads very much like a Grand Master's address and was considered of sufficient dignity to receive attention at the hands of the Committee on Distribution, for the various items mentioned were referred to the different committees of the grand lodge.

Concerning the membership he says—

Increase in membership of the lodges, as reported up to the close of the fiscal year, is 1,666, and total in the state, 46,046. The gain for 1917 is 616, more than that of 1916. The amount of dues and assessments received up to that date is $99,984.55, which includes the payment of twenty belated lodges last year, but does not include the amount received since September 30.

He reports a large number of lodges as delinquent in both annual returns and the payment of dues. Perhaps had he been paid sufficient salary to enable him to devote all his time to his duties he might have been able to announce 100% in these important matters.

The total assets of the grand lodge as given by the grand secretary are $230,151.26.

The grand lodge maintains what are called "Trustees of the Educational Fund." A detailed report is given of the splendid work done in educating dependent children.

The grand lodge in a stirring resolution, commended the statesmanship of the president and pledged its loyalty and support.

Lodges of the state were ordered to give to the grand secretary the name of every member enlisting in the service. The grand lodge, in a very brief resolution, revoked the edict of non-intercourse issued against the Grand Orient of France in 1869.

The Committee on Necrology make an extended report. The opening remarks are decidedly melancholy. Freemasonry is a hopeful institution and there is no reason why Obituary Committees should be continually painting death as a horrible thing.

What is called a Commission on Masonic Unity made a very extended report. Its purpose may be best defined from the following paragraph taken therefrom—

It is expressly declared that the appointment of the Commission on Masonic Unity is for the sole purpose of producing a unity of purpose, aims, fraternal relations and essential procedure in Masonic matters among the several Masonic governments of the world, and does not refer to a unity in or exchange of form of organization or government of any body of Masons, nor to a centralization of government or authority in any body.

Toward the close of the session the grand master was presented with a beautiful basket of roses on behalf of the Grand Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star. Some years ago this custom started in the Grand Lodge of Illinois but the wise acres thought they saw trouble coming and have eliminated all presentations except the grand master's jewel.

It is pleasing to note that the Committee on Homes endorsed Grand Master Saunder's plan of the community cottage and recommended to the Board of Directors that they give the subject immediate consideration.

A note in the report of the Finance Committee recommends that fines which had been assessed against lodges should be remitted. Now what in the world is the use of imposing penalties for failure to comply with the regulations if the grand lodge is going to come into annual session and remit them. At any rate fines have no place in Freemasonry. They are a childish procedure and smack too much of the justice court.

The Finance Committee thought as did the grand master and recommended that no change be made in the salary of the grand secretary.

The installation of officers was conducted by the retiring grand master, Brother James N. Saunders. In the list of those installed the name of Dave Jackson, grand secretary does not appear, maybe he holds over and maybe he didn't like what the grand master said about his salary and didn't care to be installed by him.

The correspondence report is written by Brother William W. Clark. The grand lodge gives him the title of "Reporter" although he signs himself as Committee on Correspondence. He gives two and one-half pages of his review to Illinois.

Concerning the opening of the grand lodge by Deputy Grand Master Scroggin he says—

We have understood that a Masonic body could be opened in ample form only by the grand master. Are we mistaken?

He refers to the devotional exercises which were conducted by R. Keene Ryan and says—

Brother Ryan is a Kentuckian, and an old Owensboro boy, the home town of this writer. We are proud of him.

He quotes all that Grand Master Wheeler said concerning patriotism and alludes to his remarks as fine sentences.

He finds no fault whatsoever with anything that the grand master did and mentions his acts very liberally.

Concerning the report of Charles H. Martin, the reporter says "It is his first and is interesting throughout."

He enters into an argument with Brother Martin concerning the expulsion by a Texas lodge of a member of a Kentucky lodge, and suggests that the law of Illinois regulating questions of discipline is better than the Kentucky law, but that it might be further improved.

The reporter says there is much more in the Illinois report that he would like to take up but the printer in calling for copy causes him to limit his review.

LOUISIANA, F. & A. M.

It requires a volume of nearly five hundred pages to record the transactions and exploit the various tabular matter of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana.

This grand lodge, like a good many others, prints in its proceedings the list of officers and members of every constituent lodge in the state.

The proceedings are ordered to be read in all lodges but there is nothing to show that it was done nor how it was accomplished.

The one hundred seventh annual grand communication of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana was held in the city of New Orleans, opening on Monday night, February 4, 1918. Just why the annual communication is called a grand communication is not apparent unless it is to distinguish it from emergent and special communications.

The grand lodge was opened in ample form, after which eulogies were delivered in memory of William M. Baker, grand lecturer and Charles F. Buck, past grand master, both of whom died during the year.

The list of grand representatives present does not disclose the name of the brother representing Illinois. Of course nobody believes that the grand representatives' system as now organized and constituted amounts to very much. It is natural for grand lodges to want to be represented by their ambassadors in the communications of foreign grand bodies. Why wouldn't it be a good idea for our grand secretaries to formally notify other grand jurisdictions of the presence of their representative in annual meeting instead of depending upon correspondents digging the information out of much irrelevant matter found in the proceedings of all grand lodges. In this manner continued absence of grand representatives would be noted and opportunity given for the appointment of more active brethren.

The address of Grand Master John W. Armstrong is a long document in which he has thoroughly covered the many matters which came under his supervision during the year.

In his opening remarks he says—

Many have, at the call of their country, left friends and home to serve its behests on the tented field and in the deadly strife of battle. A Mason's duty is to his God, next to his country, and then to his neighbor, before himself. This is the order of a Mason's duties and the true Mason knows how best to fulfill them. May we who remain at home remember them in our prayers and look after those depending upon those of our brethren who have answered their country's call.

He called upon each lodge to keep a correct record of every member going into the service upon specially prepared cards called "War Service Cards." In view of the large number of young men constantly leaving home the grand master called upon the older brethren to again return to their active duties in the lodge and to help keep the fires of Masonry burning brightly upon the altars.

The state of the order in Louisiana is reported to be most excellent. At least this is the idea which the grand master gained in his correspondence during the year, he having written over thirty-two hundred letters.

The illustrious dead of Louisiana and other grand jurisdictions are noted with appropriate memorials.

During the year dispensations were issued for the formation of five new lodges.

Owing to the fact that Camp Beauregard is located very near the city of Alexandria it was found necessary to establish another lodge there in order to take care of the tremendous amount of work entailed on account of conferring degrees by courtesy. This lodge was instituted under the name of Liberty Lodge, and the dispensation permits it to do degree work by courtesy only.

A Masonic rest room was also fitted up at Alexandria where soldier Masons might have some comforts not otherwise provided in army camps.

Concerning this rest station the grand master says—

Oliver Lodge No. 84 very graciously tendered me the use of a room gratis, which I accepted, and have equipped it with suitable furniture, writing material and reading matter, and have placed in charge Brother A. L. Churchill as its secretary, whose duty it is to look after the welfare of those who are our own brothers and the sons of our Brother Masons whose fathers are requesting information regarding their sons. It is also his duty to answer all correspondence coming from such channels requiring information that prior to this came through my office, and before same could be answered I would have to have some brother in Alexandria to look up for me. Brother Churchill is competent to lecture those who are deficient in their degree lectures on account of having received their degrees at one and the same communication, or have left their home lodge before becoming proficient. This field is a broad one and one that can be added to, for we owe to our soldier-Masons, who have given up all to fight for our home and country, a great deal, and anything that we, as Masons, can do for their welfare, who do not have to go to the Front, we should be willing and ready to do.

The Grand Lodge of Louisiana having clearly outgrown the present Masonic temple in New Orleans the grand master presented the subject in his annual address and asked the grand lodge to take under consideration the construction and equipment of a new building.

The grand master refers to the pernicious activity of a certain organization whose prerequisite for membership is that of being a Master Mason and issued a circular letter forbidding—

Any solicitation for membership or for business in any order or society at lodge meetings and on lodge premises.

The name of this particular organization is not mentioned but it wouldn't be a bad guess to name it The Grotto for the reason that grand masters throughout the United States have been taking a poke at this particular organization because of its interference with the legitimate work of lodges.

The Grand Lodge of Louisiana operates a Masonic cemetery and the grand master reports that on account of an inefficient sexton the grand lodge was now involved in considerable trouble settling disputes over property rights. It looks to the writer as though the Masonic cemetery business was a sort of a jinx for lodges and grand lodges. Everyone of them seem to be involved in more or less litigation.

The grand lecturer having died during the year, twenty applications were filed by ambitious brethren for the appointment much to the embarrassment of the grand master. He thought at first that he would be able to parcel out the work among various brethren but was unable to get enough of them to do the work and was compelled to select a new grand lecturer.

A large number of rulings and decisions are reported, most of them of purely local application.

In one lodge the master permitted a brother to sit in the lodge without voting. When the grand master found it out he ruled that the particular ballot was null and void and ordered them to vote again.

Concerning the conferring of degrees by courtesy the grand master says—

This has brought me into close and intimate touch with other grand masters of sister grand jurisdictions, and has strengthened the cordial and fraternal relations existing between these jurisdictions and ours, and wherever the requests came within our laws they have been promptly approved by me and executed by our Louisiana lodges, which have worked both night and day in order to accommodate lodges in other states and to see that the boys who wear the khaki finish their degrees in Masonry before being called to foreign shores. I here pay public acknowledgment to the lodges of this state and to sister jurisdictions for their prompt and efficient handling of these cases wherever I have made these requests.

Among the grand representatives appointed to fill vacancies it is noticed that some of the grand jurisdictions favored were the Grand Orient of Paraguay and the Supreme Council of Columbia. It looks as tho the Grand Lodge of Louisiana was taking a long chance in granting recognition to councils and orients operating exclusively under the control of the Scottish Rite.

Among the many dispensations granted by the grand master was one permitting a lodge to meet in a hall which had not yet been consecrated.

Another dispensation granted permission to a lodge to hold a joint installation with an Eastern Star chapter.

Grand Master Armstrong was particularly generous in the matter of granting special dispensation for balloting and conferring degrees on soldiers. He justifies his action by saying—

The average age of a petitioner for the Masonic degrees is between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one. This also was made the draft age by Congress. I know that the average young man who desires to be a Mason intends to place his application in a lodge when he became of age, and in nine cases out of ten delayed on account of the lack of necessary funds. When he is drafted he makes an extra effort and applies to his local lodge. In all cases where the circumstances justified it, I have granted dispensations waiving statutory time; every case has been judged on its own merits.

Among the recommendations made was one limiting the number of copies of proceedings sent to each lodge to one. The reason given was that the cost saved to the grand lodge could be used to a much better advantage during the war.

The following recommendation is somewhat peculiar—

Masonry has to adjust itself to the unusual conditions brought about by this world war. Letters received from many Masons have come to me requesting that the privilege of wearing Masonic emblems be extended to their sons who, though of age for service, are under age for the Masonic degrees. In the logic of things it seems to me that if a man is old enough to serve his country, we should consider him of age to become a Mason. I would respectfully recommend that in the case of sons of Masons the old Masonic custom of permitting a Lewis to petition for degrees be revived. If in the judgment of the grand lodge this may not be permitted for all time, at least it should be permitted for the term of this war.

The grand master made twelve official visits to subordinate lodges. He states that at one of them he delivered an appropriate address on what Masonry means to man. It is a little unusual for a speaker to determine the fitness of his address, the audience usually doing that.

The grand master reports at length on the relation of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana with the various so-called Masonic grand bodies of France and finally closes with the recommendation—

As a great many of the grand lodges of America have submitted through resolutions a modus vivendi between American and French Masons permitting unrestricted fraternization with the members of the several grand bodies of France, let us go a step further, being true to ourselves and to the institution of which we are members and resume once and for all, free and fraternal intercourse with the Grand Orient and the Grand Lodge of France, leaving time and results to prove the rectitude of our line of action.

The proceedings record that the address of the grand master was received, adopted and distributed but there is nothing to show as to who made the distribution.

The receipts, as shown by the grand treasurer, are $48,126.55, while the expenditures were $41,298.25.

The detailed financial report discloses the fact that the grand master's traveling expense for the year was $2,627.47. It is surmised that if the grand master of Illinois were to put in a bill of similar proportions the Finance Committee would fall dead. However, this writer has always held that the grand master ought to give personal attention to the affairs of his office and go wherever duty calls him, no matter what the expense may be.

The Board of Relief submitted to the grand lodge a detailed report of moneys that were expended in the care of sojourning brethren and it is noticed that Illinois is charged up with $112.00. It would be interesting to know whether the Louisiana Relief Lodge ever had any of this money returned to them by the lodges whose members were benefited.

The financial budget prepared for the coming year allowed the grand master for office expense $1500 and fixed the salary of the grand secretary at $2500, his assistant at $1500 and allowed the grand lecturer $4200. It is a wonder that the Masons of Louisiana do not aspire to become grand lecturer rather than grand master, it is so much more remunerative.

The report of the Committee on a National Tuberculosis Sanitarium made a report to the grand lodge showing that they were unable to get any interest in the project at this time for the reason that—

The majority of replies from the different jurisdictions are of the opinion that an institution so located would be so far from the majority of the Masons who are actually in need of such assistance that they very much fear their lodges would not deem it wise for them to enter into the support of a national institution.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence makes a very unusual report in that he approves the appointments of representatives made by the grand master and suggests amendments to certain edicts relating to exclusive grand lodge jurisdiction. He recommends the repeal of the edict of non-intercourse against the Grand Orient of France and the immediate exchange of representatives. The recommendation went through with a hoop, for the record states—

The adoption of the resolutions restoring fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of France and recognizing the Grand Lodge of France was followed by an outburst of applause, the national colors of the United States and of France being displayed, one on each side of the station of the grand master, and the national airs of each of the countries pealed forth from the Cathedral organ. When the grand lodge was again ready for business, M. W. Brother B. B. Purser moved that the name of M. W. Brother John Stanley Thibaut be tendered to these bodies for commission as their representative, and said motion, being duly seconded, was carried unanimously.

The Committee on Work reported that—

While we recognize that the work is only the earthen vessel in which the treasure of Masonic symbolism is hidden, still we are impressed that the proceedings of lodges and the conferring of degrees should be done in a duly dignified manner and with practical uniformity, and we believe that measures should be taken to reinforce the work now being done by the grand lecturers.

The committee placed a limitation of two years on grand lecturers' certificates of proficiency and ordered that hereafter every holder of such certificate desiring its continuance must present himself for a new examination and secure another certificate.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances themselves commit an offense in printing the names of brethren whose cases came under their supervision. It is decidedly unmasonic to publish the shortcomings of members of the craft who in an hour of weakness depart from the straight and narrow path.

A pleasure feature of the grand lodge meeting was the introduction of eighteen brethren who had attained a Masonic record of over forty years. They were escorted to the east and accorded the private grand honors of Masonry.

The Committee on Jurisprudence made a report in which it approved every decision made by the grand master. But with the sentence of approval also went either a suggestion or criticism on the part of the committee as to the form or manner in which the grand master had expressed himself or with a suggestion on the part of the committee as to a better construction of the law. It must not be forgotten, however, that it is always the right and prerogative of Jurisprudence Committees to air their superior knowledge, they never want to give the new grand master credit for anything, they are afraid that if they encourage the youngster too much that when he gets on the committee he will proceed to tell his elders where to get off at.

One statement in the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence promotes a smile. They state—

We feel that in this and many similar cases the masters and brethren of lodges are prone to refer to the grand master, questions that should not be brought before him, and particularly that in regard to physical qualifications. The lodges should judge for themselves as far as is possible to do so.

That's just exactly what they tell masters and brethren in Illinois, then if the master doesn't happen to know any more about Masonry than the law allows him and chances to initiate somebody minus a big toe the grand master jumps on him with both feet and suspends him from office for six months. The ignus fatuus of Freemasonry is that terse little sentence "the lodge shall be the judge of the physical fitness of its candidates." It lures many worthy masters into the slough of trouble.

The proceedings close with a certificate from the grand secretary attesting the fact that the proceedings contain a true transcript of the transactions of the grand lodge.

It is evident that our Louisianians do not believe in wasting very much of their funds for the benefit of foreign correspondence. A report of 48 pages is prepared by Herman C. Duncan in which Illinois gets one page. But one quotation is made from Grand Master Ralph Wheeler's address and that is his paragraph relating to military lodges. A few brief sentences are taken from the oration of Oscar A. Kropf.

Concerning the refusal of the Grand Lodge of Illinois to recognize the Grand Lodge of Panama Brother Duncan says—

Whether the working of degrees in Symbolic Masonry can be lawfully done in other rite than that of the York Rite has been repeatedly argued, and to your committee it seems inopportune to renew the discussion. Some day liberty will be established everywhere in this world. The Teutonic claim to be the only people will cease. Then it will be timely to again consider those matters. For that hour we wait. May the bells soon ring out declaring liberty throughout not this land alone, but every land. Then Illinois will recognize the liberty for others she claims for herself. Then she will recognize that our brethren of the Scottish, living in countries where it is the only rite, or the dominant rite, have the liberty in working in Symbolic Masonry.

The grand lodge met in May. Proceedings not received at this writing.

MANITOBA, A. F. & A. M.1918

The forty-third annual communication convened in the city of Winnipeg, June 12, 1918. The grand lodge was opened in ample form, after which Grand Master Percy E. Kellett presented his annual address.

He has considerable to say about the great war, and introduces the following paragraph,—

During the past year forty members of our lodges have made the supreme sacrifice for country and liberty in the great war. Words cannot express the debt of gratitude we owe them. The barbarian threatens our very existence as a free people. Reason and Righteousness must be forced upon him that the foundation may be laid for the brotherhood of man. These soldiers died battling for that brotherhood which Freemasonry has for its ideal. We have ample reason, then, to cherish their memory. The glory they acquired will always live. To their dear ones, we would extend our deepest sympathy, and where necessary, may we be privileged to give counsel and assistance. Instinctively we remember these familiar sentences: "Death is swallowed up in Victory." "O Death where is thy sting, O Grave where is thy Victory?" Formerly they breathed consolation, now, in addition, they stimulate courage and hopeful aspiration. The work continues. Their bodies are dead, but their souls go marching on. Living and dead battle together for victory. Their death will not interfere, but will hasten the victory to which they looked forward.

He reports great success in the bi-centenary appeal for the Benevolent Fund.

He states that the year, 1917, should be of particular interest to the Masons of Manitoba because it is commemorative of the introduction of Freemasonry into the province, which took place in 1864.

The grand master states that he issued a number of dispensations but in so doing, established no new precedent. In this connection, he says,—

I refused dispensation in one case where a soldier had lost his legs, both off a few inches from the body. Sympathy would urge one to overlook almost any physical defect in a soldier who had become maimed in this war. But I felt no great hardship would be incurred by waiting. Dispensation can be applied for again. I did not want to establish a precedent, which might turn out to be dangerous and costly for this grand lodge to follow. This is a question that should be carefully considered at this grand lodge session, and a definite policy laid down for future guidance. The problem will be placed before you for your decision, when the new constitution is being considered. My own opinion is that we should guard against being swayed altogether by sympathy. It would rebound very much to the discredit of our fraternity, if we assumed a burden greater than we could bear. Our fraternity is not in any sense a benefit society. If the bars are taken down almost altogether, it will undoubtedly result in our having added to our membership a great many who would be a charge against the fraternity for the balance of their natural lives.

He advises the grand lodge, that in case it would appear advisable to change the present law on physical qualifications that he would recommend—

That in all cases of physical disability, it be insisted on that an applicant for membership be not only able to support himself, but also able and willing to contribute to the assistance of those in need. Only in this way, it seems to me can we assure ourselves of a membership vigorous enough to carry out Masonic work on its broadest lines. I would recommend also that a set form of application for dispensation in cases of physical disqualification be drawn up, so that complete information as to the circumstances and capabilities of the applicant may be placed before whoever has to decide on whether dispensation should be granted or not. Such form should be used in all cases where dispensation is asked for on account of physical disqualification.

In connection with a conference of grand officers and the Board of General Purposes held early in the year, the subject of general Masonic Utility was considered. The following expression is taken from the grand master's comment on this meeting,—

Reduced to fundamentals, it seems to me, the main object of our fraternity is to give the individual member increased opportunity for self-development, self-realization and service. If for any reason, this object is lost sight of or obscured, our institution has no real place in a world such as exists today. This purpose cannot be fulfilled by the mere performance of ceremonies and the recitation of rituals. We must have a practical application of our truths and morals in social uplifting work. Unless we can do this, thinking people will have no time for us.

He has considerable to say upon the subject of French Masonry, from which the conclusion is drawn that M. Joseph Caillaux, is not a Freemason, and never has been, but that M. Melinc, and Marshal Joffre, both belong to the Grand Orient of France. As to the sources from which many false reports concerning Freemasonry have emanated, the grand master leaves each reader to draw his own conclusions.

The district deputy grand masters submit exhaustive reports, and the inference is that these officials do something more than to receive official receptions and draw mileage and per diem at grand lodge.

On the afternoon of the second day, a splendid oration was delivered to the grand lodge, by the Rev. Thomas G. Bethell. His subject was leadership and personality, and it makes good reading for all Masons.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $9,724.38 and expenditures of $10,760.83. There was appropriated from the Benevolent Fund of the grand lodge the sum of $2,822.40 for the care of the grand lodge dependents.

The report of the grand secretary covers many details.

Among the dispensations detailed is one to give Masonic burial to an Entered Apprentice.

The Board of General Purposes make the customary report, concerning the general welfare of the fraternity. One item chronicles the fact that the ceremonials of the grand lodge are so much in disrepute among the brethren and a committee was appointed to recast them.

Concerning the position of the Three Lesser Lights, it was recommended that a light be placed in front of each of the three principal officers' chairs. This certainly would be placing them, east, west and south.

The Committee on Jurisprudence reported that nothing had been submitted to them for consideration.

The Committee on Masonic Research and Education state that they are devising plans for the education of the craft upon Masonic subjects.

The most interesting report in the proceedings is that of the Committee on the Condition of Freemasonry, in which about everything connected with the fraternity from its incepta to the present time is considered. There are a lot of good things in this report and if time and space permitted, the writer would like very much to reproduce some of them.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence make a very pretentious report of the grand lodge. What the committee did was to review the proceedings of other grand jurisdictions and extract therefrom the best things that it could find and present them in topical form to the grand lodge.

The Committee on the Bi-Centenary Fund submit an itemized statement of their efforts. They deserve congratulations. The allotment to be raised was $64,760.00. The amount subscribed was $72,418.55.

The grand lodge closed with the election and installation of officers.

There is no detailed report by states by a Committee on Foreign Correspondence.

The Grand Lodge of Maryland meets twice each year in semiannual communication. Being located in compact territory with abundant railroad facilities there is no reason why the grand lodge should not meet oftener than once each year.

In examining the proceedings it is noticeable that organ and vocal music is interspersed among the various transactions.

It is generally agreed nowadays that music hath power to tame the savage breast. Perhaps the use of music is one reason for the general harmony which seems to prevail throughout the transactions of the Grand Lodge of Maryland.

Here is an idea for the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Why not order George Kurzenkabe and some of the quartettes of Chicago on hand during the grand lodge session and when things become rancorous have them sing a little. Again it would be a most excellent thing to have them chant a lullaby during the reading of some very lengthy reports which besides being extremely dry are rendered inaudible by the stage fright of the reader. A lullaby at this time might be highly soothing to the sleepers in the audience who were out late the night before.

The grand lodge began with considerable eclat. The deputy grand master opens the grand lodge and then sends the grand marshal out to inform the grand master that the grand lodge is ready to receive him. Accompanied by the grand sword bearer the grand master is escorted into the presence of the grand lodge amid a tumult of grand honors and music.

What, in Illinois, is known as the Committee on Credentials is called in Maryland the Committee on Conference. The detailed report which they make would look much better in the appendix.

The grand master of Maryland makes no detailed report of his transactions. Probably he considers that it is none of the grand lodge's business what he did.

At the meeting under Review held the second Tuesday of May, 1917, complete statements of the grand secretary and the grand treasurer were received. The grand secretary makes a detailed statistical report covering the first half of the year.

In the record of the Library Committee is noticed a disbursement of $2.00 for subscription to the American Freemason. The American Freemason is a splendid publication but why does the Grand Lodge of Maryland confine itself to this one journal when there are so many more of merit? Why not take them all and thus give the reading Masons Masonic information from all parts of the country?

Grand Master Shryock calls attention of the grand lodge to—

A fund, called the "Baltimore Fund," was being raised in the city of Baltimore for the relief of the dependents of the soldiers and sailors who are enlisted in the army and navy in the world war, and in order to show the loyalty of the fraternity suggested that the grand lodge take part therein.

On motion it was resolved that the grand lodge appropriate fifteen hundred dollars to this fund, payable in three installments of five hundred dollars per annum for the next three years.

With the adoption of this recommendation the Star Spangled Banner was sung, quite appropriately.

The reports of various committees submitted at this semi-annual meeting were extremely brief.

Following the account of the May meeting is one of the cornerstone laying of the Maryland State College of Agriculture participated in by officers of the grand lodge, very few proxies being in evidence. It gives in full the cornerstone ceremony, and the question naturally arises as to whether this was a special service arranged for this particular occasion.

The second semi-annual communication was held November 20th, and is called the "Annual Communication."

The opening ceremonies were identical with those related heretofore. The business transacted was unimportant. The reports of all the committees were brief and disclose nothing of unusual character. This is probably due to the fact that in Maryland the grand master is the whole works, while committees are merely for ornamental purposes.

At this annual meeting there was presented to the grand lodge a bronze bust of General George Washington in Masonic regalia. The gift was from the grand master, Thomas J. Shryock.

Along about five o'clock in the afternoon of the second day the grand lodge called off, formed in procession and proceeded to the banquet hall where dinner was served. This certainly would be a pleasing custom in a small grand lodge, but it would hardly work in the grand lodge of Illinois.

The manner of conducting the election of officers in Maryland is somewhat unusual. The record states—

The most worshipful grand master announced that the time had arrived for the election of grand officers for the ensuing term, and then vacated the East, which was assumed by Brother

Charles C. Homer, Jr., right worshipful deputy grand master, who presided during the election of most worshipful grand master, the result of which was the unanimous re-election of Most Worshipful Brother Thomas J. Shryock, most worshipful grand master for thirty-third time.

It is noted that the deputy grand master installs the grand master and the grand master installs the balance of the officers.

The report on correspondence is prepared by the Reverend Henry Branch. He gives one page only to Illinois. Maybe the grand lodge put the soft pedal on him. He very briefly enumerates points in our transaction which seem to attract his attention.

Concerning the matter of tuition at the LaGrange Home he says—

The question of admitting the children in the Masonic homes to the school in the district in which the home is located, instead of compelling them to attend the schools in their own home, was settled in the interest of the Masonic Home, the real home, for the time being, a distinct rebuke to the school authorities, who demanded tuition as for non-resident pupils. How uncharitable and narrow-minded.

Of the reports of the district deputies he observes—

Reports from the fifty Masonic districts are very frank in the criticism of the work and proceedings, and indicate a healthfulness and efficiency that augurs well for the future.

He extends a cordial greeting to Charles H. Martin, correspondent, in the following words—

Right welcome is our newly appointed correspondent, with unlimited means at his disposal and free to control as many pages as the rest of the proceedings. A new feature commends itself to our judgment, the Index to Correspondents, though Brother Branch is christened over again and gains an added initial.

The proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts for the year 1917 are a rather complex volume. The annual communication was held December 12th. The proceedings, however, were not delivered until the middle of July following, nearly seven months elapsing between the time of meeting and the receipt of the printed volume. It is understood that labor troubles were responsible for the long delay. At first glance the book might be taken for a historical review of numerous Masonic incidents and events, for it contains a number of articles dealing with the early history of Freemasonry together with illustrations of prominent men connected with the early and formulative period of the fraternity. These are scattered through the volume, in many instances being interspersed with the business transactions of the grand lodge. This makes it somewhat difficult for a novice to readily obtain an idea of what the grand lodge did. However, there may be method in this procedure, because it insures the various papers and documents being called to the ready attention of the reader, whereas, if placed in an appendix their examination might be deferred and possibly fail to secure attention.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts follows very closely the plan of most English grand lodges by holding quarterly communications. The proceedings under review record the transaction of four quarterly communications, one of which is called the annual, eight special communications, one deputy grand lodge and one stated communication for the observance of the feast of St. John the Baptist.

The volume opens with a splendid steel engraving of Leon M. Abbott, grand master, and is followed by a half-tone portrait of the Masonic temple at Christobal, Canal Zone, a very imposing structure. The deputy grand lodge heretofore referred to, is given first consideration.

According to the record Melvin M. Johnson, past grand master, was appointed special deputy grand master to visit the Canal Zone and look after the interests of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts so far as certain lodges therein owing it allegiance were concerned.

The official report discloses the fact that among the acts transacted were the deliverance of a dispensation for the formation of Isthmian Lodge and the erection of a district grand lodge for the Canal Zone. A protocol was arranged and signed between the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts and the Grand Lodge of Panama, whereby the former was to be recognized as a sovereign grand lodge and the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts granted certain jurisdiction over symbolic Masonry in the Canal Zone, so far as lodges instituted by it might be affected.

A quarterly communication of the grand lodge was held March 14, 1917 in the Masonic temple at Boston. The grand master, Brother Leon M. Abbott, opened his address with tributes of respect to the memory of several distinguished craftsmen. He stated that he would willingly visit lodges of his jurisdiction when his presence was deemed necessary or of vital assistance to the craft, but that he preferred to have the district deputy grand master present at all lodge functions held within their respective districts. He did say one thing for which he is to be commended—

I shall not attend, in my official capacity as grand master, any tiled meeting of the so-called higher bodies or appendant orders in Masonry. It does not seem to me that I ought to attend officially any Masonic meeting held behind tiled doors which I or my officers would not be able to attend if only Blue Lodge Masons. I believe you will agree that this position is logical and consistent. It certainly cannot be said to be inspired by any personal hostility to the higher-degree bodies, in several of which I am at present, or have been in the past, an officer. These appendant orders occupy a most important place in the Masonic world, but my concerns as grand master are with the grand lodge and the lodges under its jurisdiction.

The chain letter nuisance is severely condemned by Brother Abbott and a number of substantial legacies to the Charity Fund of the grand lodge are recorded.

The grand master appends to his quarterly report a detailed account of the Panama expedition as submitted by Past Grand Master Johnson.

Following the address of the grand master the question of the recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama was introduced, and an exhaustive preface on the question was presented by Past Grand Master Johnson recommending that the recognition be accorded and representatives exchanged. The grand lodge adopted the report by a unanimous vote.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts evidently believes that the moral law should be rigidly upheld for at the quarterly communication referred to, a member of one of the lodges who had introduced a young man to a woman of questionable character thereby causing his Masonic downfall was expelled from the fraternity. At this quarterly meeting there was delivered a profound address by Roseoe Pound of the Harvard Law School upon the subject "A Preface of Masonic Symbolism." It is a very able article, and will appeal to the educated, thoughtful men of the fraternity but because of its psychological turn it is a little too laborious to interest the average craftsman.

An amendment was introduced waiving the six months residence requirement over all soldiers and sailors having no definite Masonic residence.

A quarterly communication was held in the city of Boston on June 13, 1917, which partook somewhat of the nature of a celebration of the bicentenary of the Grand Lodge of England.

The grand master opens his address with the usual report on necrology.

He stated that he had been repeatedly asked if it was permissible for lodges to give from their lodge funds for the support of the Red Cross and other war activities. He suggested that there was nothing in the law which would prevent them from so doing, but that it would be far better for them to conserve their funds and be prepared to meet those calls for relief which in the near future will undoubtedly tax all Masonic lodges to the very limit of their resources.

The question of the payment of income tax by the lodges of the state engaged the attention of the grand master and he caused a bill to be introduced into the legislature of Massachusetts specifically exempting the property of fraternal organizations from taxation. This bill was vigorously opposed by certain elements but finally became a law.

The grand master referred to the bicentenary of the Grand Lodge of England and introduced Past Grand Master Chas. T. Gallagher who delivered a splendid address dealing with those events and circumstances which lead to the formation of the Mother Grand Lodge of the world.

At this meeting a member of the fraternity who had deserted his wife and defrauded his creditors was expelled from all the rights and privileges of Freemasonry. This is good Masonic information. It is high time that the wife beaters and deserters of families were given to understand that Masonry will not tolerate such conduct.

The amendment to the constitutions introduced in March relating to the Masonic residence of soldiers and sailors was adopted with an additional clause requiring full investigation as to the character and fitness of applicants as well as to previous residence and application for the degree.

The question of the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France was presented in the form of a memorial to the effect that until the Grand Lodge of France is ready to bring its ritual within the requirements of English speaking grand lodges so far as to recognize a supreme being that no recognition be extended but that the hope is expressed that negotiations may be opened which will lead to the recognition of the Masons of France.

A quarterly communication of the grand lodge was held in September in the Masonic Temple in Boston. In his opening address the grand master states that there were few matters to receive attention at this communication. He suggests that the constitutions and regulations were somewhat of a patch work with many a rent and seam and proposes a committee to revise and codify existing laws and regulations. Just how much good the codification will do will depend wholly and solely upon the number of amendments and alterations that may be brought forward in the future. Just as long as brethren seek to improve and change and modify existing laws just that long must the laws of the jurisdiction resemble a crazy quilt.

The grand master refused to issue dispensations for the formation of army lodges, but says should the war continue and a sufficient number of troops be sent abroad the question of traveling lodges would be considered.

Concerning the dispensations to receive and act upon petitions in less than the lawful time Grand Master Abbott says—

I have not, however, in a single instance waived the requirement of the constitutions that a candidate proposed at a regular monthly communication must stand over before being balloted for until the next regular monthly communication. This requirement is so important and basic of quality in membership that in my judgment it ought never to be set aside. Masonry knows no distinction among men. It is our duty, as it is our pleasure, to support the National Government and all legally constituted authorities in this grave world-crisis. Every sacrifice in every avenue of effort that is necessary to carry forward the war to a successful issue should and will be cheerfully made. The spirit of true patriotism is given emphasis by every loyal Mason.

Commending to the utmost enlistment in the military or naval service of the country does not mean that we should lower the dignity of our institution to serve the convenience of applicants, nor set aside sacred traditions and time-honored laws to make admission to its ranks of easier accomplishment.

At this quarterly meeting there is reported the expulsion of a certain brother because he wrote in plain English the lecture of the 1st degree and mailed it to a person not a member of the craft. The party receiving the lecture claimed to be a Mason; that he had taken his degrees in a lodge in Illinois, and exhibited a variety of different insignia of the various orders and degrees in Freemasonry. Other than this the respondent took no means of ascertaining whether or not said party was a Mason. During their acquaintance the respondent frequently conversed in regard to the work and lectures of the order and endeavored to instruct him therein, but finding said party a dull pupil he wrote out the lecture of the first degree in plain English and mailed it to him.

The last quarterly communication for the year was held in the Masonic Temple at Boston, December 12th and was in the nature of an annual meeting.

The first thing recorded is a memorial to Moses C. Plummer, deputy grand master of the grand lodge. It is with sincere regret that the writer learns of the death of this most estimable man, as he knew him personally and admired him because of his high character and standing as a Mason.

Grand Master Leon M. Abbott opens his address by referring to the decease of a number of prominent Masons of the state. He urges all lodges to rally to the assistance of the government by observing the conservation of food law, and eliminating all unnecessary collations and banquets. Judging from the large number of dinners mentioned there is good reason for making such a request.

Concerning public appearances of Masons in parades and other public demonstrations the grand master has considerable to say and quotes numerous Masonic authorities upon the subject. His conclusions are as follows—

When the masters of lodges are asked to participate in these affairs they should remember that from the beginning Freemasonry has done its own peculiar work in its own way. It does not challenge any comparison with others. It does not advertise itself. It does not seek for the applause of the general public and it is indifferent to its criticism.

In stating the position of the fraternity, masters have no need to take a deprecatory or apologetic tone. Freemasonry has taken its part in the civic life of this country for nearly two centuries. Its members have been conspicuous for loyalty and public service. Through eight wars before this one, Massachusetts Freemasons have ever been foremost at the post of duty, both in military and civil life. The crisis of today will not find them wanting.

I reaffirm the principles held by my predecessors and I shall continue to refuse dispensations to participate in public demonstrations.

The grand master having received no answer from the Grand Lodge of France in response to the memorial previously transmitted, the grand secretary was directed to represent the subject.

He reports a long list of visitations made him.

The membership statistics show that the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts covers extended territory for the grand master says—

There are two hundred and fifty-five lodges in Massachusetts, four in China, three in Chile, and five in the Canal Zone. There are three lodges in Massachusetts under dispensation: Universal, of Orleans, Baalis Sanford, of Brockton, and Seaview, of Revere. There are two lodges under dispensation in the Canal Zone, Isthmian and Darien. This makes a total of two hundred and sixty-seven lodges under this jurisdiction—an increase of five.

The financial reports, which are presented at this meeting, are interesting. They are somewhat complicated however, as most reports are when prepared by official auditors.

The valuation of the Masonic Temple in Boston is placed at $1,510,000 on which $26,727 annual taxes are paid. The Board of Directors report that after paying the interest on the mortgage of $188,000 that very little margin is left in the way of net receipts.

The Masonic Education and Charity Trust reports a total fund of $816,837.89, yielding a net income per annum of $28,309.72.

Concerning the War Relief Fund which the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts proposes to raise, Grand Master Abbott said—

Some people have asked, "What are you going to do with the money which you raise if the war should end within a short time?" My answer is that every dollar will be needed and will be spent for war relief purposes. If the war should end today there would be need of every dollar subscribed to this fund to provide suitably and properly against the want and distress of those who have offered their lives for their country, and for their dependents. Positions of employment will in some cases have been lost; health will in many cases be impaired, some sort of pension system may have to be provided. Brethren who have risked their lives—their all—should never have to ask for help. Their needs should be sought out and anticipated. This is no time for mere Masonic lip service. Deeds should substitute words.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Leon M. Abbott as grand master and Frederick W. Hamilton as grand secretary.

A detailed financial report of the Masonic Home Fund is attached to the report of the proceedings and it goes into much detail concerning the Masonic home. It will prove very interesting to those brethren who are charged with the responsibility of managing similar institutions for their respective grand lodges.

The proceedings conclude with a report of a stated communication of the grand lodge held December 27 for the purpose of celebrating the feast of St. John the Evangelist, and according to the old English custom, to install the grand officers who had been previously elected and appointed. At the conclusion of this interesting service the brethren indulged in the grand feast. Four regular toasts were observed as follows, after which numerous interesting addresses were delivered—

To the memory of the Holy Saints John.

(The toast was duly honored by the brethren, all standing.)

Brethren, the second regular toast: To the memory of our illustrious brother, George Washington.

(The second toast was duly honored by the brethren in the same manner.)

Brethren, the third regular toast: To the memory of our departed brethren.

(The toast was duly honored by the brethren in the same manner.)

Brethren, the fourth and last regular toast: To all the fraternity, wheresoever dispersed upon the face of the earth.

(The toast was duly honored by the brethren in the same manner.)

Appended to the proceedings is an extensive paper prepared by Emery B. Gibbs called the anti-Masonic movement. There is nothing to show as to where it was delivered or what led to its preparation. It deals largely with the abduction of William Morgan and is a very interesting document.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts apparently does not believe in wasting either paper or printer's ink in the preparation of fraternal correspondence. Of course the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts is a very independent and aristocratic body, claiming to be the oldest Masonic organization in this country, which claim is disputed by both Pennsylvania and South Carolina. Maybe the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts doesn't regard it as worth while to have presented in its proceedings a resume of the transactions of other grand lodges and maybe it doesn't care a mill site what they did.

MICHIGAN, F. & A. M.

A letter to our genial friend and grand secretary brought the reply that the proceedings of his grand lodge had not been issued. He kindly consented to forward copy at the earliest possible moment. It is with regret that this report closes with Michigan not reviewed.

MINNESOTA, A. F. & A. M.

The city of St. Paul had the honor of entertaining the Grand Lodge of Minnesota at its annual meeting held January 16th and 17th. The proceedings are issued in a well printed volume embellished with sufficient illustrations to lift it out of the commonplace. The volume opens with a portrait of Most Worshipful Grand Master Albert Berg. His face is good to look upon and reflects intelligence and honest conviction. An unusual feature of the proceedings will be found in the report of the Masonic Veterans Association, which is printed as a sort of an addenda to the correspondence report, the expense being paid no doubt by the grand lodge. The grand secretary is to be commended for printing in the report the honor roll containing the names of those of their boys who have enlisted in the service of their country. This is given by lodges and shows that the Masons of Minnesota are not slackers.

A note on the title page reads "Ordered to be read in all lodges." It would be very interesting to know just how this direction is accomplished and what effect it has upon lodge attendance at the particular time when the proceedings are to be read.

The grand lodge opened with the singing of America. The Committee on Credentials reported 207 out of 268 lodges represented. The question naturally arises where were the representatives of the other 61? It looks like somebody ought to start an inquiry.

The address of Grand Master Berg is a plain statement of affairs incident to his office, devoid of any attempt at ornate display. Just why the grand master injected so many quotations from new testament scripture into his report is not understood unless he thinks Ancient Craft Masonry ought to be christianized. He approved the by-laws of 33 lodges from which the idea is gained that the Grand Lodge of Minnesota proposes to see that legislation enacted by its constituent lodges is in accordance with its regulations. Eleven dispensations were issued during the year, all of them of small importance. The grand master very wisely made no decisions but submitted his answers to all questions to the Committee on Jurisprudence for review. Two recommendations were made. One that the master and wardens who are named as officers of a new lodge must furnish a certificate from the Board of Custodians that they are able to open and close and confer the degrees according to the ritualistic requirements of that jurisdiction. This has long been the Illinois way and insures a good working lodge at the outset. Another recommendation was to the effect that the elective officers of the grand lodge and one member of the Board of Custodians should be allowed traveling expenses when accompanying the grand master on official ceremonials and visitations which partake of a public character. The Jurisprudence Committee reported on the above recommendation that so far as the elective officers of the grand lodge were concerned provision was already made for the payment of their expenses but the committee were unable to see any good reason why any member of the Board of Custodians should be carried as a grand lodge exhibit.

Fifty-six requests to confer degrees were received by Minnesota lodges and seventy-six were transmitted to lodges in other states.

The grand master refused to make Masons at sight or to establish military lodges giving as his reason—

Our fraternity is founded upon laws, principles and policies, established and promulgated by the founders.

Our beloved and revered Albert Pike once said:

“The dead govern—the living but obey.”

The grand master had considerable to say about the secrecy of the ballot and quotes Grand Master Gobin of Illinois. He is a new one, as the records of this grand jurisdiction fail to disclose any past grand master of that name. Of course nearly every grand master has something to say about the secrecy of the ballot. It is a fruitful subject.

Following the report of the grand master a rather unusual procedure took place. Those distinguished Iowa brethren so well known to the craft, Brother G. L. Schoonover and Brother H. L. Hayward were announced. A committee was appointed to escort them into the presence of the grand lodge. In due time the committee returned with our distinguished Iowa brethren and also had with them the grand high priest of the grand chapter, the grand master of the grand council, the deputy grand commander of the grand commandery and the sovereign grand inspector general of the Scottish Rite, all of whom were received and warmly welcomed according to the record. But one enterprising brother discovered in the transaction what he considered a very serious omission, and a little later in the proceedings introduced a resolution including the grand patron of the Order of the Eastern Star among the functionaries to be recognized by the grand lodge at its annual meetings. Just why he didn't make it the grand matron, the real head of that organization, is not stated, and the surprising thing about it all is that the grand lodge adopted the resolution. Why not send out and get the presiding genius of the Red Men, the Eagles and the Daughters of Pocahontas and have a real show?

Prior to the report of the grand treasurer a lengthy resolution was presented by Brother W. A. Pittenger providing for the—Formation of a grand body or a Supreme Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons having general and supreme jurisdiction and governing authority over Blue Lodge Masonry and the grand lodges having jurisdiction thereof; such proposed body to consist of representatives from the grand lodges composing the same.

Of course it did not take the Committee on Jurisprudence long to dispose of the resolution, which they did in the following language—

“Be not adopted, as the plan is directly contrary to the plan of Masonic territorial jurisdiction universally in practice in this country.”

A resolution was introduced abolishing that relic of the dark ages, known as the Past Masters degree and the Committee on Jurisprudence recommended an amendment to the by-laws doing away with this useless and annoying procedure.

The report of the grand treasurer shows the receipts of the year to be $22,238.32 and the disbursements $21,781.69. The permanent relief fund, according to the grand treasurer's report, shows a grand total of $124,175.57. A most excellent showing.

The report of the grand secretary gives the total net gain for the year in membership 1,535. In his table under increase he makes use of the word “joined” which probably means the same as affiliation in Illinois. Again under decrease in membership he uses the term “stricken from the roll.” It would be interesting to know the reasons for dropping members from the roll.

The first day's session concluded with a splendid oration delivered by the grand orator, Harry G. Gearhart. This oration is out of the ordinary. It is devoid of Masonic platitudes and deals with the present European war, and its effect upon the institution of Freemasonry. Lack of space forbids any liberal quotation therefrom; but all Masons should take home his closing injunction—

We Masons must all get into this war and fight—fight for our country and our Masonic principles, in one way if not in another. Let us realize that every assistance we give our government, everything we do to help our soldiers, every contribution we make to the Red Cross, everything of which we deprive ourselves in order that our soldiers may be better supplied, everything which we can do to keep the wheels of industry and of commerce moving at a greater efficiency than ever before, everything which we can do to secure the punishment of the spreaders of this seditious talk and thus suppress it, is not only giving to our government the support it deserves from its citizens, but is fighting the battle in defense of the principles and teachings of our order. Let us not be slackers in our obligations to our government or in our obligations to Masonry.

The report of the custodian of the work discloses the fact that in Minnesota they are following very closely along the Illinois plan, the Tuesday evening session of every school being given over to the National Masonic Research Society. The average attendance of the schools this year was 334 and the number of lodges represented at the schools 175.

The Committee on Neerology presented a very brief report of about one page. If the committee read this report to the grand lodge, representatives were no doubt pleased because of its brevity.

Among the various reports of the committees will be found one from the Committee on Ancient Land Marks, from which it is taken that the Grand Lodge of Minnesota has especially organized a home guard to protect the ancient land marks from assault. It is noticeable that about the last thing the grand lodge did was to elect officers. This, of course, strikes us in Illinois as unusual because it has been customary to elect officers in this jurisdiction immediately after the opening of the grand lodge. The principle reason therefore being to prevent any concerted effort toward a political demonstration.

An unusual committee is one called "Our Nation's Welfare." The committee, however, made a most excellent report pledging the loyalty of Minnesota Masons in the present crisis. Copies were ordered sent to the president and the secretary of the treasury.

The grand lodge evidently believes that grand officers should keep their financial transactions within due bounds for the report of the Committee on Appropriations presents a well prepared budget in which various sums are appropriated and set apart to meet the expenses of the grand lodge during the coming year.

The correspondence report is prepared by Brother Irving Todd for the committee. It is a very brief document of sixty-seven pages. He devotes scarcely a page and a half to Illinois. He notes the principle transactions of our session of 1917. Otherwise the review is devoid of either criticism or praise.

MISSISSIPPI, F. & A. M.1918

It required a volume of over six hundred pages to record the transaction of the one hundredth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Mississippi.

The book is printed on a splendid quality of enamel paper and is profusely adorned with the portrait of every grand master serving since the formation of the grand lodge.

The roll of honor as prepared by the grand secretary is printed on pages beautifully embellished with a border of American flags, the top of each page being adorned by a group of flags representing the allied nations. These pages are very striking and are singularly appropriate.

The annual communication which was held in the city of Natchez, commencing February 18, opened with a centennial celebration at which there was rendered a specially prepared program of music, Scriptural readings, hymns and addresses. All the remarks made were befitting the occasion and dealt very largely with the history, growth and development of Masonry in the state of Mississippi.

The 100th annual communication commenced on Tuesday, February 19 at 9:30 a.m. with a public reception at which there were present members of the grand lodge and their ladies. This service was held in the Presbyterian Church at which a musical program and addresses were given. The only address printed in full is that of the worthy grand matron of the Eastern Star in which she undertook to emphasize the intimate relationship existing between Freemasonry and the Stellar System.

Immediately following the public service the grand lodge was opened in ample form.

The grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, Paul H. Murphy, is reported as being present.

The first business was the report of the grand master. He had something to say about the war and expressed the idea that Freemasonry is approaching a new era when all the world will experience and enjoy that for which Masonry from its very inception has contended. The fraternal dead received extended notice from the grand master.

Concerning the grand lecturers the grand master makes the observation that the lodges of the state were not making as good use of them as they should and says—

I wish that all of our subordinate lodges would make better use of the opportunities they have of perfecting themselves in the work and thereby be better enabled to give the candidate for Masonry value received for his initiation fee. Brethren, get busy and use your deputies. Put more "pcp" in your work and you will not fail to get a quorum at your stated communications and thereby allow your lodge to die the slow death of dry rot, for of such a disease most of our lodges which become defunct die, and the sure cure for this trouble is, use your deputies and if unable financially to use them, petition your grand master to send the grand lecturer to you, for he is a most efficient one and always ready to stretch forth his hand and support a weak or falling brother or any number of them who are formed into a lodge.

Concerning the schools of instruction the grand master charges that a few of them seem to have a tinge of dry rot and he exhorts the brethren to get behind the schools and make them a success. He particularly urges the senior deacon to attend for he says that of all the officers of a lodge who should be conversant with the floor work the senior deacon is the most important.

Four cornerstones were laid during the year, only one of them being for a Masonic edifice.

The grand master refused to lay the cornerstone of a government building because the authorities refused to comply with the laws of Masonry in regard to foundation stones. This is an instance where the grand master demonstrated that Masonry was bigger than the U. S. A. There are some who will question the attitude of the grand master in a situation of this kind and who will claim that the rules of the government should have been met and the fraternity not placed in a haughty attitude.

Three dispensations for the formation of new lodges were granted.

The grand master reports that he issued 200 dispensations to ballot out of time and confer degrees. He justifies his action by saying—

Brethren, when doing this I realized my action was, I might say, unheard of in the history of Masoury, but I felt then and do yet, if there is anything that we as Masons can do for the boys who have gone and are going out in defense of all that we as Masons stand for and hold most dear, it is our duty to do it. I have in all cases left it to the good judgment of the lodge as to who should receive the degrees in this manner.

The charters of five lodges were arrested by the grand master, and it is pleasing to find a grand master who has enough backbone to maintain the dignity of Masonry and not permit lodges to flagrantly violate the law and get away with it. What Masonry needs today more than anything else is a little wholesome discipline imposed upon refractory lodges. The result would be that many other lodges would very soon get the idea that Masonry permits no trifling and would at once set their houses in order.

A rather peculiar expression is used in Mississippi in relation to deposing a master. The record calls this action "The arrest of Jewel."

The grand master reports a number of law queries which he states were not referred to the Law Committee, none of them however are of an unusual character.

One lodge was unable to open because the three principal officers had entered the service of their country. Hence it became necessary to send the district deputy as the special proxy of the grand master to open the lodge.

The grand master reported a clandestine lodge calling themselves the American Federation of Masons and operating in a neighboring state. Lodges were urged to keep on a lookout for alleged Masons hailing from this spurious organization.

Among the recommendations of the grand master was one—

That the law as to the county line jurisdiction be repealed and that we know no other jurisdictional lines within the state except the nearest usual traveled route to a lodge regardless of county situation.

Apparently county jurisdictions have not been satisfactory in Mississippi.

The communications of the district deputy grand lecturers immediately follow the address of the grand master. These officials go into detail as to the lodges visited by them, also their accomplishments.

A telegram of confidence was sent to President Wilson. His acknowledgment is printed in the proceedings.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address made a very brief report in which they merely referred to various items contained in the address of the grand master. They made no comments whatsoever concerning his acts.

The record of the Board of Managers for the Masonic Home is a very lengthy document. Those enjoying the privileges of the home are referred to as inmates, a term which would provoke a storm of protest in Illinois where our unfortunates are called members of the home. One hundred and fifty members of the Mississippi Masonic Home were cared for at a cost of $29,874.85 or a monthly per capita expense of $15.48.

The grand secretary, Frederick G. Speed, wrote quite extensively. He states that war certificates attesting the Masonic standing of the holder were sent to every member entering the service. He also records the names of 34 lodges which during the year conferred 20 degrees and over, the largest number conferred by any one lodge being 118. There are lodges in Illinois which last year conferred as high as 300 degrees, but of course that's about all they did do.

The total receipts for the year were $45,720.11. The expenses including maintenance of the Masonic home were $46,116.22.

The oration delivered by the grand orator dealt very largely with the symbolism of Freemasonry. Judging from the deletion it was necessary to severely censor it before it could be put in type. One paragraph is quoted herewith—

I wish to impress upon your minds, Brethren, and through you on the minds of the future initiate whom you will instruct, that the symbols of Freemasonry are not fixed dogmas, but images which are susceptible of indefinite interpretations; and that the true teachings of Freemasonry are not to be found on the surface of its symbolism, nor all included in certain fixed ceremonies. The initiate who, on taking Masonic degrees, fails to appreciate the importance of a careful and close scrutiny of Masonic symbolism, is, I believe, wasting the time and money he devotes to Freemasonry. It is true that he will become enrolled as a member of a very ancient and honorable institution; he will participate in the benefits, so far as they go, of the brotherly love and affection that are supposed to prevail within a Masonic lodge; he will feel that if he dies in indigent circumstances his widow and orphan children will be assisted by the fraternity; he will have the melancholy satisfaction of knowing that if he keeps his annual dues to the lodge paid in full his remains will receive burial with Masonic honors, and that his memory will be cherished to a very limited extent by his brethren after he has passed away; but so far as any comprehensive understanding of the true aims and objects of Freemasonry is concerned, he will continue to remain in the dark if he does not endeavor to look underneath the symbolism of Freemasonry in order that he may discover that which was intended to be symbolized.

The Committee on Law and Jurisprudence didn't have very much to report for the reason, the chairman states, that during the year the grand master kept in close touch with the committee and presented the many perplexing cases which came before him for opinion. Grand Master Cullins showed his wisdom in taking the Jurisprudence Committee into his confidence and as a result he saved himself the embarrassment of having the committee take a poke at him for statements which did not coincide with its views.

One opinion rendered by the committee is a little unusual—

On the refusal of the lodge to reinstate the brother who had been suspended for nonpayment of dues for more than two years, he is entitled to a dismissal certificate, which has the force and effect of a dimit. His status is that of a non-affiliate, and he has the right to petition his own or any other lodge for membership.

The Committee on State of the Craft in Mississippi made a report urging every lodge member to reconsecrate himself to the work of Masonry because of the large number of active young men who have gone into the service of their country the older members being vitally needed in carrying on the work of Masonry.

Illinois' representative, Paul H. Murphy, demonstrated the fact that he is a Mason at heart for he introduced a resolution providing for the creation of an educational fund. His idea was to ask every lodge of the state to contribute $25.00 each year for a period of two years. By this plan a total sum of $20,000 would be raised. This money at 6% would yield an annual income of $1200 which money could be used to a wonderful advantage in educating the children of deceased Masons.

The grand lodge adopted the report and it looks very much as though the Grand Lodge of Mississippi would soon be possessed of a substantial educational fund.

The record states that on motion of the grand secretary two members of local lodges were elected members of the grand lodge with the title of Honorary.

Concerning army lodges the grand lodge adopted the following resolution which is given in full in order that brethren may understand the Mississippi plan of operation—

That the grand master of the Grand Lodge of Mississippi be and he is hereby authorized in his sound judgment to grant dispensations for the organization of war lodges among the Mississippi Masons who are or may be in foreign service, such lodges to be organized as lodges are now organized under dispensation, but with no fixed domicile other than that of the unit in which it shall be organized; the membership of such lodges shall be limited to members of Mississippi lodges. Such lodges to continue only for the period of the war, and to submit reports as other lodges report. Such lodges shall have all the rights and privileges of other lodges, but shall not entertain petitions for initiation or advancement; however, such lodges may confer degrees when regularly requested by any regular lodge not an army lodge. It shall not be necessary for the members of such war lodges to demit from the lodges of which they are now members. Such lodges may be organized before their departure from this country, but shall do no work until after their departure.

Another resolution was adopted requiring every lodge in Mississippi during the period of the war to drape its altar with the American flag.

The records state that the business of the grand lodge having been concluded the mystic circle was formed and words of love and farewell spoken. Evidently the Grand Lodge of Mississippi does not end with a football rush directed toward the location of the Committee on Mileage and Per Diem.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Henry C. Yawn. Illinois is not included among the jurisdictions reviewed. Perhaps the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois were not placed in the hands of Brother Yawn or it may have been that he found nothing in our proceedings of sufficient importance to warrant his notice.

MISSOURI, A. F. & A. M.

The proceedings of our sister jurisdiction on the west are taken up with much interest. The volume is well printed and the stock used is above the average. A portrait of Grand Master Edward Higbee adorns the front page and a picture of ninety-two youngsters of the Masonic Home is of more than passing interest. A beautiful example of the engraver's art is reproduced in the proceedings, being a facsimile of the greetings sent by the Grand Lodge of Missouri to the Grand Lodge of England in honor of the two-hundredth anniversary of its organization.

The prayer of the grand chaplain offered at the opening is Masonic. The first thing done was to send a telegram to the President pledging the loyalty of the Masons of Missouri. Next thing was to receive two ambassadors extraordinary representing the Grand Lodge of Illinois. The proceedings relate that—

Most Worshipful Brother Wm. F. Kuhn, acting as grand senior deacon, introduced M. Wor. Bro. Ralph Wheeler, present grand master of Illinois, and R.W. Bro. Isaac Cutter, present grand secretary, of the same state. They were escorted to the Grand East and accorded the grand honors. Both distinguished brethren responded fittingly with patriotic and fraternal addresses which were enthusiastically received by the brethren.

The grand master's address is a state paper of Masonic importance. In dealing with various questions, he has quoted liberally the opinions of others, whatever may have been his reasons for so doing the craft are more interested in knowing what the grand master himself thinks about these subjects.

He paid his respects to the Prussian war cult in language which cannot be mistaken. He refers to Masonry in the American Revolution, and thinks that the fraternity of the present day should profit from the example set by the illustrious Freemasons who fought in those early days.

The grand master expresses the opinion that military lodges are desirable as a means of doing great good and keeping up an interest in the institution.

He quotes liberally from the writings of others in order to substantiate his position, among them George E. Frazier of Illinois.

The grand master says that he visited as many lodges as time would permit. He believes that any grand master can make himself useful to the craft by visiting lodges and participating in the conferring of degrees.

His statement "if unable to confer the degrees and deliver the lectures to the candidates his visits will be unprofitable" is hereby challenged. Evidently here is a grand master who believes that the sine qua non of Freemasonry is to be found in ritualistic attainment. The grand master does not need to know one line of the ritual to be an efficient force in advancing the cause of Freemasonry.

Brother Higbee makes an extensive report of the George Washington Memorial Association and recommends that the Grand Lodge of Missouri levy a per capita tax of twenty-five cents on all Missouri Freemasons, the same to be used as a contribution to this enterprise.

Concerning the bicentennial of the first grand lodge, the grand master recommends the celebration of the same by the lodges of his state. It would be quite interesting to know just how many of the lodges of Missouri felt sufficient interest in the history and conditions of the society to celebrate this auspicious event.

Regarding Masonic trials the grand master says—

It is of the utmost importance that the trials should be conducted so as to safeguard the interests of the accused and of the craft. Our records show that in many cases findings so reached have been set aside on appeal. On the one hand, many innocent brethren have been humiliated and their characters unjustly besmirched, while, on the other, many clearly proven guilty have been acquitted, to the scandal and disgrace of the fraternity. In my opinion, every trial should be conducted before a committee or jury of disinterested brethren, whose findings should be based solely on the evidence and not on their preconceived opinions.

Illinois sometime ago realized the truth of all that Bro. Higbee has said, and enacted legislation providing for trials by commission.

Among the many cases of discipline mentioned by the grand master is one involving a shooting scrape in the ante-room of a Masonic lodge.

From the report the idea is gleaned that the grand masters of Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Missouri met at Memphis, Tennessee, to consider the question of border jurisdiction. The issue being a uniform method of procedure over the matter of waivers, this is a step in the right direction. The only regret is that all the grand lodges cannot enter into a similar conference and establish some universal rule not only upon the question of waivers, but also transfers of membership and other equally vital matters.

Concerning dispensations to confer degrees in advance of time, the grand master holds that he should be entrusted with the discretion to grant such dispensations, using his best judgment as to the exigencies of the case.

Six cornerstones were laid during the year, none of them being for Masonic edifices.

Among the many dispensations issued were twenty-four to rebalot. Naturally one is curious to know how many of these rebalotings resulted in the election of the candidate.

Five dispensations for the formation of new lodges were granted during the year.

A large number of questions and answers are reported. None of them, however, are unusual.

The grand master found it necessary to take one of the Masonic newspapers to task for asking its readers to patronize its advertisers, all of whom were members of the fraternity. The grand master held that such advertising was in the nature of soliciting patronage, on the ground of being a member of the Masonic fraternity. Another individual who came in for attention from the grand master was a dancing master, who advertised a grand opening of his new dance hall as a Masonic dedication. It is strange at times the uses to which men put Freemasonry. It is often charged that much of the present influx into the fraternity is inspired wholly and solely by business reasons. It sometimes appears as though there were some truth in the statement.

The report of the Committee on Grand Master's Address is concise and to the point. Missouri has evidently found some place to dispose of its past grand masters, for it is noticed that twenty-one of them signed the above report.

The statement of Grand Secretary Parvin is out of the ordinary. He details a number of items which are usually controlled by the grand master's office. His financial account is complete, and leaves no doubt either as to the receipts or expenditures of the grand lodge. He announces a total receipt of $124,824.83. The disbursements were $121,235.31. The books of both the secretary and treasurer are audited by an expert whose certificate is printed in the proceedings.

On the evening of the first day the grand lodge held an evening session which was turned over to the grand lecturer who exemplified several of the degrees.

The following resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee on visitors was unanimously adopted—

Resolved, That the grand master, prior to the opening of the grand lodge, shall appoint a committee consisting of three, to be known as the "Committee on Visitors." It shall be the duty of this committee to receive, introduce, accommodate and look after the entertainment of visiting grand and past grand officers of sister grand jurisdictions. All expenses incurred by this committee shall be presented to the Committee on Ways and Means.

What is the matter with the grand stewards? The installation service enjoins upon the stewards of the lodge the injunction to be attentive to visiting brethren.

Some thoughtful brother, having the best interests of the craft at heart introduced the following amendment to the by-laws, which failed to carry because the Jurisprudence Committee deemed that such action would not be for the best interests of the lodges of the state. Undoubtedly all the committee want a lodge to do is to grind out degrees by rule and rote

The proposed amendment read—

Any one of the three degrees may be conferred upon not more than five candidates at one and the same time, at any special or stated communication; Provided, that such candidates shall be received separately in the first, second and third degrees and shall pass separately through the second section of the third degree. Provided, further, that before degrees shall be conferred on more than one candidate a dispensation from the grand master shall be obtained.

The report of the Committee on Necrology is long. The writer was generous in recording the life and works of Past Grand Master Albert B. Ashley.

The report of the Masonic Employment Bureau is interesting. From July, 1916, to June, 1917, thirteen hundred and forty-two positions were filled at an average cost of $2.09. The work of this bureau is to be highly commended.

On the evening of the second day the grand lodge observed the bi-centennial of the organization of the Grand Lodge of England with an appropriate program. The addresses were all of a very high order. The one which excites the admiration of the writer is by William F. Kuhn on the Evolution of the Operative into the Speculative Craft, and were it not that the injunction Be brief, hangs over his head like the sword of Damocles he would print the entire address.

Brother Kuhn believes that the time has come when the truth should be told about Freemasonry, and that the attempt to connect Freemasonry with circumstances, conditions and Old World societies is dishonesty in itself. He says—

Because a Freemason has a thigh bone does not prove that an Egyptian mummy was a Freemason, because a thigh bone was discovered in him. It is related that a Freemason, with a Moslem pin on the lapel of his coat and a combination watch charm of the double eagle, cross and crown dangling from his vest, accidentally happened on some Egyptologists as they uncovered the grave of a man of the late stone age; in the grave were the remains of the man, food and other things usually found in such tombs, also a stone hammer with a wooden handle attached by withes. When the Freemason saw the hammer he exclaimed: "Eureka, this man was a Freemason and the master of his lodge, because here is his gavel." This incident may not be true, but it is in keeping with some of the eloquence dispensed from Masonic platforms and Masonic papers about "the great antiquity of our great and magnificent order."

His conclusion should be taken home by every member of the fraternity—

In conclusion, I would restate that Freemasonry is a brotherhood and not a secret society; the secret signs, grips and steps, in its ceremonies today, are remnants of its evolution. These remnants are a hindrance to the full glory of Freemasonry in that they create curiosity for the aborigines of the twentieth century and a veil of mystery for the illiterate and self-seeking. Signs, grips and steps are nothing, and ritualism is only secondary to the all-embracing spirit of Freemasonry—Brotherhood.

The grand lodge has a special committee called the Masonic Home Visiting Committee. This strikes the writer as being a mighty good idea. Why shouldn't the Grand Lodge of Illinois have a similar committee? Let them visit our homes and inspect them and give to the grand lodge an account of conditions as they find them. This might result in spurring the trustees to a keener appreciation of their responsibility.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances print in full the names of all defendants with detailed specifications of their offenses. This is extremely bad taste and furnishes the outside world with much undesirable information.

Somebody moved that the grand secretary edit the report of the Committee on Appeals before the same is published. It did not need editing so much as censoring.

The Committee on Recognition of Foreign Grand Lodges gives an extended account concerning the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France and thinks it inadvisable to take formal notice of such grand lodge at this time, stating as a reason—

Your committee holds now, as it has in the past, that a belief in Deity and the open "Book of the Law" on our altars is the very fundamental principle of the fraternity of Freemasons. To acknowledge anything else means chaos and anarchy. For this reason, your committee must again deny fraternal recognition to the Grand Lodge of France.

One thing the grand lodge did was to adopt a uniform system of bonding all officers of the grand lodge, the Masonic home, the boards of relief and employment bureaus.

The correspondence report is prepared by Reverend C. C. Woods. But two and a half pages are devoted to Illinois. He apparently finds little to criticize and nothing to commend. Being a minister he is naturally partial to prayers, and repeats in full the prayer at the opening because of its beauty and reverential tone. He quotes Grand Master Wheeler's introductory remarks in his address to the grand lodge and all that he said about the flag. Concerning Charles H. Martin's report as correspondent he calls it a most worthy one.

Every effort was made to secure proceedings of this grand lodge held in May, 1917. There was, however, no response to the appeal.

NEBRASKA, A. F. & A. M.1918

Through the courtesy of the grand secretary, Francis E. White, it is possible to present a review of the proceedings of this grand lodge, at this time. A request to the grand secretary for a copy of the 1918 Proceedings brought word that the regular volume had not been issued. He stated however, that he was able to forward a proof copy, such as is sent to the lodges of the state, for their examination and correction before final issue. The grand secretary advised that the report of the Committee on Correspondence had not been put in type, and that it was doubtful whether this report would ever be printed.

Grand Secretary White is taking a long chance in enlisting as proof readers the 270 lodges of his jurisdiction. It is safe to say that he gets about 270 suggestions as to the best way to get his book out.

The sixty-first annual communication was held in the city of Omaha, June 4th and 5th, 1918. Two hundred and twenty of the 270 lodges were present at the opening ceremonies. The American flag was escorted into the presence of the grand lodge by a committee of Masonic dignitaries, the representatives present saluting the flag during the singing of America.

The annual address of the grand master, Frederick L. Temple, is short and to the point. He opens with references to the present world struggle and the part that Masonry is playing in its duty to the country. Nebraska has apparently been promulgating a new work, for mention is made of the fact that six schools of instruction were ordered held in prominent cities of the state for the purpose of exemplifying the ritual. The grand master states, however, that the attempt to hold schools of instruction in individual lodges without expense to the lodge itself did not warrant results in proportion to the time, money, and energy expended.

He says that the fault is not with the grand custodian, nor in the method used, but in the attitude and indifference of the lodge members who fail to take advantage of the opportunity offered them.

Two corner-stones were laid by the grand master, one for a public school building, the other for a Methodist church. Five dispensations for the formation of new lodges were issued.

The grand master reports that he granted 275 special dispensations to confer the Fellowcraft and Master Masons degrees out of time, but refused to grant any authority to receive and ballot on a petition, in less than the lawful time. He speaks of the Masonic Home of the state, as the crowning glory of Nebraska Masonry, and pays a tribute to the Order of the Eastern Star for the splendid assistance being rendered by that body.

The grand master commends the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada. One case of trespass of jurisdiction is reported and which was readily adjusted, showing the fraternal feeling that really exists between different grand lodges.

The grand master reports no decisions, stating that he believed the law to be sufficiently clear without any attempt on his part to introduce interpretations thereof, under the title of "Decisions."

He suggests that the payment for banquets and cigars out of the lodge treasury is not consistent with the spirit of the time. One thing the grand master did, and for which he is to be commended, he discouraged the idea of serving any banquet on the occasion of his official visits. He also reports the issuance of an order through the grand custodian that every Masonic Lodge in Nebraska should display the American flag in its lodge room. He states that the order was universally complied with.

The grand secretary, Francis E. White, makes quite a lengthy report. He starts out by getting after secretaries for their neglectful habits, so far as the grand secretary's office is concerned, and he wants the grand lodge to assess full penalties against all secretaries who do not comply with the requirements. It's all right to assess the penalties, providing they are inflicted, but it has been noticed in a large number of jurisdictions where penalties are inflicted that somebody gets up in grand lodge and makes a motion that they be remitted, and it is usually carried with a whoop. Lodges finally come to understand that the penalty for various sins of omission is simply a sort of a teaser.

The grand secretary calls attention to the roll of honor which appears in the proceedings and contains something like 1500 names. Brother White has been giving attention to the question of printing the proceedings, which the grand lodge makes a practice of electrotyping. The grand secretary sees no value in the practice, and recommends its discontinuance. As an evidence of what the electrotyping business means, he calls attention that when the grand lodge moved into its new temple this year, the Transfer Company estimated that they moved 22½ tons of metal electrotype plates. Inasmuch as it required fifty-one wagon loads to move the grand secretary's office and an expense of $351.00 it is no wonder that Brother White would like to discontinue the practice of electrotyping the proceedings of his grand lodge.

The grand secretary makes a detailed financial account of all funds belonging to the grand lodge.

The grand custodian in his report delivers quite an oration. He suggests that it would be a saving of time and expense, both to the craft and himself if lodges would cease submitting questions of law to him. This is a little out of the ordinary. It has been noticed this year that the disposition in several grand jurisdictions has been to make the grand lecturer an encyclopedia of Masonic law and usage. Some grand lodges have even gone so far, as to insist upon examinations on the constitution and by-laws.

The report of the trustees of the Nebraska Masonic Home, show that that institution is abundantly financed. If the writer understands the report correctly there are securities on hand at the present writing of $121,100.00.

An amendment was introduced in grand lodge to come up for consideration next year, amending the law so that one ballot only shall be necessary for the receiving of the three degrees. The following rather peculiar resolution was introduced and adopted—

Resolved, That the incoming grand master be requested to submit his appointments to the grand lodge as soon as possible after his election, which shall be at least one hour prior to installation, so that due inquiry and consideration may be had.

On the evening of the first day, an oration was delivered by John R. Webster, grand orator. He dealt with the present world war and drew Masonic lessons therefrom. He sounds a note of warning in the following paragraph,—

Victory in the trenches may be ours; but behind the trenches lurks a deadlier foe—the spirit of ruthlessness, of outrage, and of wrong. Whether enthroned in palaces of power, or slinking in the hovels of penury, it is the same loathsome thing of villainy and vileness. As a Prussianism it holds the German people in its grip. As Bolshevism it is dragging Russia in the mire of degradation and ruin; and as the Sinn Fein it would chain the Sons of Erin to the chariot wheels of the Kaiser. There has been begotten among men a monster more terrible and repulsive than any dream of mythology. Can it be reality, or is it a nightmare. This “thing with the ugly face” is knocking at our American door. Its ominous growl is sounding in our ears. Shall we grapple it as men, and hurl it back into the hell from whence it came? Then must we “put on the whole armor of God,” and fight with something more than powder and ball; for every thinking mind and every throbbing heart is a field of battle, where victory must be won ere lasting peace can be attained.

The Committee on Dues to Lodges submit a report which is quite interesting, as they go into many details concerning the affairs of the Nebraska constituents which disclose internal conditions as they really are. The dues of Nebraska lodges vary from $1.50 to $6.50.

The Committee on Jurisprudence submit a very brief report dealing with purely local matters.

The Committee on the Care of Orphans make a detailed report showing that the Masons of Nebraska are thoroughly alive to their duty and are doing splendid work in caring for the dependents.

The report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, reports that they have had under consideration the question of extending recognition to the Grand Lodge of Panama, and recommends that said request be denied. The committee arrive at the same conclusions as did the Grand Lodge of Illinois, at its last annual meeting.

The grand lodge closed with the installation of officers.

As heretofore noted, there is no report on foreign correspondence.

NEVADA, F. & A. M.

The title page of the proceedings which come to us in a volume of two hundred and fifty pages contains the notation "To be read in all lodges." It is noticeable that the annual communication was held in the city of Reno, that city which we, in this part of the country, look upon as the city of "Eternal Triangles."

It must be pleasant to attend a grand lodge composed of such a small number of representatives because everyone has the opportunity of getting acquainted with his neighbor.

As soon as the grand lodge was opened a Masonic veteran accompanied by the grand stewards, entered the hall carrying the American flag, while the grand lodge arose and sang America.

A splendid tribute to Old Glory was then given by Brother Harry H. Atkinson. He said in part—

Conceived at the battle of Lexington when the bullets of the Minute Men spelled death to the Red Coats, born on the fourth day of July, in the year 1776 in the image and character of the Declaration of Independence, sustained and vindicated on land and sea in the conflict of 1812, its dominion was enlarged and extended in the war with Mexico to cover that territory out of which the battle-born state of Nevada was formed; but only to be again defended and preserved from disruption and ruin by the boys of '61. Flying for humanity, its magnanimous folds spread over the ignorant and suffering of Cuba in 1898, rescued the unfortunate natives of the Philippine Islands from ignorance and religious tyranny, and now unfurls its broad mantle of enlightenment and democracy on behalf of the crying millions of the old world in a God-like endeavor to help them in their fight for freedom from oppression, for the establishment of a world peace, and, for a government of the people, by the people and for the people. "May we ever be faithful to its leadership, may we ever sanctify it, love it, and with might and main strengthen its influence for the freedom of peoples, of thought and of religion, so that its stars will ever be the beacon light of liberty, and its stripes the never failing pathway leading to everlasting joy and felicity."

It is quite apparent that the meeting of the grand lodge partook something of a social nature, for there is noted an invitation on behalf of Reno Lodge No. 13 to the officers and members of the grand lodge and their ladies to attend a reception and entertainment in their honor on Wednesday night.

The Committee on Credentials reports that twelve out of the thirty-three lodges were not represented, and the total number in attendance at the grand lodge was 101.

The grand master makes a very brief report, but it is none the less interesting. Immediately following his preliminary remarks he pays a tribute of respect to those who have gone on before. He called upon the grand secretary to read the roll of the dead, which was done. The grand chaplain was then escorted to the altar and prayer was offered. This certainly must have been a very impressive service.

The grand master reports a number of visitations, and regrets that it is smaller than he had hoped for. He says that numerous questions have been submitted to him but that none of the answers are of sufficient importance to be dignified as decisions.

Several by-laws were approved showing that the grand lodge keeps strict supervision over the acts of its constituents.

All requests to confer degrees by courtesy are reported in full.

One thing the Grand Master did was to ask all the Masons of his state to take an obligation of fidelity. On this subject he says—

Masonry stands where it has always stood—for that which is right, for that which is true, and at its sacred altar its members are pledged to be true to their government, just to their country, to submit patiently to legal authority and to conform with cheerfulness to the mandates of the land in which they live. Though the spirit of Freemasonry is antagonistic to war, and while every Masonic lodge is a temple of peace, harmony and brotherly love, still to be good Masons we must be good citizens. We love our country and its institutions from the highest motives that can inspire the soul of citizenship.

In consonance with these teachings and in unison with our sister grand jurisdictions throughout the land I ask the Masons of Nevada in annual communication assembled to pledge their allegiance to the government and its flag, the Stars and Stripes, and to the principles of right and justice for which they stand, representing "one country, indivisible, with liberty and justice to all."

Among his recommendations was one suggesting that the law be changed so that two lodges might hold joint meetings for the purpose of installing officers.

The grand master evidently believes with the writer that lodges are devoting too much time to ritualistic endeavor for in his conclusion he says—

I am of the opinion that more time should be given to the study of the design and philosophy of Freemasonry. Occasional addresses by well informed brethren will best accomplish this. Not that I wish to imply that I do not approve of a close conformity to the ritual, but there is a broader and grander spirit in our institution than can be expressed in the mere formula of words. To keep step with the advance of civilization and brotherhood we must not forget that instruction of the noblest kind should attend a Mason's researches, and that in the diligent pursuit of knowledge, the intellectual faculties are employed in promoting the glory of God, and the good of man.

The report of the grand secretary partakes somewhat in the nature of a master's address. It is noticed from the list of expenditures that this official draws a salary of but $600.

The Committee on the Washington Memorial voices their sympathy in the project but deems it impossible at this time to take further action.

The Committee on Correspondence is evidently a very important person in Nevada, for the reason that he is called "The Grand Commissioner of Review." There must be something very fascinating about that word "grand," for it seems to be an inherent trait of the individual to tuck it on wherever possible.

Concerning a communication from the Grand Lodge of Cuba relative to the holding a Masonic convention at the close of the present war, for the establishment of a permanent peace and closer relation between Masonic grand bodies of the world, the grand lodge voted to lend to the movement its cordial support.

The master of instruction, commonly called in Illinois a grand examiner, in his ramifications about the state, came across one lodge which seemed to want to get out of the rut for he observes—

In company with our grand secretary I visited Churchill Lodge, No. 26, the occasion being a "get-together" meeting of the members of that lodge, to inaugurate plans whereby the lodge might serve as a more useful organization. The members of this lodge feel that their lodge should be interested in the welfare and upbuilding of a better spirit in the community, and that our lodges should be educational centers, devoting at least one meeting night a month to the consideration of some civic, economic or Masonic subject. This does not serve to inject partisan politics into our lodges. It is simply a display of public spirit.

The Grand Lodge of Nevada does one thing which might well be imitated by other grand lodges. It provides an educational fund whereby deserving children of Master Masons may be given proper schooling.

The Committee on Legitimacy of Grand Lodges submitted a report deferring recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama until the next annual meeting.

They made a further report concerning a spurious organization. It is in its entirety herewith—

Your committee to whom was referred the communication of the grand secretary of Utah regarding the "American Masonic Federation" would respectfully report that we have had the same under consideration and are of the opinion and would recommend that our grand secretary warn constituent lodges of this grand jurisdiction to beware of the aforesaid spurious organization and their publication called the "Universal Freemason." We ask that the grand secretary read said communication to this grand body so that its members may have due notice thereof.

The Grand Lodge of Nevada proposes to line itself up with other similar organizations, for a resolution was passed providing for the appointment of deputy masters of instruction.

Just before the close of the ceremonies the grand representatives of other grand lodges nearest Nevada were formally presented and grouped about the altar. Charles E. Mack, representing Illinois, was present.

In the closing hours the following general regulation was adopted—

The grand secretary is empowered to collect the sum of nine dollars per annum from every member of an extinct lodge residing in the state of Nevada who desires to pay his dues to the grand lodge. He shall retain one dollar thereof for the revenues of the grand lodge and pay the balance over to the lodge holding jurisdiction over the member of an extinct lodge so paying his annual dues to the grand secretary.

It looks to the writer as though it would be much cheaper for the stay outs to affiliate and pay dues in some existing lodge.

The report on correspondence is written by E. D. Vanderleith, who signs himself the grand commissioner of review.

He refers to the fact that the proceedings of the grand lodge are ornamented by full page portraits of L. A. Goddard and Isaac Cutter. He made no mistake when he used the word "ornamented," but we in Illinois regard them for their useful qualities rather than for their ornamental ones.

He characterizes Grand Master Wheeler's address as an admirable narrative and quotes generously therefrom.

He likes the idea of the advisory council and the regional districts created by Brother Wheeler—

Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler's address is an admirable narrative of an active business administration. Upon his induction into office he requested permission to name an advisory council. He found it of inestimable value and recommends the continuance of the practice. We can readily see how it would be productive of much good and await its adoption in other grand jurisdictions. Brother Wheeler, though a worker himself, does not believe in letting others flag. The state was divided into three regions and he assigned one to each of his three principal officers. The work advanced from strength to strength and results show that it will be finer and more impressive in its influence.

Of his visitations to lodges, he says—

The visitations averaged nearly nine a month. An enviable record. Such visits are refreshing to the visited, they carry new life and it is amazing how the vigor multiplies, and how the gift passes on to others.

Trials by commissions, lodge publications, political discussions as treated by Brother Wheeler are highly commended. The grand commissioner of review quotes nearly half a page from Brother Osear Kropf's oration which he characterizes as an instructive address.

Of the correspondence report of Brother Chas. H. Martin he says—

He has written with discrimination, the doings of the Masonic world are clearly set forth and his comments are to the point.

The writer likes Brother Vanderleith's remarks concerning the use of the word "universality"—

Universality is surely an all-embracing word, but its use in a boasting way is both harmful and wearisome. Vauntings akin to the sun never setting on the vast world of Freemasonry are idle. What Masonry is concerned with is the greatest happiness for the greatest number of the brotherhood of man, and getting at it through its teachings, by its craftsmen, in the most practical way is the best method of accomplishment. Character, and service through character are what count.

NEW BRUNSWICK, F. & A. M.1918

The grand lodge met in April. Proceedings not received.

NEW HAMPSHIRE, F. & A. M.1918

The book of proceedings opens with a half-tone portrait of Grand Master Abraham L. Garmon, who served during 1917. The book also contains portraits of deceased members of the fraternity who held official positions as well as an honor roll of all members of New Hampshire lodges engaged in the service of their country. Among the portraits is one of Josiah L. Seward, a man of unusual intellectuality and oratorical ability. His dissertations upon the subject of Freemasonry were of exceptional merit.

Following the English custom, a semi-annual meeting of the lodge was held on St. John's Day, December 27, 1917. The afternoon and evening were devoted to an exemplification of the ritual, otherwise no business was transacted.

The annual communication of the grand lodge was held May 15, 1918, in the city of Concord. The grand lodge was opened in ample form after which Grand Master A. L. Garmon read his address. His opening remarks are very brief, and are followed by extended obituary reports, concerning the prominent dead of his own jurisdiction. A long list of dispensations is reported, many of which were to confer degrees out of time. Numbers of degrees were conferred by courtesy, showing that New Hampshire has been no exception in the present demand for the honors of Masonry.

He calls attention to the Masonic Home and the great good that is being accomplished by that institution and urges all members of the grand lodge to remember it in their wills.

Among the recommendations made by the grand master are the following:—that the fees exacted for conferring degrees in less than the lawful time, be remitted in the case of petitioners engaged in war service; also that the salary of the grand secretary be increased $200.00 per annum. Appended to the report of the grand master are the reports of the district deputy grand masters, which go very much into detail concerning official visits made by these officers.

Following the address of the grand master a resolution was adopted, levying an assessment of $1.00 upon each lodge member as a war fund.

A report was presented on the conference of grand masters held in the city of New York on May last, and it was unanimously voted that the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire join in the over-seas work, and the sum of $1,000 was appropriated for that purpose.

No report appears in the proceedings from either the grand secretary or the grand treasurer, the matters usually considered by them are handled by the Finance Committee in a detailed statement made by them.

The election and installation of officers concluded the business of the annual communication.

The Grand Lodge of New Hampshire evidently does not believe in wasting any time, as but one day was devoted to the transaction of the business of the grand lodge.

The Masonic Home appears to be treated as a separate enterprise, for a very handsome half-tone portrait of that institution together with a report thereon, to the grand lodge, appears as the last thing in the book of proceedings. The home is sustained by contributions from various sources. The grand lodge per capita tax yielded the sum of $5,555.50, while the Eastern Star chapters of the state contributed the sum of $410.00. The operating expenses of the home for the year were, $6,931.38. As the home has but sixteen members it will be seen that the maintenance cost per capita was $433.00.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared, by Harry M. Cheney. He makes a brief review of the report of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler, commending him particularly because of his putting a stop to the giving of gifts to the grand master. Concerning the refusal to issue dispensations to receive petitions and confer degrees in less than the lawful time, Brother Cheney observes, "This does not jibe with our notions, which are of course, of no worth in Illinois."

The correspondence report of Charles H. Martin is characterized as being "man-sized, inclusive and a bureau of information."

NEW JERSEY, F. & A. M.

1918

The one hundred and thirty-first annual communication was held in the city of Trenton, April 17th and 18th, 1918. The book of proceedings, which is under review, is in keeping with the dignity of New Jersey Masons. A steel engraving of William M. Thompson, grand master for 1917, adorns the front page. Illustrations of Masonic Temples are also scattered through the proceedings.

The injunction to be read in all lodges, appears on the title page. The conjecture naturally arises as to just how this is accomplished. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to make Bob Sheriffs reading clerk of the grand lodge, and have him visit the several lodges of the jurisdiction, for the purpose of reading to the brothers, the record of proceedings. His sonorous "Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye!" would awaken the heaviest sleeper.

The grand lodge was opened in ample form, after which William M. Thompson, grand master, read his annual address. He refers to the increase in membership the past year, as the greatest in the history of New Jersey Masonry, and expresses the thought that this unprecedented prosperity ought to enable the fraternity to carry into effect its objects and purposes.

Concerning the future of Freemasonry, he says,—

It will endeavor to unite all men of intelligence and of good will, it will be all powerful to assure in society the reign of equality, of justice for all, of lasting peace, and of real concord among all peoples for all generations. It has been a part of the life and growth and inspiration of men in the past, and so will it be in the time to come. Its potency will remain, while men remain to teach the sublime principles of fraternity, good will, and universal brotherhood.

Six new lodges were constituted during the year, and two dispensations issued for the formation of new lodges. Two corner-stones were laid, one for a Masonic temple, the other for a high school building.

The grand master reports a long list of visitations, to the lodges of his jurisdiction, and thinks that—

These visitations are truly the bright spots in the life of a grand master, without which he cannot strengthen the ties of friendship which form a vast line of sympathy and help.

In referring to the condition of the Masonic Home of the state, the grand master calls the attention of the grand lodge to the fact, that the sum of thirty cents, now paid by the lodges as a per capita tax for the maintenance of the home is not sufficient and recommends that the amount be increased to fifty cents.

The grand master reports that he had refused to use the Charity Fund of the grand lodge for the maintenance of widows and dependents who desired to live in their home communities, on the ground that the equality of Freemasonry forbade discrimination in matters of this sort and that, if they desired the assistance of Freemasonry, they should go into the Masonic Home.

The writer cannot help but think that the grand master of New Jersey takes a wrong view of the subject. Charity cannot be dispensed by rule and rote. There are many elements that enter into its administration, all of which must be considered.

The grand master reports that during the year, he received 124 requests for permission to receive petitions from applicants possessing physical defects. Each case was investigated by the district deputy of the district wherein the petitioner resided and a full record of the case and the decision thereon was filed with the grand secretary. The grand master recommended that the practice of printing in the proceedings, a tableau of work done by the constituent lodges, be discontinued for the reason that it served no real purpose. A few more grand masters ought to make the same recommendation to their grand lodges.

The dispensation business of the grand master netted the very handsome sum of $2,080.00, which amount the grand master recommended be made the nucleus of a fund to be known as the Grand Lodge War Fund.

Concerning the indiscriminate issuance of dispensations the grand master has the following to say,—

I cannot reconcile myself to the belief that it is necessary to obliterate the landmarks, throw down our traditions, and ignore the immemorial usages and customs of our fraternity, even in war times, in order to be true Americans and loyal to our country. The making of Masons by the wholesale, and particularly those not of lawful age, is in direct opposition to the basic principles of Masonry, and necessarily offensive to every true Mason. The whole fabric of Masonry has been constructed on a strict adherence to the ancient landmarks, usages and customs, which is the very quintessence of Masonic jurisprudence; so important is it considered to preserve these ancient landmarks, that in the installation of every master of a lodge he is solemnly called on to acknowledge "that it is not in the power of any man, or body of men to make innovations in the body of Masonry."

Concerning the introduction of the flag into our Masonic Lodges the grand master expressed pleasure at seeing it displayed in nearly every Masonic Lodge visited. He did however, deprecate,—

The custom practiced in some jurisdictions of using the flag to decorate the altar. The universality of our order forbids that the flag of any country should decorate the sacred altar of Freemasonry anywhere in the world. The altar is to be used exclusively for the support of the three great lights of Masonry, symbolizing a belief in God, over which any Mason may salute without regard to race, country, or religion. What place more fitting and appropriate could be designated for the flag in our lodges than the East, the place of light.

The grand master refused all requests for lodges to appear in regalia on any other occasions than those strictly Masonic.

He recommended that all lodges in the jurisdiction be required to do their work in the English language.

The necessity of a practical and dependable code for trial was called to the grand lodge and the recommendation made that a committee be appointed to secure this most needed formula.

Something must have happened to the tylers in New Jersey for the grand master recommended that the law be changed to read as follows,—

The tyler of a lodge need not be a member thereof, but must be a member of a lodge in good standing in this grand jurisdiction.

The grand master called attention to the careless manner in which lodges were receiving and acting upon petitions of soldiers, regardless of the legal requirement as to residence and calls attention to the fact that it looked a little peculiar that a man would live ten or fifteen years within the jurisdiction of a lodge and never think about petitioning it, and the moment that he finds out that he is going to war, come to the conclusion that Masonry is a good thing and immediately present his petition.

The grand treasurer reports general receipts of $59,570.72, and expenditures of $76,358.06. The report of the grand treasurer is the usual document. He shows the net gain of the year to be $3,100.00, the largest in the history of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey.

The report of the Committee on the Masonic Home, shows that that institution has 87 "inmates." From the report it is apparent that the home is well managed and is doing splendid work.

The report of the Committee on Necrology is extremely long, the dead of each lodge in the jurisdiction, receiving proper mention.

The Grand Lodge of New Jersey believes in getting its work done regardless of the length of time it may take to do it, for the first day, an evening session was held, at which the esoteric work of the three degrees was exemplified by the grand instructor.

On the morning of the second day the Committee on Foreign Correspondence made a brief report extending recognition to the Grand Lodge of France, the Philippines and the Grand Lodge of Panama. The grand lodge very promptly adopted the report. A second report by this same committee, was also adopted. It extended recognition to the Grand Orient of France.

One thing the grand lodge did, was to present a resolution to the effect that the grand lodge dues of soldiers and sailors enlisted in the service of their country, be remitted. Objection being made to the immediate consideration of the proposition, it went over for one year.

The Committee on Jurisprudence recommended an amendment to the by-laws to the effect that a three-fourths vote by ballot shall be necessary to grant permission to another lodge to receive the petition of a rejected candidate.

The election and installation of officers concluded a busy and interesting session.

One thing the grand lodge did, and that was to allow the Committee on Correspondence the sum of $500 together with an appropriation of $100 for translations.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by that distinguished juggler of English, and coiner of unheard of phrases, Robert J. Sheriffs. The report is somewhat of a disappointment, because it is apparent that with our reviewer the scissors have been mightier than the pen. Of course, this has been a busy year for many of us, and we have been compelled to shirk wherever we could. It would have been interesting, however, to have had more of the personal comments of Brother Sheriffs than appear in the report under review. However, he is forgiven, because the writer likes him personally and recognizes his high character as a Mason, and his adherence to Masonic fundamentals. One thing however, ought to be explained, and that is, why, Illinois is not included in the New Jersey review of 1918. This omission has been noticeable in one or two other reviews, and if the fault rests with Illinois in not getting its proceedings into the hands of these several jurisdictions, then the remedy will be sought here, but the writer has a suspicion that if Doctor Watson were put on the job, the discovery would be made that some grand secretaries have not been as attentive as they should have been in seeing that the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois were placed in the hands of the reviewer.

NEW MEXICO, A. F. & A. M.1917

The proceedings open with the record of nine emergent communications of the grand lodge called for the purpose of dedicating temples and laying cornerstones.

In connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new Masonic temple at Tucumeari the grand orator defined Freemasonry as—

The subjugation of the base that is in man, by the Divine; the conquest of appetites and passions by the moral sense and reason; a continual effort, struggle and warfare of the spiritual against the material and sensual. That victory, when it has been achieved and secured and the conqueror may rest upon his shield and wear the well earned reward "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord."

The fortieth annual communication was held in the city of LasCruces on Monday, October 8th, 1917.

The first thing of interest was the reception of the traveling bible sent out by Equity Lodge No. 878 of Chicago, which up to that time had visited twenty-seven different lodges in twelve jurisdictions and had traveled the distance of 20,000 miles. A committee was appointed to receive the bible and to properly inscribe the same. There is nothing in the record, however, to show that any passages were read to the brethren from this great light in Masonry.

The report of Grand Master Alonzo B. McMillen, is a state paper of importance in which the various affairs which came under his notice during the year were dealt with in a forceful manner. He reports the craft in the state to be in a prosperous, harmonious condition. The usual amount of requests to confer degrees for other lodges were received and transmitted.

Among the various dispensations issued was one to a lodge permitting it to sublet its hall to the Knights of Pythias.

Another lodge was granted permission to sublet its hall to the Order of the Eastern Star. Evidently the Grand Lodge of New Mexico proposes to know just what sort of meetings takes place in halls that are used for Masonic purposes.

The grand master refused to issue a dispensation permitting a lodge to hold its election of officers on another night than Christmas night.

He refused to permit a lodge to rent an Odd Fellows hall for the reason that under the laws of New Mexico no lodge is permitted to lease from any other organization but must have absolute control of its own rule.

The grand master apparently believes in upholding the landmarks of Masonry and it shows very clearly that he knows what they are. In numerous parts of his address, in order to substantiate some view which he holds, he cites some one of the landmarks to prove the correctness of the stand which he takes.

He makes the following point which is well taken—

The tendency of the people of this country is to attempt to cure everything by legislation, and that without any particular consideration or any training for the work. Hundreds of thousands of new acts are presented every year to Congress and various legislatures. The same tendency is sometimes found in Masonic affairs. Nothing in my opinion could be more dangerous. No one is fit to write a by-law for any grand jurisdiction of Masonry who is not thoroughly familiar with its landmarks; and certainly no one is fit to write by-laws for a subordinate lodge who is not familiar with the Ancient Landmarks of Masonry and also with the constitution and by-laws of the grand lodge of the jurisdiction. One of the great benefits, and our boast for Masonry, is its universality. But there can be no universality of Masonry if it is the subject of legislation without regard to those ancient landmarks and principles which constitute the universality of Masonry.

New Mexico is following very closely along the Illinois line of endeavor for the grand master says—

The work of the grand master has been greatly supplemented by the able district deputy grand masters. Almost every lodge in this grand jurisdiction was visited one or more times by the several district deputy grand masters, and detailed reports made on blanks furnished for that purpose, and in most cases written communications of great interest upon the condition of the several lodges within this jurisdiction.

The grand master had some trouble over electioneering for office in one of his lodges and cites a bill of particulars which shows the extent to which electioneering can be carried—

Electioneering in at least one of the subordinate lodges has been common for a number of years, and increasing each year. It has gone beyond a friendly rivalry and has attempted to stir up a class hatred. At the last election there was known to be a "slate" in opposition to those holding office and in line for promotion. The voting for those in line is not unusual, because they are supposed to be advanced unless there is some good reason for the contrary; but there is no means under our Masonic practices of knowing who are to be voted on in opposition. As I recollect, there was an opposition candidate for every office except one. The exception to which I refer got exactly the same number of votes as the other members on the slate, as against a brother who was his superior in office, and this exception was advanced to the next higher office by unanimous vote, thus combining the opposition vote and those of the brothers who were voting to advance the officers in regular line. On this particular occasion all the members of the lodge had been summoned to attend and there was an unusually large attendance; yet more than one-third of the total number present voted as a unit for the opposition candidates as above stated.

He asked that the law be amended granting the grand master power to stay the installation of any brother elected to office through methods of a political character.

The concluding remarks of the grand master were as follows—

It behooves every citizen of this great Republic to stand by the president and his country in this great contest. If he can not fight he can work. If he cannot work he can contribute of his means, and if he is not able, through misfortune, to perform any of these services, he can still be a patriot. There is no room for "slackers" or traitors; all must follow the flag, so that not a star of its bright galaxy shall be dimmed or a fold of its bright colors soiled by disloyalty.

The grand treasurer reports receipts $5,828.73 and expenditures of $4,979.05.

The grand secretary presents a very concise report and makes no attempt whatsoever to rival the grand master nor to furnish the grand lodge with a lot of advice. He seems to appreciate the fact that he is the clerk of the grand lodge, and has kept himself within due bounds.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address make a report very unusual in character. A number of the so-called rulings and decisions of the grand master are approved by this committee while others are disapproved.

One ruling makes the writer sit up and take notice. It appears that a lodge in New Mexico conferred the degrees by courtesy for a lodge in Missouri. It happened that the candidate only had one leg and as New Mexico adheres to the old idea of physical perfection a great hullabaloo was made with the result that the Committee on Grand Master's Address came before the lodge with a ruling to the effect—

That any member of another jurisdiction applying for the conferring of degrees in this jurisdiction by request must be able to conform to the requirements of this jurisdiction. In so holding we do not attempt to criticize or invade the right of other jurisdictions to prescribe such qualifications as they may see fit, but insist that we must, by precept and example, in conferring degrees in our subordinate lodges, conform strictly to the requirements of this jurisdiction.

Why doesn't the Grand Lodge of New Mexico get right with itself and refuse to allow its lodges to confer any degrees by courtesy? Why be so discourteous as to say to the Grand Lodge of Missouri that any of its candidates expecting favors from New Mexico must measure up to the Masonic requirements of that state?

The grand secretary was made happy because his salary was increased to $1,500 per year. The grand lecturer also got a boost being allowed $4.00 per diem and mileage.

The writer looked in vain for the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence. It is presumed that the committee if such there be were forced to take a back seat in view of the pretentious report made by the Committee on Grand Master's Address.

The report on fraternal correspondence is prepared by Brother John Milne. He opens by saying—

The grand master divided his state in much the same way that Grand Master Pollard of New Mexico did during his administration last year.

He then outlines the plan adopted by Grand Master Wheeler.

Other transactions adopted by the grand lodge are commented upon and briefly reviewed.

Concerning the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin, he says—

He does not deal in criticism alone, but gives much information gleaned from the proceedings of the jurisdictions reviewed.

This grand lodge holds quarterly communications and each is treated separately in the 29th annual report which is under review.

At the quarterly communication held September 13, 1916, Grand Master William Thompson made a brief address, the principal portion of which was devoted to a recital of his visitations to lodges. He reports the issuance of 135 dispensations, some of which are new to us Illinoisans, such as permission to occupy chair 3rd year, initiation of a Lewis, and permission to wear regalia.

The grand master states that he has given many dispensations permitting brethren in the service to take their subsequent degrees at intervals of not less than seven days.

The report of the Board of General Purposes which seems to have in charge the affairs of the grand lodge reports the approval of by-laws, appointment of grand representatives and various other items which usually fall to the care of the grand master. It is apparent that the board looks after these details and submits its findings to the grand master for approval.

The grand inspector of workings makes quite a lengthy report in which he goes into detail concerning lodges visited and inspected by him.

An effort was made in grand lodge to have two inspectors of workings but after much discussion the proposed amendment was defeated.

The roll of honor which is attached to the proceedings giving the names of all members of lodges who enlisted with the Australian Expeditionary Forces is a long one, and brings home to the observer the realities of war.

At the quarterly communication held December 13, 1916, the grand master made a very brief address. He reported that of 1908 members at the Front, 75 had been reported killed.

The War Benevolent Fund contained something over $30,000, a sum which the grand master considered inadequate to the requirements. He urged steps to be immediately taken to augment this fund.

He reports that for the first time he issued a dispensation permitting the initiation of six candidates, five of whom were brothers and one the son of another brother.

The Board of General Purposes recommended a rather peculiar amendment to the book of constitutions—

Provided also that where an adverse opinion has been given by the lodge or lodges from which inquiry has been made, as to the candidate's fitness for admission, the candidate shall not be balloted for unless the matter be referred to the Board of General Purposes for inquiry and decision.

The grand inspector of workings made a long report which shows that he was active in attending to his visitations and inspections.

The quarterly communications of March 14th and June 12th were very similar to those previously reviewed.

The grand master recites that—

A letter also from Belgium stating their intention, in order to signify their appreciation of what Australia has done, to dedicate a lodge to be called "Australis," with the G. M. of this Jurisdiction as its first master. Nothing can be done till the barbarous invader is compelled to relax his grip on that unhappy little state, but I am sure the proposed compliment will be sincerely appreciated by the brethren throughout this commonwealth.

The Board of General Purposes report the formation of a new lodge at West Maitland to be known as Mindaribba. They also state that—

A letter was received from the new proprietors of the "Keystone" newspaper, asking for recognition as the official organ of grand lodge. The board resolved that the request to publish the "Keystone" under the sanction of grand lodge be granted, and that the proprietors be informed that should any matter be published that, in the opinion of the board, was prejudicial to the interests of Freemasonry in New South Wales, such sanction would be withdrawn.

Here is an idea for Grand Master Serogin's advisory council. Why not have them censor the Masonic newspapers of the state?

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence at the June quarterly makes a rather unique report. He says—

In the interests of N.S.W. brethren we have spent laborious hours, and burned the midnight oil, in our endeavour to gather, from the reports of foreign Masonic lodges, some information which will prove instructive and interesting to them.

But, after all is done, we regret that our general experience, gained by conversations with brethren with whom we foregather in our lodges from time to time, points to the fact that our work is not even perused, so that it can neither be criticised nor appreciated, and we are sometimes inclined to ask cui bono? and often to say despondingly—"Alas! alas; my labour is lost."

Our consolation is that we have a mandate from this grand lodge for our work, and as Masons we are pledged to obedience. We shall, therefore, go on treading the path of duty with a stout heart and a clear conscience, and remembering for our consolation that the Stone which the Builders rejected, possessing merits to them unknown, ultimately became the head Stone of the Corner, we shall still cherish the hope that the work we present to our brethren will ultimately be approved and appreciated, and we may be able to say "Thanks be to God, I have my reward."

There is much truth in all that he has said. Not every lodge member is interested in the reports on foreign correspondence but there are brethren in every grand jurisdiction who look forward to these statements and who read them from "kiver to kiver." It is for these brethren who are really interested in the growth and development of the institution of Freemasonry that the midnight oil is burned in an effort to gather something that will claim the attention of the Masonic student.

The report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence is prepared by S. Scott Young. Illinois is not reviewed, and we sincerely hope that our genial grand secretary, Isaac Cutter, will take it upon himself to see that a copy of our proceedings gets into the hands of the correspondent of New South Wales as we are naturally quite anxious to know what he may have to say concerning our endeavors.

NEW YORK, F. & A. M.

The book of proceedings of the largest grand jurisdiction in the states is taken up with much interest. It is seldom that any grand lodge meets during interim. However, Grand Master Thomas Penney found it necessary to assemble the Grand Lodge of New York, on Monday morning, September 10, 1917, to consider various important issues brought up as a result of America's participation in the war.

As to his reason for assembling the grand lodge, Grand Master Penney made the following statement, which ought to be taken home by every grand jurisdiction:

I have been told by those who are wise in Masonic law that there is inherent in the grand master certain prerogatives not limited by the constitution, and that I had, as grand master, a perfect right to do a great many things which are not outlined in the constitution. I appreciate that great honor and the importance of that suggestion, but I have had two things in mind in thinking of that. Brethren, you know and I know for many years it has been the policy of this great jurisdiction to define in written form as far as it could the powers of its various officers. Whether it has comprehended all of the powers of the grand master I am not now going to discuss; but the policy of the grand lodge has been to express through a constitution the powers of its various officers, and I think personally that it would be inopportune to attempt at this time to exercise the broad prerogatives which have been for such a long time unused without at least conferring with and securing the support of this great fraternity as a whole.

For a long time the idea has obtained in many quarters that the grand master of a grand lodge was a law unto himself. In other words that he could do pretty much as he pleased without getting into trouble for his acts. Again it has been assumed that a grand master possessed certain autoeratic powers, that he might create Masons at sight and by an instanter process deprive members of their existing rights. Just when this assumption of unwarranted powers fastened itself upon the fraternity is unknown. It must have grown out of the self importance of individuals, for there is nothing in the traditions or history of Freemasonry to warrant the so called "autoeracy" of grand masters. Grand Master Penney has shown himself to be every inch a Mason and a man to be trusted with the affairs of his grand lodge.

The principal matters taken up at this occasional were the formation of sea and field lodges. Quite a lengthy report was made by a special committee on that question with the result that a resolution was introduced and adopted providing for the formation of such lodges during the period of the war.

Another subject which was presented, appertained to the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France. John L. Thomas introduced a resolution, providing for the recognition of French Masonry.

In speaking before the grand lodge in favor of his resolution, Brother Thomas said—

This boy of mine, and your boy,—some of you are going to France,—you have given them a chance to have their Masonic associations in their own lodges in France. I want that boy of mine, and your boy, to be able to go into the lodges of the Grand Lodge of France and preach to them intimately, humanly, heart to heart, the doctrine that there can be no brotherhood of men except in the fatherhood of God, whom we adore.

If Brother John expects the regeneration of French Masonry through the preaching process of our soldier boys, he is taking a mighty long chance.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, but not however, until William Sherer, one of the pillars of strength in New York Masonry, and been heard from. He said—

This question of fraternal relationship with the Grand Lodges of France has been up before the grand lodge on many occasions. Men who have gone before, the Fathers in Masonry, have held to this, that we could not have formal relations, fraternal relations, with a grand body that did not recognize the Deity, and did not have the bible on the altar. Three grand lodges of France—one of them I think has jurisdiction over three lodges, and I am surprised that one has jurisdiction over one hundred and thirty-six—I guess they are very thin—but, however, brethren, Bro. Thomas, who is associated with me on the Committee of Foreign Correspondence, did not submit this resolution to me at all. I have heard nothing of it, but I come here today and the Committee on Foreign Correspondence is nicely slid over, and their duty and work given to other people. No man with the principles of an infidel is worthy of being a Mason, and our boys should not be contaminated by associating with infidels.

While the committee were out considering the report, Brother F. Parks Cadman, made a speech to the grand lodge which the writer would like to get to the attention of every Illinois Mason,—

My one fear for Masonry is that we may lose ourselves in ritualistic pomp. We forget the spirit and essence of this glorious order in being duly tiled, tidy and properly clothed, and in supposing that because we make certain genuflections in the right manner, therefore we have received the spirit of our calling. A man might as well try to gain literary culture by sleeping in a library. But you may be sure that unless Masonry does something now, after having absolutely failed to do anything hitherto to prevent this war (if anything could be done) she will not maintain the standing that she deserves and which her doctrines warrant in her children.

The Committee on Correspondence made the following report, which the grand lodge adopted:

Resolved, That during the period of the present war we should extend to every member of the Masonic Fraternity under the obedience of the grand bodies of Freemasons of countries allied with us an invitation to come to the lodges of our obedience in the state of New York, and authorize further such reciprocal intercourse as may be mutually agreed upon between Freemasons and Masonic Lodges of our obedience and the regular Masonic bodies of Freemasons of those countries.

According to New York law, all resolutions submitted in the above manner must go to the lodges of the state and be ratified by a two-thirds vote, and with setting the machinery in motion to accomplish this, the grand lodge adjourned.

The annual communication of the grand lodge opened in the city of New York, in the afternoon of May 7, 1918.

Grand Master Thomas Penney delivered a very long address—a highly valuable Masonic document.

Extensive tributes are paid to the fraternal dead of New York, and other grand jurisdictions. The grand master certainly left very little for his Committee on Obituaries to do. Among the deaths reported is that of Henry H. Guttman, representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, near the Grand Lodge of New York.

A number of dispensations were issued, most of them to take care of the ordinary affairs of lodges, none of them however, were for the purpose of receiving petitions or conferring degrees in less than the lawful time.

The Grand Lodge of New York permits its constituents to confer the degrees on five candidates at one time, but requires an interval of two weeks to intervene between the conferring of the several degrees. Five dispensations were issued for the formation of new lodges.

The home at Utica pronounced to be in a most excellent condition.

The grand master reports that splendid progress had been made in the matter of providing a sinking fund to take care of the mortgage on the Masonic Temple in New York City. The plan formulated calls for five annual per capita payments of $1.40 each based upon the lodge membership at the time when the building was constructed.

The grand master reports the issuance of his warrant for the establishment of Sea and Field Lodge No. 1. This lodge conferred the degrees on 431 candidates, 39 of whom were under the age of twenty-one.

Following the report of the grand master, resolutions were adopted pledging the loyalty of the Grand Lodge of New York to the President of the United States. The grand lodge was then called to ease and Miss Susanne Silvereruy, daughter of the Chief Justice of Belgium, who spoke at length to the brethren describing some of the wrongs that had been inflicted on that country by the Hell-hounds of Germany.

The report of the grand secretary is purely financial and statistical. The number raised during the year was 12,970, making a net increase of 8,478. The grand treasurer reports receipts of $263,415.61, and expenditures of $267,797.62.

The grand lecturer makes a, no doubt, interesting report. He says that the weather was severely cold and the roads almost impassable; that service flags adorned the walls of many lodge rooms and that the hearts of many fathers, whose boys were at the front were deeply saddened. But says little about the condition of the ritual, so far as the lodges of the state are concerned.

The judge advocate made a report that went to the Committee on Jurisprudence. It appears that this legal luminary, takes up various mooted questions, submits his opinions to the grand lodge, which in turn refers them to the Committee on Jurisprudence to scrape about.

New York has under consideration, one plan, and that is advanced school training for graduates from the Masonic Home at Utica. Owing to the demands made upon the grand lodge at the present time, by reason of the war, no definite action was taken. There is every indication, however, that this subject will receive earnest consideration as soon as possible.

The grand lodge is also providing itself with a set of ceremonials, for it is noted from the proceedings, that a special committee has been gathering much information upon the subject, and expects to present its conclusions in the near future.

A large number of matters were disposed of by the grand lodge according to its usual procedures. One report is particularly interesting to the writer—that of the grand historian, in which various subjects concerned with the early history of Freemasonry are taken up and discussed. It is rather unusual for a busy grand lodge to give any attention to the consideration of matters of this sort. However, it shows that in the state of New York, there are Masons who can find something in the fraternity to interest them besides oracular and gymnastic Masonry, sometimes referred to as ritual.

Just before the close of the grand lodge, a stranger was discovered among the workmen and was introduced to the grand lodge as Past Grand Master A. H. Bell of Illinois. He was given the grand honors, and replied with one of his characteristic speeches, which is quoted in full,— Brethren, I certainly thank you in behalf of the grand jurisdiction which I have the honor of representing here for this most cordial reception. You know that New York and Illinois are the great big brethren of the Masonic families of America. New York Grand Lodge is the greatest on the continent, and Illinois is the next. (Applause.) I have been immensely gratified by the unanimity and harmony which have governed your election of officers. I have about made up my mind to come to New York and be a candidate for office in this grand lodge. I like that way of doing it.

Now, brethren, I am not here to make a speech to you. I know that it isn't the time for speech making. I noticed that your grand secretary took the time to tell you a little story. There was an old Irishman out in my country, who was a great big double-fisted stalwart man, rather a rough man,—physically, I mean,—and he had some daughters who were quite cultured. They walked in the very high circles of society. And when Christmas came they gave the old gentleman a pair of beautiful embroidered ear muffs. He had never worn ear muffs. The hair on his ears kept them warm. (Laughter.) But he was so proud of those ear muffs that he wore them, not only in cold weather but in warm weather. But one cold day, a very bitter cold day, a friend of his met him on the street, and he wasn't wearing the ear muffs. The friend said, "Why, Casey, where are your ear muffs?" and he said, "I haven't worn the darn things since the accident." He said, "Accident? Have you had an accident?" And he said, "Indeed, I have." "Why," he said, "what was the accident?" "Indeed," he says, "you see, I was coming down the street and I met me friend Tim McCarthy, and as I met him he said, 'Casey, my boy, come and let's get a drink,' and by gosh, I didn't hear him."

Now, I sincerely hope you all have your ear muffs now. I am not here to make a speech, brethren, at all. I want to thank you for this reception. I want to bring to you from your brethren in Illinois the most cordial Masonic greetings.

I am very glad indeed to be here. I didn't know the Grand Lodge of New York was in session, or to be in session at this time. When I sought this building, and found that the grand lodge was in session, the tyler wouldn't let me in, and I had to send in for Brother Thomas to come out and vouch for me, and it was through his acquaintance and his kindness that I have been brought before you, so if you have any kick coming about this performance take it out on him. It isn't my fault that I am here. I was asked when I was brought forward if I wanted to say a few words, and I said, "No, I don't." Well, he said, "Will you say a few words?" I said, "I can always say a few words, but there is nothing very entertaining or attractive about public speaking to me."

I sincerely hope, brethren, that I may have the privilege in the future of visiting you, either in grand lodge or in some of your lodges frequently. I am a stranger in New York. I was never here but once before in my life, and then I was down on Wall Street, fooling around with some lawyers and brokers, about some railroad litigation out in Illinois, and I got out of it all right, and got the railroad. (Laughter.) And when I got to the railroad—you know, these innocent looking people from the wild west aren't always as green as they look to be.

Well, brethren, you are in such a good humor I think it is good management to leave you in that condition. I want to thank you. (Applause.)

The grand lodge closed with the election and installation of officers, subject to the call of the grand master.

The report on foreign correspondence was prepared by a committee of which William Sherer is chairman. Illinois is recognized to the extent of a page and a half. Two quotations are taken from Grand Master Wheeler's address to the grand lodge and the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin, spoken of as an excellent one. Illinois is credited with 258 lodges. Either the correspondent or the compositor made a slip. It should have been 858.

NORTH CAROLINA, A. F. & A. M.1918

A very attractive copy of the proceedings of the one hundred thirty-second annual communication, held in the city of Raleigh, January 15th, 16th and 17th, 1918, is under review.

The book is well printed from clear legible type and contains many half-tone portraits of distinguished members of the grand lodge who have died during the year as well as a splendid picture of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home at Greensboro.

The grand lodge was opened in ample form after which Grand Master George S. Norfleet read his annual report, an unusually interesting document, the various matters handled by him being given discriminative attention.

In his introduction he says—

The great, long-looked-for, world-wide opportunity for Masonry has come, my brethren, the opportunity of sending forth the thousands who have knelt at our sacred altar and learned the sublime lessons which Masonry inculcates, out into the heights, the depths, into the very bosom of the other nations of the earth, taking with them as a part of their very being, if we have labored well, the great Masonic teachings: freedom of thought, freedom of speech, the rights of the masses of humanity, and their peculiar right to worship their God according to the dictates of their own consciences.

The Jubela of Austria, the Jubelo of Turkey, and the still more determined Jubelum of Germany have set themselves at the gates of the modern world and demanded of a patient, plodding mankind the priceless jewel of human rights—the right of liberty, the right of universal peace, and the right of the pursuit of happiness gained through years of labor and of sacrifices.

From out of somewhere of time and space, an order has come thundering from the heart of the Great I AM. To the three He speaks in ancient tones, "What of thy Brother? Go find the ruffians, or you yourself shall be deemed as guilty as the murderers." In response to that great mandate, with hearts aflame with brotherly love, relief and truth, with hand linked in hand and heart joined to heart, go forth the three principal Fellow Crafts of the modern world on the Master's bidding,—France, England and America.

In the above the grand master convinces the reader that he has some knowledge of the Masonic ritual. His paraphrase however, will be severely criticized by those members of the old Masonic school who hold to the idea that the chief glory of Freemasonry lies in its secrecy.

The grand master pays extended notice to the dead of his own as well as foreign jurisdictions.

He reports the issuance of a number of dispensations granted lodges for various purposes, such as laying cornerstones and conducting the funerals of past grand officers. It is apparent that the grand lodge does not reserve to itself the right to establish an embargo on ceremonials of this character.

Certain correspondence which the grand master had with other grand jurisdictions in the United States is grouped under the heading of "Foreign Correspondence," from which the inference is taken that the grand master regards everything outside of the boundaries of North Carolina as foreign.

He has considerable to say concerning the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France, and recommends that in case the Grand Lodge of France will agree to restore the bible to its altar that recognition be given it.

Some misunderstanding having arisen between the Grand Lodge of Georgia and the Grand Lodge of North Carolina over certain jurisdictional lines the grand masters of these respective jurisdictions came together and established a concurrent understanding, and it is assumed that according to the traditions of the country, the grand master of North Carolina said to the grand master of Georgia, "It is a long time between drinks." At any rate the two grand masters made an agreement which it is hoped that their grand lodges will ratify thereby increasing a happy relationship between the two grand jurisdictions.

Brother Norfleet refers to the congress of grand masters held in the city of Washington on December last. He states that a review of the minutes discloses the fact that there was nothing of importance accomplished. The grand master read the record correctly. There never was a congress of grand masters that accomplished anything and there never will be until each grand jurisdiction advances to a point in its evolution when it can see something in Freemasonry besides mere rules and regulations.

One item in the grand master's report is particularly interesting to the writer because it involves our mutual friend, Charles Mikels, of Indiana, he of national grand lodge fame. Charlie is a jolly good fellow and he really is striving along the right lines, but many of his ideas are so far in advance of present day Masonry that he is looked upon as a revolutionist. He asked permission from the grand master of North Carolina to address the brethren of that state on the matter of wearing a patriotic button. The proposition did not find favor with Brother Norfleet for he said—

Masonry is a peculiar institution, with a definite world-wide purpose. If our order teaches anything, it is against pomp and display. We do not have to wear buttons, or go about telling people what patriotic Masons we are. We live it and teach it day in and day out, and it is a part of our very institution. Therefore, the proposition seemed a useless one to me and the burden of expense unnecessary. Liberty Bonds are much better and serve to accomplish something.

Of course the grand master of North Carolina was correct. A good many Masons have a mistaken idea concerning patriotism. To be patriotic it is not necessary to be flying flags, marching in street parades and hallooing on the slightest provocation. The world is full of people who fight with their mouths and lay down their lives in their minds, but the real patriot is the man who goes quietly about his business, putting service to his country above all else, doing everything which his government asks of him to the best of his ability, and when the time comes, should it be necessary, shoulders his rifle and goes over the top. When the present war is over there is going to be a new standard of patriotism established, and like charity it will not be of the tinkling symbol and the sounding brass variety.

The grand master favored the formation of army lodges and granted dispensations for that purpose but required these army lodges to confine their efforts to soldiers of the jurisdiction of North Carolina.

He also directed the preparation of a complete roster of all soldiers from the jurisdiction of North Carolina who are in the service of their country. This roster when completed will be preserved in the archives of the grand lodge.

In speaking of the conservatism of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina in reference to the George Washington Memorial Association he suggested that it is a good idea to be conservative but there was a possibility of being so conservative that our posterity shall regret it, a point which it would be well for all grand lodges to remember.

In speaking of the Oxford Orphan Asylum the grand master reminded the Masons of North Carolina in a very frank manner that even if the enterprise were a most righteous one there was nothing to insure that God Almighty was going to finance it and that the fraternity must therefore assume the responsibility. There are a lot of lazy people in the world who go through life on the assumption that the Lord will take care of them, and he probably does for it is noticed that most of them wind up in the poorhouse.

The splendid work being accomplished by the Masonic and Eastern Star Home receives favorable commendation.

The grand master reports that there has been endless trouble in the jurisdiction over the code. He seems to think that the code is all right but that it needs an index. It is quite apparent that something must be radically wrong with the code considering the fact that the grand master made forty-five decisions and the deputy grand master almost an equal number. Most of them were merely interpretations of local law and in no sense should have been dignified as decisions. Among those reported were the following: Citizenship in the United States is not a requirement in the qualifications of candidates. A man subject to epileptic fits cannot be made a Mason. A master duly installed must serve his full term to be a past master. A Masonic lodge is not a collective agency for personal debts.

The grand master is very complimentary concerning the Board of Custodians and grand lecturers and commends them not only for their work in keeping the ritual but also in their unfolding of the symbolism of Masonry. This must be a very unusual Board of Custodians. Most ritualists do not favor the introduction of symbolism or other matters into the work of the schools for fear it may detract from the personal element and make the thing done appear of more importance than the fellow doing it.

The grand master refused to issue an edict to the lodges of his state requiring the American flag to be displayed upon the altar of the lodge. These are his reasons—

In the first place, it would be improper at such a time as this to place anything above the flag for which we are sacrificing all that we hold so dear. In the second place, it is hardly necessary to explain to any good Mason that it would not be convenient, expedient, or proper to place the flag above the usual jewels that are required to be displayed upon our altar in a legal lodge. In the third place, I would not so offend the Americanism, nor insult the patriotism, of the master of any lodge in my grand jurisdiction. Surely they will love and honor and protect their flag and the flag of their fathers, but such an edict to compel them to do so would be a reflection upon their Americanism and cast official doubt upon their patriotism.

One thing to be said in favor of Brother Norfleet is that he seems to have escaped the sting of the dispensation bug, for he refused many requests for dispensations to set aside the time-honored procedures of the fraternity and only granted four dispensations which were for the purpose of holding elections and installations.

Grand Master Norfleet must have served the Masons of North Carolina in an intelligent manner for his whole report shows an acquaintance with the fundamentals of Freemasonry which, alas, cannot be said of all who preside in the Grand East.

The grand treasurer discloses receipts of $28,900.33 and disbursements of $24,739.09.

The grand secretary's report submitted by W. W. Willson is an extensive paper covering many details of his office. He announces the completion of the card index system of the active lodges of the state. The total number of Master Masons raised during the year was 1,841.

He says that very few lodges purchased codes during the year. If what the grand master said about the code is true then there is probably a reason for the brethren not wishing to invest their money in the document.

Following the reports of the secretary and treasurer is one from an entirely new grand lodge official called the grand auditor. It may be that this office was created to take care of some favored friend or for some other reason; but it is apparent from the report of the Committee on Finance that something is wrong with the idea of a grand auditor for they recommend that the office be abolished and that hereafter the books and vouchers of the grand lodge be audited by a public accountant.

A committee called the Committee on By-Laws shows that their functions are to pass upon all by-laws and amendments to by-laws which constituent lodges may pass.

The Grand Lodge of North Carolina is evidently a Masonic temple owner for an extended report is made by a committee covering the operations of the temple. Their report shows net earnings of approximately $2100. This, on the investment of $274,431.80, is but about 1% net revenue.

The directors of the Oxford Orphan Asylum make a very long report. It is apparent that the institution is well conducted and that the directors are thoroughly alive to their responsibility. The statement of the treasurer discloses an item of $20,000 appropriated by the state of North Carolina for the maintenance of this institution. Why shouldn't the state contribute to the support of these various Masonic institutions when it is remembered that their operation relieves the state of a large burden of responsibility?

The report of the trustees of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home contains much interesting detail matter for those interested in charitable enterprises. The maintenance cost per person in the home during 1917 is given as $15.75 per month.

The Board of General Purposes which corresponds in many grand lodges to the Committee on Grand Master's Address, made a favorable recommendation on everything that the grand master did and the grand lodge adopted the report. Brother Norfleet is to be congratulated upon getting off with a clean score.

The accounts of the Finance Committee are very interesting. They made the discovery that of 115 warrants paid out by the grand treasurer 70 of them were for amounts less than $25.00, while only 27 were in excess of $50.00. To cure this tremendous evil which was proving so burdensome to the now overworked grand treasurer it was proposed to give the grand secretary a contingent fund of $1,000, out of which to pay all claims for less than $25.00.

The Finance Committee made one recommendation which discloses some of the senseless habits which we fall into. They recommended the discontinuance of the giving of souvenirs to those attending the meetings of the grand lodge. The souvenir habit if persisted in and if managed by the peddlers of these wares will break up an ordinary grand lodge.

The correspondence report is prepared by Marshall B. Haywood, who in his preface states that he had barely time to write the review and wants his Committee on Correspondence increased from three to five.

Illinois is given a page and a half. The principal acts of Grand Master Wheeler as well as the transactions of the grand lodge receive laconic treatment. The reviewer seems to think that inasmuch as Illinois has 300 grand lecturers it ought to be a well instructed body, and he suggests that the only thing which saves the Masons of Illinois from being talked to death is the fact that there are nearly 150,000 of them in the state, which gives the aforementioned grand lecturers a rather wide distribution of their instructive efforts.

The reviewer takes the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin somewhat to task because of a statement made concerning distinguished visitors to the effect that "John W. Voorman of New York, acting grand master of Virginia, etc." He thinks that such clashes of jurisdiction are awful to contemplate and charges that the intelligent compositor mixed his type or his drinks. Of course nobody ever charges the man who prepared the copy with a similar offense. Poor compositor, what sins are laid at thy door.

NORTH DAKOTA, A. F. & A. M.1918

The grand lodge met in June. Proceedings not received.

NOVA SCOTIA, A. F. & A. M.1917

The proceedings are made unusually attractive through the introduction of a number of halftones showing views of the Freemason's Home at Windsor. The brethren of Nova Scotia have every reason to feel proud of what they have accomplished in the way of institutional charity.

The annual communication of the grand lodge was held in Truro in the auditorium of the high school. A very appropriate place of assembly for Masons.

Soon after the grand lodge had been opened and preliminaries attended to the grand master ordered a procession formed and the grand lodge marched to St. Johns' Anglican Church, where divine services were held. A sermon to the brethren was preached by the grand chaplain. In this transaction the Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia has adhered to one of the old customs of the fathers in Freemasonry who made divine worship an essential part of the duty of every Mason.

The address delivered by the grand chaplain was befitting the occasion. One thing he is to be congratulated upon—he did not abuse the brethren present for devoting more time to their lodges than to their churches, something which not a few ministers have the bad taste to do.

Concerning what Masonry may be able to do in the war the speaker says—

As Canadians, we are proud to be permitted to do our share, to enter the fray, and to assist the Mother Country and her Allies in the defeat of the worst enemy to mankind either hemisphere has ever seen. In this war Canada has found her soul. From this time on, she will never lose it. Canadian Masons unanimously approve the step that England took in August, 1914, because Masonry stands for freedom, political, social and religious.

Masonry cannot but uphold the hands of those who are bringing on a real peace, a lasting peace, based as it must be, and can only be, on the utter defeat of the German, who desires neither freedom for others nor democracy for himself. Masonry will stand for the right, the plumbline manifesting that Masons and the principles of the order, will stand for the right, give of her means for the right, give of her sons for the right. Calmly she will wait in the sure and certain hope that right will prevail.

It is inevitable but that we in Canada must suffer, suffer with the rest of the empire. In the midst of this suffering of soul and body Masons have a large part. We have shown by our loyalty and devotion to the Supreme Grand Master, our unswerving loyalty and devotion to the cause of freedom and justice, and in this way have proved ourselves well tested by the plumbline which the Lord has placed against us to prove us.

The report of the grand master delivered upon the reassembling of the grand lodge, is a business like document. He refers to the war which has been brought close home to the Masons of Nova Scotia.

Regarding the state of the craft in his jurisdiction he says—

It is a matter of gratification that within the jurisdiction there has been a marked degree of activity in the large majority of our lodges. They have grown in membership and strength and now we find them in a better position than ever to carry on the work of the brotherhood. In one or two instances due to a decline of some industry upon which the locality was dependent the lodges there have not had the smooth sailing of some of their more fortunate sisters. These lodges deserve special consideration at our hands and what assistance we can in justice render. But on the whole the year has been a good one and one calling for congratulation. Many of the lodges are to be commended for clearing up their books. While it may seem hard at the moment, in applying without unnecessary delay the regulations respecting non-payment of dues it is after all but dealing charitably with the delinquent brother and acting in all fairness and in the best interests of the lodge.

One need not seem unduly boastful in recording that Masonic interest in the subordinate lodges is as great as at any time since the organization of grand lodge, and there are on the horizon no lowering clouds to suggest that the interest and enthusiasm will not be continuous. The good regard for the fraternity is everywhere apparent and the constant endeavour in lodge and individual practice should be to more firmly implant Freemasonry the outstanding exemplar of the virtues, the greatest of which is charity, remembering there is no standstill, that Masonry is as ever a progressive science.

The grand master made a large number of visitations to his lodges, showing his deep interest in the welfare of the craft.

Among his rulings are the following—

That a clergyman could preach a sermon on Masonry without being a member of the craft.

That it was in order to receive an application for Freemasonry from one who had an artificial eye.

Somebody wanted to know what right a clergyman not a member of the craft had at a Masonic funeral. The grand master, in reply, merely quoted from the regulations—

The Masonic service does not begin until the other services, if any, are concluded.

One new lodge instituted by the grand master is called Lodge of Research. It would be interesting to know to just what extent this lodge proposes to devote its energies to digging up the hidden mysteries of Masonry.

The grand master reports a condition relating to the Masonic home which recalls that the Grand Lodge of Illinois experienced the same thing and met the exigency in the construction of a hospital in connection with a home for old people—

The regulations governing admission to the home, have also created considerable difficulty for the Trustees owing to the requirement that guests should be in perfect physical condition before they can be accepted. The most liberal interpretation debar those upon whom the frailties of life have been visited with a heavy hand. Unfortunately we have those among us, and ever will have those who are broken in health. They are no longer able to care for themselves; shall we care for them? I am sure it was never the intention that they be left by the roadside; that our energies be concentrated only upon the equally deserving, but who fortunately are not suffering from the physical infirmities so often the accompaniment of old age. To meet the demands the door must be thrown open wider, and attendance skilled to a degree in caring for the ill secured. A situation has developed that you must early deal with, and I misjudge my brethren in this jurisdiction, if having put their hand so nobly to the plough in this great work they will be content with half-way measures or shirk Masonic duties which they own in all conscience to be theirs.

One thing is noticeable and that is that the district deputy grand masters make a visit to the lodges of their district and then forward a detailed report to the grand master concerning conditions as they found them. It is refreshing to note an absence of generality and perfunctory bunk as well as the time-worn "peace and harmony prevailing. Congratulating you upon the splendid success of your administration and thanking you for the honor of my appointment, I am etc."

The report of the Committee on Grand Master's Address makes neither separation nor reference and might very properly be labeled "state of the craft."

District deputy grand masters who have seen two years' service get an extended handle to their names reading as follows "P.D.D.G.M." whatever that may be.

Concerning the grand master's ruling on physical qualifications the Committee on Jurisprudence make the following statement—

We note with especial pleasure his ruling regarding an application for Freemasonry from one who had an artificial eye. It would be a matter of deep regret if such minor physical defects should be allowed to constitute a bar to our privileges at this particular time, when so many good men are exposing themselves to the greatest physical risks for the honor of our nation, and in the defence of our king and empire. We believe that under these entirely new conditions unprecedented in the history of Masonry it may be necessary in the future to exercise even greater leniency as to physical defects.

The grand lecturer of Nova Scotia must have been loafing on the job for the Committee on Rituals in their report, say that they—

Are convinced that however excellent a ritual may be, and however well fitted to teach the philosophy and truths of Masonry, yet there cannot be uniformity in its practice unless the office of grand lecturer be made an office of real service to the craft instead of as at present an empty title.

We would therefore recommend that the grand lodge devise means whereby the grand lecturer may be enabled to do justice to his office.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by James C. Jones. Illinois is given three pages consisting mostly of quotations from some things which Grand Master Wheeler said.

The oration of Oscar Kropf is described as eloquent and a full page devoted to a quotation therefrom.

The reviewer says that he is pleased to note that Brother Roy K. Wheeler, Nova Scotia's grand representative, was on deck. The writer never knew Roy Wheeler to be anywhere else than on deck, and sometimes he has been seen in the crow's-nest.

Concerning Charles H. Martin's review the correspondent thinks he did very well for his first attempt.

OHIO, F. & A. M.

The proceedings are issued in a handsome volume of nearly 500 pages, printed upon excellent stock from clean large type. The frontispiece is the American flag in colors and gold, dedicated to "Our Boys." A portrait of Most Worshipful Brother Henry Marcellus Hagelbarger follows, together with his civil and Masonic record.

The proceedings are readable because the grand secretary had the good taste to place in the appendix tables and list of names.

An interesting page in the proceedings is one which has a photograph of an unbroken line of twenty-five past grand masters all living. In this group the writer recognizes some Masonic friends in the persons of Barton Smith, William B. Melish, Horace A. Irvin, Frank S. Harmon, Thomas B. Guitteau and Joel C. Clore.

The grand lodge evidently believes in a certain degree of publicity, because the record states that the officers and members of the grand lodge met in the Shawnee Hotel at Springfield, Ohio, and were escorted by Palestine Commandery No. 33, Knights Templar to the Memorial building where the session was to be held.

The report of the Committee on Credentials showed 518 of the 546 lodges represented at the opening. Eighty-nine masters were represented by proxy.

After an address of welcome the grand lodge settled down to work. The first item of interest was the report of the Committee on Unfinished Business. This certainly is a most excellent thing, for it insures any deferred matters receiving the attention of the grand lodge.

The address of Grand Master Joel C. Clore, is to the point and devoid of any attempt whatsoever at forensic display. In his introduction he refers to the two-hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Grand Lodge of England and also makes a rather extended reference concerning the Scottish Rite observance of the fiftieth anniversary of that body.

Later on in the proceedings a report is made by a committee concerning the presentation of a past grand master's jewel, which it is related, was attended to on the occasion of a jubilee banquet of a Scottish Rite body. It might look to one at long range as though the Scottish Rite interests of Ohio had subsidized the grand lodge.

The grand master reports the largest increase in membership in the history of the grand lodge and cites the fact that neither the quality of the material seeking admission nor the requisite standard had been lowered.

His report on neerology is extended; and among the dead in other grand jurisdictions is mentioned the name of Albert B. Ashley.

Concerning the twenty-five district lecturers, the grand master says—

Each of these brethren has proven himself a grand master by proxy in his own district. The inspections of the lodges throughout the state have been thorough. These brethren have spread the gospel of Freemasonry wherever they have gone, have settled differences, ironed out the rough places, and have made themselves generally useful and beneficial to the order. I thank each one of them for the burdens he has lifted from my shoulders and for the great good he has accomplished for our beloved institution.

The grand master issued ninety-three dispensations, which he mentions in detail and they are published in the appendix. He states that he refused more dispensations than he issued, among them being requests to confer degrees out of time. In this connection he says—

I do not deem it wise to confer degrees out of time. I am of the opinion that much harm will be done to Freemasonry and little good to the petitioner by this method. It were better to return to the old law of requiring a man to remain an Entered Apprentice for one year before becoming a Fellow Craft, and to remain a resort to this unseemly hysterical method of conferring degrees wholesale, thereby destroying the constitution, landmarks, and code of the Masonic institution.

Five dispensations were issued for the formation of new lodges, five lodges were constituted and eight Masonic halls dedicated and thirteen cornerstones were laid by the grand lodge but only two of them were for Masonic edifices.

Brother Clore must have had his hands full approving amendments to by-laws of constituent lodges, for the list which he submits is quite extensive.

The grand master states that numerous degrees have been conferred by courtesy and that the favors extended by other grand jurisdictions have been generous.

The grand master was unable to see any necessity for the formation of military lodges, and advised the grand lodge not to be prevailed upon to take a step which he regarded as dangerous.

He reports the grand lodge as liberal in the matter of purchasing Liberty bonds.

The grand master says that he did not find it necessary to render any decisions during the year, all questions which were submitted to him being readily answered by reference to the code.

He made thirty-two visits to lodges during his administration.

The report of the grand treasurer shows the receipts to have been $91,180.88 and the expenditures $88,678.53.

The report of the grand secretary is something more than a mere compilation of statistics. The lodges in Ohio must have had a busy year, for the number raised is 9178, making a net gain of 7254, or 1400 more than the previous year.

The grand secretary calls the attention of lodges to the fact that he would like to have photographs of Masonic buildings in order that they may be reproduced in the proceedings.

It is noticed that the committee which handles the grand master's address is called Committee on Topical Reference. The report is concise and the committee confined themselves solely to their duties.

Ohio has a Masonic home of which it may feel justly proud. This grand lodge was one of the pioneers in the movement toward organized charity. The special report of the Committee on Masonic Home shows that the managers have their problems in reference to the admission of applicants.

Apparently Ohio finds itself in need of additional revenue to maintain its home for the following amendment is introduced and laid over under the rules.

Striking out the words "sixty cents and inserting therein one dollar and twenty-five cents," and adding to said section as follows: "twenty-five cents of said dollar twenty-five to be retained by the grand lodge and the one dollar to be turned over to the trustees of the Ohio Masonic Home, fifty cents of said dollar to be placed in a building and equipment fund and fifty cents to be used for maintenance; but no part of said dollar shall be placed in the Endowment Fund."

The election of officers took place on the morning of the second day. Ohio believes that one year is sufficient for any brother to serve as grand master, and as a result the officers in line were regularly advanced.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence made a rather detailed report concerning recognition of the Grand Lodge of Queensland. The committee recommended that fraternal recognition be accorded the Grand Lodge of Queensland and representatives exchanged and the grand lodge concurred.

The Committee on Charters and Dispensation seem to have jurisdiction over amendments to by-laws that are proposed by lodges for it reports a number of approvals and some disapprovals. This committee favored the organization of military lodges and recommended the formation of one to be known as Ohio Military Lodge U. D.

Concerning rules and regulations for the government of these lodges the following was submitted by the committee and approved by the grand lodge. For the information of brethren who may be interested in the modus operandi of these lodges according to the rules formulated by the Grand Lodge of Ohio. They are submitted in full:

1. Dispensations for military lodges may be granted by the grand master upon the same petitions, certificates, and prerequisites as are required for the establishment of civil lodges, except that the consent of other lodges shall not be required, nor a dimit from the lodge to which the petitioner belonged, but always provided that said dispensations shall in every case end with the present war; and provided further, that such lodges shall have no right to confer degrees in any part of the United States or its dependencies, but only in foreign countries.

2. Dispensations shall not be issued to any but Ohio Masons who are members of Ohio lodges.

3. No military lodge shall, on any pretense, initiate into Masonry any inhabitant or sojourner in any town or place at which its members may be stationed, or through which they may be marching, nor any person who does not, at the time, belong to the armed forces of the United States, nor any person who at the time of his petitioning or at the time of his enlistment or selection was not eligible to petition an Ohio lodge.

4. Every military lodge under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Ohio shall so conduct itself as not to give offense to the Masonic authorities in the country or place in which it may sojourn; never losing sight of the duties it owes to the Grand Lodge of Ohio, to which communication is ever to be made and all dues and fees regularly transmitted.

5. In case of the death, removal, resignation, or permanent absence of any officer of the military lodge, the grand master may supply the vacancy.

6. Military lodges shall make the same returns as civil lodges.

7. Any brother joining a military lodge shall not thereby forfeit his membership in the lodge to which he formerly belonged, but such joining shall operate to suspend his payment of dues to the lodge to which he formerly belonged and of the payment of grand lodge dues by said lodge for him.

8. At the close of the present war all members of such military lodges who were Masons before their connection with the same shall immediately be restored to full membership in their respective lodges; all persons initiated by said military lodge and members thereof at the close of the war shall receive certificates from the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ohio which shall clothe them with the same rights and privileges enjoyed by the holder of a dimit.

9. At the close of the present war it shall be the duty of the master or other officer having the dispensation, records, jewels, papers, and other property of such lodge in charge, to forthwith deliver the same to the grand secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ohio.

The Committee on Masonic Jurisprudence made a very brief report, no matters of vital consequence being referred to them.

The Committee on Necrology made a report which was not long. Most Worshipful Brother Albert B. Ashley of Illinois, is mentioned.

The grand lodge closed with the installation of officers and the appointment of a committee to buy a jewel for the grand master and present it at some favorable time. It would be interesting to know why the jewel is not provided in advance and presented to the grand master before the closing hours. Perhaps it is not legal to present it other than in a Scottish Rite meeting.

The correspondence report is written by Brother Nelson Williams. He devotes four pages to Illinois. He reviews the principal acts of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler, without comment.

Concerning his remarks on political discussions in lodges Brother Williams says—

He discouraged all such discussions and said that if the political aspirant would exemplify the teachings of Freemasonry in his everyday life, he would not need to go before lodges in order to obtain the votes of Masons. He laid down the rule that no brother should be allowed to speak on any subject in any lodge except his own while a candidate for political office. This was certainly curtailing the freedom of speech, about which we have so often heard, but the grand master says the rule met with favor among some of the most active politicians.

He compliments the work of Brother Charles H. Martin in the following—

Bro. Martin seems to have the ability of gleaning from the much that is offered the little that is attractive in the proceedings of the various grand lodges, and he weaves them into an interesting report.

OKLAHOMA, A. F. & A. M.

According to the title page of the official proceedings, the thirty-fifth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Indian Territory and the twenty-sixth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Oklahoma Territory and the tenth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of the State of Oklahoma was held February 26, 27 and 28, 1918, in the city of McAlester.

The book begins with a half-tone portrait of Joseph William Morris, grand master for 1918, together with a short biographical sketch. The preliminary ceremonies of the grand lodge are very similar to those recently adopted in the Grand Lodge of Illinois. The deputy grand master opened the grand lodge, after which he announced that the grand master, Samuel W. Hogan, was in one of the reception rooms and then dispatched the grand deacons to conduct him into the presence of the grand lodge. This whole proceeding is by no means devoid of ostentation, and when practiced, always impresses the writer with the idea that the grand master is endeavoring to challenge the crowd with the importance, if not of himself, at least of his office. Freemasonry is a democratic institution, and those elevated to official positions should remember that their first duty is to serve, and that duty when well performed carries with it all the eclat that any reasonable man ought to expect.

The first business was the presentation to Grand Master Hogan of a past grand master's apron, the gift of his own lodge. The Committee on Rules and Order of Business, then offered a report in which they indicated the order of procedure that was to be followed at this annual meeting.

This is not a bad practice as it insures much regularity in the despatch of the business of the grand body. Much time would be saved in all of our grand lodges if a fixed plan of action was agreed upon and rigidly followed. The idea of committees reading reports when they feel like it and representatives making motions and introducing resolutions at vulnerable points simply results in the whole transaction resolving itself into a jargon.

The preliminary report of the Committee on Credentials gives the exact number of accredited votes in the grand lodge. There may be a suggestion in this that Masons are disposed to pad the ballot. But the writer knows of one instance wherein a "vest pocket vote" upset all calculations and nearly precipitated a riot.

The grand master, Samuel W. Hogan, presented to the grand lodge a full and complete report of his activities. He makes an extended report on neerology in which adequate tributes are paid to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. He reports having attended the meeting of the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada held September 25, 1918, and commends the work of that society. He reports the holding of three memorial communications of the grand lodge for the purpose of conducting the Masonic burial service over the remains of past grand officers.

He reports a number of emergent communications of the grand lodge, called for the purpose of laying corner-stones and dedicating Masonic halls.

Five new lodges were organized during the year, and six lodges working under dispensation were constituted.

The grand master states that he presided in person at three Masonic trials. This is rather unusual. Whenever there is any disagreeable work to perform it is usually customary for the grand master to send his man "Friday."

The grand master states that the correspondence and detailed work of the office is increasing to such an extent that it will be difficult for him to make many official visits, and suggests that the district deputy grand masters each work up one rousing big meeting in their districts which he may attend and thereby come in personal touch with a large number of Masons.

Concerning the reports of the district deputy grand masters, he advises, that where it was found that these officers had put forth unusual efforts in promoting peace and harmony he sent them a personal letter of commendation.

Brother Hogan found a new use for the district deputies. It appears that all applications for admission to the Masonic home require personal investigation, and in order to reduce the expense thereof, the Board of Control of the Masonic Home, requested that these investigations be made by the district deputy grand masters.

The grand master very wisely made no decisions but he did present a number of interpretations of Masonic law. All of these however, are of merely local importance.

The grand master reports four acts of lodge consolidation—the surrendering of two charters by lodges which had become inactive, and the arrest of a charter because of lodge dissension.

Of course Grand Master Hogan issued a few dispensations. What would become of the grand masters if they were to become suddenly bereft of the dispensation privilege. However, it must be said in Grand Master Hogan's favor that he issued no dispensations to set aside Masonic fundamentals. Most of those issued were to permit elections and installations of officers.

Among the recommendations of the grand master were the following: That Past Grand Master David D. Hoag be created E. meritorious grand lecturer for life at a salary of $75.00 per month, Brother Hoag being seventy-six years of age and having been an active Mason for fifty-three years. The recommendation is excellent.

He also recommended that the annual dues be fixed at $1.00 per capita, twenty-five cents of which shall be set aside as a special war relief fund.

The grand master called attention to the cantonment at Fort Sill, where there are approximately 25,000 men, and records the appointment of a special deputy for this camp to look after various interests connected with the soldiers who were members of the Masonic Family. So numerous were the requests sent to Lawton Lodge to confer degrees that it was unable to comply and the grand master authorized his special deputy, with the assistance of the grand lecturer to take charge of the conferring of degrees in Lawton Lodge with the result that considerably over 30 degrees were conferred upon soldier boys as a courtesy to other grand jurisdictions.

The grand master states that the expense of the special deputy and the work accomplished by him cost the grand lodge $250.00 a month, and so voluminous was the correspondence that the employment of a special stenographer was made necessary.

The first business of the grand lodge on the 2nd day of the session was the report of the Auditing Committee, which shows the grand lodge to be in a most excellent financial condition.

The report of Grand Secretary William M. Anderson, is quite an extensive document, in which numerous matters which passed through his hands during the year, are given proper publicity.

The grand secretary states that he acts as secretary to the Board of Control of the Masonic Home, which adds somewhat to his labors. He reports a number of substantial donations to the Masonic Home Fund, showing very clearly that the brethren of Oklahoma are sufficiently interested in this worthy enterprise to remember it when making their wills.

The grand lecturer, David D. Hoag, presents a very interesting report. He observes that a large number of brethren have mastered the work and received commissions. His report of the expenses of the schools which he held, claim attention. A total of 167 schools, cost the grand lodge $3,502, which added to the item of per diem and other expenses paid by the lodges themselves made the grand total of school expense $6,468.82. These figures ought to make the Grand Lodge of Illinois sit up and take notice. The measly little sum of $1,500 which it appropriates each year for school purposes is not only beneath its dignity, but fails to furnish adequate instruction in a grand jurisdiction of 175,000 Masons.

A splendid oration was delivered during the grand lodge meeting by Woodson E. Norvelle. It was a plain discussion of some of the causes leading to the present war and a clear exposition of the peculiarities of the Prussian character. The oration is highly instructive and it ought to be read by every Mason who desires to broaden his intelligence.

The Board of Control of the Masonic Home make a very lengthy report in which every detail is given exhaustive consideration. All the brethren of Oklahoma need to do, is to read this report, to know where their money went to and the worthiness of the cause.

Just prior to his departure for home, the grand master of Arkansas, Milton Winham, who had been the guest of the Grand Lodge of Oklahoma during its session, made an extended address. He said one thing which all good Masons should keep steadily in mind—

Let our lodges and our lives be as light houses, blazing out truth to the community, state and nation that we may serve and bless society. A low grade of morality in any community where a lodge is located, is a severe criticism on that lodge, a weak, feeble moral sentiment in a community is a condemnation of its local Masonic Lodge. Masons should create all about them that healthy public opinion that gives dignity to our laws and sancity to our churches, and security to our homes. Your conduct, your conversation, your right living, my brethren ought to set the pace for others to follow. This is the service we ought to render, and unless we do so live and serve, then we as Masons, as lodges, do not deserve to live. It should be said to us, as it was said to the barren fig tree, "Cut it down, why cumbereth it the ground?" So, my brethren, Masonry is not, primarily, a thing of honor and dignity alone, its honor and dignity should arise from the faithfulness and effectiveness of its service. Service should be the watchword, honor and dignity will arise like shadows, and grow greater as the service becomes more useful.

The proceedings record the report of a special committee showing that a monument to cost $900.00 had been contracted for, to be erected to the memory of Henry M. Furman, past grand master. The Grand Lodge of Oklahoma evidently believes in honoring its deceased past grand masters in a substantial manner.

The grand lodge ordered the preparation of a complete roll of all masons of Oklahoma lodges engaged in the service of their country, together with information concerning their nearest relations and other valuable data.

The Committee on Masonic Law and Usage make the usual report. They approve many acts of the grand master, but got after him because he permitted the conferring of the degrees upon more than one candidate at the same time, but when they called the grand master in on the Carpet, and he made it clear that his dispensation did not allow the conferring of the second section of the third degree on several candidates at one throw, and as the material worked upon was not Oklahoma timber, but hailed from the four quarters of the country, they forgave him and presented him with a clean bill of Masonic conduct.

Concerning the extending of permission to Oklahoma Masons to fraternize with French Masons, the committee declined to grant the privilege, but recommended that the Committee on Foreign Correspondence gather all obtainable information and report to the grand lodge next year. The grand lodge refused to concur in the report of the committee and voted to place the whole matter in the hands of the grand master for such action as he might desire to take. The committee also recommended that the laws of the jurisdiction be amended to require the payment by each lodge, of the sum of $5.00 for each candidate initiated, passed and raised, to go with the Masonic Home Fund and also approved the grand master's recommendation of making the annual per capita tax $1.00, 25 cents of which to go into a war relief fund, but the Committee on Finance not being satisfied with the amount, moved that it be made $1.25, which amount was finally fixed by the grand lodge.

The report of the Committee on Finance and Appropriations, fixed the office expenses of the grand master at $1,800, and allowed the grand secretary a salary of $2,700 and appropriated $1,020 for an office assistant.

The retiring grand master was presented with a jewel and a busy grand lodge session came to a close.

The report on fraternal correspondence is prepared by Thomas Chauncey Humphry. Illinois receives nearly three pages. Referring to Grand Master Wheeler's portrait, which adorns the opening proceedings of Illinois, he says, "His phiz indicates that he is a very pleasant looking Mason." Brother Wheeler's "phiz" may be very pleasant to look upon, but being a physician of the old school, his physie is not so pleasant to contemplate.

Brother Humphry must have liked the prayer of Grand Chaplain Ryan, for he quotes liberally therefrom. He also makes mention of other acts of the Grand Lodge of Illinois and presents nearly a page of excerpts from Charles H. Martin's report on foreign correspondence.

The grand lodge met in June. Proceedings not received.

PENNSYLVANIA, F. & A. M.1917

This grand lodge holds quarterly communications as well as an annual grand communication.

The proceedings are issued in an attractive volume, the frontispiece being a steel engraving of the Masonic temple at Philadelphia. The proceedings also contain a steel engraving of Israel Israel who served as grand master from 1883 to 1885.

At the quarterly communication held March 7, 1917, the business transacted was largely of routine character.

The Finance Committee report that the Illinois Masonic Hospital Association of Chicago had for eight years assumed entire care of a young lady, a daughter of a Master Mason of a Pennsylvania lodge. The total amount expended was $1,356.39, and the committee recommended that one-half the amount be loaned by the grand lodge to its constituent in order that the bill might be settled.

The session closed with a report by the grand master, Louis A. Watres, concerning the George Washington Memorial Association.

At the quarterly communication held June 6, 1917, the Committee on Library, through its chairman, Brother John Wannamaker, reviewed the incidents connected with the formation of the Grand Lodge of England 200 years ago.

Several committees reported on routine matters which have been in their charge.

A memorial to George Wilkins Guthrie, past grand master, who died in Tokio, Japan, was offered. A number of prominent Masons spoke concerning the Masonic record of the deceased and of his great devotion to Freemasonry.

The quarterly communication held September 5, 1917, was given over to the consideration of a statistical report from the grand secretary showing the number initiated during the year to have been 8,506 giving the grand lodge a net increase of 6,102 for the year 1916.

The Committee on Masonic Temple reported that the interior of the building had been painted and frescoed and was now in most excellent condition.

The Employment Bureau, through its chairman, J. Henry Williams, made a report stating that 1,086 applications for positions had been received and 600 given employment. Among the number were 50 widows and 112 orphan girls. The committee report that five men were taken out of the Masonic home at Elizabethtown and given employment but one had to be returned because of intemperate habits.

The grand master addressed the grand lodge concerning the present war and called attention to the fact that a conspicuous and prolific source of waste is the Masonic banquet. He urged all lodges to practice the utmost economy and suggested the creation of a War Fund of a quarter of a million dollars.

A resolution was adopted pledging to the Government of the United States the loyalty and support of the Masons of Pennsylvania and urged every member to make a voluntary contribution of not less than $2.00 for the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania War Relief Fund.

The quarterly communication held December 5, 1917, appears to have been given over largely to the consideration of financial matters and the report of the Board of Trustees of the Masonic Homes.

The Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania is probably one of the wealthiest Masonic bodies in the world. In the early and formative period of this grand lodge there must have been someone who had good business acumen and splendid foresight for there have been built up a number of trust funds until the grand lodge now has a number of such funds amounting in value to $1,671,964.26. Add to this the real estate holdings of the grand lodge together with cash on hands amounting to $3,032,542.11 and it will be noticed that the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania is worth in round numbers nearly $5,000,000. These figures stagger one and it only illustrates that the men who made substantial bequests to the grand lodge had confidence in the perpetuity of Freemasonry and believed that moneys left in the care of the grand lodge would be honestly administered and used for the relief of worthy distressed Master Masons and their widows and orphans.

The Committee on Masonic Homes made a very long report going into detail concerning all matters connected with the welfare and management of the Masonic homes.

Everything that the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania does is on a large scale and the management of its homes is no exception. The grand lodge is to be congratulated upon what it is achieving in the way of institutional charity.

The annual communication of the grand lodge was held on December 27, 1917.

The Committee on Library report many books and curios having been given during the year.

The address of Grand Master Louis A. Watres opens with a statement of the financial condition of the grand lodge, and he congratulates the brethren on the fact that a deficit of $140,488.65 existing November 15, 1916, had been wiped out and that a balance in cash in the bank amounted to $14,207.67. He states that a large amount of this deficit was overcome by requiring every petitioner for initiation and affiliation to pay the sum of $20.00 in addition to the regular initiation fee.

The grand master reports a large number of visitations to lodges and that in company with the grand officers he paid a visit to the Grand Lodge of New York at its annual meeting.

Concerning the question of physical qualification he states that he has adhered strictly to the law refusing to issue any dispensations to set aside the landmarks.

He had some trouble with lodges overdoing the casting of black balls. In each case the offense was handled without gloves, and brethren given to understand that the lodge was not to be used as a means of evening up outside differences. In this connection the grand master says—

The Masonic ballot is sacred. He who knowingly misuses it should be promptly expelled from the fraternity; and it is a clear misuse of it when objections are raised to a petitioner for any other than Masonic reasons. Private piques, business transactions, and personal differences, which do not relate to the character of the petitioner, have no place in Freemasonry, and the lodge, whose members continue to abuse the ballot by such practices, deserves to lose its warrant. A community is better off without a Masonic lodge than with one which stamps as unworthy a petitioner for any other than a truly Masonic reason. While the black ball has its place in Freemasonry, it should be used only in the true Masonic spirit. Its abuse cannot be tolerated, and they who abuse it should be promptly and speedily dealt with.

Five dispensations were issued for the formation of new lodges. Three cornerstones laid, and two Masonic temples dedicated.

The grand master rendered a number of decisions, some of which are as follows: A lodge which had distributed a calendar on which was set forth the frontispiece of the lodge notice was directed to cease the distribution of said calendar. Permission was refused to have a card index prepared of the Masons in a certain county, the grand master holding that only the grand secretary and the secretary of the lodge should have such lists of members. Permission was refused a lodge to have a lecture entitled "The Masons as Makers of America" for the reason that there was no evidence that the lecturer himself was a Mason. Permission was granted to lodges to donate part of their funds to local Red Cross societies. Permission was given lodges to present those of their members who had been called to the colors with a bible suitably engrossed. Permission was refused to lodges permitting them to issue lodge certificates to their members certifying that the holder is a worthy Master Mason. Permission was refused to circularize lodges for the sale of buttons, badges, etc., to be presented to members who are in the service. The grand master reported that the War Relief Fund had reached the sum of $49,000.00, and that there were indications that the quarter million mark would be attained.

Concerning the subject of banquets he reported that lodges had willingly denied themselves and have contributed the amount ordinarily expended therefore to the Grand Lodge War Fund.

The grand master did not issue any dispensations for army lodges, quoting as a reason a statement made by Richard Vaux in 1862—

Freemasonry is a serious, solemn institution, for man's instruction, benefit, happiness, and improvement. It is intended to elevate him, to teach him high virtues, and oversee their exemplifications in his conduct.

It is to be calmly considered if this can be well done, either on the field of battle, or in the camp of an army. The surroundings and associations which naturally attend the elements of military bodies at rest, or in action, are not surely the best adapted to such a purpose.

Immediately following the report of the grand master the officers of the grand lodge who had been elected at the quarterly meeting December 5th were duly installed, and the new grand master, James B. Krause, addressed the grand lodge at length upon the policies which he would pursue. He expressed the hope that no man would be induced to join a lodge merely as an essential prerequisite to affiliation with a commandery or Scottish Rite body. He stated that he did not favor limited membership but that the motive of the applicant should always be considered.

While he urged economy on the part of the lodges this did not mean that social hours were to be abandoned but that they should be encouraged when conducted within proper bounds and conditions.

Grand Master Krause made it very clear that he proposed to keep well informed as to the condition of the lodges throughout the state for he advised that blanks would be furnished the district deputies upon which to gather vital information needed by the grand master in determining the condition of lodges in the jurisdiction.

His concluding remarks were—

spective communities, in all those activities that are for the glory of God, our country and the fraternity; the world more than ever before needs men of vision, courage and conviction, who conquer by the mighty influence of moral, upright and self-sacrificing lives. The spirit of civilization and the spirit of Masonry do and must of necessity go hand in hand, moving ever forward with equal and exact strides in the progress of humanity, each in the trend of a ceaseless evolution that is perhaps carrying us day by day towards an idealism of which manhood has ever dreamed. This call to broader and more unselfish duty should, therefore, be the dominant note of brotherly love and kindness, and of mutual uplift and helpfulness of suffering humanity.

We are associated together for purposes that are holy and not for private interest, we profess much, and much shall be required of us. With the re-birth of the nations shall come greater opportunities for deeper impress and wider spread of the increasing purposes of the world's institution, which we are pleased to call Freemasonry, destined to reign in the hearts of men, and having for its ultimate goal universal brotherhood, and a world holy empire, wherein there is but one king and that king, God.

Following his address to the grand lodge he announced the appointment of grand lodge officers, committeemen and various trustees, etc.

It is noticed that he appointed sixteen grand chaplains. Whether this large number of clergymen is necessary for the spiritual welfare of the grand master or for the craft at large is a matter of conjecture. The writer, who has been closely associated with Brother Krause in another Masonic body, has always looked upon him as a paragon of Masonic virtue. However, in the appointment of so many grand chaplains he may have taken into consideration the spiritual needs of certain other prominent members of his grand lodge well known to the writer whose names need not now be mentioned.

The correspondence report for Pennsylvania is prepared by Thomas F. Penman. He reviews Illinois for 1916 also for 1917. He notices a number of the acts of Grand Master Wheeler but finds nothing to evoke his criticism, at least there is none expressed.

A liberal quotation is taken from the address of Governor Frank O. Lowden made last October.

The correspondence report of Charles H. Martin is commended with the statement that he well maintains the excellence of his report of the preceding year.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, F. & A. M.

The sixth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands was held in the Masonic Temple in the city of Manila on Tuesday the 22nd day of January, 1918.

The proceedings of this meeting are issued in a very attractive volume printed upon excellent stock from clean, clear type. Evidently the art of printing is well advanced in our islands of the Pacific Ocean.

The grand lodge was opened in due form by the deputy grand master. The opening prayer by the grand chaplain is an excellent one and in accordance with the teachings of Freemasonry.

The first business after the usual preliminaries was the roll call of grand representatives. Amos G. Bellis responded for Illinois. They were welcomed by the grand master and his words of greeting properly replied to.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the grand master the deputy grand master, Brother Manuel L. Quezon, read the grand master's annual message. In his opening remarks Brother Quezon calls attention to the following interesting event—

During his term as grand master, and due to his ability and energy, the most important Masonic event ever recorded in these islands took place, an event which has given vigorous life to Masonry and has insured its complete triumph. I refer to the unification of our Masonic bodies. United under the banner of the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands, we shall bring Masonic light to every corner of the Archipelago and the principles of justice, equality and brotherhood of men, will in due course reign supreme over here.

The grand master, in his opening remarks, refers to his very slow recovery from an operation and his great desire to again mingle with his brethren of the craft.

Concerning the entrance of the United States into the war he says—

Since last we met the United States has joined in the world-wide war which now involves twenty-two nationalities. As President Wilson in one of the greatest and most inspiring speeches ever delivered before an American Congress, has well stated, this is a war of democracy against autoeracy; a war in which each and every one of us is vitally interested, for this is our war, a war to preserve to our children and our children's children a right to grow up to be free men and women with the privilege of enjoying their God given institutions for free thought and individual initiative. Our Masonic Institution is one of the great forces for true democracy. We know what it is to contend against the forces of autoocracy. We in these fair islands need not be remiuded of what would happen to the world should autoocracy gain full control of the world. We have the fate of our martyred Brother Rizal as an immortal reminder of how autoocracy works.

He holds to the idea that somehow out of the great world war there will come a newer and better Freemasonry for he says—

It seems incredible but that from this horrible Armageddon there must come a rebirth of national ideals and inspirations. The oldest foundations on which our civilization was erected have stood the test of years, but the superstructure has crumbled because of the evil in the world, and we find that after the rubbish has been cleared away that a new temple must arise. In this noble and glorious work Masonry must take its part. Never in the history of the fraternity has its opportunities been greater or its responsibilities heavier. Our past efforts should have produced great good, but did rather at times produce a condition which rapidly developed into indifference and neglect. The world of humanity is beginning to have this truth more and more strongly pressed home to them. There is already a positive tendency to unite forces and amalgamate efforts for the solution of the great problems which will confront the world when this war comes to an end. ☩

The grand master reports the recognition of the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands by Cuba, New Jersey and Tasmania. Also that a number of other grand lodges have the subject under consideration.

The grand master reports that it was unnecessary for him to render any decisions during the year.

A very interesting table is submitted showing the genealogy of the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands. Whoever conceived this table is entitled to credit because one by a mere glance can trace the origin of the lodges which united to form the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands. It would be a most excellent idea if other grand lodges would prepare similar tables, and print them as a part of their proceedings merely as a matter of interesting information.

The following comment by the grand master is interesting—

From this table you will note that our ritual is in a great part handed down by that Grand Lodge of England which was denominated by the "split" party as the "Moderns," while they (the split) appropriated to themselves the title of the "Ancients." During this formative period of Masonry both the Ancient and Modern Grand Lodges of England granted charters to lodges in America. In addition there grew up spontaneous lodges both in Pennsylvania and Virginia, which introduced still new and different elements into the ritual. Hence the differentiations which are apt to prove somewhat confusing to a Mason who visits extensively in the various jurisdictions in the states. At the present time there are, in fact, two different rituals used in England due to the origin of the lodge in question from either the Ancient or Modern as the case might be.

The first institution of an organized Masonic body in America under authority of the English Grand Lodge was the establishment of St. John's Grand Lodge in Boston in 1733. Before this time however there existed a lodge in Philadelphia whose records from 1731 to 1738 are still in existence.

The "Ancient" element predominates in the rituals used in New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Michigan. The "Modern" predominates in most of the other American states including California from whence we get our ritual.

The "work" in Pennsylvania, however, is radically different from either of the other two groups and must be witnessed in order to appreciate what a difference does exist.

Among the recommendations made by the grand master was one to the effect that a committee of five be appointed to suggest some plan whereby the breach between French and Anglo-Saxon Masonry may be healed without the sacrifice on either side of any essential principle or matter of conscience. The grand master also recommended that brethren hailing from lodges in the Philippine Islands be permitted to hold Masonic intercourse with Masons in France, Belgium and Italy and to visit any of their lodges.

The Masonic research propaganda seems to have reached the Philippine Islands for the grand master recommends the formation of study clubs and the appointment of a committee on same by the grand lodge along the Iowa plan.

In his concluding remarks the grand master observes—

The thought suggests itself to me that our field of usefulness in this jurisdiction is ever widening. China is a fruitful field for the extension of Masonry. It is an open field Masonically and it is but natural that, in the future, applications for dispensations and charters should be made to us rather than to the States or Great Britain, owing to our nearness.

The senior grand warden, Brother Edward E. Elser, made a report of certain acts performed by him while serving as grand master during the absence of both the grand master and the deputy grand master. The deputy grand master likewise made an accounting of his stewardship; the matters related being largely of routine character.

The report of the grand treasurer shows the grand lodge to be in excellent financial condition.

The grand secretary goes much into detail and covers many items that passed through his office during the year. He remarks that the monitor was printed in both English and Spanish and had a good sale but that the sale of proceedings of the grand lodge was not worth mentioning. The writer has never felt that the policy of selling proceedings of grand bodies was wise. If any member has sufficient interest in the transactions of the fraternity to want to wade through the average book of proceedings in a search for something that will interest and instruct him then by all means he should be encouraged to the extent at least of being furnished a copy of the proceedings without charge.

The Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands is evidently following along the lines of the grand lodges of the States for the grand lecturer reports that he has visited a number of lodges, held schools of instruction and otherwise aided in a dissemination of the work of the jurisdiction. He also says that he accompanied the grand master on many of his official visitations. Perhaps the grand master wanted somebody in the party who could confer a degree. Illinois is quite fortunate at the present time in having a grand master who cannot only confer every degree in full but can do it in a masterly manner. Brother Austin H. Seroggin is a ritualistic expert and acknowledges no superior on the Board of Grand Examiners or elsewhere.

The annual oration was delivered before the grand lodge by the Reverend Bruce S. Wright and is an unusually interesting and well prepared address. He got away from the usual humdrum preachment and discussed the three features of Masonry, the first of which he designated as its simplicity. Concerning this he said—

I know that many of you are inclined to disagree with me. You say, "The attractiveness of Masonry is its mystery." Most men superficially look upon Masonry that way. They think of Masonry as a chamber of mysteries, surrounded by high, thick walls, secrets jealously guarded. What are the facts? We are initiated into Masonry. We enter the lodge room. What do we see? We do not see anything at first. But when light has been given us we see an ordinary room, with men, our fellow citizens, gathered there. We see lighted candles, an altar, the Holy Bible. We are later shown and told about common instruments of labor, the gavel, and gauge, the square and plumb and level, and the trowel. Is there any mystery about these things? All the world knows them. The simple principles of true character are impressed upon our minds,—fortitude, prudence, justice, mercy, love and truth. Where is the mystery of such doctrines? Study the immortal characters of history; look upon the enduring architecture of the world; behold the famous paintings; think of the undying poetry and literature; look into the workings of efficient government and business, what is the one mark they all have? Simplicity. Mystery is not a mark of greatness; simplicity is. Sirs, I do not detract from, rather do I add to the glory of Masonry when I say that the attractiveness of Masonry is its simplicity.

The third feature he called chivalrous manhood and made the following observation—

A few years ago I attended the sessions of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York. I was one of about a thousand representatives. For three days I sat in the meetings, listened to the speeches, took part in the deliberations and mingled with the men. I came away to my home with a strange experience. Three letters formed themselves again and again in my mind; I could not get rid of them, M M M, M M M, M M M—they were the result of my attendance upon that grand lodge, M M M, and this is what they said to me, Masonry Means Manhood, Masonry Means Manhood. And it does. If Masonry does not mean manhood then it has no meaning. Masonry must live up to its purposes. Masonry must produce chivalrous, loyal, big-minded men. These Philippine Islands must be a better place in which to live because Masonry is here. You should be a truer man than you were a year ago or you are not a true Mason. Let it never be said that Masonry produces cheats, cowards and poltroons.

The Committee on Necrology present a melancholy and doleful introduction to their report, evidently they have found nothing in Freemasonry that is at all hopeful.

The report of the Committee on Grand Officers separates and refers the grand master's address, the deputy grand master's address, the report of the senior grand warden, the grand treasurer, the grand secretary, the grand lecturer and the district deputy grand masters. It is evident that the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands does not propose to have anything slipped over on them by the adoption of reports which are read in hurried and closing hours of the sessions. This is not a bad plan—to have all reports, such as the above, referred to a committee—as it insures any contemplated legislation being given a fair and impartial hearing.

The proceedings contain the following paragraph—

The presence of "OLD GLORY" in the Grand East was an inspiration. The flag which was displayed in the East was a flag that had been used by Roome Lodge No. 746 of New York during the Spanish-American war to mark the vacant chair of the master who was at the "front," and who later presented it to Manila Lodge No. 1.

The Committee on Masonic Jurisprudence endorsed the grand master's recommendation as to study clubs, and recommended that each lodge in the jurisdiction appoint a special committee to work along this line and to co-operate with a special committee appointed by the grand lodge. The report was adopted.

The subject of physical qualification seems to be bothering the brethren of the Philippine Islands, for the Committee on Jurisprudence closed their report with the following—

We are more and more convinced, as time goes on, that "It is the internal and not the external qualifications which fit a man to be made a Mason," and that a physical defect which will not prevent compliance with the requirements of the ritual, or interfere with his earning a livelihood, should not bar a good man from being made a Mason. We therefore recommend that the decision in question be approved.

The following resolution adopted, is timely and shows the disposition on the part of the grand lodge to protect as far as possible our soldier boys—

Resolved, That the honorary title of past master be and hereby is conferred upon each master and warden of any subordinate lodge of this jurisdiction, who, during the present war, may be called to the colors outside the Philippine Islands.

And be it further resolved, That such brethren be and hereby are entitled to all rights, privileges and prerogatives of past master as members of this grand lodge.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence concurred with the grand master in the recommendation that Masons in the Philippine Islands be permitted to visit lodges in France, Italy, Belgium and Switzerland even though said grand bodies are not yet recognized by this grand lodge. The committee voted to extend recognition to the Grand Lodge of Panama and the report was adopted. The reasons given by the committee as a result of much investigation are printed herewith in full as a matter of information to Masons in Illinois.

With regard to the recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama, this matter should be taken up in accordance with our proposed Basis of Recognition.

First. Legitimacy of Origin.—This grand lodge traces its genealogy very indirectly to the Grand Lodge of England. Its lodges, which joined in the founding of the grand lodge were all under some generally considered irregular source, not having been chartered by any grand lodge, but having their origin in and through other bodies than Freemasonry which consists of three degrees only. Yet having separated themselves therefrom and established a regular grand lodge with sovereignty in the territory of the Republic of Panama, we commend their efforts to get right, and the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts has sanctioned their action and granted full and free recognition and exchanged representatives, as well as a number of other grand bodies.

Second. Sovereign and Independent Control of Ancient Craft Masonry in the Territory Under Control.—This grand lodge is independent of any other governing body and holds allegiance to no other body. It controls only the lodges working the first, second and third degrees.

Third. Belief in God and the Use of the Bible as the Great Light and Belief in the Immortality of the Soul.—It is understood that this new grand lodge meets our own requirements, that they consider the Great Light as one of the indispensable parts of the lodge, and use it as we do, and demand a belief in God and in the immortality of the soul, make only men Masons, adopted the ancient landmarks and charges, use the York ritual.

The report on review is prepared by Newton C. Comfort. Illinois is given two pages. Reference is made to the stage decorations during the session and to the presentation of the American flag in grand lodge.

Quotations are made from the address of Grand Master Wheeler and no fault whatsoever found with his suggestions or acts.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

The proceedings are issued in a small volume of scarcely one hundred pages. They open with a half tone of Grand Master Benjamin Rogers.

The dedication of a new lodge room at Cape Traverse on May 22nd was the occasion of a special communication of the grand lodge. It is noted that in connection with the dedication the usual annual inspection of the lodge books and finances took place.

The forty-second annual communication of the grand lodge was held at Summerside on June 27th.

The first business of importance was the reading of the regulations for the government of the grand lodge during its session which duty fell to the grand secretary.

The grand master's address is in the main a dissertation on the principles of Freemasonry and its possibilities for good in the world. In his opening remarks he said—

In this age of commercialism and business activity many times we are forgetful of the duties which as Masons we have bound ourselves to perform in aiding a fallen brother to rise, or extending a word of cheer and comfort to the brother who has grown weary and discouraged, and we can never tabulate the value of these ministrations.

Concerning the amalgamation of the Anglo-Saxon people in the present war the following is observed—

If ever there was a time in the world's history when plain living and high thinking should be the universal rule, this is the time. We have been prodigal of time and means, and it now becomes our duty to render our best service to our country in this the time of her greatest need. In these days, large with opportunity, let it be everything to each of us what we do and how we do it, and be ever found in the path of duty, regardless of reward and applause, and always as in the sight of Him who gave the strength and opportunity to do our part. Let us dedicate our lives, our talents, our means, everything we are, everything we have, in this great struggle for world freedom. We welcome the entrance of the United States into this great struggle, and a new element of union and strength has come into the cordial relationships that have existed for one hundred years between Great Britain, Canada, and the United States. For a century the only rivalry we knew was in business; the only contention indulged in was one of love and good work. We speak the same language, hold the same faith, are the heirs of the same past, and cherish the same high ideals, and now that the great republic which occupies with us this North American continent is our mighty ally in this struggle against Prussian arrogance, aggression and ambition, our brotherhood will develop into a yet stronger one in which blood will be shed in defence of freedom and in punishing a ruthless enemy who holds life and honor so cheap, and as the flags of the two nations are placed side by side in the mighty struggle, may they ever float side by side over free, enlightened, and God-fearing people, and forever in defence of liberty and righteousness. Evidently the Anglo-Saxon race have found once more a common ground in the defence of liberty.

He truly says—

Freemasonry endeavors to develop a feeling of solidarity among the members of human society, and I believe that the higher a man ranges in the process of civilization, the surer he is to recognize his fellowmen as brothers.

The grand lodge evidently believes in the universality of Freemasonry at least so far as the virtue of charity is concerned; for a circular letter was sent to each of the lodges of the state asking contributions for the benefit of the Prince Edward Island Protestant Orphanage and the Grand Master reports a liberal response.

In his report on necrology the grand master concludes with the following paragraph for which he is to be highly commended—

In closing this report, I feel that we cannot resist the temptation to refer to the unnumbered, unnamed, and unreported thousands of the craft, who, amid the roar of cannon, the din of musketry, and the carnage of battle, have fallen to the dust in the old countries of Europe within the last year. And while we know not their names, or their positions in our beloved fraternity, yet we cannot withhold our sympathy for them, and offer up on our altars our fervent prayers that peace may soon come to their surviving brethren, and spread its banners over their consecrated graves.

Of course the grand master issued some dispensations. Five of them were to attend divine service.

Following the report of the grand master the deputy grand master made a report concerning certain official visits which he made. The query naturally arises as to why the deputy reports to the grand lodge direct instead of to the grand master as the matters involved are merely social and were no doubt carried out under the orders of the grand master.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $488.10.

An item discloses the fact that the grand secretary receives for his services the munificent sum of $200.00 per year subject to future increase at the discretion of the grand lodge.

The report of the Benevolent Fund Trustees gives the total amount under their charge as $5,199.59.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address commends the grand master on his words concerning the Anglo-Saxon unity in the present war and says—

We rejoice with the grand master on the entrance of our neighbor, the Great Republic, into the colossal struggle that is now deluging Europe with blood. With him we feel that, "We must be free or die, who speak the tongue that Shakespeare spake, the faith and morals hold that Milton held." We trust that the co-operation of the two great English speaking races is prophetic of a continuous aim and effort in the direction of the welfare of the race irrespective of creed or color, by seeking the advancement of the right, the protection of the weak, and the securing of an international peace, consistent with honor.

Seven hundred copies of the proceedings were ordered printed and distributed. This is almost enough to supply one copy to each of the members in the jurisdiction.

It was ordered that a letter of congratulation be sent to Brother Harry C. Green, who has attained the great age of a full hundred years, a circumstance unique in history, and seldom recorded in sister jurisdictions.

The grand master appointed a Committee on Foreign Correspondence. Apparently they have not as yet commenced their labor for there is no evidence in the proceedings of any activity on their part.

The forty-eighth annual communication was held on the 13th day of February in the city of Montreal.

The report of the Committee on Credentials credits the representative of Illinois, F. W. Hearle, with being present.

In the summary of representatives the committee report that three hundred forty-nine ballot papers were issued. It is quite apparent that the grand lodge doesn't propose to have any ballot box stuffing. It counts up the number of votes in grand lodge and then issues blank ballots accordingly.

The annual address of the grand master is not long but in it he deals with those events and circumstances coming under his notice and of which the grand lodge should be apprised.

Concerning the entrance of the United States into the great war he says—

Undoubtedly the most impressive and world inspiring event of the past year was the entrance of our southern neighbor into the war on the side of our Empire and her Allies, thus bringing the last of the great and enlightened nations into the melting pot of Europe. Under existing conditions, no other event could have such significance to the world at large, in view of the complete disorganization of our Russian allies, and the temporary setback to our Italian allies, and the present year will doubtless be the most strenuous and important in this gigantic struggle for righteousness and humanity. We were prone to condemn our kinsmen for what seemed unwarrantable delay in repelling the inhuman deeds of a reckless and diabolical foe, but the wise statesman presiding over the destinies of over one hundred million people, trod cautiously the perilous path, and exerted every effort to avert participation in this ruthless warfare until he and his advisers were fully convinced that his nation's self-preservation, and the preservation of those principles which are the life-giving blood of all the free peoples of the world, were in extreme jeopardy, following which conviction they ranged themselves with all their might on the side of those who for nearly three years had been carrying on the fight for freedom and honor. We, of the Masonic tie, long knew by word of mouth and written page, that the sympathies and longings of our brethren in the south were with us in our determination to slay the beast which had reared its defiant head, indeed there can hardly be any doubt that from the moment that great Armada sailed from our shores in the autumn days of 1914 across the ocean to fight on foreign soil for those principles Masons hold most dear, that epochal event not only affected our own land, but affected the whole continent of America, and made it inevitable that sooner or later our neighbors would respond to the call of the blood and to the call of liberty, and to-day we, Masons of Quebec, welcome our kinsmen as brothers in arms, who thereby have linked together at last the English speaking nations of the world in a common cause, and may this union promote a speedy and victorious peace and continue for the benefit not only of our own peoples, but of the whole world.

The grand master asked the grand lodge to arise and listen reverently to the reading of the names of those who passed out during the year.

He affectionately refers to the death of the grand secretary, Will H. Whyte, and reports that a quarters remuneration was placed to the credit of his estate in recognition of his long and faithful service to the craft.

The grand master reports a number of visitations to the lodges of his province and states that on four occasions he was privileged to attend church services which were held in honor of certain lodges of the jurisdiction.

The question of a Masonic home seems to be uppermost in the minds of the brethren of Quebec, so much so that great pressure has been brought upon the grand master in an effort to induce him to take the necessary steps toward the establishment of such an institution. The grand master says, however—

I have taken great interest in the criticism on Masonic homes, made several years ago by Most Worshipful Bro. Chambers in his annual review, and am in accord with him, that the experience of other jurisdictions much larger than this, who have provided such homes, does not warrant us in undertaking such a burden, also that there has not, up to the present, been a necessity for such an institution. Some years ago I advocated that this grand lodge should lay a foundation for the time when it might be called on to establish some relief along these lines, by purchasing twenty-five or fifty acres of land in a desirable section of the country near Montreal, which would not entail a large outlay, and would be self-sustaining until required for Masonic purposes, but whether such a project would be acceptable to this grand body, or meet the requirements, is to be determined.

Concerning physical qualification he voices some ideas which may well be taken home by every grand lodge in the world and that is the attitude of Freemasonry toward those of our countrymen who went forth to battle for human rights and who have returned seriously maimed.

Grand Master Williamson says—

I have been asked on more than one occasion to grant a dispensation to initiate a candidate who fell short of the requirements as interpreted in the past, and as no essential part of our initiation was involved, I granted the requests, but these isolated cases have not been difficult to dispose of. The question we are urgently called upon to consider, however, is that of our returning soldiers who have been maimed for life, and who may desire to enter into fellowship with us. I am sure it is not the desire of any member of our order to deprive these brave and uncomplaining heroes of any of the privileges and enjoyments of our social and fraternal life, and yet, if we follow precedent, it would be impossible to meet their requests unless a reasonable letting down of the bars under strict supervision is sanctioned, and I place the matter before you for serious consideration and action, if found desirable.

Of the lodges of the state, according to the grand secretary's report, 49 made a net increase in their membership which is a most excellent showing.

The grand treasurer announces receipts of $6,651.85 and disbursements of $7,559.27.

One item of expenditure is for past grand master's regalia and the sum of $147 was used for the purpose. It apparently costs something to decorate a past grand master in the province of Quebec.

During the session the grand lodge was treated to an address by Reverend George Duncan. His subject seemed to be Freemasonry and the church. In one paragraph he says—

While ours is not a religious order in the technical sense, it might justly claim to be. With us there is no peevish questioning about God, no nervous, speculative anxiety about God. God, to Masons, is a great reality, and religion a natural, reasonable, manly thing. I do not know any class of men who speak so freely, yet reverently, on matters of religion as Masons. Any external criticism which we may have to face is necessarily due to ignorance and misunderstanding. It is curious, but not unintelligible—and I say it with all charity—to find the chief opposition emanating from that branch of the Church Catholic which, during the mediæval period of Operative Masonry, encouraged and fostered the brotherhood of those who were engaged in the building of its cathedrals, that branch of the Church, too, which makes most use of signs, symbols, vows, and mysteries in its own ritual and practice to-day. And it is only fair to state here that French Masonry, which is supposed to have been unfriendly to the Roman Church in France, is a thing apart from British Freemasonry, is like the old National Church of France, a thing by itself, and is unrecognized by the greater brotherhood throughout the world, though this war may work in it a reformation.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are interesting because they give evidence of some of their functions. For instance, applications for dispensations passed through their hands as did proposed amendments to by-laws, waivers of jurisdiction, attendance on church services and installation of officers. Of course it was necessary for the grand masters to pass upon these matters in their finality, but they went first to the district deputies who determined the needs of the case.

It is learned that every lodge in the state was visited and inspected.

From the account of the Finance Committee the statement is gleaned that the assets of the grand lodge amount to $107,040.19. The grand master receives no salary and but $100 for office expenses. The grand secretary is paid $1200 per year.

The temple trustees reported that the building owned by the grand lodge yielded a revenue in excess of the expenditures of the sum of $448.03.

One thing the grand lodge did which is to be commended. It directed that—

A committee be appointed by the grand lodge to go into the matter of securing information as to the best means of getting in touch with wounded brethren in hospitals in France and England, with a view of giving help and comfort during their hours of suffering.

The report of the Committee on Grand Master's Address was not presented until near the close of the session. Its keynote is felicitation and the grand master is the recipient.

In the election of officers it is noticed that those brethren appointed to count the ballots are designated as scrutineers. This is a new term in Masonry, and is undoubtedly exclusively Canadian and English.

Immediately after his election and installation the grand master named a Nominating Committee which made a report recommending the appointment of what are termed "Standing Committees." Here is an idea for the grand master of Illinois. It is well known that every incoming grand master is besieged with applications for various grand lodge appointments. Just why brethren go to the extremes that they do to secure these petty grand lodge jobs is hard to figure out but they resort to all sorts of strategy in order to secure these so-called plums, much to the embarrassment of the grand master. Now if this whole matter could be delegated to a special committee appointed for that purpose it might result in relieving the grand master and at the same time result in the various grand lodge appointments being awarded to Masons on the ground of merit rather than because of devoted attachment to some political faction in the grand lodge.

The correspondence report is prepared by E. T. D. Chambers and he treats Illinois very generously. He compliments the proceedings by saying—

One of the bulkiest and best reports of the year is that of the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Matter, paper, printing and illustrating therein contained would be difficult to excel. Some of the illustrations in question are those of newly dedicated Masonic temples, many of them disclosing exquisitely beautiful designs.

He calls the meeting of the grand lodge a war-time meeting because of the patriotic observances that attended its ceremony.

The telegram sent to President Wilson is quoted in full.

The reviewer speaks in a very complimentary way of the acts of Grand Master Wheeler and quotes nearly a page and a half from the address of Governor Frank O. Lowden.

Of the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin he says—

It is scholarly in both conception and execution, is both informative and instructive, and discloses keen discernment and a studious mind.

The stated communication was held at Brisbane on Monday, September 11, 1916.

The first business of importance was the installation of the grand master and the investiture of grand lodge officers.

It is the custom in this grand lodge as it is in some other foreign jurisdictions to install the grand master at a special communication of the grand lodge called for that purpose. Owing to the illness of the grand master it was impossible to hold the installation until the stated communication in September.

The first business was the address of Grand Master A. M. Hertzberg. Concerning the general condition of Masonry in Queensland he says—

Numerically our progress is satisfactory, making due allowance for the strenuous times we are passing through. Since the inauguration of our grand lodge, we have initiated, passed and raised 2,286 brethren, which is a good guide to our number, whilst financially we have also made fair progress, our accumulated funds being £9,000, represented by the Widows, Orphans and Aged Masons Institution funds—our justification and our pride—the Benevolent Fund and the General Fund. The treasurer's statement of accounts and report of the Widows, Orphans and Aged Masons Institution just published give you the fullest details of our financial position.

He made numerous visits to the lodges of the province, his itinerary covering 6,700 miles.

In regard to the mission of Freemasonry the grand master gives expression to the following—

And now in conclusion, brethren, permit me to record some further impressions as to the true mission of Freemasonry. First of all, we must study such literature as will help us to fully realise the beauties of our teachings and the idealism to which they lead. Towards that idealism the world is progressing—slowly, it is true, but surely nevertheless. Freemasonry, through its broad platform and its altruistic teachings, is specially destined to proclaim liberty to the world. Our history, our works, our philosophy and our outlook, wherever we have planted the banner of the craft—if we will only lift our voice—is assuredly destined to be a great factor in the establishing and preserving of a permanent peace in the world. Our mission makes us pioneers of peaceful means for the adjustment of misunderstandings, be they personal or national. Brethren, let us then ever be mindful of our duty and the noble efforts that should at all times be our aim, in our private and public activities within the community wherein our lot is cast; then, and then only, will the craft earn the approbation of God and man and prove itself worthy of the mission which has been entrusted to us by Providence.

The Board of General Purposes make an extended report covering various details connected with the administration of the affairs of the grand lodge.

Among the permissions granted were six to receive applications for affiliation. Undoubtedly the grand lodge proposes to know something concerning petitioners for affiliation and the lodges from which they hail.

Among the representatives of sister grand lodges nominated during the year was Abi Murray as representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois.

Numerous correspondences are printed in the proceedings from grand jurisdictions of the United States showing that the Grand Lodge of Queensland has been having a rather difficult time in securing recognition on the part of these grand lodges, not so much on its merits but because of apparent inability to get its cause properly presented.

One item taken from the report of the Board of General Purposes is to the effect that a policy of insurance of the tylers of all lodges under the employers' liability act was taken out with an insurance company in the name of the grand lodge. The board evidently do not propose to be made the defendant in a damage suit because some careless tyler falls down stairs with a bucket of coal.

The reports as to the financial condition of the Grand Lodge of Queensland as gathered from the proceedings show that it is in excellent condition. One thing which impresses the writer is its attention to the matter of benevolence, thereby carrying into practice the fundamental idea of Freemasonry.

A semiannual communication of this grand lodge was held in the city of Providence on Monday, November 20th.

The grand master announced that owing to the death of Past Grand Master Newton B. Arnold, a vacancy was created on the Board of Trustees of the Masonic Home Fund which he had filled by the appointment of Past Grand Master Rueben S. Bemis.

The first business of importance at this communication was the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence relative to the subject of physical qualifications.

It seems that the grand master in 1916 suggested that the matter was one of frequent rulings and various interpretations were being placed upon the present law according to the views held by different grand masters.

The committee recommended that the standing order be amended to read as follows—

No man who is unable to perform every part of the work in the three degrees of Symbolic Masonry is eligible to receive those degrees; but an applicant, physically defective, who can by artificial means, controlled by himself, perform all the requirements of the work, shall be eligible.

The recommendation of the committee, however, was not concurred in by the grand lodge and the law was left as it now stands requiring that every candidate must be able to perform every part of the work in the three degrees.

At this semiannual meeting recognition was extended to the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands. No other business of importance was transacted.

At a special communication held March 2, 1917, at Manchester, Rhode Island a special ceremonial was performed for the purpose of consecrating the altar of Manchester lodge to the uses of Freemasonry. This service is entirely new to the writer. It may be similar to the ceremony of dedicating a Masonic temple.

On this occasion a most instructive address was delivered by E. Tudor Gross on the subject "The Altar of Masonry."

The one hundred twenty-seventh annual communication of this grand lodge was held on the 21st day of May, 1917, in the city of Providence.

The grand master, Wilbur Allen Scott, made an extended address. He reported the issuance of a number of dispensations to attend divine service. As in most jurisdictions there were a number of requests to confer degrees by courtesy.

Among the grand representatives appointed was Frederick I. Dana of Providence to represent the Grand Lodge of Illinois near the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

The necessity for revision and reprinting of the book of constitutions required the appointment of a special committee for this purpose.

The grand master makes several decisions, some of which are as follows—

Held that an applicant whose right leg has been amputated six (6) inches below the knee, but who was able by use of an artificial limb to substantially perform every part of the work of the three degrees of Symbolic Masonry, and was in no likelihood of becoming a charge upon the fraternity, was eligible to receive these degrees, provided he possessed the proper internal qualifications.

When a lodge accepts the escort of a commandery at a Masonic funeral, the place of the commandery, as escort, is at the right of the Masonic line, non-Masonic organizations and profanes preceding the commandery.

Held that it was improper to permit an officer or member of any other organization (in this case a commandery), at a funeral conducted by a lodge, to pronounce any portion of the burial service of such other organization, and that the service as laid down in "The Freemasons Burial Office" should be strictly adhered to.

Held that it was proper to conduct a Masonic funeral where the body had been cremated, provided the ashes were to be entombed or interred, but not otherwise.

The grand master must have been kept very busy socially during his period of service for not only did he make a number of official visits to lodges but he attended a large number of annual banquets. Judging from the list the idea is gained that the Masons of Rhode Island are mighty good feeders. Mr. Hoover must be very busy in other sections of the country else he might put an embargo on the number of Masonic banquets held in our eastern jurisdiction.

The grand master reports invitations to attend various functions held by chapters, councils, commanderies, shrines, and he even mixed with the Order of the Eastern Star.

Concerning conservation and economy the grand master said—

If our lodges have been criticised in the past, and perhaps rightly, for extravagance in their banquets and refreshments, such criticism will be still more justified in the present world crisis, when every effort is being made to conserve our food supply, and to economize in all reasonable ways. There is, however, a happy medium between the lavish banquet or spread, which appears to have become almost a Masonic tradition, and the entire elimination of food and refreshment.

We must not forget that we are first of all a social and fraternal organization—and that nothing conduces more directly to enjoyment and to true sociability, than to eat and drink together in true fraternity.

Of course the grand master is merely giving the conception of Freemasonry as held by the Masons of Rhode Island who no doubt look upon the institution as purely convivial. There are others who see in the fraternity something more than mere self indulgence and are willing to make sacrifices in order that lodge funds may be used to help the less fortunate members of human society.

The grand master commended those lodges that had remitted the dues of soldiers during the period of the war.

The trustees of the Masonic Home Fund of Rhode Island are certainly a numerous body. According to the grand master's report they are made up of thirty-nine members, one from each Masonic lodge in the state.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters which follow the address of the grand master show that those officers keep in close touch with affairs in their districts.

The grand lecturer in his report declares that he has visited every Masonic lodge in the jurisdiction. He makes one suggestion and asks an amendment to that effect—

That in conferring the degree of Entered Apprentice, no more than one candidate shall be present in the lodge during the working of the first section of said degree.

The grand secretary reports receipts of $6,355.31 and expenditures of $4,418.19.

As an evidence of the fact that our eastern brethren go in for external show it is only necessary to refer to a report of the Committee on Jurisprudence. A recommendation was made to the grand lodge suggesting the adoption for the use of the grand master of the same regalia that is used in the Grand Lodge of England and in the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

The Committee on Jurisprudence, however, made a report for which they are to be commended. They state that they have given careful study to the recommendation and—

Are of the opinion that it would be inadvisable, for the present at least, to adopt such regalia as suggested.

Where the use of such regalia is the result of ancient custom and tradition, it has a certain significance and symbolism. But, in the opinion of the committee, to adopt such regalia without the justification of such ancient custom and use would not add to the dignity of the fraternity or its officers.

The Grand Lodge of Rhode Island evidently does not believe that there is very much value to grand lodges in correspondence reports for there is none attached to the proceedings.

A very good half tone of Grand Master James McCalley adorns the opening page. He is fully regaled in the insignia of his office consisting of collar, cuffs and apron, magnificently embroidered and rich in design.

It is doubted if Solomon in all his glory was ever similarly adorned.

The annual communication was held in the city of Saskatoon on Wednesday, June 20, 1917. The record states that the grand master, James H. Anderson, was on the throne.

According to the Committee on Credentials the district deputy grand masters take rank following the deputy grand master. By the way these officers are selected during the grand lodge session by the representatives and past masters of the district and approved by the grand master.

The grand master's address was not a long document. He opens with the following remarks concerning the war—

Our empire is still engulfed in the toils of a great military cataclysm. Armageddon is yet being waged. Material progress is at a standstill; ruin and devastation more than counteract the effects of increased production. And yet infinitely more deplorable than material losses is the great sacrifice of human life on the altar of liberty and justice. For, while industrial and financial depression will no doubt be succeeded by an era of marked prosperity, yet alas, bleeding hearts may be assuaged but never healed. The vacant chair, the memory of a cheery voice will bring the pang of grief to many a breast; but there is also the bright side to the picture. Many of our heroes will return to take an honored place in our midst and to renew the associations of former days.

He calls the acts of the Prussian despotism, murder in uniform.

Concerning the problem for Masons at home Brother Anderson states that the organization of relief work has not been effectively established and that the burden of supporting the various patriotic funds has fallen largely upon those most willing and that ability to pay has been lost sight of. This condition is probably not alone peculiar to Saskatchewan but to other nations as well.

The grand master urges the brethren of his grand lodge to seriously consider the matter of the establishment of a Masonic home and expresses the hope that they will get behind the project and increase the Grand Lodge Benevolence Fund to such a point that the construction of the home may be seriously considered.

Masonry in Saskatchewan seems to be expanding for ten new lodges were constituted during the year.

Concerning the teaching of the work the grand master says—

Efficient instruction in the meaning of Masonic symbolism should do much to revitalize the spirit of many of our lodges and to dispel those signs of apathy which naturally ensue when the allegorical truths of the ceremonial work are permitted to deteriorate into mere ritualistic formalism. At present grand lodge can lend little direct assistance. It may be that at some future date lecturers in Masonic lore will be appointed to visit regularly the various lodges. In the meanwhile, however, the question must be a local one, and the duty devolves upon the master and officers of each lodge of injecting that intellectual stimulus which will make attendance at the various meetings seem not only a duty but a distinct pleasure as well.

Among the many dispensations declined was one permitting a lodge to confer two or more degrees at the same session. It is apparent that initiates in Saskatchewan get all that their money will buy. Should the Grand Lodge of Illinois attempt to limit the number of degrees that a lodge may confer at any one session to an only candidate the storm that would arise would rival in thunder the mighty guns on the western battle field of France.

Among the grand representatives commissioned was William O. Butler of LaHarpe, near the Grand Lodge of Illinois.

The grand master reports that he was obliged to suspend a worshipful master from office and deprive him of past rank.

Three rulings were made by the grand master which are quoted in full—

It is not permissible for a brother from a grand lodge not recognized by the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan to either visit or affiliate with a lodge in this grand jurisdiction.

Any grand lodge officer, including the grand master, on entering a lodge shall give the pass grip and pass word of the degree.

The loss of any member of an applicant disqualifies him if he cannot comply with the ceremonies of grand lodge.

In his concluding remarks he observes—

Masonry is not a religion in the general acceptance of the term; it is not characterized by dogma or subservience to out-worn creeds; it is not a system of hair-splitting or metaphysical abstractions which sharpen the wits of the analyst and philosopher; its ritual is merely symbolie of those fundamental tenets which enable its genuine adherents to comprehend their true relationship to the Great Architect of the Universe and to their fellowmen.

Why is it necessary for grand masters and other church Masons to be eternally explaining that Freemasonry is not a religion? Why is it necessary that Masons should be always apologizing to the church because of its existence? It is left to every man to conceive religion as his own mind and conscience may dictate. What is religion to one man is a mere ceremonial rite to another. Therefore if a man without any church connections whatsoever affiliates with Freemasonry and finds in it that which satisfies his conception of a religion and if he believes in it and tries to live up to it to the best of his ability, why persistently remind him that Freemasonry is not a religion and that he ought to go and join some church?

The reports of the district deputy grand masters which are made directly to the grand lodge are interesting, for they disclose a very thorough system of visitation and inspection. The tabulated data gathered by the district deputies are printed in full and arranged by districts. The writer would like very much to call the attention of Brother Phil Barelay to these tables in the Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan for they are very much in keeping with the same mode of detailed reports on lodges which Illinois is trying hard to secure.

The grand treasurer announces receipts of $12,137.64 and expenditures of $7,214.40. The total amount in the Benevolent Fund including investments is $21,762.56.

The report of the grand secretary covers many particulars of his office. He says that returns from lodges show a roll of over 1000 brethren from the province who are doing their bit for king and country.

The report of the Committee on Appeals and Grievances follow very much the Illinois plan as no details of trials nor names of defendants are printed in full.

The Committee on Finance reported an estimated income for the ensuing year of $8,600 and estimated expenditures of $7,960.

The grand secretary's salary was fixed at $2150 and the grand master voted the sum of $135 for a testimonial.

A rather unusual committee is that of the Committee on Condition of Masonry which defines its duties as follows—

To carefully examine all reports, returns, proceedings, correspondence, etc., referred to it; to consider all matters respecting the craft at home, the doing and reports of the officers of grand lodge and the internal economy of grand lodge and the subordinate lodges; to recommend for the rank of R.W.P.D.G.M. such brethren as in its opinion have faithfully discharged their duties as D.D.G.M.

Then follows a detailed report containing much valuable information for the benefit of the grand lodge.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address in this grand jurisdiction is combined with that of the Committee on Jurisprudence. The committee concurred in—

The suggestion of the grand master that a Masonic Day be set apart each year with a view to emphasizing the needs and purposes of the Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund, and that a collection plate be passed at each annual communication of grand lodge as suggested.

Concerning the latitude which may be taken in the issuance of special dispensations the committee report—

While we agree with the grand master that great care should be observed in granting dispensations to confer degrees within the prescribed time laid down in the constitution, we submit that we are passing through an unusual time in our Masonic life, caused by this ruthless war, and while in ordinary times a request might be submitted for a deviation from our Masonic Rules and declined, emergencies might arise at times when the grand master may be justified in using his prerogative and grant a special privilege by dispensation and waive the time limit required by the constitution if the preliminaries required are complied with according to his best judgment.

One thing the grand lodge did which is not a bad idea. Immediately at the close the newly installed district deputy grand masters were turned over to the grand secretary for instruction in the secret work and in the duties of their offices generally.

The report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence was prepared by Brother A. S. Gorrell with the assistance of a pair of scissors and a paste pot. The report on Illinois consists of two clippings from the address of Grand Master Wheeler. One on lodge publications, the other on political discussions. Further the reviewer of Saskatchewan sayeth not.

The proceedings of this grand lodge for the year ending April 17, 1918, are presented in a small volume of 168 pages.

The book opens with various tables usually found in the appendix of most grand lodges.

The first official record deals with the half yearly communication held on Wednesday, the 17th day of October, 1917, to confirm the minutes of the April 18th communication, to receive the report of the Board of General Purposes, and to consider proposed amendments to the constitution.

The Board of General Purposes, which apparently assumes the prerogatives of a grand master, makes a general report announcing the death of the president of the board, Alfred M. Simpson.

Dispensations for the formation of two new lodges were recommended—one at Port Broughton and one in Adelaide. One new Masonic temple was dedicated and one cornerstone laid.

As an evidence of the fact that in South Australia there are some genuine Freemasons it is reported that on Wednesday, September 12th, the Lodge of Faith had arranged a meeting for the purposes of congratulating Past Grand Master A. M. Simpson on the attainment of his Masonic jubilee. Owing to illness he was unable to be present and the festivities had to be postponed. However, Brother Simpson was unwilling that the event should pass unnoticed so he donated $5,000 to the Benevolence Fund of the grand lodge.

The Board of General Purposes has made satisfactory progress in the matter of collecting funds for the construction of the new Masonic temple, an enterprise in which the grand lodge proposes to engage. The sum collected to date amounts to nearly $47,000.

The report of the Board of General Purposes was adopted as read and copies ordered sent to every lodge in the jurisdiction.

The communication was closed by quite an extended address delivered by the grand master, Eustace B. Grundy. He refers to the death of Past Grand Master A. M. Simpson and introduced a memorial service at which a number of grand lodge officials took part, paying high tributes of respect to the distinguished craftsman who has passed on.

Various other matters of local importance were discussed and the grand lodge closed at 9 o'clock p. m. with the singing of the national anthem.

A special communication of the Grand Lodge of South Australia was held on Wednesday, November 21st. All that was done at this meeting was to approve the records and adopt some amendments heretofore presented.

The annual communication was held on Wednesday, April 17th, 1918, in the city of Adelaide.

The first business on hand was the election of a grand master which resulted in Brother Eustace B. Grundy being nominated and elected. The grand master then addressed the grand lodge. He expressed personal disappointment because of the fact that he had found it advisable to abandon the creation of a Masonic War Relief Fund for the present. In consultation with the Board of General Purposes it was found that there was quite a considerable surplus from one of the Trust Funds which could be drawn upon for the relief of soldiers in cases of necessity. He also reported that the Board of General Purposes had decided to immediately commence the erection of four cottage homes to be used as a quiet resting place for members of the craft who were incapacitated by wounds, or by widows and children of those who had made the supreme sacrifice. The grand master refers in his concluding remarks to the great war and pledges the loyalty of every good Mason in the jurisdiction to his king and his country.

The deputy grand master made an address which was largely general in character and full of hope for the future welfare of the grand lodge.

Brother T. C. Holland was selected as president of the Board of General Purposes and his investiture made a very interesting half hour for the grand lodge.

The grand inspector of lodges in reporting upon Masonic conditions throughout the jurisdiction, states that there was some variety in the method of imparting Masonic instruction and said in part—

I have been particularly impressed with the need of some continuity of instruction from the inspectors regarding the essential points of the ritual. It is frequently observed in country lodges that succeeding inspectors have a different interpretation of the ritual, and, so that the inspectors could speak with more emphasis on essential points concerning the working of the lodge, I would respectfully suggest that a small committee be formed—selected from past inspectors and the two present inspectors—so that a definite agreement can be arrived at regarding the essential points of the ritual, and that the determinations of this committee should be passed on from time to time to each succeeding inspector. This will tend to save confusion and strengthen the office of the inspector.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by a committee, Illinois being reviewed by S.H.G. or in other words Samuel H. Good.

The various acts of Grand Master Wheeler together with legislation enacted by the grand lodge are briefly reviewed and commented upon.

Concerning the action of the grand lodge in raising a War Relief Fund of $1.00 per capita Brother Good says—

Our American brethren always can be relied upon to carry their propositions to a successful conclusion, and with such a fund to draw upon, and the prospect of a united committee of the various American grand lodges to further supplement it, Masonic brethren at the Front should be properly cared for. The suggestion is such an excellent one that we sincerely hope the British and Australian grand lodges will immediately copy it.

Concerning the action of the grand lodge in prohibiting brethren from appearing in drinking saloons in Masonic clothing Brother Good says—

We have a vivid recollection of the horror expressed by a dear old brother—long gone to his rest—in recounting to us a visit he paid to a lodge—when visiting America—on finding that smoking was permitted. Still, it was permitted, although we are glad to find it is gradually dying out, but to know that brethren have so little knowledge of the respect due to the craft as to appear in a drinking saloon, clothed in their regalia, staggers us.

In commenting upon Brother Chas. H. Martin's quotation of Fielding's classification of writers, Brother Good observed that some of us think first and write afterwards, while others reverse the process. He says—

A "foot-loose" pen often lands its owner in trouble, Bro. Block, of Iowa, has reminded our brother of Illinois of this fact in very decided terms. We drew attention to this before, but as Bro. Martin has made a handsome amende honorable we say no more. Barring this fault, our brother's work is such as to make him a welcome addition to the "Round Table."

An attractive and comprehensive book covering the proceedings of the 181st annual communication opens with a half-tone portrait of Wm. W. Wannamaker, grand master for 1918.

The grand lodge met in the city of Charleston on Tuesday, December 11th.

Following the opening ceremony the grand lodge adopted a resolution allowing representatives of lodges, working under dispensation, mileage and per diem, the same as members of chartered lodges. The grand lodge showed its good judgment in the above action. Since it is customary to collect dues from lodges under dispensation there is no reason why there should not be paid the mileage and per diem expense of the brother representing the lodge in grand lodge.

A strong patriotic resolution to be forwarded to the President of the United States was adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

In his opening remarks he says—

The Masonic Fraternity has always championed the cause of human liberty and human justice and its members have loyally supported the government of the country in which they live. The present crisis is no exception. I think it proper that the annual dues of those who are in the military or naval service of the country should be remitted by both the subordinate lodges and the grand lodge during their service, and I so recommend.

He also recommends the purchase of $100,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, the funds of the grand lodge to be used for that purpose.

Among the dead of other grand jurisdictions mentioned is the name of Past Grand Master Albert B. Ashley of Illinois.

The record of dispensations issued is a long one. Most of them, however, dealt with ordinary matters.

Six dispensations were issued to form new lodges and two cornerstones laid, both of them being for school buildings.

The exchange of courtesies, which the grand master reports, is large in number and shows that the Grand Lodge of South Carolina has exerted itself to extend every possible courtesy to candidates hailing from other grand jurisdictions.

The grand master reports that owing to the war the proposed celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Grand Lodge of England was abandoned.

Thirty-seven so-called general decisions are reported. Most of them were merely constructions of local law.

He ruled that a lodge could not drop a member from the roll because he was serving a term in the penitentiary but that charges must be preferred, fair trial given and the lodge pass upon the guilt or innocence of the accused.

He ruled that a brother who was a minister but who devoted part of his time to teaching in the public schools and to soliciting life insurance must pay dues to his lodge until such time as he devotes himself to the work of a minister of God. From the above it is apparent that ministers are exempted from the payment of dues in South Carolina, a procedure which is both unfair and unmasonic.

The grand master also ruled that a lodge could not confer more than five degrees on one occasion without a dispensation. His decision was that the lodge might confer three first degrees and two second degrees and that the law meant five degrees regardless of how the lodge might divide the work.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are attached to that of the grand master. For the most part they contain nothing but a record of social visitations and general Masonic conditions.

The grand treasurer shows receipts for the year of $29,826.93. He paid out for the running expenses of the grand lodge $27,725.30. Of this amount $12,000 was paid to the Masonic Relief Board.

Among the items of expense is one of $225.00 for a wedding present for the grand master. It evidently pays for grand masters of South Carolina to do their marrying while in office.

The grand secretary states that after making arrangements for securing bonds on secretaries and treasurers of lodges very few of them availed themselves of the opportunity offered to comply with the law which requires each lodge to bond its treasurer.

The grand secretary reports the collection of Red Cross contributions of $960.00 and Y. M. C. A. contributions of $425.00.

The Masonic Board of Relief reports that ten applicants presented themselves during the year from other grand jurisdictions. It is noted that Illinois gets credit for one.

The report of the Cemetery Committee discloses the fact that the Grand Lodge of South Carolina is in the mortuary business. However, there is nothing to indicate that the grand lodge is having any trouble with the enterprise which is somewhat unusual.

The trustees of the Masonic Relief Fund submitted a very interesting paper. The total amount on hand at the beginning of the year was slightly over $128,000. The sum of $3,630 was expended for the support of thirty-seven Masonic orphans in public orphanages, while the sum of $1,605 was expended for the support of thirty orphans not in orphanages. Thirty-eight Master Masons were assisted to the extent of $3,700 and thirty widows received $2,738.

The grand lodge seems to have been able to take care of its needy and poor with an expenditure of $11,673. These figures offer a very interesting study for those grand lodges which are dispensing their charities through institutions and are confronted with a much larger expenditure. It is believed that every grand lodge ought to conduct a part of its charity through a relief fund, which may be drawn upon to sustain needy members of the fraternity in their home vicinity. It often happens that an old couple own a little home but are in needy circumstances. By the payment of a small monthly sum they may be enabled to keep up their home and spend their declining years in the presence of friends and neighbors with whom they have lived for many years. The policy as adopted by some grand lodges of compelling this old couple to sell their home and go into an institution in order to be cared for is not wise nor is it consistent with the fundamental principles of Freemasonry.

The Grand Lodge of South Carolina follows a rather peculiar procedure of referring all reports of the grand master, grand treasurer and grand secretary to the Committee on Distribution of Work. This leaves the Committee on Grand Master's Address nothing to do but to convey its congratulations to the grand master and to spread liberally its effusive felicitations.

Among the appropriations made for the coming year were $1,000 for the traveling expenses of the district deputies, $500 for traveling expenses of the grand master, $200 for stenographer for the grand master, and $600 for stenographer for the grand secretary.

The grand lodge adopted a resolution exempting all members of the fraternity engaged in military service from the payment of dues. The grand secretary was authorized to procure a sufficient number of past master's aprons and present one to each past grand master. The grand lodge should have bought the grand secretary an adding machine as it might perhaps be an incentive to him to add up his membership statistics so that some idea might be gained concerning the material welfare of the lodges in South Carolina.

The report on fraternal correspondence is prepared by J. L. Michie who subscribes himself as P.G.M. He devotes four and a half pages to Illinois. He enumerates various acts of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler and commends his Advisory Council as "a first class idea, more especially when composed of brethren who naturally expect to reach the grand East in the near future."

Concerning the action of the Grand Lodge of Illinois relative to the Washington Memorial Association the following comment is made—

While in favor of the Washington Memorial Association, "commemorating one of the most devoted and noblest patriots the nation has ever known," he does not feel that his brethren should make any effort at this time to raise money for the memorial, as "the Grand Lodge of the State of Illinois is in need of every dollar available for the development and maintenance of its charitable institutions." This reminds us of the Quaker who was asked if he did not sympathize with the surviving family of a deceased brother, to which the friendly, good old soul replied, "Friend, I sympathize fifty dollars; how much do you sympathize?" In this connection, South Carolina "sympathized" three thousand dollars for this memorial to "the Father of his Country."

Brother Michie hopes that Grand Master Wheeler's action in prohibiting political speeches in lodges will have the desired effect, but he says "we hae oor doots."

Brother Michie enumerates the various appropriations made by the Grand Lodge of Illinois for the support of its Homes with the following comment—

From the report of the Board of Managers of the Masonic Homes we learn that the various properties have been valued by competent appraisers as follows, these figures being exclusive of the value of the land: La Grange Home, $120,910.91; Sullivan Home and Hospital, $239,586.97. Just think, $360,497.88 sunk in brick and mortar, and constantly in need of repairs! These Homes cease to be assets and become liabilities, drawing upon the resources of the grand lodge to keep them up to date.

He considers the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin as a well arranged and carefully considered report replete with instructive comment.

A pamphlet of fifty pages constitutes the proceedings covering two special communications of this grand lodge, one being for the laying of a cornerstone and the other to confer on amendments to the book of constitutions. The twenty-seventh annual communication was held at Hobart, Thursday, February 28, 1918. It is recorded that the grand lodge was opened in ample form with solemn prayer at three p. m.

The first thing on the trestle board was the report of the Board of General Purposes which seems to be a wholesale review of the principal items of occurrence during the year.

From a reading of the report it is a difficult matter to determine just exactly what the board is trying to accomplish.

The Board of Benevolence make a report stating that during the year nine brethren and fourteen widows were assisted, two children educated, and $125.00 paid in funeral expenses. This fund is maintained by gratuitous contributions from the members of the fraternity.

The deputy grand master makes a very short report, which is general in character.

The report of the grand secretary reviews very briefly a few of the affairs of his office but contains neither statistics nor financial statement.

A motion was passed by the grand lodge that hereafter inspectors of lodges be paid their expenses incurred while in the discharge of their duties.

Several proposed alterations to the constitution received consideration at the hands of the grand lodge. One of them involving the number of country and city members that should constitute the Board of General Purposes caused a lengthy discussion.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of the grand master, Brother C. E. Davies. He was proclaimed by the grand director of ceremonies and saluted three times with sound of trumpet.

The installation of the remaining officers took place and the grand master then delivered his address to the grand lodge. The whole document is a sort of a review of Masonic events during the year. He has no criticisms and the address is devoid of recommendations, being of a congratulatory nature.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence reviewed the proceedings of thirteen grand jurisdictions. Illinois was not among the number.

TENNESSEE, F. & A. M.1918

The annual communication was held in the city of Nashville, commencing January 30, 1918.

The proceedings contain a splendid half tone of the retiring grand master, John T. Peeler.

In the report of those present is a list of past masters of various lodges and they were given rank immediately following the list of district lecturers.

Among the grand representatives present at the opening was John T. Spaulding representing Illinois.

The first thing the grand lodge did was to read the law and edicts governing the attendance of representatives, also the law of the grand lodge in regard to furnishing information of the proceedings to newspapers. Evidently the grand lodge does not propose to have its transactions heralded to the four winds of the heavens.

Immediately following the opening ceremonies there was presented to the grand lodge a silver mounted gavel fashioned out of white oak timber taken from a gunboat sunk during the Civil war. The wood from which this gavel was made had remained under water fifty-five years.

That there might be no question of the loyalty of the lodges of Tennessee a resolution was unanimously adopted requiring every lodge in the state hereafter to display the United States flag in their lodge rooms at each meeting.

In his introductory remarks the grand master calls attention to the fact that he was presiding over the one hundred and fourth annual communication. He laments the present great world struggle.

He believes that all Masons have been loyal to the grand lodge for he says—

So far as we have been able to ascertain, the ancient landmarks, usages, and customs have been observed throughout this grand jurisdiction in the past year. Much interest has been manifested among the brethren; much progress has been made.

The grand lodge having directed that a blanket bond for all secretaries and treasurers of subordinate lodges be procured, the grand master reports that this has been accomplished and that any shortages or defalcations will be promptly covered. They must be a suspicious lot down in Tennessee when the grand lodge finds it necessary to usurp the functions of the lodge itself and proceed to take such action.

Concerning the observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the formation of the Grand Lodge of England the grand master issued a letter asking all the lodges of the state to observe the occasion. In this circular he suggested certain subjects for discussion. Because they are interesting they are reproduced herewith—

Ancient Masonry. Convention at York in the tenth century. Organization of the grand lodge in 1917. Masonry from 1717 to the organization of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee. Masonry from the organization of the Grand Lodge of Tennessee to the present time. Objects, aims, etc., of Masonry.

Four new lodges were constituted during the year. Four cornerstones were laid, none of them being for Masonic edifices.

The grand master advises that he received several applications from lodges asking permission to send out appeals for relief. All cases were referred to the General Masonic Relief Commission of the Grand Lodge.

The day of sending out circulars of appeal to the lodges of the state is past and gone. When the lodge itself is unable to take care of its own indigent members then the grand lodge should lend its assistance. Nothing in the world cheapens Masonry so much as these circulars of appeal and the customary motion, "move we send them a dollar."

The grand master issued a generous number of dispensations and his detailed report shows that he refused some. He declined to grant a dispensation to a lodge to conduct the burial services over a brother who had been dead for sometime. Gee whiz! If this service were to take place in hot weather the members of the lodge would no doubt be compelled to wear gas masks.

The grand master gives a large number of questions and answers which he calls "Official Rulings." They are for the most part merely constructions of local law. One answer which he made was to the effect—

A lunar month shall elapse between the conferring of respective degrees upon a candidate. Twenty-eight days is universally accepted as a lunar month.

It is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Tennessee does not propose to have candidates hustled through the degrees. Here in Illinois we often make a man a Master Mason within three days after the date of his election.

The grand master visited as many lodges as his time would permit. These he reports in detail.

He recommends an increase in the Board of Custodians of the Work. He thinks three is too small a number and that more are necessary in order to carry the work to every subordinate lodge in the state.

The grand master endorses the Order of the Eastern Star and boldly states "We need their encouragement and co-operation." That's all right

Brother Grand Master, all you need is to give them a little bit of encouragement and you will get considerably more cooperation than you have bargained for.

The grand master submitted the following proposition for the consideration of the grand lodge—

That a committee be appointed from this grand lodge to confer with a committee from the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, with the view of enlisting, if possible, their aid in improving and maintaining our Widows' and Orphans' Home instead of establishing a separate and independent one.

The grand master of Tennessee attended the Grand Masters' Conference held in Washington on December 13th. The grand master failed to state, however, that this assembly accomplished nothing, because that old Masonic bugaboo of state sovereignty appeared in the meeting and caused those present to hike for home.

The grand master, in his address, calls up the question of the recognition of the Masons of France and asks that the grand lodge give same consideration. He does not favor military lodges, believing that the organization of such will result in much confusion. He does recommend that the dues of all soldiers and sailors be remitted during the period of the war. He urges all good Masons to stand by their country and says—

We should renew our activities and stand shoulder to shoulder in support of our nation. Many of us cannot go; some of us will not go. Many of those young men who will say, "Here am I; send me," are our fraternal brethren. The government, in its wise and well-devised plan, has outlined to us in some measure our duty, such as the purchase of government securities in the way of Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps, contributions to the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. and various other ways. Surely there is no brother who possesses the high honor of membership in our time-honored fraternity who will be lacking in interest and derelict in duty in this world-wide struggle for liberty against a government of autoerocy.

Among the recommendations by the grand master were the following—

To increase the Board of Custodians to five, seven or nine; to amend the law prohibiting lodges from burying non-affiliates who have held dimits for a period longer than one year; that there be published hereafter in the proceedings of the grand lodge the names of all brethren who have been restored, and that there be published in the proceedings the membership roll of each lodge in the state.

The Committee on Topical Reference, known in Illinois as Grand Master's Address, made about the most concise report that the writer has ever observed, it contains just five lines.

The grand treasurer announces receipts of $58,017.52 and expenditures of $59,864.85 and the grand treasurer does not do his work for nothing.

He received 3% on the General Fund, 1½% on Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home Fund, 1½% on Old Masons' Home Fund, all which netted him $1,306.31. It pays almost as well as the grand secretary's job.

The grand secretary's report is given in detail. During the year there were raised 1567, the net gain being 998. This officer gives one item showing the generosity of the brethren of that state and that was a collection which was taken for the purpose of paying a mortgage on the home of a widow. The entire amount was raised and a residue of $9.25 given to the widow. Good for the Masons of Tennessee. This is the sort of Masonry which everyone likes to read about.

The Board of Control of the Masonic Home make an extended report which shows that the grand lodge is making splendid progress in its organized charity. Among the contributions of the year was one from the grand commandery appropriating $3000.

The grand lecturer submits quite a detailed account. It shows that during the year 176 lodges were visited by official instructors and 17 district schools of instruction held.

The report of the Committee on Appeals and Grievances is not in good Masonic taste because it goes into minute detail concerning offenses which are of no general concern.

The Committee on Ways and Means recommended the continuance of membership in the General Relief Association, the appropriation of $125.00 to pay for painting a portrait of the retiring grand master, and that the salary of the grand secretary be fixed at $2000.

The Jurisprudence Committee in its lengthy findings did not hesitate to revise a number of the answers to questions which the grand master had made, to suit its way of thinking. Concerning the recommendation of the grand master that the number of custolians of the work be increased the committee said—

This grand jurisdiction has had a "try out" of the present number and of larger numbers in the membership of the custolians of the work, and the judgment of this committee is that the smaller number is, for many reasons, preferable.

They are to be congratulated on their declining to concur in the recommendations of the grand master that the names of members of subordinate lodges be printed in the proceedings.

The grand lodge closed with the reading and approving of the minutes.

It is noticeable that the Grand Lodge of Tennessee has fallen in with the idea that the grand master should wear a signet ring as an emblem of his authority for one was presented to the incoming grand master.

The correspondence report was prepared by Brother H. A. Chambers. It is brief and to the point. He quotes all that Grand Master Wheeler said concerning military lodges as well as what he said on the subject of conservation. He calls the oration of Brother Kropp a very eloquent address and makes a brief quotation therefrom.

Regarding the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin he merely states that Tennessee received five pages of fraternal and careful review.

TEXAS, A. F. & A. M.

Texas is a large state and so are its proceedings which are issued in a commodious volume of 800 pages. The book would not be so cumbersome were it not for the fact that 548 pages are devoted to the printing of the names of the officers and members of each Masonic lodge in the state. Just what particular good comes from the publishing of this directory is not understood. No doubt it serves a useful purpose for canvassers, solicitors and mail order houses. Maybe too, the grand secretary and the grand printer are in cahoots. Proceedings usually are charged by the page, the more pages the larger the bill.

The proceedings open with a special communication held April 5th, for the purpose of conducting the funeral services of Archibald William Campbell, past grand master.

A second special communication was held August 20th, for the purpose of laying the corner-stone of the boys' dormitory at Orphans' Home, Ft. Worth.

The 82nd annual communication was held in the city of Waco the first Tuesday in December, 1917. The grand chaplain made an excellent prayer at the opening. He showed the good taste to keep within the bounds of Ancient Craft Masonry. Distinguished guests were present and introduced. A patriotic resolution pledging the loyalty of the Masons of Texas to the government of the United States was unanimously adopted after which the audience joined in the singing of America.

It is noted that the grand master then asked the representatives of other grand lodges to assemble around the altar and welcomed them as the representatives of their several grand jurisdictions. Usually this ceremony is deferred until the closing hours of the grand lodge. The Texas plan, however, seems to be better.

The address of the grand master, Frank P. Jones, covers 123 pages. He goes into detail concerning the affairs of his office and furnishes the grand lodge with that information to which it is entitled and should receive. The grand master makes an extended obituary report, notwithstanding the fact that a special committee was appointed for this purpose.

The grand master reports an appeal from the Masonic Bureau for Allied Armies in France for support. In view of the fact that the Grand Lodge of Texas does not recognize French Masonry the grand master declined to circularize the lodges of his state but did submit the appeal to the grand lodge for such action as it might care to take.

The grand master reports some complications growing out of the initiation of a soldier from Kansas in army lodge. It will be strange if there are not always more or less complications arising incident to the organization of army lodges.

One thing the grand master did upon coming into office was to revise the list of grand representatives, the grand master finding that many of the accredited representatives were dead and in their graves. The fact of the matter is that the whole representative system has been dead for many years. Perhaps there may come a millennium when a wise Gabriel will proclaim some sphere of usefulness for these ancient worthies and raise them from their long slumber.

The grand master reports a large number of cases of discipline. He must have been extremely busy if he handled all the cases in the way and manner as reported. One case in particular is interesting because it deals with treason on the part of a brother Mason.

Five new lodges were chartered and set to work by the grand master.

In Texas the law on physical qualifications has been modified to permit the grand master to issue dispensations permitting the initiation of those who are physically imperfect. The responsibility in these matters is placed wholly upon the grand master. In Illinois the law works differently. It states that every petitioner for the degrees in Masonry must possess no maim or defect which will prevent him from complying literally with what the several degrees require from him. Then there is another section of the law which says each lodge shall be the sole judge of the physical fitness of its candidates; and this is how it works: A sympathetic master who doesn't know very much about Masonic fundamentals comes into office and initiates a man with the thumb gone off of the right hand. The case is reported to the grand master, and the master of the lodge calls attention to that provision of the law which says that each lodge shall be the sole judge of the physical fitness of its candidates. The grand master cites the other law which requires physical perfection and then proceeds to discipline the kind hearted master. In Texas the whole matter is put up to the grand master, and by this method the best interests of the fraternity are subserved.

The grand master granted permission for the initiation of 76 who were defective. Among the reasons cited are the following—

Loss of fourth toe on left foot. Loss of small portion of end of middle finger, portion of nail remaining, right hand. Second toe of left foot missing. Little finger on left hand amputated. Loss of first joint of little finger on left hand. Top part of outer membrane of left ear cut horizontally when a boy; being improperly dressed adhered to the head. Hearing not affected. Loss of second toe on left foot. Otherwise physically perfect. Loss of great toe on right foot. Loss of end of great toe and toe next to great toe, sufficient to lose the nail, on left foot.

The grand master declined to grant permission in fifty-five cases. Some of the defects cited are mentioned below—

Loss of little finger right hand. Applicant had right leg broken several years ago, which, when healed, was about one and one-fourth inches shorter than left. One defective eye, sight almost entirely gone. Eyesight in left eye very deficient. First joint of little finger on right hand. Loss of first joint of index finger on right hand. Withered arm. Glass eye.

Some of the above are positively silly.

The fact that some of the largest army camps are located in Texas brought 234 requests to that grand jurisdiction for conferring degrees by courtesy, while lodges in other grand jurisdictions conferred 115 degrees for Texas lodges.

The grand master issued 21 dispensations for conferring degrees out of time. He goes into extended detail in each case, that the grand lodge may be fully apprised of the facts.

It is noted from the proceedings that 20 dispensations were issued to publicly install officers. From this it is gained that the grand lodge proposes to exercise jurisdiction over the public display of lodges.

During the year 29 corner-stones were laid. Only two of them, however, being for Masonic edifices. The others were churches and school buildings. The grand lodge has certainly been very accommodating in this matter. It is an American trait to want to advertise, and about the only way that Masonry can possibly do so is through its public exhibits.

The grand master refused to issue a number of dispensations to appear in public, one of which was to permit a lodge to attend divine service on Easter Sunday as escort to a Commandery of Knights Templar. The incongruity of such a spectacle is somewhat laughable. The grand master apparently refused all requests for lodges to march in loyalty parades clothed with aprons and jewels.

Down in Texas if a lodge wants to sell or dispose of its real property it must get a dispensation from the grand master. Seventeen such instruments have been issued during the year. Just why the grand lodge dictates to its constituents in matters of this sort is not readily understood, unless it is to prevent a lodge which is anticipating the surrender of its charter from diverting its funds from the grand lodge treasury.

The Grand Lodge of Texas seems to have fallen in with the custom of the retiring grand master presenting his successor with a signet ring to be worn during his term of office. It is noticeable that several other grand lodges are adopting the same custom, showing that after all we are very much like our ancestors, the monkeys, we like to imitate. It is understood that King Solomon was very fond of jewels. He may have worn a signet ring on his finger, if so the modern grand master is certainly in keeping with the traditions in wearing a signet ring.

The grand master rendered what he calls decisions. There were thirty-five of them. He refused to grant a lodge permission to use several ballot boxes when a large number of petitions were to be voted on. He decided that a lodge room cannot be used for the purpose of a public entertainment to raise money, and in this decision showed his good wisdom.

It appears from the grand master's report that Texas has embarked in the business of Masonic Research. It made a start by requesting each subordinate lodge to write a history of itself and forward same to the grand secretary. Just exactly what connection the history of a lodge at four corners has to do with Masonic Research is not clear.

It is apparent that the brethren of Texas are not very much interested in the present proceedings of the grand lodge, for the grand master says in his report—

Heretofore this grand lodge has furnished three copies of the printed proceedings to each lodge in this grand jurisdiction each year. I find that in a majority of cases one copy to each lodge is all that is necessary. It is kept on file in the lodge room, and is accessible not only to the secretary and other officers, but to the membership, and the remaining two copies are frequently thrown about the lodge room and finally are lost or destroyed. I recommend in the future instead of furnishing three copies to each lodge, that two copies of the printed proceedings be furnished to each lodge in this grand jurisdiction.

Perhaps had the grand secretary mailed a copy of the proceedings to the master, the senior warden and the secretary the volumes would have been placed in the hands of those most interested in them. The trouble is that the grand secretary usually sends the three volumes to the secretary of the lodge depending upon him to place the books with the proper officers. In many cases the secretary never opens the package, hence the proceedings serve no purpose.

The grand master recommends the adoption of the card index system, the same as Illinois installed several years ago. He also asks that future grand masters be given a secretary because of the tremendous amount of work which devolves upon the office.

The report of the Committee on Grand Master's Address is less than one-half page in length and demonstrates clearly that the committee knew what was expected from them, and confined their efforts to separation and reference.

The grand treasurer reports receipts in the general fund as $54,826.04, and disbursements of $42,542.92.

The report of the grand secretary presents several interesting matters. Of the thirty-two hundred proceedings which were printed for the preceding year the waste of which the grand master complained, the grand secretary reports but few copies on hand at his office.

In the tabulated report the grand secretary states that 4,893 Master Masons were raised and the grand lodge made a net gain in membership of 3,042.

The grand secretary reports in detail an investigation trip to other grand jurisdictions in order to ascertain how they did things. He states that he intended to go to Camp Point to see Brother Isaacs (note the s on the end of the word Isaacs) Cutter, but upon telephoning to this location he learned he was not at home. It is too bad that the grand secretary of Texas had to go home without having an opportunity to beard the lion in his den. The grand secretary of Texas has by no means completed his investigation, nor will he have done so until he comes to Illinois and sees how Uncle Ike does things. Maybe Ike will forgive our Texas scribe for that "s" which he attached to that good, honest, Biblical name—Isaac.

The Grand Lodge of Texas does one pleasing and highly commendable thing—it calls to the Grand East all Masons in the assemblage who have been Master Masons in good standing for forty years.

The children from the Masonic home at Fort Worth visited the grand lodge and gave an entertainment. It is a most excellent thing to introduce these little charges into the presence of the members of the grand lodge. It brings home to them a sense of the responsibility which is resting upon them as members of the craft.

According to the proceedings, Brother Tom Lea, grand orator, delivered a beautiful oration. The writer has often heard of beautiful orations but has never been able to understand just exactly in what particular an oration becomes beautiful. As the oration of Brother Lea is not printed in the proceedings the subject is passed.

It is noticeable from the report of the Committee on Transportation that the grand lodge secured a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip. In Illinois we used to get a concession in the matter of railroad rates but of late years representatives have been compelled to pay the full tariff.

Among the recommendations of the Committee on Finance were the authorization of the installation of a complete card index system in the grand secretary's office. That hereafter only two copies of the printed proceedings be furnished to each lodge. That the grand lodge dues of all members serving in the United States Army be remitted during the period of the war. The committee were generous to the grand secretary, for they raised his salary to $3000 per year.

Those members of Illinois lodges who are disposed to complain because of the $1.00 per capita levied as grand lodge dues should notice the following amendment which was adopted by the Grand Lodge of Texas—

Each lodge shall pay annually as a contribution to the grand lodge the sum of 50 cents for each member, $1.00 for each degree conferred, $2.00 for each dispensation for degrees, and the further sum of $1.00 additional for each member, to be used for the support and maintenance of the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home, which amounts shall be forwarded and paid with its returns to the grand lodge.

The Committee on Jurisprudence, in reviewing the decisions of the grand master, objected to the decision—

It is left to the sound discretion of the worshipful master of the lodge as to whether or not Masonic burial should be accorded to a suspended Mason. The committee were positive in stating that decision cannot be sustained, there being no edict, resolution or other Masonic authority upon which to base the decision. None but a Mason in good standing is entitled to Masonic burial, and the only instance in which any discretion is lodged in the worshipful master is in the case of a demitted Mason.

They also took exception to—

The ruling that a lodge cannot occupy the second story of a building when a dance hall or pool room is located on the first or lower floor, is too broad and comprehensive, and it should not be formulated as a general rule that under no circumstances can a lodge meet on the second floor of a building when the ground floor is occupied by a pool room or dance hall. Each case of this kind should be governed by the circumstances surrounding it, the object to be attained being the prevention of a lodge being held with environment that might bring reproach upon Freemasonry.

The grand lodge gave the grand master power to issue such dispensations for the formation of army lodges as he might deem expedient. In a very brief resolution the grand lodge recognized the Grand Lodge of France and recommended the exchange of representatives.

A rather amusing note appears in the proceedings announcing that fraternal greetings were sent to "Brother A. C. Murray, commonly known as By-laws Murray." It would be most interesting to know just exactly how our brother acquired the title of "By-laws." Was it because he was always tampering with the by-laws of the grand lodge? If so a new name has been found for some brethren in Illinois, who are eternally seeking Masonic "Improvement." There used to be a good brother in Illinois who never missed an opportunity to introduce a resolution in grand lodge of some sort or other. His persistency in this direction soon gained for him the title of "Resolution," and he was thereafter known as "Resolution Doe."

The report of the Committee on Memorials is an extended document in which due respect is paid to the distinguished dead. Past Grand Master Albert B. Ashley of Illinois is kindly mentioned.

In response to a request from the Grand Lodge of Panama for fraternal recognition the grand lodge deferred action pending further investigation.

A noticeable feature of the proceedings is to be found in that both the bonds of the grand treasurer and the grand secretary are printed together with the names of their sureties.

The correspondence report was to have been prepared by Brother John L. Terrell, past grand master. He was taken sick and unable to complete the report. The grand secretary very kindly printed such review as had been prepared, Illinois not being among them. It is a matter of sincere regret that Brother Terrell could not have been given the strength to complete his report.

The Grand Lodge of Utah with but twenty constituents and a little over two thousand five hundred Masons issues a book of proceedings which in appearance and volume rivals that of the Grand Lodge of Illinois.

The frontispiece is a very fine half-tone portrait of the incoming grand master, Herbert R. McMillan followed by a biographical sketch.

It is the duty of each worshipful master to have the printed proceedings of the grand lodge read in open lodge that no brother can plead ignorance of the transactions of the grand lodge.

The forty-seventh annual communication was held in Salt Lake City on Tuesday, January 15th. The grand secretary called the roll of lodges and nineteen out of the twenty responded. It is too bad that it was not one hundred percent.

The first thing the grand master did was to invite the grand representatives of other grand lodges to the Grand East and there accorded them the grand honors of Masonry.

In his opening remarks the grand master said—

While we contemplate the ways in which our fraternity, and each of us, can be of the greatest service to our fellow-men, we must also recognize that included in our obligation to humanity is the necessary and unavoidable duty of supporting in the fullest possible measure, every effort which is being put forth by our national government to "make the world safe for democracy." I know to a certainty that the Masonic Fraternity of Utah is willing and determined to answer the call in a way befitting us as MEN, worthy of the proud title of Masons and Americans. May God give us wisdom to direct us, and may He strengthen our endeavors in the entire fulfillment of our duties and responsibilities.

His report on obituary is brief as he makes no attempt to usurp the functions of the Committee on Necrology.

He reports the appointment of a grand historian in the person of Past Grand Master Parley L. Williams. In this connection he says—

I do not believe the importance and value of this work to the craft can be exaggerated, and I would urge that it be carried on as actively as circumstances will permit. Many interesting incidents live only in the memories of our older members, and will soon be lost to us for ever unless they are recorded while the facts are still obtainable.

The Masons of Utah recognize Memorial Day for the grand master reports that at his direction the grand secretary sent a formal notice to all lodges calling attention to the action of the grand lodge on this subject, and—

Urging every brother within the jurisdiction, to wear a sprig of evergreen on each Memorial Day, in honor of the Masonic soldier and sailor dead of the nation.

A number of visitations are reported and in every one he was entertained with work in one of the degrees. The idea seems to obtain among a great many lodges that the only possible way for any lodge to pull off an entertainment is to exploit one or more degrees. As a result grand masters and grand lodge officials become surfeited with ritualistic display.

When the grand master comes to visit a lodge there should be no work whatsoever. Every opportunity should be given the brethren not only to meet the grand master personally but to listen to anything that he may have to offer.

The grand lodge is working along the lines of Masonic education and instruction. The Grand Master declares that owing to war conditions the progress has not been as satisfactory as had been hoped for. It appears that during the year two lectures were given in the state concerning which the grand master says—

Personally, I am not convinced that the method we agreed upon for this year's work, has been productive of the desired results. One lecture given in May last, by a well-known Mason from Iowa, was of a character to which we cannot give the endorsement of the grand lodge. Another lecture given in Salt Lake in August was highly entertaining and pleasing in character, but in my judgment, scarcely met the requirements of our jurisdiction.

I am convinced that the future development of this work lies in the study of Masonic subjects by one or more groups in each lodge, rather than through the medium of lectures by Masons of whose Masonic attainments we know but little.

Among the interjurisdictional courtesies reported is a request from Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler on behalf of Garfield Park Lodge, Chicago.

The grand master announces the approval and non-approval of the by-laws of a number of lodges which shows very clearly that nothing escaped him which needed correction.

Brother McMillan found it unnecessary to make any decisions, for he says that the grand lodge has a good set of laws and that the code is complete and specific. As a usual thing grand masters like to make a decision or two in order to set up a monument to their departed glory.

So called decisions on the part of grand masters are merely habits and attempts to develop fine legal points.

Concerning the request of Louisiana that the Grand Lodge of Utah join in the erection of a national tuberculosis sanitarium the grand master believed that the grand lodge was not in a position at this time to enter upon this particular work.

During the year Brother McMillan discovered that a number of lodges were not keeping their property in fire proof safes and made the subject one of special importance with the lodges of the state.

The chain letter nuisance broke out in Utah to the annoyance of the brethren.

Concerning military lodges the grand master says that inasmuch as the Grand Lodge Code is silent upon the subject it is construed to him that the grand lodge does not favor such organizations.

The lodges of Utah have devised a plan of making themselves useful during the war by paying the life insurance premiums on such soldier brethren as might be in need of assistance in this direction.

The grand master may not have been a prophet but he looked into the future and sounded a note of warning that ought to be taken home, not only by every lodge but also every grand lodge in the country. Not only must Freemasonry care for the widows and orphans of those who may go down upon the bloodstained fields of France but must also be prepared to furnish employment and material aid for those of our brethren who may return to their homes maimed and incapable of pursuing their usual vocations.

An unusual thing in the proceedings is the statement of the senior and junior grand wardens which covers in detail their social activities during the year.

The grand treasurer announces receipts of $3,966.38 and expenditures of $6,475.04, $3,000 of which were for the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

The report of the grand secretary is purely financial and statistical.

The war activities of various grand jurisdictions as compiled by the Committee on Correspondence is interesting.

Concerning the Grand Lodge of France quite a detailed report is made by the Committee on Correspondence with the following recommendations—

First—That all Utah Masons in France be given permission to hold Masonic intercourse with the members of the lodges holding under the Grand Lodge of France and to visit such lodges.

Second—That the matter of establishing fraternal relations with the Grand Lodge of France be placed in the hands of such committee as may be designated by grand lodge, or the grand master, and that such committee report, with recommendations, at the next annual communication.

The first recommendation was adopted. The second recommendation was referred to a committee to report on at the next annual communication.

It is apparent from the proceedings that when a man is selected as master of a lodge he must secure a certificate of qualification from the grand lecturer before he can enter upon his prerogative of wielding the gavel.

A peculiar thing concerning the session of the grand lodge is that the report of the Committee on Grand Master's Address appears well along in the proceedings and after considerable business had been transacted.

In the report of the Committee on Masonic Education and Instruction there is a suggestion that the idea of lectures upon Masonic subjects by brethren is not just exactly what the committee desires along the line of Masonic education.

During the year two lectures were given as quoted in the grand master's address. It is apparent that the committee were disappointed in these lectures for they say—

While we feel that lectures similar to the one delivered by Brother Graham are of value and justify the expense and trouble involved, we are of the opinion that the future policy of this committee should be along somewhat different lines, and recommend:

First—That this committee be charged with the responsibility of delivering at least five lectures during the year, these lectures to be given at such times and at such places as to them seem wise.

Second—That the constituent lodges be urged to hold during the year, at least one lodge of instruction at which the principal consideration shall be the disseminating of Masonic information, especially as to Masonic customs and etiquette.

Third—That the membership of each lodge be encouraged to pursue some definite course of Masonic study.

Fourth—That an appropriation of $200.00 be made for the use of this committee.

The system of imparting Masonic instruction through lectures is all right provided the lecturer is sufficiently well versed in the history, traditions, philosophy and ethics of the fraternity to be able to give to the brethren information which they should have. The trouble is that the suggestion of Masonic education is construed by a lot of Jack in the Box lecturers as an invitation to them to immediately get into the field and bestow upon the craft the great wealth of Masonic information which they imagine themselves to be possessed of, much of which, is the result of their own overwrought imaginations. In these cases it is not so much the idea of service which actuates them as it is the financial return to themselves. A friend of the writer listened not long ago to an illustrated Masonic lecture on Jerusalem wherein the speaker exhibited on the screen a picture of some rocks with the statement, "These are undoubtedly the identical rocks behind which the three principal characters of the third degree secreted themselves." Such assertions can only serve to disgust intelligent Masons and have no place in any system of Masonic education.

The grand lodge fixed the compensation of the grand secretary at $1,000 per year.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances show the good taste to omit names and eliminate details of Masonic trials.

It is apparent that the Masons of Utah thought the grand lecturer didn't have enough to do for a resolution was passed directing him to use his influence toward having officers of lodges acquaint themselves with the by-laws of the grand lodge.

The Committee on Finance made the usual appropriations but refused to set apart anything for Masonic education and instruction and suggested that hereafter only local talent be employed as lodge speakers. Here is another grand lodge to espouse the latest Masonic fad. The retiring grand master passed on to his successor the signet ring.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Brother Sam H. Goodwin, and he goes at the job as tho he had done it before. He gives four pages to Illinois, and says of our proceedings that it is a great volume in size, make-up and contents.

He quotes liberally from Grand Master Wheeler's address and commends many of the things which he did. One of Brother Goodwin's side remarks is quoted herewith—

We like very much the sanity of the grand master, as shown in connection with the issuing of dispensations for the conferring of degrees out of time. He urged upon the brethren the fact that the "candidate was entitled to know something about Masonry and that if they would devote special attention to him and instruct him in the work, they could confer the degrees upon him in a very short space of time by calling special meetings." How different from the practice of using the dispensing power to hustle 30 or more candidates through at a single meeting to the great loss of the candidates—who are deprived of the knowledge they need and should have—and to the disgrace of the institution.

Concerning the report of the Committee on Libraries giving a short list of books suitable for a lodge library the comment is made—

It is of interest, as representing difference in point of view—no two committees of course, would present the same books. With reference to one item: Mackey's Encyclopaedia—we wondered why the committee did not recommend the much more valuable two-volume edition of that monumental work, which has the advantage of being brought more nearly down to date, under the supervision of Hughan and Hawkins.

He likes the code quiz very much. He quotes the first two questions and answers and says—

Suitable general headings are provided, and the matter put into such shape that if anyone studies the "Quiz," he is "hopeless," if he does not get a good understanding of Masonic law as it is promulgated in that jurisdiction. P.G.M. Scott is certainly to be congratulated upon the scope and execution of this piece of work.

Of the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin the reviewer says that it seems to him to show that our brother is finding himself in this work and congratulates him on the scope and quality of his report.

The book of proceedings under review contains a tableau of the lodges of the state together with their officers and members. It is surprising what expensive habits some grand lodges have, particularly in following practices which accomplish no real good. But those of us who drive automobiles know how hard it is to get out of a rut, when once we get into it.

The Masonic Veteran Association is exploited in the proceedings as a full report of its transactions appears.

The one hundred and twenty-fifth annual communication of the grand lodge was held in the city of Burlington, June 12, 1918, and the grand lodge was opened in ample form.

The grand master, David A. Elliott, submits a short well written report. One of his opening paragraphs is as follows—

To us is accorded the privilege as well as the duty, of providing the sinews of war, of upholding the hands of the government, of combating the dangerous propoganda of those who through treachery, or in ignorance of its baleful effects spread the unfounded and pernicious rumors that are continually being disseminated. The strongest allies that Germany has today are those same rumors. Rumors tending to weaken the morale of the nations, destroy the influence of the governments, fostering distrust and a lack of confidence in those having the direction of the war, in its various ramifications, in charge. As an example of the power and influence of this propoganda, take the case of Russia.

Ho briefly refers to the fraternal dead, after which he takes up the subject of the condition of the craft, which he reports as very satisfactory.

The grand master states that he attended all district meetings held by the grand lecturer and states that much good was accomplished through these attendanees.

He followed the practice of most grand masters by issuing 66 dispensations to ballot on petitions without waiting the statutory time. He reports that an honor roll was being maintained by the grand secretary and urges all brethren to keep that official advised concerning military enlistments.

The only decision made by the grand master, was to the effect that a man who cannot hear without the aid of a horn, or other mechanical device cannot be made a Mason.

Concerning waivers of jurisdiction he states that a request through the grand master of Illinois met with an adverse reception.

The grand master recommends that the mileage paid representatives at grand lodge be increased from 5 to 7 cents per mile. He also states that it has been found that the cost of running the grand lodge has increased to such an extent that the per capita tax should be increased from 20 to 25 cents per member.

The subject of French Masonry is presented and the recommendation made that the claims of that stricken nation for recognition be given just consideration.

The Committee on Doings of Grand Officers make a report which cannot be misunderstood. They confined their efforts to the separation and referenee and accomplish their purposes with laconic effectiveness.

Brother Henry H. Ross, grand secretary, presents a very short report. He leaves entirely to the grand treasurer and the Committee on Finance the privilege of presenting the details of financial matters of his office.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $5,999.30 and expenditures of $6,599.77.

The salary of the grand secretary was increased $200.00 per year.

The Committee on Correspondence made a report upon the question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France and reported that it had been unable to obtain proper evidence concerning the Masonic standing of this body, and recommended that consideration of the subject go over for one year.

The Committee on Jurisprudence make a report approving practically everything that the grand master did. They called his decision with reference to a deaf man, as unnecessary for the reason that the situation was already covered by law. They also make this report—

As the law in the New York jurisdiction provides that any person serving in the Army or Navy of the United States is eligible to admission in that jurisdiction without further inquiry as to residence, we do not feel it is our duty to proceed further with this case.

The above only goes to illustrate the necessity for certain uniform laws among grand lodges, bearing upon questions of this sort. The feelings of the Grand Lodge of Vermont, toward the Grand Lodge of New York, because of its usurpation of the rights of personal jurisdiction can readily be understood. The Grand Lodge of Vermont, however, is not at all belligerent. It shouts "Kamerad," and lets it go.

The election and installation of officers was the closing feature of the meeting.

The report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence is presented by Charles H. Darling. He looked over the proceedings of other grand lodges, picked out matters, that pleased him, arranged them in topical form, and gave them to his grand lodge. He quotes in full an address by Walter L. Stoekwell of North Dakota, which must have pleased him. Comments on the use of the word, Blue Lodge, and says—

From time to time foreign correspondents and others refer slightly to the use of the expression "Blue Lodge" and maintain that it is a misnomer; but the name as applied to the first three degrees of Masonry has been in use so long, its acceptance so general and it is understood by so wide and universal use, that it will always remain the designation for these degrees, whatever may have been the origin of its use or however erroneously applied.

The term "Blue Lodge," is just a habit. Brother Darling, however, takes the opportunity to reproduce something that Silas B. Wright, of Florida said upon the subject—

"A number of requests for information have appeared in the Masonic periodicals of recent date, and in one or two instances, grand masters have ventured a criticism upon the appellation 'Blue Lodge' as applied to the Masonic Lodge for the Craft Degrees in the English and American jurisdictions. There are a large number of historical incidents and much Masonic data on this subject. Probably the best is by Dr. W. J. Chetwood-Crawley, late grand treasurer of the G. L. of Ireland and a noted Masonic writer. Much of his work has appeared in the 'Arts,' that most excellent periodical published in London.

He says that the use of the word 'Blue' as applied to lodges first came to us from many centuries ago and the first authentic Masonic record in regard to the color 'blue' is in the English and Irish Grand Lodge minutes of 1731 and 1734 where they ordered the three grand lodge officers to have 'blue silk lining to their aprons and blue ribbons for their jewels.' In the Scottish Grand Lodge, green was used and their color records date back to 1637, but the first three degrees are known with them as the 'Blue Lodge' and in their third degree work, they make a very marked preference to 'blue.' In the English Grand Lodge records, the shades of blue were at one time termed as of a 'watery tinge,' which is very near what is now called 'garter blue.'

Going back beyond the Grand Lodge of England to ancient and biblical history we find an abundant field, and there 'blue' was almost universally associated throughout Christendom with the 'Virgin Mother' and it was one of the principal colors of the Orders of Imperial Rome, Byzantium, and Egypt.

Going back to the tabernacle erected under the direction of Moses, we find blue especially mentioned. In Exodus, 25th chapter, 8th verse, we find that Moses said, 'Of this is the offering which ye shall take of them, gold and silver and brass, and blue and purple and scarlet and let them make me a sanctuary that I may dwell among them.'

Again in Exodus, 26th chapter, we find the instructions, 'And shalt make loops of blue upon the edge of one curtain,' etc.

In summing up the matter from these and from other references not given above, it seems a natural sequence that the lodges of Craft Masons should be known as the 'Blue Lodge.' "

The only reference which our reviewer makes to Illinois is to be found in a paragraph under the head of "Clubs." It is reproduced in full—

In Illinois in answer to the question submitted as to whether a lodge might lawfully provide and maintain, so-called, lodge rooms in apartments adjoining its place of meeting, the grand master decided that "if such place, conducted within reasonable limitations, were closed during all sessions of the lodge and only such rooms as were used as reading rooms were permitted to be opened on Sunday, that a lodge might lawfully maintain such apartments."

It is difficult to understand why a club conducted in accordance with this rule should be objectionable as some form of club life has come to be the demand of a large part of the craft. The difficulty is in enforcing the rule, for many attend the club that ordinarily would not attend the meetings, and if the club is to be open and patronized during the meetings of the lodge, much interest is likely to be withdrawn from the lodge; if, on the other hand, the club is to be closed during the meetings of the lodge, the purpose of the club would be defeated especially in communities and during the season in which the work is nearly continuous.

VICTORIA, A. F. & A. M.

A quarterly communication was held in the city of Melbourne on Wednesday, March 21, 1917. The grand lodge was opened in ample form, the Honorable Charles Carty Salmon being on the throne.

The first business of importance was the election of a grand master, the present incumbent being re-elected.

The Board of General Purposes makes a report which is general in character, nothing of specific importance outside of the jurisdiction being considered.

The grand secretary presents quite an extended report. He covers many details which are usually recorded by grand masters.

Each newly raised brother is given a certificate of membership in the fraternity by the grand lodge, which adds considerably to the labors of the grand secretary.

According to the grand secretary's report rituals are very easily obtained provided a man has been a Master Mason for twelve months. All that is necessary for him to do is to remit the prescribed sum and the book is forthcoming.

The Grand Lodge of Victoria permits the grouping of candidates, allowing lodges to confer the degrees on more than one candidate at a time with the exception they must be separately raised.

Four hundred and fifty-three dispensations are reported by the grand secretary, 150 of which were to confer degrees within limits and 130 to initiate before minutes relating to election have been confirmed. Eighty dispensations were granted to meet on a day not more than seven days before or after the regular day of meeting and 47 dispensations were granted to wear Masonic clothing at funerals.

The address of the grand master is the concluding feature of the communication. He deals with the general condition of the craft and is loud in the praise of the brethren because of their generous donations to the various charities of the jurisdiction.

A quarterly communication was held in Freemasons' Hall in Melbourne on Wednesday, June 17th.

Owing to the illness of the grand master the lodge was opened by the deputy grand master. The Board of General Purposes made a characteristic report.

The principal items of interest concerned the various relief funds and the amounts distributed for worthy distressed Master Masons, their widows and orphans.

The board approved the issuance of circulars of appeal to raise money for the purchase of tobacco for soldiers and sailors overseas. Subscriptions to a society called the Belgian Order of St. John having been sent to the lodges of the jurisdiction the board asked that no contributions be made until something more could be learned concerning the society and its antecedents.

Permission was granted for the publication of a Masonic journal to be known as the Victorian Craftsman, showing that the grand lodge exercises a rigid censorship over Masonic opinion in the jurisdiction.

A quarterly communication of the grand lodge was held on Wednesday, September 17, 1917, in the city of Melbourne. The death of Grand Master Charles Carty Salmon was formally reported by the deputy grand master, and a half hour was given to eulogizing the virtues of this distinguished craftsman.

The Board of General Purposes made their report disapproving of chain letters and recommending the discontinuance of the placing on lodge summons the names of the Committee of Inquiry.

Quite a rumpus was kicked up because of the introduction of an amendment to the rules and regulations providing that any lodge founded for the purpose of research and composed of subscribing members of other lodges should be exempted from the payment of quarterly contributions. The amendment with certain modifications was passed.

The Lodge of Sorrow, held in the town hall at Melbourne, in memory of Past Grand Master Salmon, was an imposing ceremonial. Many tributes were paid to the high character and standing and devotion to Freemasonry of the distinguished craftsman.

The final quarterly communication of the year was held December 19, 1917. At this meeting Right Worshipful Brother F. T. Hickford was elected as grand master.

The Board of General Purposes made a report that the Belgian Order of St. John of Jerusalem had no official recognition and therefore had no authority to issue circulars to the lodges of the jurisdiction. Other matters reported were of purely local interest.

The grand inspector of workings evidently made the discovery that candidates were not being properly instructed for in his report he says—

Every candidate should at least be able to answer the questions required of him before being passed or raised, and I would suggest that the proposer hold himself equally responsible with the secretary to see that the candidate receives in some form the questions, and also that they are properly interpreted to him; further, that the J.D., in the 2nd; and the S.D., in the 3rd degree, be able to guarantee the worthy master that the candidates know the answers to the questions before the worthy master proceeds to ask them.

He also found that a number of lodges were commencing their work as late as 8:40 p. m. thereby compelling late hours and tiresome procedures. He states that when a lodge has considerable business and there are very many visitors that in case the lodge has work the tyler shall prepare the candidate, so that at the proper time he may be introduced without delay. He also observes that a past master's night is all right provided there has been sufficient rehearsal to acquaint the officers with their duties but that in a good many instances these affairs are beneath the dignity of Freemasonry.

No correspondence report is attached to the proceedings.

VIRGINIA, A. F. & A. M.

The proceedings are voluminous in appearance made so because two hundred pages are devoted to printing the names of officers and members of the lodges of the state.

The 140th grand annual communication was held in the city of Richmond on the 12th day of February. The grand lodge lost no time in getting down to business, for immediately following the opening the grand master read his address.

He says that the progress of Masonry in the state has been onward and upward and he shows his confidence in his brethren when he remarks—

We know that each lodge has performed its full duty in relieving distress and has heeded the cry of the widow and orphan. I know that each Mason has delighted to speak a word of comfort and cheer to the oppressed and downhearted, and has made the world brighter and better because they have passed this way.

For the 4th time in the history of the grand lodge a grand master died in office. Henry Knox Field departed this life within six months following his installation as grand master, and was buried by the grand lodge on August 2nd with full Masonic honors.

The craft in Virginia evidently believe in giving some encouragement to the Masonic publications of the state for the grand master states that he directed the grand treasurer to continue a card in the Virginia Masonic Journal at a price of $15.00.

It is apparent from the report of the grand master that lodges in Virginia are permitted to lay cornerstones for a number of dispensations are recorded granting permission to local lodges to lay cornerstones of various edifices. This is a question which has been much discussed in Illinois as to whether the cornerstone service was a general Masonic rite which any lodge might perform or whether it was a function which belonged exclusively to the grand lodge. The latter organization at present assumes that it is one of its prerogatives, and does not delegate to its lodges the right to lay cornerstones.

The grand master evidently believes that the individual who is to serve in the capacity of grand master ought to be an all-round man for he says—

Observation covering a period of about six months has convinced me that the grand master of Masons in Virginia should be an expert in mechanics and building operations, be versed in both civil and Masonic law, should be a financier and also a peacemaker, and should be thoroughly equipped to master the problems arising out of the conduct of a home caring for children. He should have ability to make a pretty good speech without notice. He should know how to refuse a request and yet so phrase the words denying the request that the brother whose request is denied is convinced that he is actually being done a favor. He should combine in one man the best qualities of an executive officer of a corporation as well as have his heart responsive to sentiment and filled to overflowing with the true spirit of fraternity.

Reference to the World War is made and the subject discussed at some length. One paragraph is excerpted—

In making the world safe for democracy we are making it safe for the Masonic Order. Many of the members of our lodges are in the military service. All honor and glory to them. We hope that all will return. Some are now on foreign soil, some in training camps, and some on naval vessels; may the example of such illustrious Masons as Washington and Warren, and those who did such valiant service for the colonies in 1776, as well as the splendid achievements of John Paul Jones, be an incentive to them to do their full duty, whether as officers or privates. We know that the honor of Old Glory will be safe in their hands.

The grand master took the liberty of creating a new committee which he called "the Special Committee on Masonic Defense." He stated that its purpose was to handle all matters relating to the grand lodge and the government of the United States.

Blanks were ordered sent to all lodges in the state asking them to report the names of all their members engaged in military service in order that a roll of honor might be prepared and printed in the proceedings.

Very naturally the grand master commends the George Washington Memorial Association and refers to the work that it is doing and the large number of relies in its care.

Concerning military lodges Brother Cunningham expressed himself as opposed to such organizations in case they were to confine their activities to the conferring of degrees, for he says the facilities for obtaining degrees are so great now that no worthy man need be kept out. He stated that he would not object—

Where there was a sufficient number of Masons in a company or a regiment from this state, to granting them a dispensation to open a Masonic lodge, provided they would not be permitted to receive the petitions of anyone or confer degrees. In other words, if they wanted a lodge for purely social and benevolent purposes, I would not be adverse to granting dispensation for same.

It appears from the Grand Master's address that the brethren are figuring on a new Masonic temple as the present one is inadequate, and either it should be remodeled or a new one constructed.

The grand lecturer is handed a nice bunch of posies in the following—

The splendid work that has been accomplished by the grand lecturer since his appointment deserves more than passing notice. I would not in any way detract from the ability with which my predecessors have discharged their duties as grand master. Neither would I take away from them any of the glory that has attended their administrations, but I would not be just to you, to the grand lecturer, myself or them, if I failed to say that the onward march of Masonry in Virginia has been due in a great measure to that brother who, giving up the comforts of home, the companionship of his loved ones and association with his home people, in winter and summer, has taught our beautiful and impressive ritual to the Masons of Virginia, so that today, from the mountains on the west to the shores of the Atlantic, from our northern boundaries to where our state joins North Carolina and Tennessee on the south, in every lodge you find brethren qualified to confer the degrees, due to the careful and painstaking work of our beloved Grand Lecturer George W. Wright.

Concerning the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France the grand master made no recommendation but suggested to the grand lodge the propriety of enacting some legislation upon the subject.

Some very nice things are said in the grand master's address regarding the Virginia Masonic Journal, and its work is highly endorsed. About all the Masonic publications in Illinois get from grand masters is an occasional calling down.

The grand master admits that he has been generous in the matter of issuing dispensations for conferring degrees out of time and says—

I have set aside the law, both as regards the receiving and balloting upon petitions and the conferring of degrees, probably in more cases than any other grand master who has presided over the grand lodge in the last twenty-five years. The peculiar conditions, however, are responsible for the dispensations granted. I have not hesitated to set aside the law so as to enable the young manhood of our state who were called to the colors and desired to be Masons before they left for foreign shores, to gratify their wishes. In every case, however, I have required that the request should be either approved by the district deputy grand master or some prominent Mason in whose judgment I had implicit confidence, and in all cases I have required that the entire membership be notified of the action contemplated under the dispensation.

Among the recommendations made were the following—

That the roll of officers, past masters and members of subordinate lodges be not printed in the proceedings, but be printed in a separate volume to be known as the Roster of Membership of the Subordinate Lodges of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, A. F. and A. M.

I recommend that Section No. 19 be amended to read as follows—

The acting grand master shall nominate a candidate for each office, and any member of the grand lodge shall have the privilege of nominating additional competitors.

I recommend that any lodge exempting any of its members from dues on account of their being in the military service of our country shall be exempted from the payment of grand lodge dues on such members for the year 1918.

Among the decisions rendered by the grand master was the following which is in accordance with the best Masonic usages—

I decided that a man who had received degrees in a clandestine lodge could petition a lodge in Virginia, provided that accompanying his petition was a full statement of the facts and his complete renunciation of the lodge, its grand lodge, or any alleged Masonic body affiliated with or having jurisdiction over it. If the ballot was favorable, the degrees must be conferred the same as upon any other petitioner.

The grand master was compelled to get after a lodge in another state for sending literature into his jurisdiction asking the lodges to buy $5.00 bonds, the proceeds therefrom to be used for the construction of a Masonic temple. He asked for a law prohibiting lodges from using any of their funds for purposes outside of the state unless approval of the grand master has been given.

In concluding the grand master says—

We are engaged in a great work as members of the Masonic Fraternity that will not be completed until the working tools of life fall from our hands. We are building a spiritual temple that we trust shall be our dwelling place for eternity, and in the building of that temple our labors should be so beneficial to mankind as to erect for ourselves a monument that shall live in the hearts of grateful humanity. Our Temple, to stand in the days of trials and temptations and withstand the storms of malice and envy and the winds of persecution and privation, must have its foundation built upon a relief and faith in God as the Supreme Architect and Governor of the Universe. If the foundation of a structure is not strong, then the building erected thereon will eventually go down to destruction. It is therefore absolutely necessary that in the preparation for the building of our Mystic Temple, we rest our foundation upon the solid rock.

The special Committee on the Recognition of the Grand Lodge of France after setting forth such facts as they were able to gather concluded their report with the following—

Your committee might go on to quote more and say more, but we of Virginia Masonry DO believe in God, we ARE deists and not atheists, and cannot recognize as Freemasons those who do not require a direct and positive belief in the Mason's God as a fundamental, the first and chief fundamental of any claim as Freemasons.

We will not stop to discuss the question of their well known political activities, nor do more than call attention to Section 234 of our Digest, which has been our law for more than a century, but in view of the above, and the fact that we, in common with British Grand Lodges, have for years recognized the National Independent Grand Lodge of France, which IS of our sort, we recommend, if recommendation be necessary, that no action be taken.

The grand lodge approved.

The net assets of the grand lodge as set forth by the grand treasurer are $207,389.18.

Quite a lengthy report is made to the grand lodge by the Committee on Property, which has charge of the Masonic temple. They report that for the year the net earnings of the temple were $2,656.11. Not knowing the cost or value of the property it is impossible to state whether the grand lodge earned a fair percent on its investment or not.

The district deputy grand masters of Virginia make their reports to the Committee on Grand Officers, and what they have to say is printed in full in the proceedings. In the main they are on a parallel with those submitted to the grand lodge in Illinois.

In line with many other grand lodges a telegram was sent to the President pledging the loyal support of the Masons of Virginia.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address did not agree with the grand master in exempting soldiers from the payment of dues for they said—

We do not think any lodge should be exempted from the payment of grand lodge dues for any member for any reason, and do not concur in the recommendation of our grand master that this should be done in cases where the lodge exempts brethren in military service from payment of dues.

The grand lodge found it necessary to increase the per capita tax to the sum of $1.25, 75 cents of which goes to the Masonic Home.

The Committee on Masonic Charity, from accounts, evidently handles appeals for assistance which lodges are unable to take care of. It has discovered that there are slackers among the workmen for it says—

Your committee is sometimes embarrassed by having appeals from some of the large and influential lodges, who seem to have the idea that this committee was formed for the purpose of relieving them of the responsibility of taking care of their own indigent Master Masons, their widows and orphans, and do not seem to realize that the committee was created for the purpose of assisting the smaller and poorer lodges of the state in taking care of their indigent members where they are unable to afford the necessary relief themselves.

Evidently the line of elective officers in Virginia commences with the junior grand deacon for the record shows a lively contest for that office.

The grand lodge permits the grand treasurer to select a deputy and to name him. The grand secretary enjoyed the same privilege for the appointment of his deputy is recorded.

It is right and proper that grand secretaries should have the right to select their deputies because a real foxy grand secretary is not going to select some ambitious brother, who as soon as he becomes deputy, will commence to lay plans for nosing his superior officer out of the job which he so much covets.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence is Past Grand Master Joseph W. Eggleston, and if the writer remembers correctly he was grand master of Virginia at the time of the formation of the George Washington

Memorial Association. If so he is remembered most pleasantly for the writer never spent two more enjoyable days than those on which he partook of the hospitality of the Masons of Alexandria.

Brother Eggleston in his review has been generous to Illinois.

He opens with the remark concerning our proceedings—

A striking feature of the immense volume is, not the number of pictures of Masonic temples, but the singular variation in styles of architecture. Many are really novel in ornamentation and design. Could we reproduce them in this review, they would make a sensation.

He quotes what Grand Master Wheeler had to say concerning religious antagonism and says—

Ignoring utterly, as we should do as an organization or even as individual Masons, all question of the merit or demerit of the charges so often made against that "church or religion," as individual citizens each has a right to his own opinions and actions in this or any other question on which men differ; but no controversies, or even antagonisms, have a proper place in the brotherhood of man.

A very liberal extract is taken from the address of Governor Frank O. Lowden. His comment thereon is as follows—

The Governor was immediately appointed grand orator for next year and unanimously elected an honorary member of the grand lodge. The first was all right; but we do not like the making any Mason an honorary member of the grand lodge. It is not a good precedent.

The writer is disposed to agree with Brother Eggleston in his objection. No doubt the Grand Lodge of Illinois acted hastily and without precedent but it should not be forgotten that the grand lodge was under a patriotic spell and no matter what subject might have been presented at that time, if it involved the least element of patriotism it would have been carried with a tumult.

A very high compliment is paid to Brother Leroy A. Goddard in the quotation of almost a page of his remarks to the grand lodge.

Brother Eggleston is evidently a good judge of human nature and has the extraordinary ability to read men, for he notes the address of Joseph Fort Newton at a Chicago school of instruction and remarks—

We all have our weaknesses. His showed up in the fact that before he sat down he managed to give his book quite a good press notice, skillfully led up to, by arousing curiosity.

Charles H. Martin's correspondence report, so far as Virginia is concerned, is referred to as five pages of bright running summary.

One thing Brother Eggleston says which is quite true and should be kept in mind by all reviewers is that—

Quotations of grand master's decisions should be full in order to be perfectly fair.

Brother Eggleston prepares for his grand lodge a most excellent review. He has the rare faculty of being able to pick out of the great mass of material that is submitted to him those bright and helpful things which Masons ought to read and know.

Another volume of proceedings in a handsome blue cover. A note on the title page contains the direction ordered to be read in all lodges.

The sixtieth annual communication was held in the city of Seattle on June 12, 1917. The roll call disclosed the fact that there were a large number of past masters present and all lodges represented but 12.

The grand representatives were formally presented and accorded the customary honors. The brother representing Illinois appears not to have been present.

The grand master requested all past grand masters to assemble before the altar and to retire and escort Old Glory into the lodge room. This is a new use for past grand masters and in honoring the flag they honor themselves.

The opening ceremonies of the grand lodge consisted of addresses of welcome, and responses with plenty of music furnished by the Seattle Masonic quartette.

The report of Grand Master George R. Malcolm is not long and in presenting the affairs of his office he indulges in no attempt at lengthy discussions or wearisome exhortations.

He states in his opening remarks that he has been compelled to handle the business of the grand lodge through correspondence and that he has been unable to visit very many of the lodges of the state.

He issued a large number of dispensations, most of them to confer degrees in less than the statutory time.

Four dispensations for the formation of new lodges were issued.

A dispensation to form an army lodge was refused. In this connection Brother Malcolm says—

I am convinced that for various reasons it would not be for the best interests of the craft to grant dispensations of such a character, at least not until the grand lodge has determined the manner and method by which such dispensations are to be granted.

He refused to issue a dispensation to confer the degrees in one evening for the reason that the candidate had not been elected at the time the dispensation was applied for.

Two decisions were rendered by the grand master—

A Master Mason, dropped from the rolls for non-payment of dues, shall not be entitled to the rights and privileges of Masonry while under that status.

A profane, working on a steamer plying between ports on Puget Sound, is not a seafaring man.

Among the recommendations was one asking the Committee on Jurisprudence to define who are seafaring men. This leads to the conclusion that the Grand Lodge of Washington like many other grand lodges, has local conditions which must be met with special rules and regulations.

A recommendation that the law be amended to preclude Masons or Masonic associations, being used for political purposes attracts the curiosity of the writer. It would be interesting to know just what happened in the state of Washington to prompt the suggestion.

Another recommendation is out of the ordinary. It reads as follows—

That it be made a Masonic offense to solicit members for the so-called higher degrees of Masonry until after the brother shall have received the Master Mason's degree.

It looks as tho some of our consistory and commandery boys have been a little bit over zealous in the matter of getting their friends into high society. The recommendation is timely. It is a breach of Masonic etiquette for any Mason to solicit a candidate to advance in Masonry or for any other purpose until after he has received his Master Mason's degree.

The grand master referred to the work of the grand lecturer and his deputies stating that they had visited and instructed ninety-two lodges during the year. In this connection he says—

The present system of instruction is not satisfactory.

There are many lodges in this jurisdiction that need instruction, but do not ask for it. If we are desirous of having the lodges profieient in the work we must adopt a method of reaching the lodges that fail to ask for instruction.

I would recommend that the grand lecturer be put on a salary of $1,500.00 a year and expenses, and that he act under the immediate supervision of the grand master; the idea being to have him visit and instruct, especially, the smaller and younger lodges.

The report of the grand secretary consists for the most part of tables showing receipts and expenditures. The per capita tax paid to the grand lodge in Washington is practically $1.50 per member. The Grand Lodge of Illinois now pays $1.00, and those best acquainted with the future needs of our homes realize that it is only a short time until an increase will have to be made.

The grand lodge inherited some trouble when it took over a Masonic cemetery formerly owned by Kane Lodge now deceased. One Frederick Schmidt claimed title to the property which forced the grand lodge into the courts to determine its rights. It seems a little unusual that a Masonic lodge should provide itself with a cemetery and immediately give up the ghost. This ought to be a warning to other lodges.

The proceedings record the appointment of what are termed regular committees. We suppose regular committees belong in the same class with standing committees. There may be irregular committees and there may be sitting committees, at least a sharp lookout will be kept for such.

The Masonic Home report presents many interesting details concerning the care of the helpless of the fraternity.

The Grand Lodge of Washington does one mighty good thing. It provides a fund for the care of worthy members of the fraternity, their widows and children outside of the Grand Lodge Home when it is preferable to so care for them. Last year the sum of $3,206.05 was expended in this good work.

Grand Orator Morton Gregory delivered an address to the grand lodge on the second day. He states in his opening remarks that the oration which he had prepared for presentation at this time would be most improper in view of the fact that the nation was now at war, so he was compelled to select another subject and prepare a new address. Maybe the grand orator is a pacifist, if so it is probably a good thing that he changed his subject.

No subject is given to the address under review, and a careful reading of the same fails to disclose just what particular line of argument the speaker was trying to present. He did say one good thing which will be heartily approved by those Masons who deplore the haste with which degrees are conferred—

I am much concerned because on every hand I see that which persuades me that men are not willing to build character as character must be built. Indeed, Most Worshipful Sir, is it not a deplorable condition when men shall rush through the degrees of Masonry almost over-night, and is it any wonder that some Masons are not Masons at all?

The so-called higher degrees of Masonry do not amount to anything, so far as the character of the individual is concerned, unless the necessary time has elapsed to enable one to comprehend in a reasonable degree at least the fundamental principles of the craft.

We may be contented in our scheme of education to cram hard facts into the plastic minds of our children and thus educate their memories only; but we cannot hope to make Masons in any such manner. The definition of education,—of educo, is to lead out of, not stuff into.

I submit, Most Worshipful Sir, that the first and foremost object of Freemasonry is to make Master Masons and not to confer on them a name or to swell their pride, or enable them to wear a button obtained under false pretenses.

The grand secretary received a little eclat because the Committee on Segregation and Reference took his report, separated the various items, and referred them to the committees heretofore designated as regular.

Concerning the request of the Grand Lodge of Panama for recognition the committee asked for further time, as they had been unable to obtain such data as they desired.

Concerning a brother holding a dimit from a lodge in Panama and who desired to affiliate with a lodge in Washington the committee recommended that the dimit be held in abeyance until such time as the attitude of the Grand Lodge of Washington toward the Grand Lodge of Panama might be determined.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence also deals with a few other subjects, one of which is noted in full—

There is a note of growing unrest among the grand lodges of this country over the increasing use of the Blue Lodge degrees as a membership basis for extraneous organizations. The feeling is growing that these organizations are taking the attention of the members from the serious features of Masonry which are their fundamentals. There is a further feeling that most of the things which these organizations attempt to do should properly be done within the body of the lodge. They are simply doing things which the lodge should do itself and which are properly a part of its functions. Some of the grand lodges have gone so far as to prohibit their members from joining any organization which makes Blue Lodge membership a condition of eligibility, unless such organization has received the sanction of the grand lodge.

What's the matter Brother McAllister, won't they take you in?

And now comes the Committee on Segregation and Reference dividing the report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence and parceling its several departments among the regular committees of the grand lodge.

The Committee on Jurisprudence sustained the grand master in his refusal to grant a dispensation for the formation of army lodges.

Concerning Masonic burial services the committee quote from a section of the Washington law which is based upon the sound Masonic principle that Masonic burial is a rite and not a right.

In a supplementary report the committee reported that in their opinion it was proper for a lodge of Masons in Masonic clothing to appear in public for the purpose of participating in patriotic demonstrations.

The Grand Lodge of Washington is revising its monitor, the matter now being in the hands of a committee.

From the report of the Committee on Returns it is gleaned that in the lodges of Washington there are 178 honorary members and the number of indigent members paying no dues is 157, a small percentage.

Concerning the recommendation that the salary of the grand lecturer be fixed at $1800 the Finance Committee refused to concur and recommended that the law be left as it is. The committee also recommended that a lodge which had been fined $11.00 for some delinquency be remitted the amount paid.

The salary of the grand secretary for the coming year was fixed at $2400 and the assistant grand secretary at $1500.

The correspondence report is prepared by Brother Ralph C. McAllister. He gives two pages to Illinois and accords generous treatment.

He briefly notes the principal acts of Grand Master Wheeler and quotes what he said about politics in lodges with the following comment—

There are other jurisdictions that ought to get after some of the "blatherskites" of the fraternity in the same way.

Brother McAllister thinks—

The grand lodge authorized a queer Masonic procedure when it appropriated money to purchase new paraphernalia in accordance with the following resolution—

"Whereas, The ever increasing demands for the use of the grand lodge jewels and other equipment at ceremonies of constitution, institution and other occasions make the possession of another set of jewels and other paraphernalia almost a necessity, so that two such ceremonies may be held at the same time," etc.

The same criticism has also been expressed here in Illinois. The grand lodge absolutely refuses to allow one of its constituents to hold two separate meetings at the same time in different departments and yet it divides itself up into two groups whenever occasion may demand. There is a serious inconsistency in the whole business, and it is no wonder that the correspondent of Washington has said what he did.

Concerning the social activities of Grand Master Wheeler he says—

We can imagine a large measure of pleasure and profit derived from a club whose daily vocation brings them into personal touch when that is strengthened by the fraternal bond.

Brother McAllister very pertinently asks what prompted the grand lodge to recognize legislation prohibiting Masons from appearing in public drinking saloons in Masonic clothing. Naturally the inquiry arises in the mind of anyone as to why an institution of high morality should be required to take up legislation of this character.

Concerning the use of the word Masonic for business purposes Brother McAllister says—

It is hard to tell where to draw the line, but the curtailment of its use is the surest way to protect against its abuse. Personally we cannot see why, if it is proper to ask for your dollar on the strength of Masonry, it is improper to ask for your vote on the same basis.

He calls the correspondence report of Chas. H. Martin an extremely readable one.

Concerning Brother Martin's criticism of the tendency of grand lodges to limit the activities of local lodges and interfere in their private concerns Brother McAllister says—

He may as well give that up. The tendency of the times is to usurp authority in favor of the grand lodge, and neither he nor the writer can stop it.

The writer, however, is disposed to agree with Brother Martin because there is a feeling of unrest among the fraternity and a growing conviction that there is entirely too much legislation for the best interests of the society. It is possible to carry this to such an extreme that lodges will rise in their might and absolutely clean out of their grand lodges those meddling, office-holding, authority-seeking brethren who imagine that the future success of the fraternity lies wholly and solely in the enactment of petty legislation which in many cases is without Masonic precedent and becomes highly burdensome to the present overworked and much annoyed Masonic lodge.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA, A. F. & A. M.

This grand lodge holds quarterly communications.

The proceedings are presented in a neat volume with no attempt toward an elaborate display. The frontispiece is a half-tone portrait in full military uniform of Most Worshipful Brother the Most Reverend C. O. L. Riley, D.D.V.D., archbishop of Perth, chaplain-general, grand master for the fourteenth consecutive term.

In the opening pages the grand secretary records the apologies of a number of brethren for their inability to be present at the first quarterly meeting at Kalgoorie, July 27, 1916. This is rather unusual but shows a proper interest in the grand lodge on the part of the brethren.

The grand master's address at this meeting was brief. It is apparent that he is devoting much of his time to military service, for he says—

Now first of all I have to apologize, in a way, for myself. The grand secretary tells me I had to say something about myself, as I am going away, but first I have to apologize for having done so very little for Masonry during the last two years. When I tell you that owing to extra work I have never had a day's holiday the last two years, you will perhaps forgive me this omission. I have to leave in a few days on military duty, and so I shall be away from my office temporarily. But perhaps you will understand that if one has served as a good head of any institution work ought to be so arranged that it can go on in his absence as in his presence.

The grand master reports having visited twenty-two lodges.

Among the dispensations issued was one to appear in regalia at a Masonic funeral. This is out of the ordinary and there is no good reason why a lodge should be put to the necessity of securing a dispensation to turn out as a lodge to bury one of its members.

The grand master calls attention to the fact that on the honor roll of the grand lodge are three hundred and twenty-six names with weekly additions constantly augmenting the list. He remarks—

We owe those brethren a debt of gratitude that we can never repay, and our duty will be to see that such service is not forgotten, but ever remembered with veneration and gratitude.

Extended mention is made of the Widows', Orphans' and Aged Freemasons' Fund and the grand master asks the brethren for a continuance of their support to this most excellent charity. He says—

The Great Masonic Charities of England are supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and each year sufficient money has to be raised by this means to keep the schools going, and it was thought that like many other institutions, benevolent in character, they would this year be called upon to face a decreased income with consequent curtailment of benefits. With great anxiety the responsible officers made a strong appeal to the craft, and the response was entirely beyond their most sanguine anticipations, the Girls' School and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for the old people receiving between them no less a sum than £76,000 at their annual festivals, and the Boys' School function has not yet taken place, but there is every reason to believe that its success is assured, and that the total voluntary contributions to the three charities will in this—the second year of the greatest war in all history—exceed £110,000. All this effort is entirely outside the operations of the Benevolent Fund of the Grand Lodge of England itself and the various provincial charities. One of the most self-sacrificing and touching incidents that has come under my notice was the request of the girls themselves attending the Royal Masonic Institution for girls, that they should be permitted to go without prizes this year, and that the amount usually expended in this way should be given to the Red Cross Fund to provide comforts for wounded soldiers. Their request was acceded to, and the sum of £70 was handed over to one of Queen Mary's Funds. It may interest the brethren to know that something like 700 boys are being educated under the auspices of the Royal Masonic Institution for boys in England, and of boys who have been educated there considerably over 300 are serving at the Front.

The grand master pays a high tribute to the late Lord Kitchener, who—

Nearly twenty years ago was made a past grand warden of the Grand Lodge of England when the late King Edward presided over one of the largest gatherings ever held in connection with the craft, the occasion being the celebration of the Diamond jubilee of the late Queen Victoria. It was at that gathering that the late Sir Samuel Way was made a past grand warden and myself a past grand chaplain. The late Lord Kitchener took a great interest in the craft in every part of the empire in which he was located, or even which he visited. He was district grand master of Egypt, and held the same office in the Punjab while in the Indian command. There are three lodges named after him—the Kitchener Lodge at Greenwich, England; the Kitchener Lodge at Simla in the Punjab; and the Kitchener Lodge at Cairo.

The grand master reports that he found it necessary to issue a dispensation to one of his lodges permitting it to go into recess for twelve months owing to the fact that so many of the members had enlisted in the service of their country and left the district.

No business of importance was transacted at this quarterly communication.

The members of the grand lodge were visibly affected as the deputy grand master bid the grand master bon voyage as he was leaving immediately in connection with his duty as chaplain general of the commonwealth forces abroad.

At the second quarterly communication, held Thursday, October 26th at Perth, the meeting was presided over by the deputy grand master, A. C. McCallun. This official announces that he has been carrying on the work of the grand master and that he has visited thirty-eight lodges in the three months past.

In his closing remarks he says—

Never has there been a time when brotherly love was so necessary, not only to the craft, but to the whole community, when it was so necessary that we should regard it in its broadest sense, that sense which considers the whole of our citizens as one great family, created by an all-wise Being and placed here for the mutual assistance of each other. When nations are ranged against nations in the deadly struggle of war, there is surely trouble enough, and we, as a brotherhood, should not allow actions of ours to offend others, or permit differences of opinion to disturb our friendly relations as members of the craft, which we all love so dearly.

It is not enough that we remit a brother's dues. Our plain duty is to visit those he has left behind and see that they are properly cared for, and generally to fill the part of the brothers that we claim to be. We have still another duty. Many brethren have already fallen, and we fear that many others may do so before the war is over. To the widowed and the fatherless we have to show our practical sympathy, by seeing not only that they do not want for necessaries, but that the children are educated and properly fitted out to fight the battle of life.

The Board of General Purposes of this grand lodge call attention to the fact that a number of lodges owning property have defective titles caused by their failures to fill vacancies created by the death of trustees or their removal from the province. Lodges in Illinois might profit from this experience and find it to their advantage to investigate their own titles and see if they are being kept in good standing.

The third quarterly meeting of the grand lodge was held at Perth on Thursday, January 25, 1917. The deputy grand master presided.

He reports to the grand lodge the narrow escape of the grand master who was on board the steamer Iverna which was torpedoed in the Mediterranean. At last reports the grand master was alive and well and none the worse for his adventure.

In his closing remarks the deputy grand master says—

I have heard Freemasonry described as "A religion of morality," but I think it better to adhere to the opinion of some of our ablest writers, that "Freemasonry is one universal and benevolent brotherhood, ignoring altogether sectarian differences of opinion, but promulgating ever most distinctly the sacred volume's lessons of morality and duty and responsibility."

Freemasonry is a great association of men who have made it their task to live in perfect equality, united by the bonds of mutual confidence, mutual esteem and friendship under the name of brothers, and to stimulate each other to the practice of benevolence and morality.

We have, at times been accused of "the inculcation of bare morality." Freemasonry does what it can fitly and honestly; it accepts the V.S.L. as the one true teaching of moral duty and personal responsibility, and it recommends all its members to regulate their words and actions by the divine precepts it contains.

The Board of General Purposes reported that it was satisfied as to the regularity of the Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands and recommended that official recognition be accorded said grand body.

The board report a case of relief which shows that too great care cannot be given in rendering assistance to strangers.

Quite recently a Freemason presented himself at the grand secretary's office and told the story that he had been accidentally stranded at Fremantle through the transport on which he was working having sailed while he was ashore. He proved himself and represented that he was a member of a certain lodge in New South Wales, and a wire to the grand secretary in Sydney elicited the reply that he was deserving. Through the kindness of several Fremantle brethren, his wants were attended to and arrangements made for his proceedings to the East by another boat, but he got drunk in the interval, abused the kindness of a brother who had provided him with board and lodging, and did other things proving himself totally unworthy. Upon a report being made to Sydney and a description of the man furnished, it was established that he had impersonated the brother who was reported "worthy."

The fourth quarterly communication was held at Perth on Thursday, April 26th, 1917, and was presided over by the grand master himself. He was given a most royal welcome.

Immediately on his return to the jurisdiction the grand master took up the affairs of his office and his report shows that he has been by no means idle.

The Board of General Purposes recommended the refund of all grand lodge dues paid by brethren who are in the active service.

The business transacted at this last quarterly meeting was largely routine. The grand master naturally was re-elected to the office for another year. He appointed Brother Alexander C. McCallum as deputy grand master and named the balance of the officers.

The report on foreign correspondence is apparently prepared by a committee. Illinois is given two pages, and was undoubtedly reviewed by P.D.G.L. whoever that may have been.

The opening remarks of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler are quoted in full. Various items of interest from his report as well as the transactions of the grand lodge are briefly noted. The remarks of Brother Hilliker in presenting the children of the home to the grand lodge are liberally quoted.

Concerning the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin he says that—

He has had a very high standard set in past reviews, and has proved himself a worthy successor to others who have filled the position.

The proceedings are issued in a well printed volume of five hundred and fifty pages, of which two hundred and twenty-five are devoted to a display of the officers and members of the lodges of the state.

A certificate signed by the grand secretary assures readers that the pages which follow contain a true and faithful transcript of the proceedings. This is a little out of the ordinary, although it has been held by some Masonic authorities that all proceedings of grand lodges should be certified by the grand secretary.

Details of thirteen special communications of the grand lodge held during the year for various Masonic functions are recorded in full. In nearly every instance these grand lodges were imitations being made up of proxies for the various grand officers.

The annual communication was held in the city of Parkersburg on the 14th of November, 1917, at 7:30 o'clock P. M.

It is noticed that quite a number of southern grand jurisdictions hold evening sessions, believing no doubt that time should be conserved, which is quite different from Illinois, where but one session is held each day. No wonder so much important legislation receives hasty consideration.

Grand Master Charles E. Carrigan, in his opening remarks to the grand lodge, said—

Assembled then as we are, at such an hour in the world's activity, it is altogether fitting that we, as Masons, should pledge anew our deepest devotion to all those immortal teachings made sacred by the life-blood of our fathers. While the many important duties devolving upon us here shall require every moment of our time and will tax to the utmost all our energies, may we pause long enough to recall the all important fact that to be good Masons, also makes it absolutely necessary that we be good citizens.

He pays tributes of respect to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions.

He issued a large number of dispensations for various purposes. None of them, however, were out of the ordinary.

Under a heading "Permissions Granted" were quite a number allowing lodges to move from one location to another. One permit allowed a Masonic lodge to extend the use of its meeting place to the Order of Odd Fellows during the annual meeting of that body. From this it is gleaned that the Grand Lodge of West Virginia exercises complete control over the lodge rooms of the state as to the character of meetings held therein.

Among the requests refused was one forbidding a lodge from extending the use of its lodge room to a ladies' organization, also refusing permission to a lodge to participate in a flag raising.

The grand master records his official visitations which are given in detail and will no doubt be appreciated by the lodges visited.

The grand lodge maintains an Educational Fund to assist the children of deserving brethren living or dead to secure an education. Only one application was made to the grand master during the year. The Grand Lodge of West Virginia is to be congratulated upon entering this field of Masonic endeavor. This is practical Masonry and a wonderful field of helpfulness is here suggested to every grand lodge.

Among the decisions rendered by the grand master was one to the effect that a single candlestick bearing three arms could not be used in his state because the lights must be placed east, west and south of the altar requiring the use of single candlesticks.

Another decision of interest is one to the effect that—

A Masonic lodge is not permitted to hold joint ownership of property with any other than Masonic lodge, or allow its funds to be used jointly with the funds of other lodges in any such business transactions.

Another decision is interesting—

A candidate rejected on account of not being proficient in the lecture or catechism of any degree may appear for re-examination at the next regular communication of the lodge, or at any subsequent regular communication thereof until he is considered qualified in the catechism of such degree. No specified period of time is required to intervene between his rejection and his appearance for re-examination, within the required one year.

In this connection it might be observed that the enforcement of this provision will depend wholly and solely upon the worshipful master. If he has considerable work on hand and is striving to make a record, as so many masters do, it goes without saying that very few candidates would be sent back for re-posting. The examination in most instances will be satisfactory, even if it has to be conducted behind the anteroom door.

Somebody asked the grand master if the American flag could be spread over the altar of the lodge when open provided the regular lights were properly displayed. The grand master ruled as follows:—

As to the proper place for the flag in the lodge room no provision is made in the ritual. However, no possible objection can be made to making a display of the American flag in the lodge room. But the one particular place it should not be is upon the altar. The teachings of our order clearly and explicitly define just what the decorations of a Masonic altar are. These and nothing else should be there displayed. The flag may be appropriately displayed elsewhere about the lodge.

The grand master made an eloquent plea in behalf of those engaged in the service of their country and said—

It is, however, in behalf of those who are members of our own fraternity that I plead. It is hardly possible that there is a single subordinate lodge in all our country, that does not have at least one brother who sleeps this night in a soldier's tent. If there was ever an hour when there should be an united effort to aid in all possible ways to make camp life pleasant, pure and home-like, that time is now. For years to do good to others has been a theory, today it is a practical reality. One of the district deputy grand masters of this grand lodge is authority for the statement that nearly one-third of all the young men now in training at one of the officers' training camps of our country are Masons. If this be true of all the camps of the nation, what is the present duty of our fraternity?

He recommended the remission of the dues of all soldiers.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $15,586.59 and expenditures $12,070.31.

The Educational Fund shows cash on hand of $6,180.00.

The grand secretary makes an extended report in which he details a number of matters, some of which belong to his office and others to the grand master's.

He likewise suggested that members of the army or navy be exempted from the payment of dues during the period of the war.

The financial report of the grand secretary is one of minute detail and there can be no question either as to the receipts or expenditures of the grand lodge.

The deputy grand lecturers of the state each make a detailed report of their lodges of instruction to the grand lecturer, all of which is printed in the proceedings. Here is a good suggestion for the Grand Lodge of Illinois and is somewhat along the line that the writer has been insisting upon during the past year—that all teaching of the ritual in Illinois shall be placed in the hands of the Board of Grand Examiners who shall be made directly responsible not only for the efficiency of the teaching force but likewise for the results attained.

A lengthy report was made by the Special Committee on Masonic Home, the substance of which was that the grand lodge having accepted the provisions of the will of one Henry Krug it was irrevocably committed to the establishment and maintenance of a Masonic home.

The election of officers in this grand lodge took place on the afternoon of the second day and was immediately followed by the installation, after which the grand lodge resumed its labors and listened to the reports of various committees.

The report of the Committee on Proceedings of Grand Officers was offered near the close of the session and is purely congratulatory in character. The grand secretary was allowed $900 for stenographer's services, and on recommendation of the Committee on Finance all members of lodges engaged in the service of their country were exempted from the payment of dues.

In the memorial section of the proceedings is a page dedicated as follows: "In Memoriam of all Masons, Good Men and True, who died on Land and Sea since this Memorial Page was printed one year ago."

The grand secretary is to be commended for his thoughtfulness and fraternal spirit.

The review of foreign grand lodges is prepared by G. W. Atkinson. He devotes two pages to Illinois, quoting in full the opening remarks of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler. He reviews the visits which Brother Wheeler made to one hundred and one lodges and says—

If this is not going some I confess I do not know what that slang expression means.

He commends the action of Brother Wheeler in building up the study side of Masonry in our schools and says—

Very few grand masters have gone to this trouble and expense, and yet it is the very thing to lift up to the highest standard the principles and teachings of the fraternity.

Concerning the grand secretariat he refers to the lengthy detailed report of Isaac Cutter, which, he says, reveals his activity as a scribe and not a Pharisee.

Concerning the grand lodge taking over the monitor, Brother Atkinson thinks that the right thing was done and says that every grand lodge should own and control its monitor and reap the profits of its publication.

The correspondence report of Charles H. Martin is proclaimed as a valued and carefully prepared production.

The proceedings of this substantial and conservative grand lodge, come to us in an attractive volume, well printed, but without any attempt, whatsoever, at display.

The seventy-fourth annual Communication was held in the city of Milwaukee, June 11, 1918. The grand lodge was opened in ample form, after which, Willard S. Griswold, grand master, presented his annual report. In his opening remarks he refers to the tremendous efforts that the country is making in its prosecution of the war, and observes—

There is nothing but loyalty among us, nothing but an exalted devotion to our country in this supreme hour of her destiny. Gladly have we given up our sons and our brothers, our money and our time, our energies and our talents, and we stand ready to give more and more and still more until the strongholds of autocracy fall before the free democracies of the earth and a peace shall be achieved which no sinister military power shall be able to disrupt or disturb. And when it shall all be over and the victory shall be won it will be Masonic truth and Masonic principles of Justice and Charity and Brotherhood which shall, in ways which we cannot now foresee, bring the nations of the world into a unity of spirit and of purpose never dreamed of before the commencement of this war. What important role Freemasonry may be called upon to play in the last great act of this world drama when the guns have ceased to roar, we can not know. It may be no different in kind or in degree than our present mission, and if so it is much and it is enough. If so it is to continue with ever increasing influence in a fast growing field to inspire Masons with a deeper sense of justice, a keener regard for truth in all their dealings, a quicker response to the cry of human need, and a more sympathetic and comprehensive love for all our fellow-men.

The grand master briefly refers to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. He submits what he calls, eleven decisions. He decided that a Masonic Lodge could not permit an Eastern Star Chapter to hold a card party in a Masonic hall but that it might do so in rooms adjoining thereto.

A peculiar question was one, wherein a lodge wanted to know if it could receive and act upon the petition of an alien enemy. The answer was, that the matter was one for the grand lodge to decide. Another decision was that a lodge could not prepare and present an act in a public vaudeville show, the proceeds of which were intended for the Red Cross.

He decided that physical defects, existing from birth, did not place such cases in a class by themselves. Another momentous question submitted, was as to whether a lodge should have by-laws. The grand master replied, that while there was no provision in the law requiring them, no lodge should be without them. This is a rather peculiar state of affairs, and the query naturally arises, as to just exactly how our Wisconsin lodges, manage their affairs without some sort of local regulations.

The grand master reports that he issued 358 dispensations to waive the time limit in the matter of balloting and conferring degrees. He states that all but ten related to men entering military service.

All requests from lodges to participate in public parades were refused with but one exception, permission having been granted to one lodge to participate in a Liberty Loan parade. Why the grand master made this discrimination is not indicated in his report.

The grand master reports that he wrote about 1300 letters and sent about 100 telegrams. He certainly got off easy.

Two dispensations for the formation of new lodges were issued, and two corner-stones were laid, one of which was for a Masonic Temple. The brethren of Wisconsin must be financially prosperous for the grand master states that he took care of all requests for relief with an expenditure of $165.00.

Concerning the conference of Grand Masters, held in Washington, last December, the grand master makes this observation, which shows very clearly that the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin, feels amply able to "paddle it's own canoe."

I believe that a National Masonic Council of Defense and a huge war fund would accomplish little more, compared with what is now being done, than to advertise Freemasonry and its achievements in the public press—a thing which cheapens it and which it neither needs nor desires. I believe that this and every other grand jurisdiction is amply competent to manage its own affairs and to measure up to the high standard of the responsibilities of this hour without help or interference from any other source.

In speaking of the unsettled condition of our times Brother Griswold says—

I speak of this to draw the lesson of admonition that we should exercise the utmost care to hold fast to our ancient and time-honored customs and usages—not to deviate one iota from the important principles which Freemasonry upbears—never to lose sight of the landmarks of our Masonic faith through all the storms of the voyage. Oh, let it be burned into our thought in the midst of the perils which surround us that Masonry without its God is a poor, useless creed, and without its Bible is an empty, unmeaning form, “a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing,” and that anything that calls itself Masonry, and has not the one true God and the one holy book, is not Masonry in fact, and can never be recognized by us as such.

Among the recommendations made by the grand master were the following:—that the provision demanding special fees for the conferring of degrees out of time, be abrogated during the period of the war; that all grand lodge dues and assessments against members who are in military service be remitted during the period of the war. Also that there be incorporated in the law an edict requiring all candidates to show an element of proficiency in the Master Mason's degree before participation in the membership of the lodge. This latter recommendation is characteristic of those members of our fraternity who judge its worth wholly and solely by its ritual and its regulations. Their idea of doing something for the fraternity is to add a new regulation, or requirement or to make some ruling whereby it is possible to distinguish a Masonic legal hair, “twixt south and southwest side.” There is absolutely no argument in favor of requiring candidates to pass an examination in the catechism of the third degree more than to make the candidates progress through Masonry a little more burdensome and to exploit the pet projects of grand lecturers. The catechism as now required from candidates are entirely too long and as a result the examinations passed in nearly every lodge are far from satisfactory. Some of the keenest and brightest men in the business world have found it next to impossible to master the long array of irrelevant matter which they are required to learn in their Masonic progress. This whole question ought to be solved by the preparation of short, concise catechisms embodying those essentials which every Mason ought to know. It should then follow that every candidate be made to master these, and pass a satisfactory examination thereon. Every Masonic lodge should be penalized which attempts to smuggle through candidates improperly instructed, and every master who conducts an examination behind the ante-room door ought to be deposed from office.

There are some things in our Masonic system, that every Mason should know. For instance, how many Masons are acquainted with the five points of fellowship, wherein is to be found a declaration of Masonic duty. Every newly raised Master Mason, ought to be made to learn these and be brought to a realization of his relationship with his Masonic brethren. Such instruction is far more desirable than much that is now required.

The grand treasurer reports receipts from all sources of $174,828.05, and expenditures of $116,636.24.

The report of the grand secretary, William W. Perry, is devoted to statistics and various financial matters. He reports a net gain in membership for the year 1917, of 1,578.

The report of the Board of Directors of the Masonic Home is complete. The committee report that there are not as many members in the home as might be accommodated. This is a rather unusual condition as in most jurisdictions the demand for admission is constantly growing.

The Committee on Masonic Research, state that they have been devoting their efforts toward the organization of study clubs and the preparation of subject matter for the enlightenment of the brethren.

The grand lecturer discloses the fact that he visited and instructed, 141 lodges, and that he finds an increasing interest in the ritual.

A resolution appropriating the sum of $365 for the care of ten orphaned French children, received the approval of the Finance Committee and was adopted by the grand lodge. The Finance Committee, recommended that the mileage paid representatives for attendance on the meetings of the grand lodge be left at three cents per mile each way, but that the per diem be increased from $2.00 to $3.00.

The salary of the grand lecturer was increased from 15 to 18 dollars per day, he to pay his own expenses.

The Committee on Masonic Jurisprudence found little fault with the grand master, for they approved everything he did, with one exception, and that related to the examination of candidates in the Master Mason degree. It was a level headed committee that handled this subject. Their conclusions are sound and this is what they said—

Such measures have been adopted in other grand jurisdictions and wherever adopted have been ineffectual. They seem to deprive a Mason of a portion of his Masonic rights without a trial. To be consistent such a regulation, if adopted, should require as well periodic examinations of the older members of the lodge and for their exclusion from lodge membership if found not to be proficient.

Our clever Iowa brethren must have been at work among our Wisconsin brethren for a resolution which was introduced asking the grand lodge to officially recognize the Iowa Research Society and its publication went to the Committee on Jurisprudence and was disposed of in the following language—

The magazine, published by this society is one that has much merit, but it is only one among a number of excellent magazines published in the United States. It has always been the policy of the grand lodge not to give its official endorsement to any Masonic publication.

Wisconsin apparently has some very wise heads on the shoulders of some of its committeemen.

The grand lodge closed with the installation of officers, and the presentation of the customary jewel.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Aldro Jenks. Illinois receives five pages of very generous treatment. Liberal paraphrases are taken from the report of Grand Master Wheeler. All that he said upon the subject of military lodges is quoted. Concerning Brother Wheeler's decision to the effect that the petition and fee should be returned to a petitioner who permanently removes to another jurisdiction, Brother Jenks has the following to say—

It seems to us this decision is unsound. If a petition is presented to a lodge by a person who is proper material of the lodge, that lodge obtains full jurisdiction; it has territorial jurisdiction of him and personal jurisdiction by virtue of his voluntary petition. It cannot be divested therefrom by the action of the candidate in removing outside of the jurisdiction of the lodge. We think the Committee on Jurisprudence must so have understood the question when it said:

That while the construction of the most worshipful grand master placed on this proviso should not be disapproved, yet it should not stand as a precedent for future most worshipful grand masters in dealing with a like situation.

The decision is radically unsound and illogical.

Concerning the regulation adopted prohibiting Masons from appearing in public drinking saloons in Masonic clothing, Brother Jenks makes the following observation—

We cannot believe that any great necessity could exist for such legislation, particularly the last class of legislation mentioned and would regard it as a Masonic offense irrespective of any express provision being made for it in the code. That such an act would bring disgrace to the name of Masonry is very apparent.

Brother Jenks is quite right and the legislation referred to should never have been considered by the Grand Lodge of Illinois because as a result the impression has gone out to the Masonic world that we are a bunch of booze fighters and that we have been compelled to resort to legislation in order to accomplish that, which we have failed to acquire through our teachings.

Concerning the correspondence report of Brother Charles H. Martin, Brother Jenks quotes in full his report to the grand lodge upon the recognition of the Grand Lodge of Panama, because he looks upon the position assumed as a correct one.

Concerning the Correspondence report in general, Brother Jenks makes this comment—

A year ago in reviewing the work of our brother we said that "his labors will meet with a fair measure of commendation and deserve it. We miss, however, the freedom which characterized the writings of Brother Joseph Robbins and Brother Owen Scott."

The proceedings are offered in an attractive volume. The injunction ordered to be read in every subordinate lodge in the jurisdiction appears on the title page.

There is printed as a part of the proceedings the list of officers and members of every lodge in the state. As has been heretofore noted under other jurisdictions this practice serves no real purpose.

Three special communications for the purpose of laying cornerstones were held during the year. These are given in detail as a sort of preface to the proceedings proper. It has long been the custom in Illinois for the grand master to report these special ceremonies as a part of the transactions of his office.

The forty-third annual communication was held at Cheyenne. The first thing after the opening was the reception of the American flag and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

A detailed statement of the Committee on Credentials burdens the introductory pages of the proceedings.

In his opening remarks the grand master referred to the great European war in the following—

In this national crisis, the Masonic Order has a serious and extremely important duty to perform. Almost everything depends on the individual member, whether the fraternity will realize the sense of its responsibility or not. We should be actively engaged in the Red Cross work in every town and city in this jurisdiction. In every community our order should be represented in the public organizations for national relief work. It is a time when we should make every effort to co-operate in the common cause of our country.

His report on necrology is quite lengthy. He pays tributes of respect to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions.

The grand master accepted the invitation of the grand master of Oregon to join in a general conference of grand masters, but later—

Received a letter from the grand master of Oregon, stating that in view of the alarming lack of interest on the part of the majority of the grand jurisdictions of the United States, the Grand Jurisdiction of Oregon, therefore, believed it would be wisest and more in comport with the general feeling on the subject, to withdraw its overtures for a Grand Lodge Conference at this time.

The grand master rendered a few decisions, one of them to the effect—

That all visiting brethren from outside jurisdictions be required to present their receipts to the secretary of the lodge visited once a year, the secretary keeping a record of the same.

The grand master reports that permission was given to a traveling lecturer to visit and speak to lodges under such arrangements as he might be able to make with them.

A number of dispensations were issued, none of them covering unusual circumstances.

A detailed account of the visitations made by the grand master are made a part of his report. These items will no doubt be read with much interest by the lodges concerned as they will be anxious to know what he said about them.

Having received numerous inquiries as to the propriety of displaying the United States flag in lodge rooms, the grand master issued an order requiring all lodges to display the Stars and Stripes in their places of meeting.

Our brethren of Wyoming were not exempt from pursuit of the chain letter crank for it seems that he tried to get them to disseminate his little prayer. The grand master advised the lodges of his state to pay no attention to chain letters.

He apparently thinks that all good Masons should pay their dues promptly for he says—

One whose receipt is over two years past due is not entitled to visit in this jurisdiction, and will recommend to the grand lodge that they make it one year, believing that it is long enough for anyone to be delinquent.

The report of the grand secretary is largely statistical and financial. He mentions the purchase of some copies of the list of regular lodges from the Pantagraph Company at Bloomington. This no doubt pleased the grand printer of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, Alonzo Dolan.

The grand secretary reports the issuance of past masters' certificates to such past masters as complied with the requirements whatever they may have been.

The grand lodge is collecting a fund for its Masonic home and already has a very substantial amount on hands.

The Committee on Grand Master's Address is called in Wyoming the Committee on Distribution, and they kept within the limitations as defined by this word.

Some confusion arose in the state by reason of the meetings of the several grand bodies occurring on the same date, and a committee was appointed with the idea of arranging the annual sessions in such a manner as to avoid conflict.

It is gleaned from the proceedings that a committee has been at labor revising the code of the grand lodge. When their report was presented a motion was made that a picture of the Code Committee be bound with a printed copy of the code of laws. This is rather an unusual thing but it will serve one mighty good purpose. In later years when any brother is disposed to want to cuss the committee for some provision in the law which he doesn't happen to like he can have some satisfaction by turning to their pictures and gaining some idea of what they looked like.

A motion was made and carried that a special committee be appointed to index the code. Why not let Elmer Edwards of Illinois do the job? Some time ago he indexed the constitution and by-laws of Illinois and when he got through the index was bigger than the subject matter indexed and now the grand lodge is seriously considering having an index made to the index.

It was truly a patriotic and thoughtful impulse that caused the grand lodge to direct—

That every subordinate lodge in this jurisdiction shall procure a book for the purpose of recording the names of brothers who have answered to the call of their country in this great struggle for the Great Masonic Principles of Liberty and Equity, and that the secretary of each lodge shall keep in communication, when possible, with each and every brother above mentioned, and send to him a notice of the meeting of their lodges and such other information as may be deemed proper.

It also adopted the following resolution—

That the secretary of each subordinate lodge shall, within thirty days after a brother of his lodge has answered his country's call, notify the grand secretary of such fact, giving the full name of said brother and in what capacity he is serving his country.

Be it Further Resolved, That this grand lodge refund to each subordinate lodge of this grand jurisdiction the amount of grand lodge dues paid by said subordinate lodge on brothers who have answered their country's call, where said subordinate lodge has refunded the local dues to said brother.

The correspondence report is prepared by Joseph N. Lowndes in a manner which shows his disposition to be fair as well as charitable. He quotes in full Grand Master Wheeler's opening remarks to the grand lodge and reproduces what he says upon the question of life members who have not been heard of for seven years and endorses his action in dealing with public dances, picnics and other entertainment which introduce features objectionable to Masonry. He likes the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin and calls it an excellent one.

COMPARISON OF MASONIC CHARITIES.

By J. Le Grand Everitt, Grand Lodge of North Carolina

It is not out of place to record the charitable activities of Masonry in different parts of America.

From the foundation of the oldest Masonic lodge of England, the Mother Lodge of 1717, Masonry has devoted a large part of its energies to relieving the distress of needy brethren. In 30 jurisdictions, homes for the old and indigent, hospitals for the sick and afflicted, and orphanages are conducted.

In seven states the Masonic Order maintains separate institutions for the old and the children. Pennsylvania maintains three.

In every instance the Order of the Eastern Star has voluntarily contributed to these charities. In North Carolina the Order of the Eastern Star is very active in helping the Masons to finance our home, though to this date we have never received an application from an Eastern Star Chapter for admission of one of their members. Every guest of the home at this date has come under the credentials of a Masonic lodge.

In Oklahoma, Ohio, Alabama, Kansas, and Missouri, the O. E. S. has built hospitals in connection with the established Masonic Homes. Kentucky claims to be the pioneer in Masonic Home work, having established her home in 1871. North Carolina was one year later at Oxford.

The amount of money invested in Masonic Homes of America is $15,000,000. About 5,000 old people are being cared for in 39 institutions. The following states maintain homes:

Alabama has, near Montgomery, on an estate of 326 acres, a Masonic Home established in 1912-13, with hospital built and furnished by Order Eastern Star in 1915. Assets, $133,408.83.

Arkansas has a Masonic Orphans' Home at Batesville on an estate of 100 acres. Cost, $125,000. Established in 1909.

California has two homes. Assets $449,596.48. The De Soto Home for adults, on an estate of 267 acres, was established in 1889. The San Gabriel Home for boys and girls was established in 1909. The Grand Lodge of California has established a third home. On May 20, 1916, there was laid at Covina the corner stone for a new Masonic Home for children.

Connecticut has a home at Wallingford on an estate of 100 acres. Resources, $158,015.95. Established in 1889.

Delaware has a small but beautiful home at Wilmington, established in 1912. Assets $30,144.04.

District of Columbia has a home at Tacoma Park, established in 1913, which represents an outlay of more than $100,000. Established by the Sisters of the Order of the Eastern Star and is now receiving the support of the Masonic Fraternity. The Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia taxes each of its members $1.00 per year to support the same. Endowment Fund, $4,080.02.

Florida has no home, but has accumulated for the establishment of a Masonic Home and Orphanage a fund of $27,866.69.

Georgia established a home at Macon in 1905 on an estate of 100 acres. Assets, $45,000.

Illinois has two homes. The Sullivan Home established in 1914, with its hospital built in 1915, is on an estate of 474 acres, all of which was donated and is very valuable. Cost of buildings, $350,000. The La Grange Orphans' Home, erected in 1910, has assets amounting to $165,000.

Indiana laid the cornerstone of a new Masonic Home at Franklin in 1916 on an estate of 273 acres. The Order Easter Star contributed $32,000.00 of the $246,000.00 raised, and there is no debt on the property.

Kansas has a home at Wichita, established in 1896. Assets, $275,000, of which $25,000 is Endowment Fund.

Kentucky was first in America to establish a home, and now has two homes. The Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home was founded in Louisville in 1871. Assets, $694,016.03, of which $327,859.24 is Endowment Fund. The Old Masons' Home at Shelbyville was established in 1901 on property valued at $65,000.00.

Massachusetts opened its Masonic Home at Charlton in 1911 on an estate of 397 acres. Assets, $244,165.94.

Michigan maintained a Masonic Home for 20 years at Grand Rapids. It was lost by fire in 1910. A generous friend, Mr. Ami Wright, although not a member of the craft, gave to the Grand Lodge of Michigan in 1911 its present home at Alma, which after remodeling and the addition of a $35,000.00 hospital is valued at $220,000.00, and has bequests of over $25,000.00.

Minnesota is raising a Home Fund, and has about $75,000.00 of the $100,000.00 required before starting to build. Of this the Order Eastern Star has contributed $25,000.00.

Mississippi has an orphanage at Meridian. Established in 1911. Assets, $195,460.00, of which $112,460.00 is Endowment Fund.

Missouri has a home at St. Louis, founded in 1889, and a hospital erected in 1915 at a cost of $100,000.00. Assets, $638,450.00, of which $130,950.00 is Endowment Fund.

Montana established a Masonic Home near Helena in 1909. Assets, $83,526.45.

Nebraska established a home at Plattsmouth in 1903. Assets, $211,653.29.

New Hampshire established a home at Manchester in 1903.

New Jersey established a Masonic Home and Orphanage at Burlington in 1898 on a large farm. Additional assets, $267,000.00.

New York established a Masonic Home at Utica in 1902 at a cost of $638,965.24.

North Carolina established a Masonic Orphans' Home in 1874 at Oxford on a fine farm, and care for nearly 400 children. A Masonic and Order Eastern Star Home for old people was opened at Greensboro in 1914 on property valued at $48,000.00.

Ohio established a home in 1897 on an estate of 150 acres near Springfield. Assets, besides the land, about $600,000.00, of which $153,964 is Endowment Fund.

Oklahoma has transferred the old Indian School Reservation at Darlington, with building and 67½ acres of land, into a Masonic Home, which was opened in 1910. Assets, $191,050.00.

Pennsylvania has three homes. The Broad Street Home and the William Elkins Orphanage are included under the title, "The Masonic Home of Pennsylvania," and are controlled by a corporation. Established in 1885. Assets, $981,636.84. The Grand Lodge Home at Elizabethtown was opened in 1913 on an estate of 982 acres. The cost was $1,188,000.00. The home will accommodate 700 persons. It is said to be the largest and costliest Masonic Home in the world.

South Carolina has no home, but has accumulated a Home Fund of $100,000.00.

Tennessee established a Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home at Nashville in 1892 on property valued at $50,000.00. An Old Masons' Home is being built and will soon be open.

Texas has two homes. The grand lodge controls one at Fort Worth with an investment of $426,375.00, and Endowment Fund of about $200,- 000.00. The Home for Aged Masons was established in 1911 at Arlington at a cost of $78,000.00.

Virginia established a Masonic Orphanage near Richmond in 1890 on an estate of 63 acres. Assets, $130,000.00, including an endowment of $30,000.00, besides the buildings.

Washington opened a Masonic and Order Eastern Star Home at Puyallup in 1914. It has a beautiful and valuable location, and in addition an investment of $65,000.00, and a bequest of $150,000.00.

The Grand Lodge of West Virginia has recently received a handsome legacy, which is to be used for a Masonic Home.

Wisconsin has a Masonic Home at Dousman under the control of Wisconsin Consistory. Arrangements are being made for it to pass to the control of the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin.

These institutions are established and maintained by appropriations from the grand bodies, contributions, legacies, and nearly every jurisdiction levies a per capita tax, the Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., tax ranging from 20c to $1.50, 50c being the usual assessment. The Eastern Star tax ranges from five to 25c per capita, but the Star supplements this tax with contributions on Home Day and from entertainments.

Rhode Island and New Mexico Grand Lodges are accumulating Home Funds, and several others are considering the advisability of doing so. All but four of the grand jurisdictions of the Order of Eastern Star are each accumulating funds for a home, either independent, or in connection with the Masonic Home, and these four, as also many others, have each a Charity or Benevolent Fund.

MILITARY LODGES.

Francis V. Keesling, Grand Master of California.

A request for a dispensation empowering brethren who have entered the service of the United States in the Ambulance Corps to meet in a lodge capacity within camp or post, there to perform all functions of a regular lodge of Masons, except conferring degrees, was denied for the following reasons:

First: There is no power vested in the grand master to issue dispensations for traveling lodges;

Second: Rigid observation of the limits of, and diligence in avoiding intrusion upon, the jurisdiction of other grand lodges;

Third: Safeguards provided for the formation of regular lodges would to some extent be slighted, namely: the recommendation of a nearest lodge as contemplated by the constitution, near in the sense of being neighbors; the provision of a safe and suitable lodge-room; the certificate of an inspector based upon investigation among, and the good report of, neighbors, among other things; and thereafter the requisite supervision;

Fourth: The question of the propriety of so-called army lodges of any kind which seems to me to be as important a factor as any stated. Without question, a man who thoroughly understands the objects and purposes of Masonry should make an ideal soldier, and, viewed from the position of one who understands, it would seem that nothing but benefit should be derived from such an institution. One of the important elements in military training is thorough appreciation of lack of distinction, except such as is due to rank which experience has demonstrated to be necessary for the system. While the attempt to make use of membership in the institution and, as well, the results of any such attempt, may readily be disregarded as negligible, yet there must be taken into consideration the point of view of non-members of the fraternity who are comprised in the same military establishment and the dissatisfaction which might be occasioned by the existence of such a lodge.

It seems self-evident, even were there authority to grant such a dispensation, that there is possibility of greater detriment than benefit. One of the lessons most thoroughly impressed upon a Mason is that of loyalty and it should at once be apparent that he should pursue such a course as will contribute most to the welfare of his country. A citizen in the exercise of an unquestioned prerogative becomes a Mason—as a soldier he will recognize the limitations peculiar to the establishment and be concerned in the proper discharge of his duties as such. The establishment of a military lodge is unnecessary for the exemplification of fraternity and even more important Masonic precepts, or for instruction and even some ceremonials. It has been said that California is a conservative jurisdiction. It would be better to say that true to tradition the Masonic system is recognized as a finished product.

In connection with the subject matter it is interesting to note the position of our own grand lodge in the sixties, at which time the question was under consideration.

The chairman of the Committee on Correspondence of the grand lodge for the year 1863 was Brother Gilbert B. Claiborne, grand master in 1865-66, and an eminent Masonic authority.

The following is from the report of the Committee on Correspondence of 1863:

“New Jersey: The report on correspondence is from the familiar pen of Brother Joseph H. Hough, grand secretary, reviewing proceedings of twenty-seven grand bodies in an interesting manner. Ours is very fully noticed. He takes occasion, in considering the report of Rhode Island for the year ending June, 1861, to express an opinion concerning traveling lodges in connection with the army now in the field; and as there is already developed a difference of opinion, we present his view of the subject. He says:

“‘Have we not all acknowledged that state lines are the territory exclusively belonging to the grand lodge of the states? And do we not expect that they on their part will be true to their vows? But if we encroach upon them by founding lodges, traveling or otherwise, we violate a principle which has never been questioned. The Grand Lodge of Hamburg granted a warrant to Pythagoras Lodge located in the city of New York, which has been universally condemned by all the American grand lodges, and very properly so; and we can not but see that this matter of making traveling lodges to meet on the territory of another is of very doubtful propriety.’

“‘The grand lodge concurred in the opinion of the grand master and the committee. * * * We choose to express an opinion concerning the propriety rather than the legality, at this time. * * * As we have been in our intercourse honest and true in respect for the jurisdictional rights of another’s, we will not be consistent, at least, if we do not agree that there is impolicy—saying nothing of the legality—in permitting brethren, by the authority of our seal, to hold a lodge within the recognized limits of a sister jurisdiction of an American state. We believe that such an act would damage the interest and reputation of our grand lodge, and accomplish no good which can not be done by individual Masons who are lovers of our whole fraternity wheresoever dispersed."

Brother Claiborne continued as chairman of the Committee on Correspondence for the year 1864 and the following is quoted from the report of that committee submitted to the grand lodge that year:

"Maine: The address sustains the reputation its author (M. W. Josiah H. Drummond) has acquired by three years of active and steady devotion to the duties of his office. He issued dispensations to form five new lodges. Consequent upon grave doubts expressed last year by him concerning the propriety for granting dispensations for traveling lodges with the army, he denied an application in the preceding August, made by certain Masons of the Ninth Maine Regiment, and in bringing the matter forward he says:

"This grand lodge has always held that the jurisdiction of a grand lodge should never be invaded under any pretext or for any cause whatever. She has taken that position in regard to herself in her contest with the Grand Lodge of England, and has called upon her sister grand lodges to sustain her in it. They have with one voice responded to her call. She must be the last to depart from the policy she has done so much to establish."

"In addition to this legal objection, he entertains doubts respecting the policy, even if there was no legal barrier because the regiments are made up of men coming together from different sections of the state, having little or no acquaintance with or knowledge of each other, and because the knowledge which they acquire of each other in camp is not sufficient to enable them to determine whether the applicant would be an ornament or a disgrace to us. He gave permission to his Craftsmen in the armies to assemble in safe places for mutual instruction and rehearsal of the lectures and exemplification of the work, for exchange of fraternal greetings and the performance of ceremonial rites at the funeral of a brother. The grand lodge approved his reasons for declining to grant a dispensation."

The value of this opinion is appreciated by all who know the eminence attained by M. W. Josiah H. Drummond in the ranks of Masonry.

In the case of application for a dispensation for a lodge with full powers and prerogatives two additional objections may be made:

First: Possible conflict arising from residence of those who might be admitted into such a lodge;

Second: Confusion relative to membership upon surrender of the charter of such a lodge.

Somewhat akin to this was an inquiry whether the grand master would grant a dispensation for the formation of a lodge at Mare Island Navy Yard, to which I responded as follows:

“I am of the impression that dispensation for lodges at barracks or navy yards situated within a reasonable distance from lodges regularly established in home communities should not be granted.

“Without reflection upon the character of the men in the army or navy, the membership of the fraternity must be safeguarded and it can be no better safeguarded than by generally insisting upon application for membership in lodges in the community where a man has been reared or wherein he has lived for such a length of time as to have established a reputation. Lodges established in towns will proceed more cautiously and carefully and will safeguard not only the membership of this jurisdiction, but do full justice to the jurisdiction from which the applicant hails and who may only be temporarily removed therefrom, and in this connection I am of the opinion that the dispensation to ballot upon members of the army and navy should be carefully safeguarded and extended only in case of those who are regularly engaged in that service and not temporarily, in due consideration of the jurisdiction to which a man temporarily enlisted in the army and navy will eventually return.”

Many of the reasons assigned in support of my position with reference to traveling lodges are applicable to lodges of this character.

REPORT OF GRAND CORRESPONDENT OF UTAH ON THE REQUEST OF THE GRAND LODGE OF FRANCE.

To the M. W. Grand Lodge, F. & A. M. of Utah:

A letter from the Grand Lodge of France, under date of July 26, 1917, has been referred to your Committee on Correspondence for consideration and report.

This communication, after briefly reciting the conditions which called it forth,—viz., the landing of American soldiers upon French soil, and a desire for a closer union of the Masons of the two countries which this event aroused,—extends an invitation to the Grand Lodge of Utah to enter into fraternal relations with the Grand Lodge of France.

Since the reception of this request, your committee has given to the subject much careful consideration, and has endeavored to gather from all available sources information which would make possible a fair, impartial presentation of the matter.

In view of the fact that so little is known about French Masonry by the craft of this jurisdiction—and by Masons, generally—and that the causes of the present strained relations have not always been quite fairly presented, it seemed well to begin with a brief statement of some of the outstanding features of the situation.

Let it be borne in mind at the outset that the Grand Lodge of France and the Grand Orient of France are independent of each other, and have been independent since 1895, and that they differ in several particulars. Also, that the Grand Lodge of France has been independent of the Supreme Council of Scottish Rite, since 1904.

With this preliminary word, let us now note the causes of the rupture of fraternal relations between Masonry in France and that in English-speaking countries.

Sometime in the Fifties, a spurious Scottish Rite Council began creating symbolic lodges within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana. Because of relations existing between the prime mover in this invasion of jurisdiction, and the Grand Orient of France, appeal was made to that body for recognition. This was most emphatically denied, and the spurious council denounced as irregular and elandestine, by the Grand Orient. About ten years later—October 17, 1868—the new head of Freemasonry in France, accorded recognition to the spurious council, and commended its principles and work.

At once, Louisiana protested and then severed fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of France, and appealed to the grand lodges of the United States to take similar action, thus giving added emphasis to the protest of Louisiana. In response, some twenty-eight or thirty of the grand lodges of this country took the action desired. In this, we have the original cause of the dissolution of fraternal relations between French Feemasonry and that of the English-speaking countries.

A little prior to this event, and for some years subsequent to it, there had been discussed in the Grand Orient of France the proposition to make certain changes in the constitution of that grand body. The Franco-German war, and events growing out of that struggle, appear to have pushed aside this matter. It came up again, however, and finally, at its session held September 10-15, 1877, the Grand Orient voted for the change, 135 to 76 lodges.

By this action the Bible was removed from the lodge rooms, references to the Deity in the constitution—and later in the ritual—were expunged, and the affirmation of belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. was no longer required of candidates.

It might be noted in this connection, that the statements adopted declared, concerning Masonry, that “Its principles are absolute liberty of conscience, and human solidarity”; and further that “It excludes no person on account of his belief.” This last clause was in the constitution before the changes were made.

At once when this action became known the Grand Lodge of Ireland, later, the Grand Lodge of England, and then other grand lodges in English-speaking countries followed in dissolving fraternal relations. In this country, those grand lodges which had taken such action, on account of the invasion of the Jurisdiction of Louisiana, protested against the course taken, and reaffirmed their determination to have nothing whatever to do with the Grand Orient of France.

Section 159 of the Utah Code, was adopted in 1872, as a standing resolution, thus registering the protest of this grand body against the invasion of the jurisdiction of a sister grand lodge.

We must not overlook the fact that, prior to the year 1849 the constitution, and the position of the Grand Orient—on the matters under consideration—were practically, if not precisely what they are today. It further appears that anterior to the date named not a few of the grand lodges of the United States were in fraternal relations with the Grand Orient.

However, in the year 1849, for reasons that are not quite clear—but for which various explanations have been alleged—the Grand Orient modified its law so as to conform to the requirements set forth in that of the Grand Lodge of England. The much discussed action of 1877, as your committee understands it, simply restored the provisions of the constitution, as they were in 1849, and previous to that date.

The Grand Orient itself declared that in making the changes in 1877, it was simply reverting to the constitutions promulgated by the Grand Lodge of England in 1723, known to us as, "The Charges of a Freemason," published in our code, and "recognized and adopted by this grand lodge as the fundamental laws, rules and regulations for the government of all Masons" (Section 213). Reference to Article I, of those "Charges" seems to show that the point is well taken, and that the contention of the Grand Orient in this particular is sustained.

French Masons further declare that in making the changes of 1877, they had no thought either of becoming, or being known, as atheists. Your committee has been unable to find any evidence bearing directly upon the truth or falsity of this statement, but is strongly inclined to the belief that it accords better with the teachings of Masonry, and is more in harmony with that charity which should characterize the Mason, to accept the statement of these brothers. So far as your committee has been able to ascertain, assertions to the contrary are practically confined to two classes: Those who have not been in a position to investigate for themselves, and so have been obliged to take the statements of others, who, perhaps, were no better informed on the subject than they. Secondly, those who are the recognized, avowed, and unremitting enemies of Masons everywhere, as they have been, for some hundreds of years.

So much of a general statement concerning the Grand Orient, and French Masons, appeared to be necessary in order that we might have something of a background upon which to project other details which may seem to have a closer connection with the matter in hand.

It must be obvious too, that in dealing in this general way with the Grand Orient, we have at the same time indicated, in faint outline at least certain facts essential to an understanding of the Grand Lodge of France. The different threads of their history were so closely interwoven through so many years that they seem to form one, rather than two strands, and after their separation, and independence of organization came, there would still be, in things fundamental, such a community of interests and similarity of ideals, as to make the annals of the one, bear many of the marks of the history of the other. And in the great end sought, they are one. For the practical mission of Masonry in France, as was recently pointed out by a member of the Grand Lodge of France, is “* * * to promote and sustain liberty, to further equal conditions and opportunities for all men, to urge a true fraternity among the people.”

The Grand Lodge of France had its birth in 1804-1821, says another French writer, and became an independent, sovereign body in 1895, as already indicated. It has 150 lodges under its jurisdiction with a membership of 8,000, according to recent reports.

In the matters upon which the Grand Orient and English-speaking lodges differ, the Grand Lodge of France appears to be more tolerant, in that it permits its lodges to exercise their own judgment. At least one lodge under its jurisdiction is composed for the most part of English-speaking members, and follows the Grand Lodge of England in its religious requirements.

The Grand Lodge of France, like the Grand Orient, stands squarely on the constitution of 1723, and these, as already intimated, seem not to justify any such insistence upon the three points in dispute, as characterizes the attitude of grand lodges in this country. It may not be amiss to note in this connection, just what is demanded by that article “Concerning God and Religion.”

It declares that “A Mason is oblig’d by his Tenure, to obey the moral law.” It further declares, that, “if he rightly understands the Art, he will never be found a stupid atheist, nor an irreligious libertine.” Without pausing to consider the possible or probable meaning of the words “atheist,” and “libertine,” as used in the year 1723, you notice that the condition is found in the words: “if he rightly understands the Art.” It does not say that he may not be both an atheist and libertine (as well as a Mason; nor does it say that an atheist or a libertine, may not be a Mason. It does say that “if he rightly understands the Art” (but this he may not do), he will be neither the one nor the other. Then follows a statement of what formerly was required of the brethren, viz., to be of the religion of the country in which they lived, but now it is “thought more expedient only to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree, leaving their particular opinions to themselves; that is, to be good men and true, or men of honour and honesty, by whatever denominations or persuasions they may be distinguished.” In this, then, we have the religious platform upon which the Grand Lodge of France takes its stand. In explanation of this, its grand secretary wrote recently: “Concerning metaphysical problems we impose no dogmas, but propose by symbols to give the initiate the proper conception of the G.A.O.T.U., believing that with our aid they will rightly understand our art and not be ‘stupid atheists nor irreligious libertines’.”

With this statement of the position of our French brothers, on the one hand, and the "essential requirements of regularity," as developed by various grand lodges on the other, it must be apparent to the least observant, that, as has been repeatedly pointed out by others, religion is the rock which has split our great fraternity into its several fragments or groups. It is no less apparent, to the Mason who observes, and reads, and thinks, that some grand lodges in the United States are very perceptibly swinging toward a confounding of Masonry and Christianity. For example, here is a grand orator who declared: "True Masonry * * * recognizes the church as having been founded by God, with His Son Jesus Christ as the chief corner-stone." And a grand master insisted that "Our Book of Constitutions teaches us that the Sublime Person, the Lion of the Tribe of Judah, is the Christ, the Son of the Living God: and if our Book of Constitutions does not so teach, then is our Masonry a sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal."

It is not the purpose of your committee to discuss this feature, or to indicate any of the results which naturally follow,—both as regards our relations with foreign bodies of Masonry, and in our own conception of the scope and character of the mission of Masonry,—from the injection of such radical and extraneous ideas into the teachings of Masonry. Our only purpose in thus contrasting and emphasizing the positions held by the two parties, on the questions at issue,—and at the same time directing attention to the fundamental principle which both accept,—is that we may be led to see more clearly what is our own attitude, and at the same time be helped to do justice to the claims of our brothers of France.

There is another fact which bears upon the situation, that should not be overlooked. The Grand Lodge of Utah is now, and has been for eighteen years, in fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of Belgium. In this, it does not stand alone, as there are fourteen other English-speaking grand lodges—all but one, your committee believes—in the United States, who are in fellowship with the Belgian Craft. Yet, on the question at issue, the Grand Orient of Belgium stands on precisely the same platform, as do the Grand Orient, and the Grand Lodge of France. And, like their brethren of France, Belgian Masons have been forced into what their critics call "political activities." This does not mean, however, in either case, petty partisan politics. On this matter a prominent Belgian Mason recently wrote, after giving a brief glance at the history of the craft in that distressed land, since 1832: "During all these years the fraternity has had to defend its existence against an enemy that has never become lax or indifferent. Its position has been peculiarly difficult, as representing liberal thought in a state that has until of late years been closely under the influence of the Catholic church." And again, the same writer observes: "As an organization, Belgian Masonry has on occasion entered the political arena. Unless this had been done, political intriguers hostile to us would have destroyed Freemasonry in our country, and would thus have weakened the liberal elements." It would therefore appear to be a fair and legitimate inference, that any objection to recognition of the Masonry of France, based on the conditions which are always specified, would apply with equal force to that of Belgium. Yet, as already noted, fifteen English-speaking jurisdictions, including Utah, maintain fraternal relations with the Grand Orient of Belgium.

Another set of facts, to which some weight at least should be given, is what may be called a noticeable trend in Masonic circles since the beginning of the war toward a new appraisal of the questions at issue. One manifestation of this appears in the unmistakable desire to go to the proper sources for information, rather than to accept the dictum of those who sometimes speak of the issues involved, with an emphasis of seeming conviction, out of all proportion to the extent and character of the knowledge possessed. Pending the outcome of such investigations, in some cases, and in others not even instituting them, significant action has been taken by several grand lodges.

The committee of one grand lodge reported adversely on the request of the Grand Lodge of France that is now before us. The principal reason adduced was, as stated in the words of the committee, that while "the Grand Lodge of France is not strictly an atheistic organization, yet it is not deistic. It does not require of the petitioner a belief in deity."

On the other hand, the Grand Lodge of New York, the largest and strongest, numerically, in the United States, if not in the world, at a called communication, held September 10, 1917, granted "full liberty * * * to all New York Masons in France, to hold Masonic intercourse with French Masons and visit their lodges." This, your committee understands, was restricted to the Masons and lodges of the Grand Lodge of France.

The Grand Lodge of California, at its annual communication, held October 9-12, 1917, provided for a committee of five to consider the breach between French and Anglo-Saxon Masonry, and if possible, to devise some means by which it may be healed. Further, it modified any inhibition upon the right of visitation, in existence at that time, insofar as to allow California Masons to hold Masonic intercourse with the Masons of France, Belgium and Italy, and to visit any of their lodges. Apparently, no distinction was made between members of the Grand Lodge and the Grand Orient of France.

At the annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, which occurred October 16-18, 1917, a resolution was adopted which declared null and void the edict of non-intercourse with the Grand Orient of France, which had been its code since 1869. Grand lodge also adopted the grand master's recommendation, "That where no official prohibition against intercourse exists, Kentucky Masons may visit all foreign lodges." This leaves the Kentucky brethren practically free, Masonically, to go where they please.

Earlier in the year just past, the grand master of Louisiana, in his address at the annual communication of that grand lodge, recommended that the Grand Orient of France should be recognized. This was referred to the Committee on Correspondence. Later in the session this committee reported that we "are inclined to believe that it is the right of the Grand Orient to receive our renewal of recognition," but it asked for further time, pending the arrival of certain documentary evidence which was desired.

When the Grand Lodge of Manitoba met in annual session in 1916, the Committee on Foreign Correspondence—now grand master of that jurisdiction—presented a very full and exceedingly valuable report on the status of the several grand lodges with which his own was not in correspondence, and made certain recommendations. At the annual communication of 1917, the same committee brought forward additional facts and recommended that the Grand Orient of France be recognized. By resolution the grand secretary was directed to bring this recommendation to the attention of the several lodges of the jurisdiction, request them to give the whole subject careful consideration, and to instruct their representatives to the annual communication of the present year in order that definite action may be had.

The foregoing are some of the considerations which have been pondered by your committee during the last six months.

The matter before us is intensely practical. Already Utah Masons are on the battlefields of France. Others will follow. The tremendous pressure of events is driving into the human mind and heart the fact that: New occasions teach new duties and that time makes good uncouth. New alignments, new adjustments, new evaluations of human relationships have been forced upon the world by the titanic life and death struggle which has now become our own, and in which we are to have, we trust, an honorable and no small part. Our soldiers from every part of this broad land—tens of thousands of whom are brothers of the mystic-tie—are girding themselves for this awful conflict. Soon they will come to death-grips with the foe of every ideal for which America has stood in the years that lie behind—the foe of our common humanity. In this they will come into intimate fellowship with our brothers of England and our brothers of France, whose heroism on a hundred battlefields have glorified—beyond the power of time to tarnish—those qualities of human life which unmistakably link it to the Divine. Into all the fellowships and relationships of the soldier's life our boys will come—but into the joy of Masonic fellowship with the Mason heroes at their side, our members may not come till we speak the word. They will turn to us with the question:

“Shall I ask the brave soldier, who fights by my side
In the cause of mankind, if our creeds agree?”

To such a question, your committee believes a specific answer should be given. It is also of the opinion that the interest of all concerned will best be served by the adoption of the following recommendations:

First—That all Utah Masons in France be given permission to hold Masonic intercourse with the members of the lodges holding under the Grand Lodge of France and to visit such lodges.

Second—That the matter of establishing fraternal relations with the Grand Lodge of France be placed in the hands of such committee as may be designated by the grand lodge of the grand master, and that such committee report, with recommendations at the next annual communication.

The first recommendation was adopted. The second recommendation was referred to a committee to report on at the next annual communication.

THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

Address of M. W. Charles T. Gallagher, Before the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

According to Anderson's Constitutions of 1738, an original copy of which is before you and which is referred to hereafter, on page 109, we read as follows:

“And after the Rebellion was over, A. D. 1716, the few lodges at London, finding themselves neglected by Sir Christopher Wren, thought fit to cement under a grand master, as the center of union and harmony, viz., the lodges that met—

1. At the Goose and Gridiron Ale-house in St. Paul's Churchyard.
2. At the Crown Ale-house in Parker Lane near Drury Lane.
3. At the Apple Tree Tavern in Charles Street, Covent Garden.
4. At the Rummer and Grapes Tavern in Channel Row, Westminster.

“They and some old brothers met at the said Apple Tree, and having put into the chair the oldest Master Mason (now the master of a lodge), they constituted a GRAND LODGE pro tempore in due form, and forthwith revived the quarterly communication of the officers of lodges (call'd the grand lodge), resolved to hold the annual ASSEMBLY and feast, and then to choose a GRAND MASTER from among themselves till they should have the honour of a noble brother at their head.

Accordingly

on St. John Baptist Day, in the third year of King George the 1st, A. D. 1717, THE ASSEMBLY and feast of the Free and Accepted Masons was held at the foresaid Goose and Gridiron Ale-house.

“Before dinner, the oldest Master Mason (now the master of a lodge) in the chair, proposed a list of proper candidates: and the brethren by a majority of hands elected.

Mr. ANTHONY SAYER, gentleman, grand master of Masons, who being forthwith invested with the badges of office and power by the said oldest master and install'd was duly congratulated by the assembly who pay'd him the homage.”

Mr. Jacob Lamball,	}	Grand
Carpenter
Capt. Joseph Elliot

A cut of the Goose and Gridiron as an illustration from Mackey and other Masonic historians is to be found in our Proceedings for 1914, page 246, in a comprehensive and interesting address by M. W. Brother Johnson when grand master.

One of the basic principles of our Anglo-Saxon civilization is a foundation on which to build. The Domesday Book of the Norman Conquest established titles to all lands in England; our Puritan settlers at Charlestown who came to William Blackstone's spring for water when they settled on our peninsula within a dozen years thereafter made their Book of Possessions, fixing the title to every lot of land in Boston.

The system by which land titles are fixed serves as an example in everyday use and is a sample of the foundation principle in the development of our civilization. South Carolina united its two grand lodges as did Massachusetts, while the Scottish Rite of the Northern Jurisdiction is this year celebrating the jubilee of its union of several bodies. It is part of a system that looks for a recognized and settled authority. On that principle grand and supreme bodies are formed, and it was natural that brethren of intelligence and education, such as represented the speculative Masonry of London and Westminster, should early in the eighteenth century have conceived the plan of an organization of scattered lodges with no recognized head that should create a stable and strong institution. It is the formative part of the development of civilization into the family, the family into the clan, the clan into the tribe, etc., and finally into political divisions.

So it was with the "Four Old Lodges," as they were called, that got together at the Apple Tree Tavern to arrange for a first meeting which took place on June 24, 1717, at the Goose and Gridiron, with the Crown at Parkers and the Rummer and Grapes, as told in the printed and published accounts of this anniversary.

This principle of organization finds its parallel in the foundation of our own government, where the Preamble of our Constitution recites, "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union," etc. Perhaps they took their plan from this organization of the Four Old Lodges in London. We are apt to speak of the influence of Masonry on the foundation of our own government by stating as object lessons that all of Washington's generals were Freemasons, Lafayette being the last to receive his degrees, which he did in the Valley Forge Campaign that a majority of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitutional Convention were Masons; while the Masons on the Committee of Public Safety in Boston were John Hancock, Paul Revere, and Joseph Warren, all grand masters, the latter holding that position when killed at Bunker Hill—these are outward evidences. If we carry the parallel further, as suggested in Spencer's American Union and Ambrose's Letters, we find that the thirteen original states formed under the Federal Constitution on a similar plan to the Four Old Lodges of London: the one with their state rights and the other with their local authority in fixed relation to the federal government and the grand lodge respectively. New lodges, like new states, were to be created by charter from the general body of federal government, and these states, like the lodges, whether original or of new creation, should be subject to amendment by the general constitutions or grand lodge regulations. Thus we may say that in a political as well as national sense the organization of 1717 may have affected the form without the ceremony of our national government.

The questions that naturally present themselves to us as Masons are why the event is so important as to be celebrated by an anniversary; what was the condition of Masonry before that required it? The working of the subject in our minds naturally suggests the questions what were the "ancients" and "moderns"? When did "operative" Masonry become "speculative" in whole or in part? When did Masons become "accepted" as well as "free"? In seeking the answer to these questions, which has led my research into everything in our own library and in the extensive one presented to our grand lodge by Past Grand Master Lawrence, I feel farther than before from solving the problem and making definite answer. Leading Masonic historians like Hughan and Gould take for granted that the date we celebrate was the "Doomsday Book" or "Book of Possessions" of Freemasonry, and all back of it was unnecessary and need not be considered; the famous constitutions of Anderson, Payne, Desaguliers, Preston, and Entick seem sufficient from the beginning of the world to their time without speculation as to causes or the course of events. Other historical writers, Brother Henry Sadler, librarian of the Grand Lodge of England, for one, claim that the historians have neglected to give credit to the Scotch, Irish, York, and Athol lodges so called that flourished during several hundred years before and whose records still show the good work done by them; and in fact it is from them rather than the older historians that we must derive the answer to our questions.

For our purpose it might be sufficient to read some well-founded history of Freemasonry, such as Mackey's, where the conclusions which we shall reach may be found; but it is a delight to delve among the volumes in original research and to go to the sources of information, so I bring to you from our own and the Lawrence library some of the old volumes extant at the time and prepared by the men who formed the organization of 1717 which we celebrate.

The great misfortune in connection with the action of 1717 is that no record was kept of the events of the time or preceding the union or of what took place thereafter for some years, for it was not until 1720 that any action was taken, and in 1722 James Anderson was directed to form a book of constitutions to which were added the charges, both appearing in 1723. This was enlarged and improved by Anderson later, in 1738. An original of 1723 appears among the books before you in modern binding, and on the easel is one of the same originals inset in heavier paper and bound in morocco, making a book more than a foot wide and two feet long. This bound volume, prepared at a much later date than the pages of the original, contains fifty-one original steel and copper-plate engravings and mezzotints of the kings and queens of England with Grand Masters Inigo Jones and Sir Christopher Wren, an original engraving of Pine's allegorical design making the frontispiece.

The whole book as you see it has transformed an original constitution into a de luxe edition evidencing the Masonic devotion of some brother who wished to embellish a great idea.

The literary work of these constitutions was prepared with great care. James Anderson very properly has the credit for the work that bears his name. George Payne, who was the second grand master, was a learned antiquarian and compiled these regulations by Anderson. He also revised the Entick Constitutions in 1756, a year before he died in 1757.

Payne was a scholar with the degree of Master of Arts. Dr. John Theophilus Desaguliers, who was grand master after Payne, was a natural philosopher of great reputation, a fellow of the Royal Society and at one time curator, respected by Sir Isaac Newton and complimented by Butler, and while Anderson is to have credit it may be said of these two latter that honors can be divided between them by giving to Desaguliers the credit for a great knowledge of ritual and the application of its principles, while to Payne acknowledgment is made for a knowledge of Masonic jurisprudence and a power to formulate constitutions. Thus with the research of Anderson supplemented by the work of these two we have before us all the literary wisdom which such minds could adduce from the old constitutions, charges, and regulations back to the Middle and Dark Ages of English letters.

On account of the meagre records of the English lodges it has been and always will be a matter of honest difference when "operative" Masonry became "speculative" in whole or in part. Adopting traditions and legends, St. Edwin, king and martyr, was an undoubted patron of Freemasonry in the building of the Cathedral of St. Peter's at York, begun by him in 627, and when King Athelstan marched against the Scots he stopped at York in 936 and there at York-minster issued the oldest charter extant for an operative lodge. It must be remembered that from the fifth to the fifteenth century literature flourished the least of any of the liberal arts and sciences.

Tradition traces the operative Mason in an organized form from the Roman Collegia, the Saxon Guilds, the Steinmetzen of Germany, the orientalism brought by the Crusaders from the East, all kept alive during the church building of the Middle Ages, where were retained the symbols of the craft. The square and compasses and other instruments of the trade being found by the antiquarian at the base of the obelisks of the Nile, the monuments of Thibet, like the stone found on Goat Island in Annapolis Basin in 1606 probably left there by French Masons, and in the ruins of religious houses and cathedrals dating back to the earliest time of written history (the stone of Goat Island furnishing a modern instance), all furnish evidence of the operative Mason, but add nothing to the speculative search.

There is an original Masonic poem of the fifteenth century extant, a fragmentary legend, but many of the manuscripts reproduced by Hughan in his famous work on the Old Charges appear to have been founded upon it.

The four martyrs invoked as tutelary saints of builders appear as the Quatuor Coronati or Four Crowned Martyrs of A. D. 619 of Canterbury and among the patron saints of the French and exhibit a unanimity in the dedication by various nations to the operative guild of Masons; one such is found in 1459 with the Strasburg fraternity; and evidence of the existence of the operative Mason may be multiplied by similar examples.

In 1425 we find during the reign of Henry IV an attempt to suppress lodges which was not successful.

William Preston, whose portrait with an admirable address by our R. W. Brother Pound is to be found in our proceedings for 1914, page 467, in his book on Freemasonry published in 1772 describes the differences that arose between the Duke of Gloucester, supported by the Masons, and the Bishop of Winchester of the Catholic faith who tried to recall the Duke of Bedford, brother of the Duke of Gloucester, the Bishop claiming that his attack was not on the Duke of Gloucester but on the assemblage of Masons, etc. Later, when Bedford returned and the Bishop of Winchester came into power, Gloucester and his followers were beheaded. It is stated also that King Henry himself was affiliated with Masonry.

In the reigns of Henry VII and VIII questions arose as to the operative Masons, and while attempts were made to break up their chapters, congregations, and meetings none were successful, all investigations reporting favorably that they were good people and loyal to the crown.

In 1514-15 legislation was made that no Masons should take greater wages than the statute limited, and under Edwin VI, 1548, it was forbidden to interrupt any Freemason, rough Mason, etc.

Elizabeth, dissatisfied with an organization of strength and power to which she could not belong, investigated it by royal commission, but they reported that Masons were good men, loyal, etc., and so they were let alone.

With Inigo Jones as grand master in 1603-18 and again in 1640 we have a revival of the operative Masonry. He brought the Augustinian style into England. He was the architect of such memorable plans as Whitehall Palace and of numerous others equally great and important. He died in 1651 at the age of seventy-nine years, after a memorable life's work. His portrait is before you.

But more wonderful still was Sir Christopher Wren, knighted for his greatness as an architect and operative Mason, grand master after the accession of William and Mary in 1688, and rechosen in 1698. He planned the building of London after the great fire of 1666 which destroyed thirteen thousand dwellings and millions of property besides many lives; streets, churches, cemeteries, parks, and all public improvements were under his direction. Besides building St. Paul's Cathedral, begun in 1673 and completed in 1710, he planned and superintended the construction of fifty-four churches in London. He died at the age of ninety years. It is no wonder that the printed account of the 1717 gathering should recite that the few lodges in London wanting an active grand master by reason of Sir Christopher's disability saw fit to cement under a new one or, as the historian has stated it, the craft had been neglected by him. Certainly his duties were sufficient on the operative side for his failure to do much for speculative brethren.

But, you say, Masonry was flourishing elsewhere in the United Kingdom. Perhaps it was, but strange to say no meeting was held at the York Grand Lodge from 1716 to 1723, when it got an impetus presumably from this action in London. We must look elsewhere than to Sir Christopher Wren for the decline in London lodges at this time.

But to pursue our inquiry as to the operative and speculative, etc. Let us go back. In Scotland we find Nicholas Stone, master of the company in 1633, not an "accepted" Mason until 1639; this is true also of Sir Anthony Alexander, who came to this country in 1628 as Knight Admiral of Nova Scotia and who was not a Mason until 1634; the same is true of David Ramsay, the great soldier of fortune, and others of those who went from Scotland to serve under Gustavus Adolphus in the Thirty Years War; none of them were operative Masons.

That most interesting work of Robert Freke Gould's on the military lodges from the sixteenth century to the present time records numerous instances of men high in positions of state, war, and navy not operatives who prior to the eighteenth century were prominent in Masonry. Elias Ashmole, the famous antiquarian, founder of the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford, wrote in his diary: "1646 Oct. 16, 4:30 P. M. I was made a Freemason at Warrington in Lancashire with Col. Henry Mainwaring of Harinehan in Cheshire." Moray, the famous soldier, is also spoken of, and there is an instance of three military leaders each taking part in England's Civil War, a Covenanter, a Royalist, and a member of the Parliamentary party respectively, all nonoperative Masons.

It is recorded in the Lodge of Aberdeen in 1670 that less than one fourth were of the mason's trade, the rest were ministers, military and business men, and men of rank, and at that time and in 1607 at the time of the union of the two countries it is stated that the ancient symbols of Masonry had descended to the ordinary level of the artisan, while in the South the old framework with its symbols existed, and the narrative cites in support of this statement Sir Richard Steele, the famous literary man, who in an essay complained of the neglect of the operative Masons.

The historical account would be incomplete at this time if I neglected to mention the attempted history of Freemasonry of Leon Hyneman, going back into the sixteenth century, or the more dignified and pretentious, but none the less fantastic historical attempts of Laurence Dermott, each of which exhibited such strong racial tendencies as to destroy any useful reasoning and collation of facts; both of them have been made famous by having their errors uncovered by such historians as Hughan and Gould, who have thus brought to notice what otherwise might have passed into oblivion. In the writings of both these parties there are some truths, although their conclusions are not useful.

So while there is abundant evidence down to the sixteenth century of the free and rough Mason as an operative workman with his chapter, lodge, congregation, or meetings, those who are not operative Masons and were therefore "accepted" first appear on record in the sixteenth century.

According to James Stevens, the past master of Quatuor Coronati Lodge, who wrote in 1892 "the evidence demonstrates the continuance of 'speculative' Masons with 'operative' from 1599 to 1717 with an unbroken series of records." Thus Speculative Masonry was developed from our institution when it was altogether practical and when the members were engaged in building public edifices; these later were the Freemasons. Those taken in for their prestige and rank, their interest in learning, and their personal worth, being at first called honorary members, afterwards became "accepted" and assumed the title of "speculative." Their influence finally became so great they absorbed the operative side and the latter ceased to have an important place even down to 1717, and in 1723 ceased to exist. The transformation was gradual and interesting, but most difficult to analyze and explain. Mackey likens it to the development from the acorn to the oak. Speculative Masonry was thus developed from an operative institution and became a body whose object was the elevation of their fellow-men; philanthropy and charity were made prominent by their addition, and the beneficent influence of the institution has extended to every quarter of the world. The development and improvement in a code of laws with the creation of a ritual for degrees by cultured minds has been the fruit of the men of 1717.

Whence came also the name of "Ancients" and "Moderns"? There our history consists largely in calling each other by epithets. Henry Sadler, above referred to, who had the advantage of finding in the library of the Grand Lodge of England in 1885 the record of the "Ancients" beginning in 1752, and whose research led him to the first sources, concludes that the true origin of the Ancients was in 1735. While they did not take up with the English Masons until later, they began with the Irish Masons and Sadler in support of his theory claims that omitting the two Dukes of Athol and the Duke of Kent six of the seven remaining grand masters were Irish, the first constitution being derived from them also.

Sadler is fair enough to give a little credit to Laurence Dermott's long screed and admits there may be some truth in it.

The Grand Lodge of Ireland in 1730 elected a grand master following the Grand Lodge of England and claimed to have the same customs and usages.

Sadler further says that the historians who denounced the Grand Lodge of 1753 as seceders and schismatics were actuated by "a spirit worthy of a better cause" and says they should have accepted the old names of "Ancients" and "Moderns" as so much good was to be had in each; for while the "Ancients" published no list of their lodges as did the "Moderns," their records were more complete and many of them, like those of St. Mark's of Edinboro, are continuous from the first foundation, and that the Scotch Irish, and old York lodges were "ancient" as compared with our "moderns." By a curious anomaly, however, writers refer to the "Ancients," 1751, and "Moderns," 1717; this began before Sadler's discovery, but has been kept up since.

So in the early part of the eighteenth century we find ourselves confronted with Masonry in England in the condition of different musicians "playing the same melody in different keys"; all united in a common purpose, but lacking a leader or head. Masonry had been through tribulations. From the fifth to the fifteenth century was the Dark Age of civilized literature. There had been the decimation of the flower of Europe by the Crusades; in 1377 began the Hundred Years War in France; and in 1349 began the visit of that great scourge the Black Death, in which thousands died; by the Wars of the White and Red Roses whole families under York and Lancaster passed away and villages were depopulated; arts and sciences were neglected until by the Reformation in the sixteenth century a death-blow to mediaeval architecture was struck. Coming directly to London and the South of England, in addition to the great scourge which carried away one hundred thousand of the population, we have the great fire already referred to in 1666. This latter alone would have been sufficient to impoverish a people; so that not only architecture but the church itself might well have waned in influence; and there is no doubt that the influx of thousands of foreign operative workmen who helped restore and rebuild London for fifty years after the fire so demoralized the operative Masons and their lodges that the influence of the latter also waned. Being separate and individual bodies without recognition of a head, acting independently, not troubling themselves about warrants or constitutions, they lacked the cohesion of an organization. They were careful to look after their personal wants, such as the members contributing toward the expense of the evening meeting, limited in some cases like the following, according to old records: "The bowl shall be filled at the monthly lodges with punch once; ale, bread, cheese, and tobacco in common, but anything more that shall be called for by any brother either for eating or drinking, that brother so calling shall pay for it himself besides his club." "No money shall be expended out of the stock after the hour of 10." With the same regulations are found that an hour shall be set apart for Masonry, and "if any dispute shall arise the master shall silence that with a knock of the mallet." (It does not say who or what is to be knocked with the mallet.) There was provision also for the benefit of the sick. Even the social status evidenced some misfortune although no disgrace, for the first grand master of the 1717 Grand Lodge (Worshipful Brother Sayer) was the object of relief from the Charity Fund. No records were kept of lodge meetings, as in fact there was no record of the meetings of the new grand lodge until 1723 when William Cowper was appointed secretary, and since then the record has been unbroken.

The meetings prior to 1717 were not unlike those of the brethren of Philadelphia prior to 1723 who met together in gatherings which they may have called lodges but which were without warrant. When Benjamin Franklin came to Henry Price to be "further instructed in the Royal Art" he said of them that in Philadelphia "they were making Masons for a bowl of punch," and so forth, and he took back with him authority for Pennsylvania "which was the beginning of Masonry there" in 1734-35. Later Franklin became a deputy in that colony for Henry Price.

This brings us to the union of 1717 with "Free and Accepted," "Operative and Speculative," "Ancient and Modern" Masons; and here we appreciate the part that "Ancients'" records played in the formation of the new organization, for the substance as well as the spirit of Anderson's Constitutions is to be found in the old manuscripts and charges so interestingly collated in the work of Brother Hughan published in 1895 wherein are seventy-five spoken of and eleven accounted for as missing. Among the number recounted is our own parchment from the Carson library bought by General Lawrence, being seven and one fourth inches by seven feet under date of 1677. It is called one of the Stanley manuscripts. This was examined in England in 1890 and declared genuine. Among those old manuscripts are many interesting historical data, one showing a royal investigation, "That ye Lords or Ye Honorable Concell" having perused these lodges "they have allowed them well and said they were right good and reasonable to be holden," the record from which it was written being in the reign of Henry IV, and further quoting something regarding King Athelstan of the tenth century and King Edwin.

It was one of these old charges that our industrious brother, the librarian of the Pennsylvania Grand Lodge, ignorantly palmed off on one of their grand masters and had it published as evidence of a St. John's Lodge of Philadelphia. Many of us will recall this as the subject of a seathing exposure by our late Brother Nickerson as his last official act, showing that it was a copy written by one Carme in 1727, of one of these old charges or manuscripts and which somebody in Pennsylvania found in 1756. Because it had written over the top of each page in a dozen different forms the words "St. John & e &c" in the usual different styles of the old manuscripts the unhistoric librarian seized upon it as "bread," but found it was "a stone."

Among the old charges and so forth are found, too, some authority for the claims of Bazot, the French historian who published a manual in Paris in 1811, and others, that the St. John referred to by dedication was St. John of Jerusalem, the same St. John the Almoner to whom the Knights Templar are dedicated; he being the son of the King of Cyprus and canonized by the Greek and Roman Churches and for whom festivals are held each year. To all these old charges and so forth Anderson, Payne, and others had access in creating the new constitutions.

Apparently no attempt was made by Anthony Sayer during his first year as grand master at any new enterprise, but under George Payne, the second grand master, with his antiquarian tastes and literary knowledge, these old manuscripts were studied and brought out. The result was the compilation appended to the first book of constitutions which was performed by him. This was in 1718; two years later his literary talents appear in the general regulations which took the place of the old charges. These were the constitutions that became the Legend of the Craft taken up by Anderson in 1721 and which later, in 1723, were published with authority. These were enlarged threefold and improved by Anderson in 1738 and an original of each is before you.

The 1738 edition has the same engravings and frontispiece as 1723 and is dedicated to Prince Frederick Louis, Prince of Wales. Reference is made in them to the fact that until the Duke of Montague ordered these constitutions there were none, and so forth. The 1738 edition is in three parts, from the time of Adam to the invasion of England, thence to 1603, and thence on to 1738; a list of the grand masters is published in it with illustrations by Pine, the engraver.

Another book before us, bound in vellum, is the Constitutions of the Honorable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masonry with the history and charges and regulations by order of the grand lodge; they consist of the old records, traditions, and constitutions by James Anderson revised by John Entick, M. A., London, 1756, with an allegorical frontispiece. A dedication by the committee to the Marquis of Carnarvon, grand master, has not only his sanction and recommendation, but this constitution operates as "disclaiming all other books that have not the sanction of the grand lodge." This apparently was the last word on constitutions, as it contains all that appears in the previous constitutions for the government of the craft from 1717 down.

I have spoken of the frontispiece by Pine. He was a famous engraver; besides general work he with Bowen was the one who designed and engraved the lists of lodges of which many original and fac-simile copies are in our own and the Lawrence library.

The production of 1723 was ordered by Philip, Duke of Wharton, grand master, and was produced by Desaguliers, the third grand master, who was also deputy under Wharton's two successors and again under Lord Paisley, in 1725. When Viscount Montague gave Henry Price his warrant in 1733, and he in turn immediately chartered the first lodge in Boston, that lodge immediately appeared in the Pine list of lodges for 1734 in its proper place, "Royal Exchange;—Boston in New England; 2nd and 4th Saturday; 1733." A cut of a page from a later edition of Pine's list and reference to it was made by our Past Grand Master Johnson in his memorable historical address on "Freemasonry in America prior to 1750," found in our proceedings for September, 1916. (1916 Mass. pp. 309, fig.)

While we are on old books, an interesting contribution to Masonry in this line is that of William Preston, already referred to, with a dedication to Lord Petre, grand master, published May 21, 1772, in which he describes a grand gala at the Crown and Anchor Tavern and relates many historical facts, among others the attempt of Henry IV to suppress Masonic Lodges which came out at the trial for treason of the bishop of Winchester.

But, you ask, what of the four old lodges that united to make the Union of 1717? According to this same William Preston only one was extant in 1781, that being his lodge that met at the Goose and Gridiron in St. Paul's churchyard and was later the Lodge of Antiquity No. 1 which afterwards refused to agree to the edicts of the New Grand Lodge of 1717, claiming to retain its own prerogatives, and finally set itself up as a "Grand Lodge of England South of the Trent" getting its authority from York in 1779.

No. 2 at the Crown in Parker Lane near Drury Lane had been extinct in 1781 for fifty years by the death of its members.

No. 3 at the Appletree Tavern, Covent Garden, had been dissolved many years. This lodge was at one time dropped down to No. 10 in the list, which illustrates the rule and custom by which a lodge lost its precedence after one year's failure to pay "quarter-edges" and so forth.

No. 4 at the Rummer and Grapes became incorporated with the Somerset House Lodge.

But though dispersed and absorbed they had built an organization "that has stood the test of time"; it has been patronized by royalty and encouraged by the church; with the exception of the first three grand masters all the grand masters of England have been titled.

The date of the death of the first grand master, Anthony Sayer, is not known, although in June, 1742, a tyler was appointed to succeed the one deceased and as this position had been held by Sayer it is supposed he died in 1741. The London Freemason has an extended sketch of his Masonic career, which was not conspicuous. George Payne, A. M., the second grand master, was, as I have said, a scholar, and the third, Desaguliers, was a philosopher and thinker. All grand masters since have been titled. During one hundred years there have been but five grand masters: the Duke of Sussex, the Earl of Zetland, the Marquis of Ripon, the Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII, and the present Duke of Connaught who has been grand master for sixteen years.

But all was not peace and harmony in the 1717 creation for besides this regular Grand Lodge of England we find the "York Masons Grand Lodge" of 1775 and the "Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M. According to the Old Constitutions" which started as a rival in 1751 and was called the seceders of 1753; also there was "the Grand Lodge of England South of the Trent," being Lodge of Antiquity No. 1 which broke out in 1779 and was the old "Goose and Gridiron" Lodge which claimed to be a rival of the 1717 body.

The body, however, which maintained supremacy and could be regarded as the one having proper conditions for Masonry was the London Grand Lodge of 1717 whose day we celebrate. The others became of less importance in their influence until on December 27, 1813, we find all differences healed and the three outsiders joining them under the "United Grand Lodge of A. F. & A. M. of England" as it is today, not unlike our own union of 1792 or of Scottish Rite Masonry in 1867 whose jubilee we have recently celebrated. Thus we have "Speculative" Masonry "Free and Accepted," without "Ancients" or "Moderns" a "system of morality veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols" that gives us the tenets of our profession and our cardinal virtues.

We are little interested in how it originated or grew; a subject of interest to the historian and the antiquarian it may be, our interest is to maintain it in its purity. Masonry does not depend for its strength on length of years, but rather on the unchangeable principles that it professes which have remained unimpaired through two centuries; entitling us to claim credit for the good it has done, and with the right to expect the same conditions for the future. Symbols of material objects coming to us from a once operative organization are used by us "to impress upon the mind wise and serious truths" having for an end and aim the advancement of civilization. Our present duty is simple: to preserve the landmarks, rituals, and usages that have come to us from the fathers and to transmit them to posterity as pure as we received them. To the profane or those ignorant of our institution, when they ask what Freemasonry is doing, let us do as advised by Brother Hughan, "answer it in your daily acts and lives"; thus the world will be better for having known you as a Mason.

THE MOTHER GRAND LODGE.

By M. W. Brother A. T. Freed, before Grand Lodge of Canada.

Freemasonry existed in England at the end of the fourteenth century. How long it existed before that time we may guess, but we do not know. For the purposes of the present paper I shall not attempt to guess, but shall content myself with repeating that we know it was in existence at the end of the fourteenth century. And then it professed to be and certainly was, very old.

It was a society or guild of operative Masons. Originally formed by voluntary association of artisans for mutual benefit, it was afterwards taken under royal protection, and was granted many privileges, such as immunity from the Statutes of Labourers. On the other hand, it was subjected to supervision by sheriffs and other royal officials, who were required to be present at general assemblies of all the guilds and to take a leading part in framing the rules and regulations for their government. In no essential particular did the societies of Masons differ from those of other guilds; it was a trade society and nothing else. It is true enough that men not operative Masons, and men not in any way connected with the building trades, were members of the guilds of Masons, and of all the guilds. But that fact is easily accounted for.

In the first place, as has been said, the sheriffs, city officials and other government and municipal officers were required to be present at the general assemblies of the Masons, as well as those of other guilds, and it is not improbable that they, or some of them, were enrolled among the members.

In the next place, the employers of Masons, or the "lords," as they are called, and the architects, would desire to keep in touch with the workmen, and the workmen would be quite willing to have their countenance and protection.

The greater part of the buildings erected in those days were churches, cathedrals, abbeys and other ecclesiastical edifices, and the ecclesiastical "lords," then as now, desired to know what the members of the secret societies were doing. The Masons, for their part, were quite willing to have their spiritual pastors and masters among their membership, and to benefit by the protection that membership gave them against the crown and the barons.

But there was another and more effective cause for the acceptance into Masonic bodies of men not operative Masons. All persons engaged in mercantile business, or practicing any industry or mystery, were required by law to form themselves into guilds or companies. Where, in any town, the weaker trades were unable to maintain sodalities for each, several of them united to form one guild, and, where very few were engaged in a calling, they sought admittance into one of the existing guilds, and were accepted on payment of certain fees or fines. On the one hand, the law made it incumbent upon them to be members of some guild, and, on the other hand, such membership was of great value to them. Only members of the guilds were permitted to carry on business in the cities, and many privileges and immunities were given them by the crown. They elected aldermen and municipal officers; in fact, they were the electors of the towns in which they lived.

Thus, at the end of the fourteenth century—the date of the oldest existing Masonic documents—Masonry was:

1. A trade union or guild, differing in no essential from other trade guilds.

2. It had a charter from the crown, was under supervision by officers of the crown, and was governed by regulations partly framed by and satisfactory to the king's officials.

3. Its members, with those of other guilds, formed the electorate of the cities and towns, and chose the municipal officials.

4. Only members of the guilds were permitted to carry on business in the towns.

5. Men not Masons by trade were accepted as members of the societies, so that there were Free Masons, or men who enjoyed the freedom of the towns by reason of having served as apprentices to the trade, and Accepted Masons, or men who became members on payment of certain fees, because they had no guilds of their own trade or calling.

The rules and regulations for the government of Masons differed in no important particular from those of the other guilds.

The apprentices were to serve faithfully for seven years; they were to be zealous in the interests of their masters, to be content with their wages, to do no villiany with the wives or daughters of their employers or their fellows; were to be free by birth, no bastards, to have the proper use of their limbs, and not to consort with evil characters.

The like regulations with slight modifications, applied to the fellows of the craft, or journeymen.

The masters or employers, were to be true to their lords, that is, those for whom they contracted to do work; they were bound to attend congregations or assemblies of the craft when properly summoned; they were to take only a limited number of apprentices—none for less than seven years, and none that were bondmen. They were to pay apprentices not more than fair wages. They were not to take contracts without feeling assured that they could carry them to completion; were not to supplant others in the work they had undertaken, and were not to employ cowans or inferior workmen. If a traveling workman came to them for employment they were to give him work or “refresh” him with money, to enable him to reach a place where work might be obtained.

All classes were to be true to the church, loyal to the king, obedient to the law, loving to their brethren and charitable to the poor and the unfortunate. They were to live honestly and reputably; the employer was to pay fair wages and the workmen to give honest work. In five hundred years, Masonry, as a rule of conduct and a code of morals, has made no improvement.

So far as has been ascertained there was but one ceremony of initiation. Whether there was any difference at all between the initiation of an Apprentice and the reception of an Accepted Mason is not known.

Between the end of the fourteenth and the beginning of the eighteenth century, many and important changes took place in the religious, legal, social and industrial condition of the people of England, and these changes had a marked effect upon the fortunes of the Masonic guilds. In 1536 and 1539 Henry the Eighth suppressed the monasteries and confiscated their property, and thenceforward for more than a hundred years no more ecclesiastical buildings except churches were erected. The Roman Catholic clergy no longer had power over or interest in the building trades, and the clergy of the Reformed church, do not appear to have taken notice of them.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, the Statutes of Labourers were repealed, and that monarch gave evidence of unfriendliness to all secret societies. Indeed, it appears that proceedings were instituted against Masons for frequenting unlawful assemblies, for Coke, in commenting on one of the cases, pointed out that the indictment charged a violation of the Statutes of Labourers, and that, those statutes having been repealed, all prosecutions based on them must necessarily fail.

After the death of James the First, Masonry fell more and more into decline. We know that lodges met occasionally, and that they accepted men who were not operative Masons; but the lodges were few and the attendance at the meetings small. In 1646, when Elias Ash-mole and Colonel Mainwaring were initiated at Warrington, in Lancashire, there were but seven members present; and in 1682, when Ashmole attended a lodge in London, there were ten members present, including himself.

The rebuilding of St. Paul's Cathedral and other churches and secular structures, after the great fire in London, gave some new life to operative Masonry; but in the year 1717, the lodges of that city were few and feeble. It is generally asserted that there were but four in the cities of London and Westminster. Hughan thinks there were probably more, and Hughan's opinion certainly carries great weight.

At the beginning of the eighteenth century, there was no general organization of Freemasonry, if, indeed, there ever had been such. When a large building was in progress the workmen got together and formed a lodge. In the majority of cases the lodge died when the work was finished. There was no grand lodge or central authority of any kind to grant warrants. There was no grand master, as we understand the term. Anderson, Preston, Oliver and other Masonic writers speak of Sir Christopher Wren as having been grand master for many years, and say that in later years the lodges fell into decay because he neglected them. Undoubtedly, Sir Christopher was grand master over the Masons who wrought on St. Paul's Cathedral, and possibly over those who wrought on other buildings of which he was the architect; but it may be remarked that, if Sir Christopher ever was a Freemason at all, he was grand master long before he was a Mason. St. Paul's Cathedral was begun in 1675. On the 18th of May, 1691, Aubrey, an English author, cited by M. W. Bro. J. Ross Robertson, wrote that there was that day to be a great convention of Freemasons at St. Paul's Church, when Sir Christopher Wren and others would be adopted as accepted brethren. Thus, so far as he was grand master at all, he was grand master for at least sixteen years before he was a Freemason. In fact, he was merely the superintendent of the workmen.

The condition of English Freemasonry, then, at the beginning of the eighteenth century, was substantially this:

There were four (and possibly more) weak lodges in London and Westminster. Their members were operative and accepted or gentlemen Masons.

There were a few lodges in other parts of England, but their number is not known.

There was no grand lodge organization or central authority.

Each lodge was absolutely independent.

Masons met and formed lodges at their pleasure, and left them to die when they had served out the term of their usefulness.

There was but one ceremony of initiation and but one degree.

This being the condition of Masonry, the members decided that they would cement the lodges in and about London into a grand lodge, under a grand master, and restore the quarterly assemblies. What their motives were cannot be certainly known. One writer suggests that, as at that time many social clubs were formed, nothing more was intended than the organization of such bodies. Another thinks that the accepted, or gentleman Masons, wished to control the lodges and get rid of the operative brethren. Still another holds that the scholarly and philosophic members, finding ready to their hand a beautiful system of morality, decided to organize and strengthen it and to diffuse its benefits over the whole earth. In a paper such as this it is impossible to discuss these questions.

Be the reason what it may, a number of the brethren held a preliminary meeting in February, 1717, and resolved to form a grand lodge. On the 24th day of June of the same year (St. John the Baptist's Day) they met again and carried that scheme into execution. All that is known of those meetings is told by Anderson as follows:

King George the First entered London most magnificently on the 20th of September, 1714, and after the Rebellion was over, A. D. 1716, the few lodges at London, finding themselves neglected by Sir Christopher Wren, thought fit to cement under a grand master as the centre of union and harmony, viz.: the lodges that met—

1. At the Goose and Gridiron Ale House in St. Paul's Churchyard.
2. At the Crown Ale House in Parker's Lane, near Drury Lane.
3. At the Apple Tree Tavern, in Charles Street, Covent Garden.
4. At the Rummer and Grapes Tavern, in Channel Row, Westminster.

They and some other old brother met at the Apple Tree, and, having put into the chair the oldest Master Mason (now the master of a lodge) they constituted themselves a grand lodge pro tempore, in due form, and forthwith revived the quarterly communication of the officers of lodges (called the grand lodge), resolved to hold the annual feast, and then to choose the grand master from among themselves, till they should have the honour of a noble brother at their head.

Accordingly, on St. John the Baptist's Day, in the third year of King George the First, A. D. 1717, the assembly and feast of the Free and Accepted Masons was held at the aforesaid Goose and Gridiron Ale House.

Before dinner, the oldest Master Mason (now the master of a lodge) in the chair, proposed a list of proper candidates, and the brethren, by a majority of hands, elected Mr. Anthony Sayer, gentleman, grand master of Masons; Captain Joseph Elliott, Mr. Jacob Lamball, carpenter, grand wardens, who, being forthwith invested with the badges of office and power by the said oldest master, and installed, was duly congratulated by the assembly, who paid him the homage.

Sayer, grand master, commanded the master and wardens of lodges to meet the grand officers every quarter in communication at the place appointed in his summons sent by the tyler.

The preliminary meeting was held on the 20th of February, 1716, according to the old style, which was in use at that time grand lodge was formed and when Dr. Anderson wrote, but it was in 1717 as we now reckon time.

Steps were at once taken to harmonize the legend of the craft with modern ideas, to frame a system of regulations for the government of the newly created grand lodge, and to rearrange the ceremonies. James Anderson, D. D., a Scotchman, and pastor of a Presbyterian Church in London, was asked to undertake the first of these tasks. He procured as many Masonic documents as possible and "digested" them into a new narrative, adding such items of later history as he thought necessary. The Charges of a Freemason were also rewritten by Anderson, and are retained in the degree work in his jurisdiction.

The General Regulations (which may be called the first Constitution of Grand Lodge) were compiled by George Payne in 1718, when grand master. They were revised by Anderson and adopted by grand lodge.

It is reasonably certain that there was but one degree in the old Masonic work, used at the initiation of Apprentices and at the acceptance of members not Masons. The second and third degrees appear to have been written between 1717 and 1723, but by whom is not certainly known.

Apparently there was rivalry between the operative Masons and the accepted, of gentleman Masons, for control of the new grand lodge. For the satisfaction of the former, it was provided that the old landmarks should be carefully preserved, and that no new regulations should be adopted, nor change made in the old regulations without the assent of the majority of all brethren, even of the youngest apprentices.

There is reason for thinking that the phrase relating to the ancient landmarks merely meant the privileges and customs of the lodges of operative Masons, and that this enactment was afterwards strengthened by the declaration that it was not in the power of any man or any body of men to make innovation in the body of Freemasonry. The old lodges which united to form the grand lodge did not surrender their independence, but continued to exist by immemorial right, while lodges constituted thereafter derived their authority from the warrant or charter approved by the grand lodge and granted by the grand master.

The constitutions of the Freemasons, and the accompanying documents were submitted to and solemnly approved by the grand lodge in 1723. The declaration is as follows:

We, the present Grand Master of the Right Worshipful and most ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, the Deputy Grand Master, the Grand Wardens, the Masters and Wardens of particular lodges (with the consent of the brethren and fellows in and about the cities of London and Westminster) having also perused this performance, do join our laudable predecessors in our solemn approbation thereof, as what we believe will fully answer the end proposed; all the valuable things of the old records being retained, the errors in history and chronology corrected, the false facts and the improper words omitted, and the whole digested into a new and better method.

And we do ordain that these be received in every particular lodge under our cognizance, as the only constitutions of the Free and Accepted Masons amongst us, to be read at the making of new brethren, or when the master shall think fit; and which the new brethren should peruse before they are made.

This was signed by the grand master, the deputy grand master, the grand wardens, and the masters and wardens of the twenty lodges then existing in London and Westminster.

And thus the Mother Grand Lodge of the world was established.

Apparently, it was formed for the government of lodges in and about the metropolitan area, and its first members had no thought or desire for control of lodges outside of that territory. The National Grand Lodge was an institution of slow growth.

In 1725 the ancient lodge at York declared itself to be a grand lodge, and called itself the Grand Lodge of All England. It did not associate other lodges with it, but acted solely by its own authority. During a fitful existence which continued with intervals of inactivity till 1791, it granted warrants to a number of lodges, but had no permanent influence on Masonry in England or elsewhere.

In 1753 some Masons in London seceded from the regular grand lodge and established another, which they called "the Grand Lodge of England According to the Old Institutions." This body has generally been called the Ancient or Atholl Grand Lodge. It remained active till 1813, with growing numbers and influence, when a union was happily effected between it and the old grand lodge, under the title of the United Grand Lodge of England. Much of the Masonry of North America was established by the so-called Ancient Grand Lodge.

Masonry was first brought to this province by military lodges, but the first permanent lodges were formed by authority of the Ancient Grand Lodge in 1792, when William Jarvis was appointed provincial grand master. Some lodges were warranted by the Grand Lodge of Ireland, and one or two by the Grand Lodge of Scotland. After the formation of the United Grand Lodge of England, the Atholl lodges received warrants from the united body. In 1855, the present Grand Lodge of Canada, in the Province of Ontario, was formed at Hamilton, and may the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe rest upon it.

From the little gathering of representatives of four weak lodges, and some of the older brethren, at the Goose and Gridiron Ale House in London, the light of Freemasonry has spread to every quarter of the habitable globe. The little band has become a mighty host of about two and a half millions. All classes and conditions of men are enrolled among the brethren, from the artisan and the labourer to the king on his throne. The principles of the craft have broadened the minds of men, helped to shape the world's ethics, and influenced the laws of empires. The beneficence of Masonry has been active wherever there has been suffering to alleviate or sorrow to assuage. It has sought out misery in the lowly lot and reached the dying hero on the field of battle. It has not only been active in all good work but it has educated men into deeds of beneficence.

Day by day its influence is growing and strengthening, lighting men to thoughts and deeds of goodness, mercy and righteousness. And let us unite in gratitude to the Great Architect of the Universe for having so enlightened the minds of the men who met at St. Paul's Churchyard in 1717, that they gave to future generations the great moral force which has gone on for two centuries in its wondrous work of love, and which we trust will continue to do so till time shall be no more.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE OPERATIVE INTO THE SPECULATIVE CRAFT, THE REVIVAL OF 1717.

M. W. Bro. Wm. F. Kuhn, P. G. M., Before Grand Lodge of Missouri.

The formation of the Grand Lodge of England, on St. John's Day in June, 1717, is the base point on which the Masonic surveyor places his compass; from which he obtains his levels, and lays his chains to plat the field of Masonic history. It is the observation point on which the Masonic historian stands, as he looks backward into the mists of uncertainties and speculation, and on which he looks forward through two hundred years of recorded growth and achievements. This basic point lies just this side of tradition and uncertainty.

The Freemasonry of today is not that of 1717; neither was the Freemasonry of 1717, that of the traditional past; but through it all there runs a life that has pushed itself upward and forward from an undifferentiated mass into a differentiated, definite unity, into a reality possessed of a personality, with unlimited potentialities. Whatever may have been its origin, wherever it may have arisen, is secondary to the great fact, that Freemasonry is here, and is a living thing, throbbing and pulsating with inestimable efficacy. In its successive growth it was never a revival, but always an evolution.

To the question, Whence came Freemasonry? there have been many answers. Some are purely fantastic, others clearly absurd, while many show deep research and study. But even here there is necessarily an element of conjecture, and until more reliable data are found, this uncertainty will remain. The history and origin of Freemasonry must be traced by certain fundamentals peculiar to it. These lie in its special symbolism, in its laws and in its ethical and religious conceptions. In this research the Masonic student should be warned against two classes of blind guides—the wild-eyed Masonic archeologist, and the fantastic Masonic symbologist. There is no limit in time or space for either of them, when vagary and fancy seize the reins and drive them on in a furious pace. In studying the origin of Freemasonry, we must make the distinction between a mere secret society and a brotherhood. A secret society is the outgrowth of primitive minds and primitive conditions. A brotherhood is the product of culture and enlightenment. A secret society hedges itself about with a cloak of mystery, superstition and curiosity. A brotherhood has no secrets or mysteries, but bears within it a common bond of mutual helpfulness and a stimulus to investigation in the broad field of intellectual, moral and spiritual development.

I admit that to some Freemasons, or rather to some men who are members of a Masonic lodge, Freemasonry is a mere secret society, but let us make the clear distinction that Freemasonry is not such, but that it is a brotherhood, without mystery, whose germ is clearly and consistently pushing upward to a greater and fuller recognition of what Life means in all its relations. While Freemasonry has in it the obsolete parts of a secret society, indices of its evolution, yet these rudimentary remnants do not make or constitute Freemasonry.

The Masonic student who would trace Freemasonry to some mere secret society has plenty of fantastic material. It is an historical fact that secret societies have always existed in great multiplicity among the most primitive people and savages. It appears as an aboriginal instinct. These secret societies seem to have a common origin in the "Men's House" of the aborigines. In these men's houses gradually arose certain secret ceremonies, even degrees, typifying Youth, Manhood and Old Age, often attended with barbarous rites of torture and mutilation. In some of the African, Australian and Hebrides societies the candidate received a "New Name," and he was taught an esoteric speech. In some a hideous representation of death and the resurrection was presented, even some modern paraphernalia was used, such as masks, "bull-roarers" and other devices and equipment to impress the candidate with the important lessons. In passing, I might add that the "bull-roarers" was an instrument capable of making a prodigious noise.

The following taken from "Primitive Secret Societies"—Webster—is illuminating: "The process which converts puberty institutions into secret societies of peoples more advanced in culture seems, in general, to be that of the gradual shrinkage of the earliest and democratic organizations, consisting of all the members of the tribe. The outcome of this process, on the one hand, is a limitation of the membership of the organization to those who are able to satisfy the necessary entrance requirements, and, on the other hand, the establishment of a fraternity so formed of various degrees through which the candidate may pass in succession. With a fuller development of secret society characteristics, these degrees became more numerous, and passage through them more costly. The members of the higher degrees formed an inner circle of picked initiates. These control the organization in their own interests. The best examples of this practice are to be sought in the Australian and African tribes." It will not require a wide stretch of the imagination to find some analogy of thought between primitive minds and some modern thinkers and their methods.

Some form of secret and magical societies has always existed among the aborigines of all countries. The snake dance of the Hopi tribe is a part of one of these ceremonies. Their existence with their secret signs has caused some writers to imagine that Freemasonry existed among the American Indians and among the several tribes of the Philippines.

The Mysteries of the classic period of Greece and Rome are to some extent kindred to the secret societies of the aborigines. The Mysteries of Eleusis, of Dionysius, of Mythra, of Osiris, of Demeter, etc., embodied more culture and philosophy, and some of the best and greatest minds of that or any other age were members thereof. Yet all these Mysteries were hedged about with certain profound secrets and occultism known and communicated to the adept only. The central idea of all of them was the presentation in a dramatic, allegorical ceremony, life, death and immortality. This ceremony was monotheistic in its elaboration and strongly approached the doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. The effect and influence of these Mysteries upon the minds of men would have been greater and more beneficent if these societies had not labored under the delusion that symbol and allegory were means to conceal, rather than to reveal. These Mysteries never rose above the mental conception found in mere occult secret societies. The advent of Christianity into Greece and Rome wrote "Finis" after the history of the Mysteries.

If Freemasonry contained no more than wonderful secrets, symbols, allegories, signs, words and degrees, the Masonic archeologist would have little trouble in tracing its ancestry to the secret societies of the aborigines of Australia, of the Fiji Islanders, to the North American Indian or to the Great Mysteries. Symbols and symbolism are as old as man. It is the primeval, yet universal, language of the world. Symbols and symbolism are not peculiar to any nation, peoples, secret societies or brotherhoods, whether primitive, mediæval or modern. Symbols and symbolism are not bound down by fast rules and regulations, hence a man with a symbol can have the extreme satisfaction that, as a free moral agent, he can see in it, and through it, more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed by common mortals. Some of the most amusing stunts on the Masonic vaudeville stage are performed by the Freemason with a symbol.

The point, the circle, line, plummet, square, level, trowel and hammer; these implements of theoretical and practical architecture have always been a fruitful source of symbolism. The implement and its symbolism have been a matter of evolution. The cave-man, as he slowly evolved to a higher stage of intelligence, began to use some crude implements in the erection of his simple house of stone. A piece of flint or a stick may have served as a trowel to fill the crevices of his house with mud. This simple instrument evolved into the modern trowel of the operative Mason of today. The shape of the modern trowel is based purely on its practicability, and not on any supposed geometrical law. The maul, possibly the oldest operative instrument, has become a hammer or a gavel. The plummet, level and square are incident to the development of architecture and other geometrical sciences. It does not follow that because certain operatives used these instruments that they were Freemasons. The discovery of these instruments in old ruins, or pictures thereof cut or painted on old monuments, walls or obelisks, does not prove anything as to the history of Freemasonry. Because a Freemason has a thigh bone does not prove that an Egyptian mummy was a Freemason, because a thigh bone was discovered in him. It is related that a Freemason, with a Moslem pin on the lapel of his coat and a combination watch charm of the double eagle, cross and crown dangling from his vest, accidentally happened on some Egyptologists as they uncovered the grave of a man of the late stone age; in the grave were the remains of the man, food and other things usually found in such tombs, also a stone hammer with a wooden handle attached by withes. When the Freemason saw the hammer he exclaimed: "Eureka, this man was a Freemason and the master of his lodge, because here is his gavel." This incident may not be true, but it is in keeping with some of the eloquence dispensed from Masonic platforms and Masonic papers about "the great antiquity of our great and magnificent order."

The symbolism based on the instruments of the operative is equally ancient and runs through the literature of the greatest teachers of ancient and modern times. The Bible is rich in such symbolism. The Prophet Amos said: "I will set a plumb line in the midst of my people Israel." In Proverbs we find: "When he set the compass on the face of the deep I was there." Ezekiel in prophetic vision saw a "city four square." In Second Kings it is recorded that Jehovah "will stretch over Jerusalem a line of Samaria, and the plummet of the House of Ahab." St. Peter said: "Ye also are living stones." In the prophecies of Isaiah we find: "Judgment also will I lay to the line and righteousness to the plummet," and Zachariah said: "For they shall rejoice and shall see the plummet in the hands of Zerubbabel." These are only a few quotations. There are many other examples of beautiful and impressive symbols used by the Old and New Testament writers. This geometrical and architectural symbolism runs through all literature, ancient and modern, secular and religious. Imagery, symbols, allegory and trope are the beauty and sublimity of Biblical literature. The purpose and use of symbolism among all great religious teachers was to make clear, to elucidate, to make plain, but never to hide or conceal, great truths and precepts. Christ was prolific in the use of symbols, especially in allegorical form. His parables and allegories are remarkable for their pertinence and graphic in their power to present moral and religious truths with clearness and comprehension. He never used them to cast a metaphysical fog over his listeners.

Because of this extensive use of symbolism in literature it does not make it Masonic, neither must we in our zeal claim that because Amos, Isaiah, Zachariah and St. Peter used the symbolism found in our ritual of today that they must have been Freemasons. Symbolism based on the tool of the operative or on geometrical figures does not prove, in itself, Masonic descent, any more than secret words, signs and grips prove Masonic genealogy.

If secret societies had existed from primitive ages, and symbolism is co-extensive and co-equal with human thought, where lies the genesis of Freemasonry? The answer to this question has been the subject of much controversy and research. The most satisfactory answers can be found in Vols. I, II and III of Mackey's History, Gould's History, but especially in that little incomparable book, "The Builder," by Reverend Joseph F. Newton.

Certain analogies exist between secret societies, brotherhoods, cults and mysteries, and even with the church. These analogies do not prove a common origin, but they establish the fact that men, psychologically, think alike. There may be shades of difference, but on all great issues and truths these opinions blend into a composite whole. Gregariousness is an instinct common to man and animals. We love companionship. We love kindred spirits, and in it lies the secret of brotherhood. Gregariousness with a fondness for the mysterious, coupled with a little leaven of superstition, is the father of the secret societies and the Mysteries. It may be stated as axiomatic that the more primitive the intellectual and moral development of man, the more do secret signs, words, grips and awe-inspiring mysteries appeal to him. It is for this reason that only certain phases of Freemasonry appeal to certain members. It is stating a scriptural truism to say that as a Freemason thinks in his heart, and is able to comprehend in his mind, so is Freemasonry to him.

The symbolism, the laws, and the lofty, ethical and religious principles found in Freemasonry point indubitably to an origin in a cultured religious society of Cathedral Builders in England. There is no evidence that such a society of builders existed in England prior to the Norman Conquest, in the eleventh century. There were builders who wrought in stone and timber prior to this time, but these guilds or societies did not specialize in the building of churches or cathedrals. In a classical article on architecture in the Encyclopedia Britannica, the following pertinent statement occurs: "The existing Roman remains show that there was quite enough architecture and decorative art introduced into England by the Romans to have formed a school of Masonic sculptors and builders, if the civilization of the people had been sufficient to make them desire it. Such a school can hardly be said to have been formed, if we look at the few and comparatively rude remains of buildings certainly erected before the Norman Conquest." The same authority further states that: "When Roman architecture ceased, for nearly seven hundred years, nearly every building was ecclesiastical." The study of architecture clearly established the fact that no school of Masonic architecture existed prior to the eleventh century; after that, until near the end of the seventeenth century, such a school flourished, as indicated by the large number of ecclesiastical structures erected. It must also be remembered that the oldest document in reference to Freemasonry is the Halliwell poem, dated sometime in the fourteenth century. It is evident, without going into detail, that a fraternity of Cathedral Builders came into existence with gothic architecture from the eleventh to the twelfth century. The membership was made up of skilled workmen, not only in the practical, but in the theoretical, art of architecture and all its cognate sciences. Whence came the men who formed such a fraternity may find its solution in the existence of former societies like the Roman Collegia and the Comacine Masters.

The fraternity of Cathedral Builders was a fraternity erected, possibly, on the remains of former similar organizations, and this new fraternity was the beginning of Freemasonry of today. But what of the assembly of Masons held in York in 926? So far as this assembly relates to Freemasonry it is a myth. But while the holding of such an assembly is only legendary, it cannot be said that no such an assembly was ever held. I am inclined to believe that such an assembly was held, but it was of the "rough stone masons," and in no sense an assembly of the Cathedral or Ecclesiastical Builders.

Intellectually, in as far as it refers to the Fellows of the Craft and the Masters of this Fraternity of Cathedral Builders, they were of an advanced type. The culture and enlightenment of the age found expression in these cathedrals. The wondrous beauty, symmetry, harmony, ornamentation and color, bear witness to the skill, intelligence and scientific attainments of the members. Such work cannot come from the illiterate or unskilled, but from the minds trained in the sciences of architecture, sculpture and art. Gothic architecture, sometimes called Christian architecture, brought into use the highest skill in the practical and theoretical science of building. The keynote of the artisan was "Stability, Utility, Beauty." It can be readily seen why Euclid, the great geometrician, figured so prominently in the old manuscripts, and it has also appeared a mystery why Pythagorus was dragged, as if by the ears, into modern Freemasonry, while Euclid and Archimedes, the two great prominent thinkers in practical and theoretical geometry, have been excluded. Intellectually, the Freemason of the Cathedral Builders was an adept in the sciences.

The rules and regulations, by which the craft was governed, might be said to be an application of the Golden Rule. The ethics of these rules and regulations stand undimmed in the centuries, and may be summed up in this, that it is the duty of a Freemason "To do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly before God." It has been well said: "If as an ethic of life these laws seem simple and rudimentary, they are none the less fundamental, and they remain to this day the only gate and way by which those must enter who would go up to the House of the Lord." To be convinced of this statement, read these rules and regulations as found in the old manuscripts; they are individual to Freemasonry.

Freemasonry stands pre-eminent in its morals and religious teachings. It stands alone among secular institutions in the purity and exalted spirit in its religious conceptions. If there is any evidence, above all others, that connects Freemasonry with the Cathedral Builders, it is this golden thread of ethics and religious architecture, which is but the expression of religion in its highest development, and it has been well said: "Architecture has had its origin in religious feeling and emotions, that its noblest monuments among the pagan nations of antiquity were the temples to their gods, as well as those of the Christian nations." A prominent writer on architecture says: "With the Christian faith there rose those forms of beauty unknown to the pagan, which culminated in the glories of Lincoln and Canterbury." The spirit of the First Crusade is manifest in this new architecture and finds expression in the religious tenets of the members. Their creed was Christian and Trinitarian. In nearly all of the sixty or more copies of the "Old Charges" the following formula of belief, or slight modification thereof, is set forth: "In the name of the Great and Holy God, the wisdom of the Son and the goodness of the Holy Ghost, three persons in One, be with us now and ever. Amen." This invocation was always given in their lodges and also read to the neophyte. This Trinitarian creed was peculiar to the Cathedral Builders and remained so even under the formation of the Grand Lodge in 1717, until the adoption of "The Old Charges of the Free and Accepted Masons" in 1723. Upon the adoption of these Old Charges of Free and Accepted Masons, the formula became purely deistic; that a Mason will not be a stupid atheist," and it was "thought more expedient only to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree," viz., a belief in God, the Great Architect of the Universe. The peculiar symbolism, the lofty ethical rules and regulations, and the profound and advanced religious conceptions of Freemasons can find no other origin than that in the Society of Cathedral Builders of the twelfth century.

If such is the origin of Freemasonry, the question arises: Why should an operative craft become a speculative craft? In the Middle Ages the clergy or ecclesiastics, were the repositories of learning. It is not, therefore, strange for them to associate themselves with a society of such technical skill and erudition in the theoretical sciences. The study of geometry in its wide, practical and almost unlimited field, in so many arts, would naturally appeal to them, so that this speculative Mason was, doubtless, a member in its earliest history. The two oldest manuscripts intimate this fact, so that we are not wide of the mark in believing that speculative Masons were members in the earliest history of this Fraternity of Cathedral Builders, and their numbers continued to increase year by year. Proof of this is found in abundance in lodge minutes. Noblemen, students, scholars sought entrance, not because of any special symbolism or mysteries, but because of an opportunity for a wider and more general education and to pursue the fascinating study of the "noblest of sciences." Cook's Manuscript indicates the educational and moral purposes of the fraternity. The writer thereof says: "And, moreover, He (God) hath given to man wit and knowledge of divers things and handicraft, by which he may labor in this world, in order to therewith get our livelihood, and fashion many objects pleasant in the sight of God to our own ease and profit. To rehearse all these matters here were too long in the writing or telling. I will therefore refrain; but nevertheless tell you some: For instance, how and in what the science of geometry was first invented and who were the founders both thereof and of several other crafts as is declared in the Bible and other histories. You must know that there are seven liberal sciences, from which seven all other sciences and crafts in the world have sprung; but especially geometry, the first cause of all other sciences, whatsoever they be. The seven sciences are grammar, rhetoric, dialectic, arithmetic, geometry, music and astronomy."

It will be noted that this quotation from the second oldest manuscript shows unmistakably that one of the great ends of the fraternity was the diffusion of practical knowledge and its curriculum of studies compares well with the schools of today. Technical skill and study were paramount to any and all symbolism. There is no evidence that symbolism attracted the speculative Mason into this fraternity, or that there existed within it a school of symbology, neither did its simple ceremonies attempt to elucidate any secret doctrine or waste its time on the mythical numbers of Pythagorus. Whatever secrets were communicated were purely technical and trade secrets, and, possibly, a word and sign whereby the members might make themselves known to each other. The Fraternity of Cathedral Builders was a professional and trade society; symbolism, if any, was incidental. I do not wish it to be understood that these beautiful cathedrals were built in a haphazard way, without any attention to the ideas to be conveyed in their symbolic and geometrical structure. The cross as represented by the transept, the nave and the chancel; the pointed arch based on the equilateral triangle, every column, chapiters, entablature, arches, towers, sculpture and decorations; the whole cathedral was a symbolic expression of the religious faith of the builders. No structure ever erected before or since showed such a wealth and beauty of symbols. But this symbolism was an open and manifest expression. It was a secret revealed to the world in stone. In all the symbolism of the cathedrals there was no primitive conception of the aborigines, no transcendental moonshine nor metaphysical mist. Numbers had no mystical meaning except in so far as they were the practical application of the science of numbers to proportion in structure. The ancient interpretation of symbols was lost in the new and higher conception, and theorizing gave way to utility and beauty.

With the decline of architecture, the transition of the operative into speculative craft was easy, yet gradual, as evidenced in the "Old Charges" of Free and Accepted Masons adopted six years after the formation of the grand lodge. These so-called Old Charges apply more to an operative organization than to a speculative, but it will be observed in paragraph four provision is made for the holding of official station by the non-operative. It reads: "Who is also to be noble born, or a gentleman of the best fashion, or some eminent scholar, or some curious architect, or other artists, descendent of honest parents, and who is of singular great merit in the opinion of the lodge." The entrance of John T. Desaguliers, LL. D., into Freemasonry, 1719, and of James Anderson, D. D., at about the same period, was the pivotal point which gradually completed the transition. Dr. Desaguliers, above all others, is the great figure who changed the operative into the speculative craft. By birth, education, training, and in his associations with the scientific and philosophical schools, he was pre-eminently qualified for this work. While such of the symbolism of Freemasonry was introduced at a later period, yet, the sublime symbolism of Freemasonry is the product of this clergyman's son. In 1723 Freemasonry stood at the dawn of a new age with great opportunities and potentialities in her grasp. Although conceived and born in a fraternity of Christian architects and scholars, retransformed into a new life by two Christian clergymen, it laid aside its special creed and dogma for the promulgation of the great and fundamental creed—the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

In conclusion, I would restate that Freemasonry is a brotherhood and not a secret society; the secret signs, grips and steps in its ceremonies today, are remnants of its evolution. These remnants are a hindrance to the full glory of Freemasonry, in that they create curiosity for the aborigines of the twentieth century and a veil of mystery for the illiterate and self-seeking. Signs, grips and steps are nothing, and ritualism is only secondary to the all-embracing spirit of Freemasonry—BROTHERHOOD.
